Synopsis to the Play
,,DER FRAUEN-BUND''
(THE WOMEN'S LEAGUE)

---

Helen and Kaethe Grittwitz, aunt and niece, enjoy their independence of men and their quiet comfortable life so much, that they make a vow to hate all men, and above all things never to marry. This resolution is hailed with joy by the Russian lady, Eugenie Tschaplinsky, that the three ladies form a league. The first difference of opinion these three man-haters experience occurs when a bouquet is sent to the home by Mr. Harting, without the name of the one for whom it is intended. The quarrel about the fact, for whom this delicate attention is intended, ends in a disappointment, first for Eugenie, then for Helene. As Harting, who at first, by his shy indefinite remarks, leads each one to suppose that she is the preferred one, finally, plainly offers his heart and hand to Kaethe. Kaethe joyfully consents, as she had only hated all other men, because she believed that "He" cared nothing for her.
