Dear Joe:

I have your postcard and, I suppose, you have my letter that I sent you in care of the National office. You see, I could not write you because I had no address. And besides there was not much to say, except "come to Paterson".

However, now that you are at Erie please write me at length. Never write post-cards, especially at this time. If you think you can be back soon you need not write all particulars about your trip, but if you expect to stay a few more weeks, write a long letter.

I have not more time now, as the special meeting is to night, so: Good bye and good luck. Yours as ever Harry Rubenstein
