Superintendent of schools Marjorie Stansfield, is offering a reward to anyone who finds, or can give information to recover her purse; it was stolen Friday, March 7, while she was looking for her newspaper in the Haledon Sweet Shop, corner Haledon Avenue and Church Street. Her licenses, registration, school papers, keys, etc., are vitally needed. If anyone was in there that afternoon and can remember who else was there, perhaps the culprit can be found. Or perhaps he or she will return the valuables before too much trouble has been caused. It's pretty frightening to think that we have people here in the borough who will just wait for an opportunity to steal, especially from someone who serves her community so selflessly and so well.

Dr. Joseph Gorab, who graduated from the Haledon schools is certainly a credit to this community. His quiet manner, and obvious dedication to education makes him an excellent choice for superintendent of our new Regional High School. Everyone who works with him in Totowa, is heartbroken to be losing him. We can understand why. We hope everyone who is called upon in any small way to work with or for Mr. Gorab will do their best.

After the "tea", we definitely got the feeling that "our" school is equally important to all three boroughs. The ladies from the three PTA's certainly worked together beautifully. Prospect Park ladies made 700 sandwiches! Flowers were donated, set up, and taken out again by quietly efficient employees of Morningside.

President of board of education, Anthony Barnish, got back from a business trip to New Orleans in time to attend the tea.

Paul Engold, deputy chief of police will receive a silver life membership pin from Local 114 of the PBA. They present these awards to members attaining 25 years in the local. Engold is now serving his thirtieth year in the borough.

About $400 has been collected for the library fund, from the cannisters that have been returned. There are about 25 cans still to come in.

Parents are notified by the board of health and Miss Marjorie Stansfield, that they are responsible for reporting any communicable disease their children contract, to the registrar of vital statistics, Dorothy Buschmann, LA 3-3433. Although your doctors may say they will notify her, parents should also do it, as a double check. The children will not be allowed to re-enter school until the letter Mrs. Buschmann sends to the parents, is complied with, and sent back to school with the child.

Mary Bolan, 325 Central Avenue, returned home from the General Hospital last week after she underwent minor surgery.

A cake sale will be held by the PAL in the offices of J. Henry Vitz today (Saturday) at 29 Church Street, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., or until they run out of cakes.

Delightful fashion show held Wednesday night, by the PTA in the Absalom Grundy School. School board committee meeting was being held in the Kossuth Street School. Regular meeting of the school board will be held Wednesday, March 19, at 8 p.m.

Borough tax collector, Joseph Garbaccio, has announced the transportation checks for students who attended school (Central or Vocational High) from September 1957 to February 1958 are available, and may be picked up at the tax collector's office, 408 Morrissee Avenue, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Acting chairman, Frank Yannucci led the recent Democratic Club meeting, where their candidates spoke, and plans were made for their Spring festivities. Tentative plans call for a smorgasboard, drums; will join with Ernest "Hap" Ford as Mr. Interlocutor, and the following as "end-men".

Hospitality co-chairmen for the evening were Jim and Beth Parker, and Ed. Smith.

President Tom Cortese of Haledon Fire Company No. 2 has announced, "all Saturday night tickets sold out, for the minstrel. Standing room only for Saturday, with only a very few Friday night tickets left." The Minstrel and Gay Nineties Revue, will be held on Friday, March 21 and Saturday, March 22.

Chairman Charles Calabrese and co-chairman Eleanor Muilenburg and members of their committee, have planned a bigger and better show than last year. All cast members are urged to be on hand Tuesday, March 18, for dress rehearsal.

Ray Barker, director, Phyllis Oropallo, pianist; Grant Krumb, Charles Brady, as "Short Stuff"; Lou Coral as "Mr. Fass"; Eleanor Muilenburg, as "Snowflake"; Tom Cortese, as "Domino"; Hank Manger, as "Lightning"; Dave Maffei, as "Loud Mouth"; Arlene Block, as "Jezebel"; Norman Neggia, as "Dapper."

Two meetings held Monday and Tuesday night with mayor, council, borough engineer Bob Spinnler, borough attorney, Joseph Fumagelli. First meeting was held in Pompton Road Firehouse, with residents of Central Avenue Area; second with Grove Street residents. Both were well attended; thorough discussed. Both areas will receive questionnaires from the council, to be filled out by the residents and returned to the council. After compiling results, decisions will be made, and if required, action taken.

June Gamble's Ceramic Studio is scheduled to open Friday, March 14, at 212 Belmont Avenue.

The local board of education is waiting for a report from Harold Myers, from the State Board of Education, on the relative merits of the Beggs-Ellis sites and the municipal tract, before taking positive action.

Community Band Association will hold a band concert and variety show at the Eastern Christian High School, May 2. Money raised will be used to buy uniforms. Members are canvassing for ads, boosters and patrons for the program book.

Antoinette M. Vandemeulebroeke, has been announced as being on the Dean's List for Seton Hall, for the day students of the Paterson Division, for the fall, 1957, semester. A 3:50 quality point average is required. She's a senior.

School board member Bill Ross definitely will not rescind his resignation from the local school board. After his 10 years experience was completely disregarded, when it came to electing officers on the board, and when politics kept rearing its head, Ross got disgusted and evidently couldn't take any more. It will be interesting to see who will be appointed in his place.

Leonard Garbaccio received a thirty year service pin, from the Exempt Firemen's Association, after he retired at the December meeting as treasurer. Refreshments were served and John Hook, was elected as the new treasurer.

The Volunteer Hose Company held a farewell party for Anthony VerHage, Jr., who will be inducted into the Army at the end of March. He and his recent bride live at 330 North 10th Street.

Last weekend, thieves attempted to rob the Haband Company of North Ninth Street. They didn't get anything for their trouble, but they did ruin a two thousand dollar safe.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bagert, 281 North 13th Street, are the parents of a baby girl, born 2:05 a.m. Sunday.

SUBURBAN

The West Paterson Democratic organization is busily engaged in checking the petitions of the independent candidates for the councilmanic board. Reports indicate, according to Democratic leaders, that quite some of the names are possible forgeries. There will be more on this matter shortly.

* * * *

The hassle which developed at the West Paterson mayor and council meeting regarding the water main break last Sunday in the borough's Notch section didn't do taxpayers much good. Official meetings of the borough council should be conducted with decorum and in the best interests of current community problems. The Democratic minority members could have fired their prepared statement at a more propitious time.

* * * *

George Baldanzi of Hawthorne, nationally prominent labor leader, appears to be the popular choice to become national president of the AFL United Textile Workers to replace resigned former president Anthony Valente. The organization's convention is currently underway in Washington. It would be interesting because insiders say the proposed merger between TWUA and UTW would never materialize. George was former vice president of the CIO group, forced out by top leaders. Baldanzi is highly regarded in the south. There would be a definite and widespread boost in UTW membership.

* * * *

Several members of the Fair Lawn police department are reportedly uneasy lately and not sleeping too well.

* * * *

Senator Anthony Grossi's Haskell office appears to be paying off. A number of citizens are happily spreading the good word that "at last there is some action on the entire area's water problem."

* * * *

One of the more efficient employees of the State Motor Vehicle Department is the charming Miss Kitty Nill. Her state house office desk is a beehive of activity which would stagger the average girl. However, she manages to take care of the myriad demands with courtesy and dispatch. A rare combination, indeed.

* * * *

The barrage of verbal and written campaign fodder being hurled at GOP leader "Mitch" Donato in Little Falls bothers him not at all. Donato, who serves as Township attorney, is the target of Committeeman Dr. James Stokes. The doctor might well expend his energy on discussion of issues facing the voters.

* * * *

Recent developments in Haledon indicate the stature of Mayor David Brown has increased to greater proportions than ever. Reports emanating from the Ford-Cona camp point to considerable unrest among group members.

Present Economic Conditions Given Priority Attention

The economic situation now takes first place in legislative planning by both parties. Few measures are getting much attention unless they bear directly on the problem of increasing employment. The problem of Pentagon reorganization, which only a few weeks ago was considered of the highest importance, now is seldom mentioned.

The rush action last week of the Senate Banking Committee to approve a multi-billion dollar housing program symbolized the desire of lawmakers to take effective anti-recession measures speedily.

In the field of public works, the President has indicated approval of speeding up existing projects, while taking a dim view of the effectiveness this year of new projects, due to the lag between authorization and implementation.

Although the official position of the Administration continues to be that no tax reduction should be enacted this year, except as a last resort, predictions by individual Congressmen are getting more numerous that a general cut in income tax rates will be voted "this spring." It is apparent that a tax-cutting drive would already be under way but for fears that the consequent boost in consumer spending power will drive prices higher. Now more and more members of Congress appear to be willing to take that chance — rather than be criticized by constituents for "doing nothing." A tax cut still might be headed off if April economic figures should indicate that an economic upswing has started.

You Can't Eat Taxes, But —

You can't eat taxes.

You can't wear taxes.

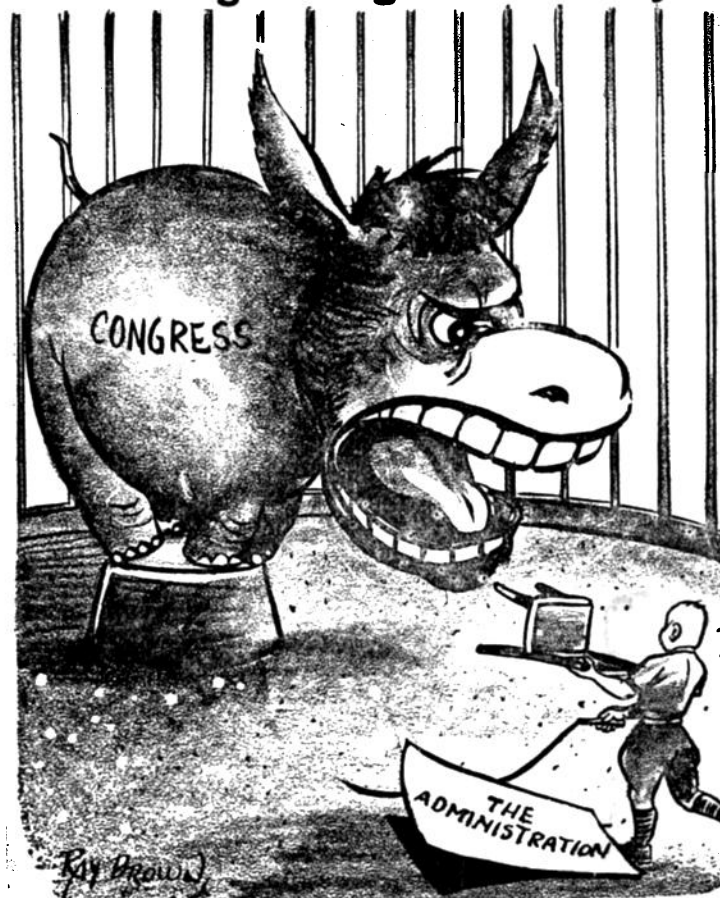

But you must pay more for taxes than you do for food and clothing combined!

We have reached the point where the tax burden is the largest single item of expense to millions of American families. Many of us haven't yet realized this for the reason that a substantial part of all taxes are paid indirectly — that is, they are part of the price we pay for an automobile or a loaf of bread or a pair of shoes or a ticket to a show. But we pay the full bill just the same — whether the money is handed over directly to some tax-collecting agency, or whether it is concealed in the cost of goods and services.

It is generally believed that the danger point to a nation's strength and vigor is reached when taxes account for 25 per cent of the national income. Our taxes have left that figure far behind — about 33 per cent of the national income goes for taxes.

You — the average man and woman — pay the tax bill. You will be the gainers if and when the cost of government is cut.

Facing A Tougher Adversary

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

There are times when I feel very much confused with myself for writing about things of trifling character. For after all, aren't there more important things to write about? Yes, there are, but don't the small things which seem of squeamish nature to you develop into monstrous problems?

It is for this reason that more or less this column is on the human interest and light side of life.

I must be on the sucker list because here are some of the questions asked of me from some of the readers:

"Would you rather live in the city or the country?" The latest survey that was taken shows that country people think the city is a better place to live in, and the city people think vice versa.

One wrote in that the city is the place for the ambitious if you are young, and that the country is ideal for older people, especially those who have and get all they want out of country living.

Another one wrote that he has a hundred dollars saved and wants to travel down South and marry one of those Southern belles he has heard so much about.

To this bachelor who is willing to get married I would say to get a round-trip ticket so that he would at least get back home just in case the Southern belles aren't responsive to a Northerner.

I don't know if silly items like this interest you. It is quite definite that they interest me.

Maybe I should see a psychiatrist. But then, what does a psychiatrist do to you? He puts you on a couch and he asks you questions. You relate to him all the little things that happened in your life. It is for this reason that I have come to the conclusion that there is something important to items of trifling nature.

Let's Talk

Politics

—by O JAY

The opinions expressed in this column are exclusively those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy and opinion of The Chronicle.

A candidate hardly more than a week and Ralph Gambatese, in quest of a freeholder berth, is hard at work campaigning. Armchair strategists claim he will run high man on the ticket. Recent rumors are that Police Commissioner Louis Aquino would be asked to step down from his post in favor of Housing Authority Chairman

Wegner

John Wegner, Jr., are completely unfounded and without any basis whatsoever. According to politicians close to the mayoralty office, Mayor Edward O'Byrne will soon be taking a vacation on advice of his physician. It seems hizzoner is ill. There is a definite undercurrent through Paterson pointing to an alleged investigation affecting one of the principal municipal boards. According to reports, there are at least eight persons subject to scrutiny. When the matter pops, it should make interesting reading. Joseph Brumale, Democratic congressional candidate, busy studying the unemployment situation which a number of GOP leaders seem to be overlooking. Things are just a trifle worse than that which the general public is being led to believe. But it seems you just can't convince those who are pounding the Employment Security office daily. Nicholas Cuccinello, staunch labor leader scheduled to become a member of the Passaic Valley Sewage Commission if and when the local patronage question is resolved, will not be a candidate for re-election as business agent for Dyers Local 1733. As of May 1, Nick will be among those unemployed unless the unexpected happens! The "knothole" boys report that Joelson will remain as acting prosecutor, at least, until November! While the much vaunted and heralded fusion slate of candidates failed to take advantage of filing, many of them still remain about the area not in accord with Democratic nominees. No matter what happens between the present moment and November, the election is not going to be a cinch for either side. As predicted here,

With a three-way Democratic fight for the Third Ward aldermanic post, it now appears that Leo Scialla can emerge victor. Some of his backers are those who formerly put Alderman Sam Bruno into office . . . GOP grapevine reports say that former Street Commissioner William Turner will be soon named to a post at the County Jail . . . PBA election experts are picking "Ed" Callahan over incumbent "Bill" Kearns for the presidency.

ACTIVITY — The level of basic production activity edged upward in the latest week. The principal factor was a sharp rise in paperboard output, long widely respected as an indicator of things to come. Electric power production also rose. These gains more than offset dips in output of steel and lumber.

OUTLOOK — Economists have been studying all business figures in which a clue can be found to the probable date of the coming upturn. The most hopeful indicator was reported last week. The National Association of Purchasing Agents reported that in February 24 per cent of reporting companies had a larger volume of new orders, compared with only 15 per cent in January. Some 31 per cent reported a worsening of their new order position, compared with 48 per cent in January.

The general trend still appears downward, however. It takes time for new orders to be reflected in improved employment.

So far this year, steel production is lagging about 43 per cent behind the record pace of a year ago — but in the last week or two it has steadied and shown modest rising tendencies. Automotive assemblies, running about 30 per cent behind a year ago, rose slightly last week. Department store sales now have dipped to a level four per cent behind the first two months of 1957, although this decline is attributed more to unfavorable weather than to shrinkage of consumer spending power.

There still are expressions of strong confidence that the U. S. economy will bounce back later this year. President Carrol M. Shanks of the Prudential Insurance Company, predicted last week that the gross national product this year will top the 1957 figure ($434.4 billion) by $10 billion to $11 billion.

COLORFUL — Rosemary Clooney has been called a colorful singer because of her versatility and personality. The term is now further enhanced by her "Lux Show" colorcasts each Thursday on NBC.

A well-known elder statesman, invited to address a prominent women's club on the Chinese situation, carefully boned up on the subject and prepared a brilliant paper. Upon meeting the chairwoman, he inquired how the club had come to require a talk on China.

"Oh," the lady explained sweetly, "we're having a chow-mein luncheon, and wanted something to preserve the spirit of the occasion."

"I see here," said the husband, glancing up from his newspaper, "that The Ford Foundation just gave away $20,000,000!"

"Really?" gasped his wife. "What was the question?"

My neighbor's three-year-old daughter loves dogs. One day while she was playing in front of her home she saw a huge boxer down the street and ran toward him, shouting, "Hi, doggie! Hi, doggie!"

The dog bounded to her, stopping just when they were nose to nose. She gazed up at him a moment with a puzzled expression, then breathed, "Hi, horsey!"

"These aren't my snapshots . . . But I'll take them, anyway!"

CLUB DATE—Helen Grayco and Spike Jones will pull some of their most boisterous shenanigans when they are guests at "Club Oasis" on NBC-TV Saturday night, March 29. The club may have to be refurbished when Spike and his friends get done with their famous brand of musical high jinks, but everyone — including the sponsor — agrees it's worth it.

IN TIME OF 'THE TROUBLES' — Film and stage star Julie Harris will portray a Daughter of Charity sent as a nurse to an enemy hospital in the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" NBC colorcast of "Little Moon of Alban," an original TV play by James Costigan, to be presented Monday, March 24. Co-starred with her will be Christopher Plummer (right) as a young English lieutenant recovering from surgery, and Barry Jones as the doctor. The play is set in Dublin in the time of "The Troubles," the Irish rebellion of 1916-1921.

"I'm through with Millie," Flip Denham told himself.

Millie was a silly thing. He should have been through with her long ago, he told himself. Oh, she had been all right when he didn't have anything—didn't know anything. Now that he'd got in with the Rutgers gang Millie was out. Why, she wasn't even good looking! Didn't have class. He'd get a real girl. He'd just have to tell her that he was through—that was all. Tell her—and she'd whine and cry—and get out, and he'd be free. Free for the Rutgers gang and a new girl. A girl he could talk to. A smart baby.

He changed his clothes. From his pockets he took out a lot of trifles, a silly doll's head just about an inch high with glittering beads arranged as a headdress and collar—it had been a souvenir of the opening of a third-rate night club—some peppermint lozenges, cards he'd gathered, cigarettes.

Then, very carefully, he took out something else. A long, glittering white snake of pearls. His fingers caressed the necklace.

"Over a hundred grand!" he told himself.

The pearls meant more than just pearls—as if that wasn't enough. It means that the gang trusted him. He hadn't done the actual work of getting them—but he was going to do the work of getting rid of them. He wasn't known—not as part of the gang, anyhow. He knew ways of disposing of valuable things like pearls. He'd told Rutgers, himself, about them. And Rutgers and the others agreed to give him a chance. His big chance. If he couldn't get a price for them he could give them back—but it would mean his usefulness with the gang was over. If, God forbid, something happened to the pearls he was through—forever. The gang had ways...

He put the pearls in a sock, wrapped the sock with its empty mate, stuck the little blue bundle under his other socks, and closed the bureau drawer.

He put on his blue coat, surveyed himself in the mirror. Not bad looking. He wished he was a little taller, but, after all, a lot of important men weren't tall. Look at Napoleon. He put his cigarettes back in his pocket, crumpled up the cards, popped a mint lozenge into his mouth. Then, because he didn't have anything to do until Millie arrived, he unwound the red and green beads from the doll's head, twisted the strand idly around his finger. The bell rang. He put the doll's head and the beads back on the dresser, threw the packet of mints on them, went to let Millie in.

He greeted her with a semblance of love.

"How are you?" he asked. He didn't care how she was.

"I'm tired. They worked us so hard. A sale. I'm dirty, too. Didn't take time to wash up. You don't care if I fix up a bit?" She held up her hands to show how dirty they were. A silly girl, thought Flip.

She went through his bedroom into the bath which opened off it. Flip sat down in a chair in the living room and read the paper Millie had brought. He was reading a prize fight story when he became aware of Millie in the bedroom.

"What are you doing?" he called. His voice was not gentle.

"Straightening up a bit—you always leave things so—"

"Let things alone. I'll straighten them if they need straightening." She was forever tidying up his things!

"All right." Her voice was gentle, as always. Then, "Can I have these pretty beads?"

That doll head and those silly glass beads! "Of course," he said. "You can have the doll, too."

In a minute she was back in the room. They went to a shop house in the neighborhood. Flip ordered a steak for both.

Well, he'd have to start. No. This minute. "Millie," he said, "this is going to be a blow to you—well, try to see my viewpoint. The fact is, we don't seem to get along so well any more."

"Don't get along?" She looked frightened. "No, well, I'm busy and—well, the truth is, I'm not going to see you any more."

She looked stunned, didn't say anything.

"You take this," he said, and reached into his pants pocket. He took out his wallet, kept back two ten dollar bills, gave her the rest. It was a thick roll. What difference did it make! He was in the money, now!

He half expected her not to take it. Instead, without saying a word, she opened her bag, put the money in and waited.

"I'm going away," she said finally.

He called the waiter, paid his bill.

They went out of the restaurant together.

Separated on the sidewalk.

Well, he was through with that!

Flip went by Lew Held's place—Lew was Rutgers' right hand man. They had a couple of drinks. A few of the fellows dropped in and Flip stayed on, listening, trying to learn.

Why, this racket was easy! He'd know the whole thing before long.

He stopped in at the saloon and had a few more drinks before he went to his rooms. He wasn't exactly drunk but was feeling high.

He turned on the light in the living room looked around. Everything in order. He gave a sigh of relief. Not that anyone knew about the pearls, would break in, but you never can tell.

In the bedroom things were in order, too. He walked over to the dresser—and there were the little red and green beads. Funny Millie had asked for them. And she'd taken the doll's head. And she'd straightened up. Could she have gone into his dresser drawer? She had, in the past, straightened up his things—

In such haste, he broke a finger nail. opened the drawer. He could hardly breathe. He reached in the bottom of the pile for the sock with the pearls in it. All the socks felt alike! He took out the socks. Examined each one. The necklace was gone!

Millie had taken it. It must have been Millie. Of course. She'd called them beads!

Without a hat he slammed out of the house, jumped into taxicab, went to the rooming house where Millie lived. It would be easy enough to get them back, of course. She was planning to leave town, but he knew Millie. She was a slow poke. She'd probably come around tomorrow trying to make up with him.

He must get the pearls back. Of course. Everything depended on that. His future—his life, even. He rang the bell. The landlady opened the door.

"When will she be back?"

"She ain't coming back. Just paid me for the week and left. In a hurry, it seemed."

"Where did she go? Which way? Did she say if she was taking a bus or a train?"

"Didn't say. Just had her bags packed and gave me the money."

"Didn't she say anything?"

"Nothing, except she muttered something I didn't quite get about she and somebody going through."

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

COTTON GIN INVENTED

On March 14, 1794 a young man, 29 years of age, patented an invention that was to have a tremendous influence on the course of American history. His name was Eli Whitney, and his invention was the cotton gin, a machine for cleaning cotton by separating the seed from the fiber.

Eli Whitney was born and raised on a farm in Massachusetts. He showed unusual mechanical ability at an early age. He was very clever in mending and making all sorts of things. At Yale College, where he graduated in 1792, he earned his expenses by his mechanical skills.

Soon after his graduation from Yale, Eli Whitney went down South to look for work. On board the ship that was carrying him to Savannah he met Mrs. Nathaniel Greene, widow of the Revolutionary War general. Mrs. Greene was so impressed with young Whitney that she invited him to stay at her Georgia plantation. There he made himself useful by his skill in fixing and making household and farm items.

Cotton was an important crop in Georgia. The spinning and weaving mills of England could use more cotton than the growers could supply, and there was a good price for all the cotton that could be shipped. The big problem with cotton was not the growing of it, but the cleaning. A negro slave could clean about a pound a day by hand. The planters talked a lot about how wonderful it would be if a machine could be invented to clean the cotton.

Mrs. Greene heard some of her planter friends say that such a machine would be a great thing for the country, and with it all the people of Georgia would soon be rich. "Gentlemen," she said, "why don't you apply to my young friend, Mr. Whitney. He can make anything."

Eli Whitney applied himself to the job of making a machine that would clean cotton. He soon had a model made, and after some further work and experimenting he built the cotton gin. It was a simple machine that picked the fiber from the seed by means of a revolving wheel with teeth. It worked. After some delay he got the cotton gin patented on March 14, 1794.

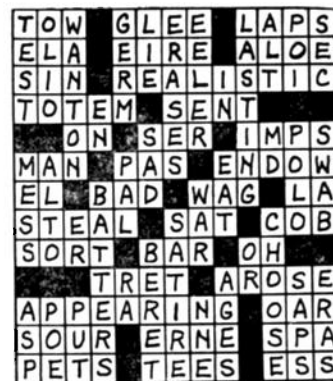

Eli Whitney's invention was a great success. It certainly helped make the cotton planters rich and boomed cotton as a crop all through the South. The inventor, himself, made only a small profit from the cotton gin, and he never felt that he had been adequately repaid.

But the South at large benefited enormously in wealth. With the cotton gin a worker could clean as much cotton in a day as 200 workers could by hand. In a few years after Eli Whitney's invention cotton growing became the chief Southern industry. Two years after the gin came into use the United States exported ten times as much cotton as before. And this was only a beginning of the enormous cotton exports from Southern ports.

It can be said that the cotton gin promoted slavery in the South. Slave labor was very profitable for raising cotton and the new invention brought vast extension of cotton growing lands. The plantation system with its slave labor became a fixture in the South, and slavery, itself, a profitable and expanding institution.

Below the Mason and Dixon line, from Virginia to Texas, King Cotton became a mighty monarch sitting on the throne of Eli Whitney's cotton gin.
