PATERSON MAYOR FACES NEW CHALLENGES

VOL. XXX, No. 1

HAPPINESS CAN BE A TOOL FOR LIVING

By STEVE ELLINGSON

PRETTY WANDA SHANNON, NBC television actress, demonstrates the need for drapes and valances to add to the charm and coziness of any room.

The big question today is, are we making a living or are we making a life? There is a difference. Making a living can be a pretty grim proposition, but making a life is a sparkling and happy adventure.

Just as a man uses tools to build his furniture, so does a person use tools to build a life. The one who uses happiness as a tool for living appreciates, enjoys and finds satisfaction NOW in everything he has and everything he does. His conditions in life may not be all that he wants and need not represent the limit of his ambitions. But being content for the present, he can plan with imagination and work with enthusiasm. Life for him is a challenge, like being in a game.

Those who use happiness as a goal, put it off for the future and make it something to struggle for, rather than something to know and enjoy each day. Those who make happiness a goal never really know it, but those who use happiness as a tool always have it.

If living, for you has become a grim daily grind and if your imagination and enthusiasm have gone out the window, then get hold of this happiness tool. You'll be surprised how it removes those insurmountable obstacles and does away with all those problems that the future holds.

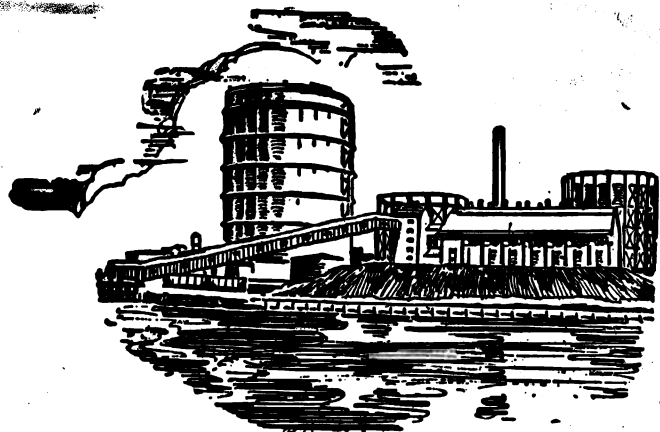

Now just to give you a little example, it isn't absolutely necessary to have valances for the windows in your home. You can get along without them if you want to. But — valances will sparkle-up your home and give your rooms a cozy finished and homey look. And a cozy home always adds to everyone's happiness. So why not have valances now and enjoy them rather than putting it off for the future? They aren't expensive when you build them yourself and anyone can build them with the full size patterns. All you need do is trace the patterns on wood, then saw them out and finally put them together. You'll find just as much happiness in building them as you do in using them.

The valance pictured here with NBC's television actress Wanda Shannon is designed to harmonize with the interior of any type home. It may be made to fit any size window. You can either cover them with material, paint them or use a natural finish such as you see in the picture. Complete details come with each pattern.

To obtain the full size Del Mar Window Valance pattern No. 115 send 35c in coin to Steve Ellingson, The Chronicle, Van Nuys, California.

PUC APPROVED TELEPHONE RATE INCREASES ARE PUT INTO EFFECT

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners has approved new basic monthly rate schedules for the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company. The Board announced its decision after twenty-four days of public hearings over a period of six months.

The company filed new rates which would have returned $14,148,000 in additional gross revenues. However, the commission reduced the proposed increase in residential rates by some $1,500,000; business rates by $750,000 and made other reductions, bringing the increase down to approximately $11,500,000 which will produce net additional earnings of $5,657,800 after giving effect to associated costs including Federal taxes at 52 per cent and New Jersey gross receipts taxes at 5 per cent.

Commenting on the State Board's decision William A. Hughes, president of New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, said:

"We asked for the minimum rate increase that we thought would protect New Jersey's telephone service. We thought we had established the need for the full amount.

"It would be unrealistic to look upon this partial increase as the final solution to the financial problems involved in maintaining a healthy communications system while the cost of doing business continues to rise. To cite just one item of increased expense, since our last general increase total wage costs have risen by more than $37,000,000.

"This is the first increase in basic telephone rates in almost nine years. In thirty years, even with this increase, New Jersey Bell rates have gone up only 29 per cent. During the same period the cost of almost everything else has risen 100 per cent or more.

"New Jersey enjoys telephone service second to none in the world. We believe that the residences and businesses of the State want good telephone service and are willing to pay a fair price to see that it stays good.

"Under the new schedule to be filed with the Commission basic residence rates will go up about 7 per cent a month.

Basic business rates will go up about 11 per cent and the adjustment in monthly rates for supplemental equipment will vary with the type of equipment.

"New Jersey is a growing state. It has growing needs. We shall do our best to make the new rates do the job. At the same time, however, we must keep our financial status constantly under review to make certain that earnings are maintained at the level required to continue the high quality of telephone service which our state now enjoys."

Semi annual dividend checks to stockholders of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Paterson were placed in the mail on December 31, 1957. This dividend, No. 267 at the rate of $1.50 per share, was declared by the Board of Directors to stockholders of record December 18, 1957.

SUBURBAN

Passaic's vacationing triumvirate of Cinamon, Grossman and Teich, basking in the Florida sun with respective spouses, have unquestionably resolved the question of the city's next magistrate. It could have been told weeks ago that Joseph Teich was slated for the post. Now the queries being made include: why the southern trek? Who paid the tab? There are more than just a few who know the answer!

The disgraceful display of rancor and the public-be-damned attitude in Garfield by 'lame duck' GOP members of the council will give definite impetus to legislation to end this type of abusive power. None too soon, either.

The renaming of Bill Johnson as Wayne Township attorney has met with widespread approval. Bill is a dedicated public servant whose tenure will reflect credit not only on himself but to those who endorsed him for the post.

Darker days face the citizens of Fair Lawn . . . Indications are that the Grand Jury will very shortly return a number of indictments against two members of the borough council and the publisher of a local weekly.

Who are the leaders of the Hawthorne group determined to break the "iron grip" of Ray Rhodes? Is it too early to discuss the subject, Joe?

As previously mentioned, New Year's Day saw the organization of the first all-Democratic council in Totowa Borough's history. A significant achievement and a credit to the fine, high type leadership of Mayor Joseph F. Ryan.

A vitriolic statement issued on the last day of the old year by the Non-Partisan League in West Paterson, and signed by Ben Rabin, stirred a great deal of wrath in the borough. First because people said it carried a number of "outrageous untruths" and secondly, the results of the December 18 special election indicated not so much a rebuff to the Rabin forces as a vote of confidence to the leadership of Mayor Alfred Baumann. If nothing else can be said, the youthful mayor is a completely unselfish public servant who seeks to improve the status of his municipality and every citizen concerned.

Incidentally, The West Paterson administration is NOT a "lame duck" administration — as the Non-Partisan League indicated.

Prominently being mentioned around the county as a "good" candidate for Freeholder is Russell V. Maggio of Passaic. Maggio, a widely known realtor, is currently serving as a member of Passaic's Board of Adjustment. He had one previous experience as a county candidate and gave an excellent account of himself.

The naming of a West Paterson magistrate remains a moot question. It was announced here first that former Domestic Relations Judge Milton Schamach was slated for the spot. However, he has resisted overtures, thus far, to accept. This column still believes he will eventually agree to serve the borough in that capacity. Don't say we didn't tell you.

On the subject of West Paterson, it deserves to be mentioned that Alfred Reda was named full time Borough Clerk. He had been serving part time up until December 31. He becomes the borough's first clerk to hold the post on a full time basis. A conscientious worker, neither Democrats nor Republicans could have found a more sincere and qualified man for the job.

He has on five occasions won the world's invitational match game title; was twice winner of the 10 year high average trophy in the National Tournament ABC competition; and twice was winner of two Olympic championships.

In 1948 he copped the ABC All Events championship. He has been chosen for the All American team seven times. Six times he has been a member of the National team match game champions.

He was twice winner of the National doubles title match games championships with Rudy Pugel, of Milwaukee, and Buddy Bomar, of Chicago.

Member of the ABC National 1956 team champions with a score of (3092).

HIS RECORDS — With a list that reads 83 perfect games, Day has made 33 successive strikes twice. He also has the distinction of having an average of 221 for more than 5,000 games.

He has the highest three game exhibition record of 879 (290-300-289) average 293; holder of 10 game record of 2,671 average of 267 1/10.

Holder of record for single block of championship play (average 251); he also holds the world's tournament record of 834 compiled on games of (300-276-258).

Ned has three times rolled back to back successive 300 games. This happened on November 16, 1952, February 15, 1953, and March 29, 1957.

Day is the only bowler to compile an average of exceeding 200 over a span of 25 successive ABC national tournaments.

CALF SPROUTS FIFTH LEG — Seoul, Korea — A five-legged calf makes the headlines in Korea. The animal is shown here with its mother. The fifth leg can be seen hanging down from behind its neck. A local circus has offered about $20. in American money for the calf.

'RESTLESS GUN' — John Payne stars as Vint Bonner, one of the fastest guns the West has ever known, whose moral sense keeps him wandering from community to community helping the underdog and fighting for right on NBC-TV's "The Restless Gun" program Monday nights.

Books'nStuff

The title character of "Huck Jones", published by Exposition Press of New York on Saturday, December 21st, stands a good chance of becoming as winning a figure as Booth Tarkington's beloved "Penrod", prototype of the American boy of yesteryear.

Embroidered upon the boyhood memories of the author — fifty-six-year-old rancher-lawyer Marcellus N. Joslyn of San Antonio, Texas — these adventures cover the eleventh and twelfth years of Huck's life (1912 and 1913) in the imaginary town of Greenville, Ill. Here we find him in the happy, bittersweet, wonderful period of "growing up" — a world of backyard cave clubhouses, castor oil, Hallowe'en pranks, pulling pig-tails, and running away from home.

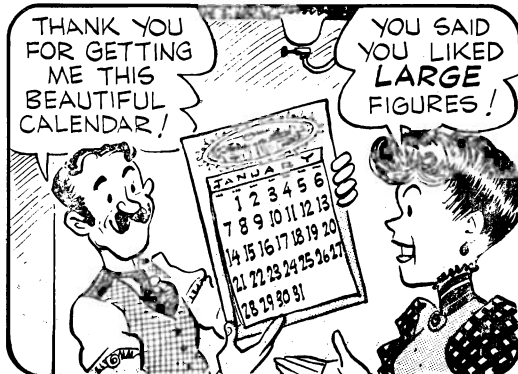

Huck wants to lead his "gang", win his sweetheart, outwit his parents and other adults, and be manly. How he achieves all these aims is recounted with rollicking good humor in a book that will captivate youngsters because its universality transcends period and locale, and adults because it will transport them back to the green years of boyhood.

HOPE, FAITH AND WORK FOR A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

We have crossed the threshold of a New Year and millions of Americans, as well as countless millions in other lands, look forward to a brighter tomorrow.

While it is an appropriate time for looking and planning ahead it is an equally convenient time to pause and re-evaluate the events in our daily lives of the year just closed.

Only by an appraisal of past experiences can any of us decide on which are or could be the most fruitful plans and pursuits of the days to come.

In every municipality, borough, and township in Northern New Jersey official leaders met on New Year's Day to organize and plan for the function of government throughout 1958.

To elected and appointive officials, as well as to every man and woman in the world, the beginning of a New Year is a solemn occasion to be faced with hope and reverence. Every citizen has the duty and the privilege of contributing toward the solution of problems ahead, whether individual or collective. Public officials have more responsibility, of course, but the approach to the solution of common problems should be none the less sober and with the dedication that the first concern shall be for the greatest good.

It has been proven time and again that no man can live alone. And if the promises and pledges made on New Year's Day could be re-affirmed on July 4, the action could give added sustenance to carry on until the end of 1958.

There is much to be thankful for with the advent of each year. If only to realize the God granted privilege of being alive, each of us would be one step nearer to understanding the God given strength to face any problem ahead with courage and conviction.

To old and new elected and appointed officials who are charged with the conduct of government we extend our sincere best wishes for a fruitful year ahead. To all citizens we also extend good wishes and the hope that each will contribute to the solution of any problem for the common good.

SUMMER IS TOO LATE

Somewhere in your vicinity next summer an ambulance may go clanging down the street and you will learn that a neighbor has been stricken with polio.

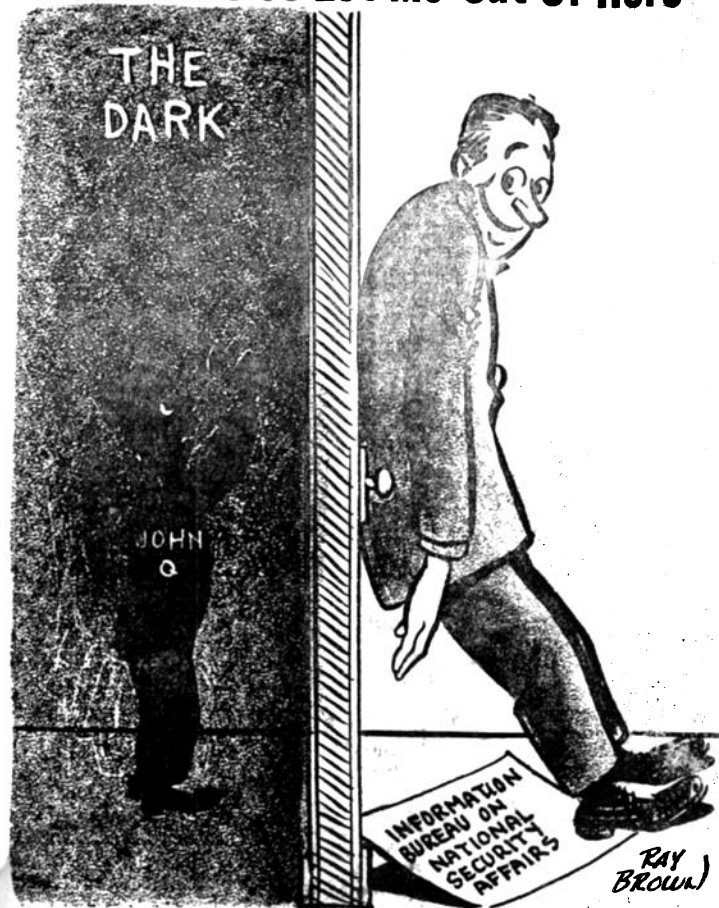

Then you remember you read about a polio drive. Of course, you meant to get your family inoculated. It wasn't convenient just then; you'd do it later; it slipped your mind.

So, at the height of the polio season, you find yourself unprotected. You shiver as you recall pictures of young limbs in metal braces. Anxiously you telephone your doctor. Yes, he says, the Salk vaccine is effective. "But," he adds, "it takes seven to 10 days for the first shot to take effect, then a wait of two to six weeks for the second shot that will provide reasonable protection."

You load your family in your car and get first injections. Days pass —and fear gnaws at your heart. Suppose the disease strikes before the vaccine builds up its defenses?

If you act now, you suffer no such fear and guilt. This is one time when delay may be fatal. The March of Dimes campaign is on now! Help them to crush polio.

"It's Time To Let Me Out Of Here"

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

One of these days I am going to make a survey to find out what percentage of time the average housewife spends in her kitchen preparing meals.

Nine times out of 10 during the day you'll find the woman of the house in the kitchen doing something that pertains to cooking.

If it isn't dinner it's breakfast or lunch. If that is done, then the kids want a snack. And I don't even want to talk about washing the dishes. My own experience with that is too painful.

What I want to tell you is that maybe in the not too far distant future you will be able to get all your meals out of test tubes, and those meals will do you as much good as the choicest steak.

Scientists have been working on perfecting meals out of a plant called chlorella.

But it isn't only chlorella scientists are concerned about. With the ever increasing population we may soon—by "soon" they mean in a few thousand years—be so short of foods we eat now that we will HAVE to resort to artificial foods.

So scientists are extending studies to cows to see what converts woody fodder into milk and delicious steaks. Some day they may be able to produce things better than nature and I hope, more cheaply.

Sometimes I think a person can go crazy reading about new-fangled ideas about housekeeping, eating, medicine, smoking and all the other things that are supposed to be good or bad for us.

A friend of mine asked for a government report on the relation between smoking and health.

The response of a secretary turned him down, saying there were dozens of reports published already.

"I recommend a heavy smoker concerned about the connection between cancer and smoking, that he give up reading," he wrote.

Unfortunately that also applies to this column. In the first place T-bone steak test tubes may not be ready for 50 years yet. In the second place, I doubt that husbands will ever want to eat them.

Let's Talk

Politics

—by O JAY

The opinions expressed in this column are exclusively those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy and opinion of The Chronicle.

With the announcement that an out-of-county resident had been designated as State Senator-elect Anthony J. Grossi's secretary, an immediate undercurrent of resentment zipped through the county.

The feeling was that after a 20 year patronage drought the party loyals were being by-passed and double-crossed.

In all fairness it must be mentioned that there were a few who recognized the move for the "master stroke" it was and realized the tremendous advantage not only to the rookie senator but to every inch of Passaic County.

Angelo Rinaldi of Englewood has been serving as secretary to the Democratic State Committee and his skillful handling of the committee's business has in large measure been responsible for its smooth operation despite intra party squabbles and factionalism.

He is held in high regard by the governor and has access to many political doors which might be closed to a new and uninitiated man. The political machinations at the state capitol require a long period of orientation before the maze begins to make sense.

In Rinaldi, Grossi has a man who is in Trenton every day and thus will be able to keep abreast of exactly what is going on between legislative sessions. The relationship between senator and secretary will be such that a phone call, if necessary, might be all the effort needed to solve a problem facing any constituent.

The salary, approximately $500 annually, would hardly warrant any loyal party worker's effort to run down to Trenton even if only once a week.

Rinaldi's astuteness and keen knowledge of political and legislative matters will make him an extremely valuable aide especially since Grossi will need time and help to familiarize himself with his new obligations and duties in the senate.

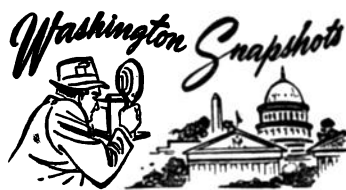

Grossi's plans are monumental. He recognizes his election as an opportunity for service which often only comes once in a lifetime. He is preparing to provide that type of service for Passaic County and with Angelo Rinaldi he has the advantage which will place him on a par with any member of the state senate.

The new senator will assume office January 14. A reception honoring him and members of the Passaic County Assembly delegation will be held the same afternoon in the Hotel Hildebrecht, Trenton.

This column and The Chronicle extends every best wish to Senator Grossi and his associates for a happy healthy and fruitful tenure.

* * * *

Alderman Sam Bruno is an outspoken man. In urging retention of City Hospital he is advocating needless waste of money. It is dilapidated and out-moded, barely meeting hospital standards. It operates without a registered nurse, dietitian and other trained personnel. Drugs requiring professional skill are administered by aides. Many are capable but it is not good practice. The city receives no state subsidy for aged or chronic patients. However, the proposal to place patients under County Welfare Board aegis will provide the best in care and $175 per patient from the state. As it stands the hospital is a burden to taxpayers. The site should be used for more productive purposes. If Bruno is interested he can find that in 1954 all three directors of Paterson hospitals recommended the hospital's closing.

EDUCATION — It is agreed by nearly everybody in Washington that Congress will adopt a measure carrying substantial funds to aid education.

Several legislators favor major provisions of the Kelley bill which was defeated last summer, particularly its provision for a five-year, $3 billion program of Federal grants, to be matched by state funds, for elementary and high school construction. There is talk of authorizing large outlays for building public college facilities. Rep. Ludwig Teller, New York Democrat, has drafted a program which also would: create a $1 billion interest-free loan and scholarship fund for graduate study, permit income tax deductions of $1,200 instead of $600 for each child attending college, and set up a fact-finding commission to investigate training and compensation of teachers, including those in colleges. In addition, the Teller measure would require the armed forces to accept recent Cordiner Report calling for pay differentials for skilled personnel.

BUDGET — Although the generally accepted budget figure for the next fiscal year has been in the vicinity of $73 billion, a possibility is that the final figure will be in excess of $74 billion. In the past week the President reportedly was urged by defense advisers to add to earlier estimates a $500 million contingency fund to be used at the discretion of the White House to speed development and production of missiles and satellites.

Administration leaders are confident that even if the budget hits the highest figure the Treasury will come through the fiscal year with a small surplus. It is acknowledged that this could not happen in the present state of the economy. Federal revenues for the current fiscal year are estimated at about $72.5 billion. However, economists are expecting a business recovery to increase tax revenues by some $2 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1.

POLITICS — Faced with urgent responsibilities — in some respects the most urgent in history — Administrations leaders currently show little interest in next November's elections.

PIRATE GIRL — Marian Stafford is the new "pirate girl" on the NBC-TV quiz series, "Treasure Hunt," which is presented Mondays through Fridays as a daytime feature and as a new evening series Tuesdays. Jan Murray is host-ess of the programs.

TO TELECAST FROM CUBA — Steve Allen and the regular members of his Sunday night NBC-TV show will score a major TV first Sunday, Jan. 19 as the first variety program to be telecast live from Havana, Cuba. Through facilities of CMQ-TV, NBC affiliate in Havana, the show will be beamed to the network via Miami.

A sailor, after placing some flowers on a grave in a cemetery, noticed an old Chinaman placing a bowl of rice on a nearby grave, and asked: "What time do you expect your friend to come up to eat the rice?" The old Chinaman replied with a smile: "Same time you friend come up to smell flowers."

"I'm sorry that I haven't a dime," said the lady as she handed the bus driver a ten dollar bill. "Don't worry, lady, you're going to have 99 of 'em in a couple minutes."

Mother: "Where have you been, Johnny?"
Johnny: "Playing ball."
Mother: (severely): "But I told you to beat the rug, didn't I?"
Johnny: "No ma'am. You told me to hang the rug on the line and beat it."

HERE'S ONE THAT PUZZLED a queen. It is said the late Queen Victoria was fond of puzzles, and that she was completely stumped by this one. Make a good English word out of these letters:

ABENOTY

There is no trick about it; just rearrange the letters to make a word. Perhaps you'll guess it immediately; then, again, perhaps you won't.

THE SPORTSCENE

AS SEEN BY RON PHILLIPS

SPORTS ALREADY "BOOMING", '58 JUST STARTING

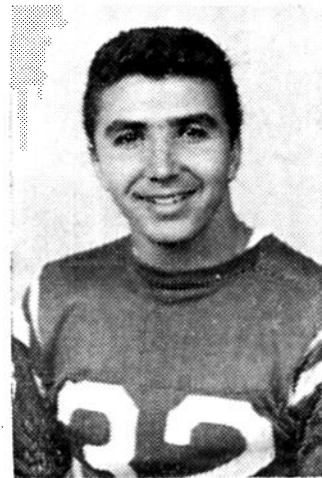

Coach Dan Dandy saw his Pope Pius High cagers down St Joe's 58-49 to cop the third annual Seton Hall Tourney.

Ted Knothe, the Eagles fine 5:10 158 pound playmaker, copped the MVP award as he scored 50 points in bringing the title to the Passaic school for the second time in three seasons.

The Paterson Dovers are high up in the standings and are keeping their fingers crossed that they will bring the New Jersey State Soccer League championship back to the club.

Last week they played a 2-2 tie with the Kosteks at Kearney in the cup playoffs and it went into darkness in overtime. Fans, come out this afternoon at Sandy Hill Park, and see them battle for a berth in the finals.

Frank Caramico did a fine job in the goal for the local team and will be back in the nets today with other fine performers, Joey Rea, Mark Johnson, Leo Von Rossum, Horace Nash, Bob Sneddon, Lou Ehardt, and Mario Ferraro.

JOHN ANTONUCCI

Mayor Leo P. Carlin of Newark has purchased four ringside seats for the monster wrestling program at the Newark Armory Saturday night January 18, sponsored by New Jersey Lions Club.

Dr. Jerry Graham of Los Angeles, and his partner Professor Roy Shires, will meet the top tag team of Antonio Rocca and Jose Miguel Perez in the main event.

Roller Derby fans saw the sport return to New York last week with the Red Devils winning 18-16 over the Chiefs in the opener at the 9th Regiment Armory on 14th Street.

WABC-TV Channel 7 will bring it into your living room every Sunday afternoon from 2:30 until 4:00 p.m. Toughie Brasuhn, Billy Bogash, Ken Monte, and Garry Murray are some of the big stars that will be performing.

Elias Gilbert, track star; Dick Savitt, tennis performer; Gil McDougald, of the New York Yankees; and Richie Haines of Montclair High School are the State's outstanding athletes, and will receive awards at the 18th annual all-sports dinner January 16 at the Newark Athletic Club.

John Antonucci, former Central High School athlete, had a fine season on the gridiron as he scored 30 points in leading the Stony Road Tigers to a second place finish.

Vince Martinez, in training at Miami Beach for his next big elimination fight against Gil Turner in Philly January 15.

BOWLING ACTION

George Gross and Chuck Pezzano are working on a joint bowling show to be presented in the last week of this month and two weeks in February.

At Paramus, the tourney will be run by Pezzano with a singles and doubles events taking place. At the Bowl-O-Mat, team events and singles will be handled by Gross.

The nation's top bowlers will be on hand. Cash prizes will amount to $20,000.

The entire World championship Falstaff team from St. Louis, will compete and the biggest names in bowling, including Don Carter, Tom Hennessey, Buzz Fazio, Steve Nagy, and Billy Welu will appear.

Entries have been received from top notch teams, in Philly, Detroit, Buffalo, and many cities along the Eastern seaboard.

"In Conference"

JEFFREY turned from the window with a little start of annoyance as the office door burst open. The man who had brushed past Miss Stacy, cut off her valuable protests by the simple expedient of closing the door and leaning against it.

Then the man grinned across the room at Jeff.

"You may as well call off the watchdog, Norris. I've been trying to get at you for days. We're going to have a nice long chat . . . about your wife."

Jeffrey caught the undertone. His shoulders straightened as he walked to the desk, pressed the buzzer and then spoke soothingly into the phone.

"It's all right, Miss Stacy. See that we aren't disturbed . . . by anyone . . ."

"That's better," the dark too-handsome young man by the door moved to a chair by the desk, slid into it and stretched out his long legs. "So you were in conference, h-m-m-m? I knew all along that the girl was living." He reached into his pocket for a cigarette and his amused eyes were on Jeff as he lighted it.

Jeff spoke into the silence. "You said something about . . .?"

Again that amused, contemptuous glance. "My name is Reagan, Chuck Reagan." He waited for a second and then repeated the name softly. "Chuck Reagan. Now, don't tell me that Lucy hasn't told you about her dear old pal. Chuck . . .?"

Jeff's eyes flickered.

"Oh, yes. Reagan. I believe that she did mention something . . ."

Chuck Reagan grinned and it was not a pleasant grin.

"Look. Bub . . . who's kidding who around here? Lucy'd bite her tongue off before she'd let you know she'd ever been mixed up with a mug like me."

Jeffrey lifted questioning brows. "I don't believe I follow you, young man . . ."

"You'll follow me soon enough." He blew a half-dozen puffs toward the ceiling before he spoke again. There was a mocking note that Jeff could not ignore underlying the words. "So you're the guy. You'd think a dish like Lucy could do better . . ."

"Someone like you, perhaps," Jeff suggested softly.

"Maybe." White teeth flashed in the man's smile but his eyes were as cold as granite as they catalogued the older man's thinning gray hair, mild blue eyes, stooped figure. "Women are sure nuts, aren't they . . .?"

"Are they . . .?"

"Yeah. I think so. Lucy, now . . . she's class . . . out of the top drawer, but she got bored sitting around waiting for you to find time for her. Maybe you'd had a fight . . . The well-padded shoulders lifted and fell in a little shrug. "How would I know? I just happened to be around and she liked the way I looked. Maybe she liked the way I wasn't too busy to send her flowers and notes and call her up . . ."

Jeff dropped into the chair behind the desk but he didn't relax . . . he sat bolt upright and there was a glitter behind the mild blue eyes . . . "This happens to be a very busy day, Mr. Reagan . . . Miss Stacy will show you the way out . . ."

The young man got to his feet easily. "O.K., Pop . . . I don't have to have a house fall on me. I just thought maybe you'd like to have these . . . for sentimental reasons . . ." He drew a flat package from his pocket and tossed it down on the desk.

Jeffrey made no move to reach for the package.

"Letters, I presume . . .?"

"Yeah. Letters."

"Blackmail?"

"Who me? Pop, you hurt me deeply. I just thought you ought to know what the score was . . ."

Jeff's fingers tightened around the stem of his pipe.

"So Lucy kicked you out, did she?" Jeff watched the banked anger behind the man's these letters, Reagan, I don't even think I'll tell Lucy you were here . . ."

"You'll read them all right, but if you don't . . ." Again the careless shrug . . . "It might be even better. Because then you'll always be wondering . . ."

"There isn't much to wonder about, Reagan . . . Lucy told you to get the hell out of her life and stay out . . . that's the only possible explanation for your being here."

"O.K." Chuck Reagan reached for his hat on the corner of the desk. "So I'm getting out of her life. But Lucy isn't getting rid of me that easy, chum, and neither are you. I'll be right there between you every minute." He sauntered to the door and paused to grin over his shoulder. "So don't get big-hearted and burn the letters, Norris. You really ought to read them and, like I said . . . you'll always wonder if you don't . . ."

The door slammed behind him and Jeff sat staring at the small packet of letters on the desk.

"Poor Lucy," he said softly, "my poor miserable child. So that's what's been the matter . . ."

Miss Stacy thrust her head around the door . . .

"I'm terribly sorry that that fellow burst in here like that, Doctor Williams . . . I told him that Mr. Norris was in conference and I tried to explain that you were in here waiting for him but he just pushed past me . . ."

Jeff smiled. "It was quite all right, Miss Stacy. I found it most educational. We had some mutual friends, you see . . ." The doctor glanced at his watch, got slowly to his feet. "I really can't wait for Bob any longer. When he comes in you can give him a message for me. Just tell him that he was needlessly worried about Lucy . . . all she needed was a nerve tonic . . ."

He took the packet from the desk and slipped it into his coat pocket. "I'm going out there now . . . to deliver the prescription."

BY WILLIAM BRODE

EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION

New Year's Day of 1863 saw many visitors at the White House. For hours the President shook visitors' hands. After the reception was over, Abraham Lincoln sat down at his desk to sign the most important proclamation ever issued by a President of the United States. His own hand was tired after hours of handshaking. He was afraid it might tremble as he wrote his signature on the paper.

A little group of men, Secretary of State William Seward among them, stood by the President's desk. He mentioned his tired hand and what others might think if his signature wavered. "They will say I hesitated, and was afraid to sign it," Lincoln said. He wanted the witnesses to know the truth. "I never in my life felt more certain that I was doing right, than I do in signing this paper."

The President picked up his pen. At the bottom of the engrossed document he slowly and carefully wrote, "Abraham Lincoln," with a firm hand. The Emancipation Proclamation was signed. Above the strong signature it stated, "... all persons held as slaves within any State or designated part of a State, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thenceforward, and forever, free..."

In print, four million human beings were freed from slavery. In truth, though, all slaves were not free from that moment. The Emancipation Proclamation was a war measure. It could be enforced only by the power of the Federal armies. But it accomplished its purpose. From the moment it was signed, the freedom of the slaves was inevitable. The abolition of slavery was now tied to the preservation of the Union as the main object in the war.

Not all the Union leaders and people of the North were in favor of emancipation. Private property and constitutional rights were confusing issues. Only a radical minority favored complete abolition. They kept pressing the President to come out for full emancipation.

Lincoln hated slavery, but his main official duty was to save the Union, with or without slavery. He moved slowly and carefully, waiting for the help of public opinion which he tried to steer to his views. On July 22, 1862 he read to his Cabinet the first draft of a proclamation he had prepared. All but one member of the Cabinet approved it after some hesitation. The President then took Secretary Seward's advice to wait for some outstanding Union victory on the battlefield before making the proclamation public.

The opportunity came with the battle of Antietam on September 17, in which Lee's army was pushed back from Maryland. On September 22 Lincoln issued his preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, freeing the slaves of the rebellious states as of January 1, 1863. This gave 100 days notice to the Southern states, but none of them heeded the warning. No one expected that they would.

So the Emancipation Proclamation was signed and went into effect on New Year's Day of 1863. The noble deed was done. "Upon this act," said Abraham Lincoln, "sincerely believed to be an act of justice... I invoke the considerate judgement of mankind, and the gracious favor of Almighty God."
