COVER PICTURE:

Woman suffrage was won after long and bitter struggle in an era when the female of the species was almost considered a chattel, to be seen and not heard. Today, women constitute the biggest and strongest voting block, outnumbering men by far. In today's formation of government, women occupy high positions of trust and responsibility. Their adaptability to a field which formerly was restricted to the male, they have contributed in great measure to the progress of individual cities, states and nations.

THE MAILBAG

These columns are open to all. Any opinions you may want to express will be welcomed. It is your magazine! Letters must be signed with correct name and address. Names will be omitted on request.

Dear Mr. Parrillo:

I noticed your table of contents listed your Books and Stauff column but somehow it didn't appear in the magazine. I looked all over and couldn't find it. I hope you intend to continue publishing the book news. I look forward to reading it each week. I like it because it deals only with one or two of the better books. Other papers carry too many of them and tend to confuse the reader.

Thank you,

MRS. PAUL GEBHARDT.

(Ed. note: You are right, Mrs. Gebhardt, we goofed. Watch for it next week.)

Dear Editor: Thanks for the new features in the Chronicle. They are great. The only comment I would like to make is that they seem to be a little too crowded. Keep publishing and keep sending me my copy.

CHARTER HIDDEN IN AN OAK

A Yankee trick played on a British colonial governor in Hartford, Connecticut on October 31, 1687 showed that the spirit of independence was already alive, almost 100 years before the Revolution.

The colonial governor was fifty-year old Sir Edmund Andros who had been appointed to rule in the king's name over all New England. The colonists despised him for his arrogant ways and overbearing attitude. To remove all legal opposition to his rule Andros set out to take away the charters of the colonies.

The colony of Connecticut had a very liberal charter. From the beginning of its first settlement Connecticut had pretty much ruled itself choosing its own governing bodies and magistrates. It had never had a royal governor or judge. In 1662 these rights and privileges were confirmed by a charter granted to Connecticut by King Charles II. Cotton Mather, the great New England pastor, called it "the freest charter under the cope of Heaven."

King Charles died in 1685. He was succeeded by James II who sent Sir Edmund Andros to be governor of the "Dominion of New England" with Boston as his capital. And King James ordered Andros to demand the surrender of the Connecticut charter, among others, and if it was not surrendered, to seize it.

But the people of Connecticut refused to surrender their precious charter. At last Andros came to Hartford to seize the charter in person. He arrived late in the day of October 31, 1687 with a body of royal troops to back him up.

The Connecticut assembly was in session in the General Court at Hartford. Andros strode in and demanded the charter. After much debate it was brought in and placed in its box on the council table. While Governor Robert Treat was making a long and fiery plea in defense of the charter, Andros reached out impatiently to grab the precious document. As he did so, all the candles in the room were suddenly blown out. By the time they were relighted, the charter had disappeared.

According to tradition the charter was removed by Captain Joseph Wadsworth of the assembly who escaped with it and hid it in the hollow of an oak tree. And after that this tree was known as the famous Charter Oak of Hartford, Connecticut. As long as Andros ruled in New England the charter remained hidden.

This tree was an object of reverence until it was blown down during a storm about 170 years later on August 21, 1856. The famous Charter Oak was estimated to be 1,000 years old when it fell. Many souvenirs were made from its wood, including a chair in which the lieutenant-governor of Connecticut now sits while presiding over the State Senate.

As for frustrated Sir Edmund Andros, he ruled like a despot for about two years after the Connecticut charter was whisked away in the dark from under his hand. Then over in England James II was overthrown and the people of New England rose in rebellion against Andros. He was seized in Boston and sent as a prisoner to England.

In Connecticut the hidden charter was brought out again and the people resumed their government under its liberal provisions. And with few changes the charter continued to provide the basic law of Connecticut until long after the Revolution, to the year of 1818.

ABOUT INSTRUCTION

Learning to bowl is a long and difficult process. Bowling looks like a simple game—when you are sitting behind watching. Pick up half a dozen bowling texts and all will tell you something different. Watch the star bowlers in action and you'll soon discover that no two are similar. It all boils down to the simple fact that every bowler must develop his or her own style. The average bowler has no visions of becoming a star. He can't devote the necessary time and practice to the game. Thus he should settle on the most comfortable style and enjoy the game even though he doesn't rack up those big scores too often.

Instruction helps tremendously but only if the instruction gives the bowler basic fundamentals. All bowlers must learn to get to the line easily; they must learn how to hold the ball; they must learn a few facts about ball release, they must learn the proper angles for shooting spares. These are basic fundamentals and they can be taught. But you can never teach any bowler to imitate any other bowler. At best the bowler then becomes a poor carbon copy.

An instructor doesn't necessarily have to be a high average bowler. In every sport you have fine teachers who never were much at the game which they teach. Don't look down on the 130 man who can help you. A simple tip sometimes goes a long way. Don't expect to improve overnight. Bad habits must be transformed into good habits and if you have ever tried to quit smoking you know that bad habits are difficult to erase. There are many bowlers capable of helping you improve your game. But you can't improve your game unless you yourself are willing to work hard.

Practice is the big thing. And practice with little worry about scores. Learn to do things automatically first—the scores will come later. Get the basic fundamentals down pat and then worry about throwing a hook or curve. A baby crawls before it walks and a bowler too must learn to walk to the line before he can have much success.

Always bear in mind that the individual is the key to success. The best instructor in the world can't help anyone who won't help themselves and similarly so the worst instructor in the world can help a bowler who is dead set on improving. Keep your individual style and start working from there and as Andy Varipapa says, "If you keep trying—something is bound to happen."

Mrs. Goldstein called on Mrs. McGee. "I've just heard your husband is in the hospital. What happened?" she asked.

"It's his knee," explained Mrs. McGee. "I found a blonde on it."

One fly said to another: "How's things?"

"Oh, baby is sick," said the first one. "Had to walk the ceiling with him all night."

A woman stepped off the penny scale and turned to her husband, who eyed her appraisingly and asked: "Well, what's the verdict? A little overweight, eh?" "Oh, no," replied the little woman. "I wouldn't say that; but according to that height table on the front, I should be about six inches taller."

He boasted that he could bend a horseshoe with his bare hands. "That's nothing," shot back a pal. "My wife can tie up ten miles of telephone wire with her chin."

"HEAD, HEART AND HEEL"

is a true, uncensored and astounding story. When "Uncle Don" Carney died, no one who was sane thought of eulogizing him. But everyone thought enough of him to remember him. And they still do—even if only in repeating the famed anecdote contributed to the radio Uncle. They claim Don thought he was off the air after finishing his nightly broadcast on WOR and the Mutual Network and he was reputed to have said, "Now that'll hold the little brats". The entire listening audience, supposedly, was in on this significant sign-off.

"Head, Heart and Heel", a new book by Bill Treadwell will be published December 6th, 1957 by Mayfair Books, Inc. (1650 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.).

It is the life story of "Uncle Don" Carney, fabulous children's entertainer of WOR-Mutual for twenty-seven years who as a vaudevillian stood on his head and played a piano and years later became a pioneer entertainer of early radio days.

"Head, Heart and Heel" is a true, uncensored and astounding story about the era of radio from the crystal set days to the advent of television.

"Uncle Don" made over a million dollars from his kiddie shows and spent more than he made on the bevy of women in his life, the whiskey with which he warmed the cockles of his fun-loving heart, and on the unbelievable days and nights he spent living a Jekyll and Hyde existence.

One day during the Depression, hotelman Conrad Hilton, broke and living on a loan from one of his bellboys, came upon a picture of New York's Waldorf-Astoria. The scribbled "The Greatest of Them All" across the photo and slipped it under the glass top of his desk.

On a rainy evening 15 years later, Hilton recalls in "Be My Guest," his autobiography, just published by Prentice-Hall, he stood under the Waldorf's dripping canopy, ignored by the doorman in his efforts to get a cab. In exasperation, Hilton's companion turned to the doorman and asked if he knew he was delaying "the gentleman who now owns the Waldorf." The day before, Conrad Hilton had capped his globe-circling diadem of hotels with "the greatest of them all."

THE SPORTSCENE

As seen by RON PHILLIPS

An inspiring newcomer to the boxing scene is Sammy De Marco who at the ripe old age of 18 is out to cut a name for himself in the boxing game in the years ahead for him.

De Marco is no relation to his other two namesakes in the ring in the person of Tony, who twice challenged Carmen Basillio for the welterweight title, and Paddy, the Brooklyn billy goat who was a former champion and is a contestant on the $34,000 dollar show.

Sammy would some day like to reach the top and make a name for himself in the ring as these other two great fighters have done throughout their historic careers.

WON FIRST START

De Marco in his first pro encounter of his career showed he has the heart to win. On September 28th of the current year at the Paterson Armory on Promoter Lou Duya's first show of the season, he scored a two-round knockout over Gus Robinson, also of Paterson.

This occurred at the 25-second mark of the second round. De Marco let fly a pair of good lefts and rights to the body and then to the chin; Robinson went down for the count.

CALLED KIRK DOUGLAS

Sammy is often called by his many friends, Kirk Douglas. The 5.7, 141 pound lightweight resembles the great movie actor in many ways. Sam was born in Paterson on August 25, 1939.

He comes from a large family that numbers three sisters and four brothers. He resides with his parents, James and Margaret De Marco at 77 Cedar Street, Paterson.

His father is employed by the city. Sammy is employed by the Passaic County News Company.

De Marco is now training daily at Tex Pelte's South Paterson Athletic Club. He is preparing for a future fight at Teddy Brenner's House of Upsets at St. Nicholas Arena, in New York City.

WE MUST LEAD!

Buck Rogers has jumped from the comic strip into reality, wearing a Kremlin insignia—to launch an earth satellite.

As long ago as last February, Edward Teller, one of the chief developers of the H-bomb, stated flatly, "Within ten years the Soviets will have the best scientists in the world . . ." and their launching of the satellite certainly gives added weight to this prophecy.

While brilliant graduates of science in Russia are made national heroes, asked to speak at celebrations, enter teaching or basic research fields and are lavished with rewards, we deprive our scientists of prestige incentives, frequently look down at the teaching profession and many times offer too little compensation in the pure science fields.

We need a reappraisal of our technological programs in order to regain our creative and inventive leadership. Sound progress toward any significant solution for the entire problem demands wholehearted cooperation between industry, large and small alike, and our educational institutions, both publicly and privately supported.

THE CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN

Each year, as the Christmas season approaches, the National Tuberculosis Association carries on its annual Christmas Seal campaign. And it would be hard indeed to find a cause more worthy of public interest and support.

Great strides have been made in fighting tuberculosis—due in no small part to the work of the Association, and to the financial success past sales have achieved. But a great deal more remains to be done and must be done. The latest estimates indicate that 250,000 Americans have active TB, 100,000 of them unknown to health authorities. In addition, there are 1,750,000 people with inactive TB, and 550,000 of them are still in need of medical supervision or public health follow-up. And an estimated 55,000,000 Americans—a third of the population—are infected with the germs that cause TB. Some 2,700,000 of this huge group will develop TB in their lifetimes, if the present rate of development of disease from infection continues.

Early diagnosis and immediate treatment are essential in the control of TB. Education of the public and continued research are other vital weapons in this war. The Christmas Seal Sale supports the work of the 3,000 voluntary tuberculosis associations in this country and its possessions. Significantly, of the money raised each year in local communities, 94 per cent remains within the state.

The campaign begins November 15 and will continue through December. Do your part by buying seals.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT?

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

Tuesday is Election Day. Every American has a sacred duty and responsibility to go to the polls and make his voice heard according to the dictates of his conscience.

On the local scenes, party labels are as out of date as the handlebar mustache or the double-breasted suit. There are those who would kid the people as to the vital importance of voting the straight line of one party or another. They would have voters believe that a candidate for a municipal post is a devoted party man dedicated to uphold all of the fine policies and traditions of that party on the national level.

This may be well and good for the professional politicians because a goodly portion of personal benefit results from the power to control elected or appointed officials. It does not necessarily follow that such procedure is good for the over-all welfare of the city or town involved.

Seldom does a hand-picked candidate realize his party affiliations or adherence to one major party or another. Presidential platforms or policies don't count one way or another when purely local affairs are the things at issue.

However, the average voter today has gone far and beyond the scope and understanding of his grandparents and their parents. With the advent of the tabloid newspapers, quick reading magazines and television, the electorate is quite abreast of what is going on in the world and even teenagers can intelligently discuss world-wide as well as local affairs.

So then, the trick doesn't work when the voter realizes he is being tricked. For example, a party label on a candidate for dog-catcher is sort of silly. The people want the man to catch dogs, not help John Foster Dulles keep the Chinese Red out of the UN.

There's another thing: a party label doesn't automatically endow a candidate with common sense or logic. If he is lightweight when he joins the party, the chances are he will continue to be one while a member of the party. We have seen them by the dozens.

We could go on for a long time. But space and effort don't permit to tell the full story of political activity and how the smart politicians spend a great deal of their time selecting hand-picked puppets to do their bidding and foist them on a gullible and unsuspecting public.

The simplest way to arrive at a wise course is to find the candidate who offers the most in terms of ability and understanding of what needs to be done . . . and vote for him.

NATO SOVEREIGNS GET "PEACE BOUQUETS"

NEW YORK — Forty Naval Chaplains, representing 14 NATO countries and five major faiths claimed their NATO Chaplains' Conference in New York last week by sending a floral "Bouquet of Peace" to sovereign heads of their respective countries, according to a local spokesman of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

FTD, through Interflora, its international affiliate, in cooperation with the NATO Chaplains' Conference has made arrangements for the leading religious leaders to express hope for world peace to the heads of their respective governments through the medium of a "Bouquet of Peace" made of the national flowers from each of the 14 NATO countries.

The chaplains met to exchange information and experiences in an effort to strengthen the moral and spiritual foundations in the Navies of NATO nations. They visited major NAVY Installations and met with civilian groups throughout the nation in the process of getting a closer look at the religious aspects of service and civilian life in the United States.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

A WEBSTER CLASSIC

THE SHOWCASE

By D. G.

Art Ford of Make Believe Ballroom fame, was presented with the Hi Fi Committee award for his contributions to good music through radio. No better tribute could be given a nicer guy.

We tip our hats to Charles Jones of NBC studios for the terrific job on capturing the feel and depth of Queen Elizabeth's close-ups and television coverage from Washington. Jones is a veteran at camera business especially on the detail goings-on at the national capitol.

Pat Boone, movie and television star, was named for "Outstanding Singer in the World" in the annual poll of the New Musical Express in England. He was named by the English, "Their favorite American singer."

Next Sunday, Nov. 11, will mark the 19th anniversary of the song, "God Bless America," as was introduced by Kate Smith on her radio show. Both Irving Berlin, who wrote the song, and Miss Smith, have refused personal profits from priorities and they have turned over more than $250,000 to youth groups and charities.

NOTES FROM MOVIE CAPITOL WORLD . . .

Andy Griffith had to turn down the role in the Broadway musical, "Music Man" because of his current role in movie "Onionhead" . . .

Irish McCalla, TV's Sheena of the Jungle, is about to make her first feature film, "She Demons" . . .

Natalie Wood, who stars with Gene Kelly and Ed Wynn, in "Marjorie Morningstar" at Warner Bros., did christening honors for Bob Wagner's 32-foot cruiser . . .

Mickey Rooney's son Teddy had an attack of polio, but the news was kept from Rooney until the "Pinocchio" TV spec was over . . .

PLATTER CHATTER . . .

Capitol records have put out an all-star line-up of albums including the complete soundtrack from "Pal Joey" starring Frank Sinatra, Rita Hayworth and Kim Novak, with arrangements by Nelson Riddle and his orchestra. Such familiar songs included in the album are, "There's a Small Hotel," "Bewitched," "My Funny Valentine," others.

In another album, the first from Capitol Packages, by Anna Marie Alberghetti, Dolores Gray and Murray McEachern. Miss Alberghetti's album is called "I Can't Resist you" and Miss Gray's new album is called "Warm Brandy."

Frank Sinatra is a proud papa like all the proud papas we know. Mr. Frankie has a different way of "showing off" his brood when he introduces his three offsprings to big time television world on his own show over ABC television. They are Nancy, 17; Frank Jr., 13 and Christina, aged 9.

The first little Sinatra to face the cameras is Nancy who will star on her daddy's show this week-end, with Frank Jr. being second to take to the "mikes". He plays piano and has a lightening quick disposition and wit to match. The youngest of the Sinatra clan, Christina, will make her debut on Feb. 14, Valentine's Day and will trip the light fantastic on the show. All-in-all Sinatra feels the public might enjoy seeing the three main reasons he works so hard.

New Broadway openings this week were "Square Root of Wonderful" at the National Theater, with Anne Baxter, Jean Dixon and William Smithers. The plot deals with a young housewife who tries to face reality of the life that surrounds her.

ANNIVERSARY SINGERS — Vocalists Dinah Shore and Pat Boone will be among the stellar group of dramatic, comedy and musical stars who will join in the festivities of NBC-TV's two-hour "General Motors 50th Anniversary Show" Sunday, Nov. 17. Other performers who will star in the colorcast related to the pursuit of happiness are Don Ameche, Ernest Borgnine, Eddie Bracken, Dan Dailey, Kirk Douglas, Helen Hayes, Patrice Munsel and Cyril Ritchard.

Raymond Burr, playing Perry Mason, consults with his client Sue England during a tense moment of her trial in "The Case of the Crimson Kiss." The scene is from "Perry Mason" which will be broadcast on Saturday, November 9, over the CBS Television Network.

Phil Rizzuto salutes the Newspaperboy!

Phil Rizzuto, "heart of the Yankees" from 1941 to 1955, played in 52 World Series games, more than any other player, was elected the American League's most valuable player in 1950, is very active in youth work in his home town, Hillside, New Jersey.

"I'll certainly add my cheers," says Phil Rizzuto, "to those for the newspaperboy on Newspaperboy Day."

"These youngsters want to learn to earn their own way. They're developing qualities of loyalty, perseverance and faithfulness to duty. And they're already demonstrating foresight and thrift. Many of them are planning ahead for college educations or independent lives in business for themselves by investing in U. S. Savings Bonds and Stamps."

The Treasury Department joins Phil Rizzuto in saluting the newspaperboys. These young men have distributed over 40 million pieces of information about U. S. Savings Bonds. And thousands of them are investing in Savings Bonds and Stamps—helping to insure America's future and theirs.

Savings Bonds are one of the wisest investments any of us can make. They pay $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ interest when held to maturity, cannot be lost, stolen or destroyed and are as safe as the rock-hard faith of millions of Americans.

Put your money to work for you the Savings Bond way. Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or invest regularly in Bonds where you bank.

*Part of every American's savings belongs in
U. S. Savings Bonds*
