Looking on as the cash changes hands is Bruno Chicharella, assistant fire chief. Ramella is patron list chairman. The entire fire department canvassed the borough seeking contributions.

COVER PICTURE:

NBC-TV will telecast the 10th Annual "EMMY AWARDS" ceremonies live from Los Angeles and New York Tuesday, April 15. The cover picture layout offers an alphabetical listing of the five nominees in each of four leading categories for the Emmy Awards. Space is provided for the readers to check off their own choices and compare them with the winners who will be announced on the telecast of the ceremonies Tuesday.

CONTEST

Name them--

and Win a Twenty-five Dollar Bond!

Watch next week for the contest sponsored by "The Chronicle" in conjunction with Haledon's Fiftieth Anniversary Celebration. The rules follow:

You must be a Haledon resident. If you can name all the men, who will be pictured on next week's cover, members of the 1907 "Haledon Thistles" you can win a Twenty-five Dollar Bond.

The contest will run for two weeks, from April 19 to May 3.

Even if you can't name them all, maybe you'll have the longest correct list, which may make you the winner.

The owner of the picture is the only one who knows the complete correct list of names. This list is safely locked up at the borough office. Entries must be mailed to the Haledon Library, 387 Belmont Avenue, along with your name and address.

Entries must be enclosed in an envelope and be sure to write "contest" in the lower left hand corner, so all envelopes can be opened at once, before a committee. The longest correct list, with the earliest postmark will win the bond. Chronicle subscription blanks are available at the Library and at the Parker Studio, 391 Belmont Avenue. Any subscriptions to this weekly magazine sold during this three week period, will have One Dollar deducted and donated to the Fiftieth Anniversary Committee for use during this year's celebration.

Members of the Fiftieth Anniversary Committee and their families are not eligible to enter the contest.

For more information contact Frances Molendyke or James Parker, Jr., co-chairmen of the contest.

TRI-BOROUGH

Sophomore Carol Hensel, 91 Ballentine Drive, North Haledon, and freshman Lois Minero, 12 North 15th Street, Haledon, were named to the dean's list at Paterson State Teachers' College for the first semester's work. Incidentally, the State Board of Education recently announced new names for New Jersey's six teachers' colleges. They will be just state colleges now, eliminating the word "teacher's". Education Commissioner Frederick M. Raubinger said the main function would still be to prepare teachers, but in the future these college facilities would probably become multi-purpose, hence the change in name. So, in this area, it will now be known as Paterson State College.

HALEDON

One of the pleasantest and hardest jobs I've had recently, was helping to judge the home made Easter bonnets, in the parade at the Absalom Grundy school last week. As Miss Stansfield said, she was delighted and amazed at how much time and effort went into these creations, and so was I. There were three categories to choose first and second place in, and believe me, it took all our wits to try to do a fair job. The prizes were won by Joseph Steyh and Roy Van De Voort, first and second respectively for the most original hats. First and second choice for the funniest hats, went to Tommy Ebersback and Sam Wyckoff. The prettiest first and second prizes went to Marilyn Miller and Roberta Barbarino. Those who served with me as judges were Mrs. Margaret Aquadro, president of the PTA; Mrs. Isabelle Pabian, representing the teachers of the Kossuth Street school; Mrs. Marjorie Fleckenstein, teacher of our special class for trainable children; and Ann Tinette Meeter, a practice teacher, serving in the fourth grade.

The teachers had on some home made creations too, and three student judges, Charlotte Rountree, Leanne Bracigliano and Linda Rogers, chose the hat worn by Mrs. Ellen Snyder, first, and the one worn by Mrs. Bette Joffe, second. Mrs. Mae Dorcas introduced the judges and the prize winners.

Afterwards, all the bonnetted ones, paraded outside the school for the parents to see, and to take pictures.

Many Easter parties were held in the classrooms of the lower grades who did not participate in the parade. Best of all, when the children in Mrs. Grayson's first grade came into school after lunch on Thursday they saw white, powdery footprints, evidently made by an advanced scout for the Easter bunny who had delivered party supplies.

While at the school, I visited our special class and noticed that their piano is practically Kaput! Last year the Rotary Club solicited pianos for this class and only this one was donated. It was ancient then, but all felt at the time this would serve temporarily, until a replacement came up. However, such was not the case.

So, if any group or organization would like to undertake a really worthwhile project, we could use a better piano. We would prefer a small one, or one that could be cut down so that while the teacher is playing she could see and lead the children. Anyone interested in offering help or information can call me at MU 4-8829 or write the Chronicle, 170 Butler Street, Paterson, and just write "Piano" on the corner of the envelope.

Friday, April 11, the PAL held a dance at the firehouse on West Broadway. The dance was held from 7:30 to 10:30 for members and their guests. No one was admitted, wearing dungarees.

Kevin Arthur McKim had the song "Lollypop" dedicated to him on his birthday last week on Disc Jockey Johnny Pearson's show on station WABC. Kevin who lives at 12 Buschmann Avenue, had the following guests at his birthday party: Carolyn and David Bosland, Mrs. Joyce Bosland, Chuckie Rudolph, Mrs. Frieda Rudolph, Janie Portella, Mrs. Anne Portella, Mrs. Beatrice Gusta, Lucile and Sammy Gusta, Jo-Ann and Joseph Dragone and Mrs. Helen Dragone. --

William Kole, 12 Beam Place, was one of fourteen area day students attending the Newark College of Engineering who has qualified for academic honors for the semester ending January 25. This means he has maintained a B average with no grades lower than C.

William Heerema was a guest last week at the meeting of the Paterson Y's Men's Club. At the meeting it was announced that William C. Spinnler of the Paterson Club was selected to be the North Central District governor of Y's Men's Club which covers all of Northern New Jersey.

Monday night's "flash drive" through the combined efforts of both fire companies, climaxed the campaign for names on the patron's list and the "In Memorium" list for the 50th anniversary book.

Over thirty firemen took part in the three hour drive, under the leadership of Chief Pete Van Der Jagt. They canvassed the borough with the fire trucks, and met with enthusiastic response for their volunteer efforts.

The overall campaign netted an excess of a thousand names for the patron's list alone. Everyone whose name appears on this list will receive a free copy of the book when it is printed next month.

Anyone who was missed and would still like their names to appear must see Borough Clerk Dan Ramella at the borough office by Tuesday, April 15, as that is the deadline that has been set for these lists.

Lynda Esselman, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Esselman of Milanville, Pa., visited Frank, Marian and Marjorie Yannucci over the Easter weekend. Her father flew her down to the Totowa - Wayne airport where they were met by the Yannucci's.

The Library Fund drive for 1958 totals $727.01 to date. This amount includes $356.70 received from the house to house canvass sponsored by the Haledon PTA. Circulation of books during the month of March at the library totaled 766.

Despite legal opinions that the North Haledon municipal property proposed for the elementary school site, is "no longer desirable necessary or required for other public purposes," it seems the mayor and council are trying to force the board of education to accept this tract. What will happen to this borough property if tests prove this ground completely unsuitable as was pointed out many times by borough engineer Bob Spinnler?

West Paterson Democrats have opened headquarters on McBride Avenue and Bergen Boulevard. They expect to start campaigning in earnest immediately after primary . . . Incidentally, what was the real reason behind Ben Cavalieri's resignation, as West Paterson Democratic Co-leader?

Mayor David Brown of Haledon has given proper answer to his critics with respect to erection of a new municipal building. It seems his opponents are ready to spend tax money until it hurts them.

There is a great deal of speculation throughout North Haledon as to who will be the write-in Democratic candidates in Tuesday's primary. It may be a democratic way of doing things but more people would like to know a little earlier in the game, who the candidates are.

Haledon residents, be sure to read the index page about the contest in conjunction with the Fiftieth Anniversary. Things are really beginning to shape up now.

Totowa borough mayor, Joseph Ryan, again demonstrated his dedication to the public interest by refusing to purchase two new police cars at a closed council session. The mayor, who is also a Democratic candidate for freeholder, said that all such purchases would be made at an open council meeting, in full public view. This is the kind of leadership needed in these times.

At the close of the Regional School board meeting, held Tuesday night, Sam Wiener publicly announced for the first time, a testimonial dinner to honor former president Herman Gionti, which will be given by the local school board. It came as a complete surprise to Gionti who had a speaking engagement planned for that night, but the people he has served so well, for so many years, will not let him go anywhere but to his dinner. It will be held Thursday, May 15, at Cedar Cliff Hotel at 7 p.m. Gionti will appear this Sunday on color television, but few of his fellow townsmen will see him as he'll be on Channel 8 from Philadelphia, speaking on the modern methods of teaching and educational facilities.

This is a further indication of the high regard he enjoys far from home as well as this vicinity.

VOTE TUESDAY — PRIMARY ELECTION

Tuesday, April 15th. is Primary Day. It is the day when the electorate go to the polls to decide which candidates shall represent them in the general elections. This primary, as were other primaries in the past, is an extremely important obligation. Despite the significance of this election, only a fraction of those eligible to vote will appear.

Many of us feel that we do not want to take sides in such contests. Others among us do not want to declare our positions as to party choice. There are those, too, who are business and professional people who will not vote because they fear that they may antagonize customers or clients, thereby harming their business.

Indulging in this type of thinking is oftentimes disastrous. It is simple to know and understand that when people fail to vote in a primary, the electorate is saddled with a candidate who is either hand-picked by a group of professional politicians or the candidate of a small minority of party stalwarts who work for whatever patronage can be gotten if their choice wins in a general election. Summed up, this means that the citizens-at-large are subject to administrators who are "planned" or "planted" politicians.

We feel that candidates for all public offices should be able, qualified men with some background for the post they seek. We consider that a primary election is just as important, if not more so, than a general election. What purpose will it serve us if we go to the polls in November to make a choice between candidates neither of which may be suited to the post either from the standpoint of temperament or ability?

All Americans should belong to a political party. All Americans should take an active interest in determining who shall be the standard bearers of their party. All Americans should go to the polls on Tuesday next, and according to the dictates of their own conscience, select the party candidate. Remember that from any endeavor you can only derive as much as you put in to it in terms of effort. The same applies to government whether it be on a municipal, state or federal level. Are you a good American? You must vote Tuesday, April 15th.

Foot In The Door

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

At this season of the year not only a YOUNG man's fancy but almost everyone's under 60 runs to thoughts of love, particularly if marriage has not yet entered life or if another one is in order.

So what could be more interesting than to get the thoughts of love from a famous screen star who has had several husbands, and has now reached "maturity", and is going to be married again?

These thoughts, so educational, were unfolded to a newspaper reporter, who rushed to her home to receive the glad tidings.

One of the most important preliminaries to marriage is to decide what kind of a husband your chosen one should be.

"She" has the answer in describing her own fiancée.

"He looks like a diplomat, has the soul of a poet, and the mind of an American businessman," she said.

Does "She", who readily admits to at least 53 summers with as many winters and springs thrown in, marry for companionship?

"I adore this man," she screamed. "He is the big love of my life."

"Love is the ONLY thing that counts," she said. "Everybody knows that; who wants anything else?"

The reporter did not contradict her apparently, as the moment was too solemn.

"She" thinks that a middle age marriage is a very fine thing — but only to a man of approximately the same age.

The only thing that spoils her happiness just a wee bit, is that at the moment, some of her younger friends are husbandless.

"It is difficult to find husbands for them," she explained.

"They are not little Cinderellas. Always they have the best minks and the best diamonds," but she quickly added, "Not that these things are important. I am going to the wedding of two dear young people. He is a clerk at the supermarket, and she is a telephone operator. Neither of them has a dime. The diamond in the engagement ring he gave her is so small you can hardly see it. And he bought that on the installment plan!"

She concluded dreamily, "But you ought to see their eyes! The happiness that shines in them emits a more wonderful sparkle than the "best diamonds" a millionaire's wife could advertise to the world."

Let's Talk

Politics

—by O JAY

The opinions expressed in this column are exclusively those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy and opinion of The Chronicle.

The elements of a real drama are developing as both major parties approach Primary Day Tuesday. On the Democratic side, Governor Meyner's reluctance to champion the cause of workers by advocating greater and longer unemployment benefits has resulted in giving a decided boost to the candidacy of John J. Grogan who is making a spirited bid for the U. S. Senate. In the past several weeks, Grogan's gains have been such as to make him the leading contender.

The Republicans, faced with a three way split in the senatorial sweepstakes, may find Robert Morris as the voters' choice after Tuesday's balloting. After the rather poor showing in the last general elections, top administration leaders have decided to let the chips fall where they may in this contest lest they suffer a similar rebuff as they did with Malcolm Forbes. Morris was running a poor third to Robert Kean and Bernard Shanley until Morris got his campaign 'off the ground' with a series of "straight from the shoulder" speeches. The outcome is anybody's guess with Morris likely to score an upset.

With the dim outlook for any price drops and with unemployment continuing, Republicans can expect little encouragement at the polls. In this area, scores of workers face the bleak fact that they have already exceeded the 26 benefit weeks offered by the Employment Security office. There is little hope that the state legislature will extend the benefit period soon enough to ease the shock of no income.

Joseph Brumale, Democratic candidate for congress in the Eighth District, is putting on a rambunctious, 'hell-bent-for-leather' campaign. He has strong convictions about the action needed to relieve the tensions of the present 'economic dip' and the courage to back up what he believes. Brumale is not ignoring any possibility or opportunity of getting his message across.

Joseph A. Abbott, member of the Passaic Valley Water Commission, has brought some interesting facts to light regarding the use of the commission's automobiles. Apparently, some ten or fifteen employees had a good thing using the cars, taking them home and generally using them for other purposes than company business. Abbott deserves commendation for attempting to curtail this bad practice. However, he got little help from the other Democratic member of the commission, John Hinchliffe, and so the matter of using the cars, as in the past, continues.

Kate Smith, in common with other long-time headliners, finds that the question she's most often asked by fans is "How old are you?" Kate has learned that most people automatically assume her to be much older than she really is, because she has been in the public eye for well over a quarter of a century. Kate has never made a secret of her age. She'll be 49 on May 1, 1958.

With April 20 having been designated as "Mother-In-Law-Day", real-life mother-in-law Spring Byington, who is serving as chairman of the Committee For Mother-In-Law Day, has written to the governors of the 48 states asking them to officially proclaim such a "day" in their states. The star of CBS-TV's "December Bride", who on her show portrays a mother-in-law, has asked the governors to proclaim the day as one in which all Americans can show love and respect for mothers-in-law.

A little girl returned home from an outing with her Brownie group and announced: "Mother, I've found a horseshoe!"

"That's nice," said mother. "Do you know what that means, dear?"

"Sure, I do," replied the girl. "Some naughty horse is running around in its stocking feet."

Customer: "Waiter! Take back these eggs."

Waiter: "Sorry, sir. Haven't they been boiled long enough?"

Customer: "They were boiled long enough, but not soon enough."

Fortune Teller: "I charge $10.00 for two questions."

Visitor: "Isn't that a lot?"

Fortune Teller: "Yes, it is. Now what is your second question?"

Did you hear about the Texan who just bought his son a cowboy outfit—a 20,000-acre ranch, 1000 head of cattle and 200 horses?

The parking-lot owner called the three attendants together. "Look, boys," he said, "we haven't had one single complaint about a dented fender all week." He paused to let his words sink in. "Now tell me, he bellowed, "how can we make any money leaving that much space?"

FATHER AND SON — Jeff Richards plays the editor — and Eugene Martin his son — in "Jefferson Drum," the new series starting on NBC-TV Friday, April 25. Richards portrays a man who can fire off an editorial, as well as a gun, in his effort to tame the tough Western town — setting of the series.

Jack Narz, master of ceremonies of the new daytime quiz program, "Dotto," gives his heirs-apparent some coaching in the popular game at home. The Narz family (l. to r.) are Jack; Karen, age 5; David, 4; Mary Lou (Mrs. Narz); John, 9; and Michael 7. The program is broadcast every Monday thru Friday over the CBS Television Network.

There's always TOMORROW

By STUART MARCH

Tony Lawrence leaned back in his chair and studied Karen with the eyes of a stranger.

"Then money, or rather the lack of it, seems to be the main objection, is that it?" His voice was cool, impersonal.

Karen reached out, touching his hand with her own. "Now don't be that way, darling. It isn't just money but —" Tony broke in.

"No, but it does make a difference, doesn't it?" His voice was still cool.

Karen shrugged. "Well, if you want to put it that way, all right." She looked at him steadily. "When I marry I want security. Real security," she added. "Fifty dollars a week is all well and good, but what if you lost your job? We'd be broke in no time." She lit a cigarette. "Besides, darling," she continued, "we can wait a while and see how things turn out. There isn't any hurry."

Tony stood up. "If we're going to make that cocktail party we'd better step on it." He looked at his watch. "It's after five-thirty now," he added.

Karen stood beside him, her eyes smiling. "I know you're angry, darling, but I know what's best. Honestly I do." She reached up and kissed him lightly.

He turned away. "I'll get your coat." She watched his broad back and his tall body, so lithe in his well-fitting clothes. Something tugged at her heart.

Why am I so hard? she thought. I love him, yet not enough to take a chance. But I can't help it, she reasoned. He doesn't know how I grew up. I've seen too much. She shuddered. Whenever she thought of those things there didn't seem to be enough money in the world, even if she had all of it.

"Ready?" He was back, his eyes inscrutable, his mouth curved in a sardonic smile. She turned while he helped her on with her coat.

"Tony?" She turned to face him. "Yes?"

She studied his face a moment. "Never mind. Come on." She linked her arm in his and they went out the door.

The cocktail party was too noisy, Tony thought. Too much smoke, too. It hurt his eyes. He smiled to himself. Maybe I'm getting old, he thought.

He made his way to the bar and began to mix himself a drink. He glanced around the room. Karen was well taken care of, he saw.

Karen. Funny how her refusal had affected him. Oddly he felt relieved. He had half suspected she was out for all she could get. His friends warned him. They didn't like her.

He sipped his drink. She had something, though. He knew now he didn't love her but for a while he had thought he did. She certainly had a way with her. At first he had tried to break away completely, but without success. Finally in desperation he had decided it must be love. He lit a cigarette and blew out smoke through his nostrils. Oh, well, no post mortems. It was all over now and he was lucky he had found out in time. He couldn't stand a mercenary woman.

Timmy Holman grabbed his arm and put her face next to his.

"Why so thoughtful, Socrates? You look bored."

"Maybe I am," he answered but his smile took the sting out of his words.

He watched her retreating form as she continued on. A swell girl, Timmy. The best. She liked him, too. It wasn't conceit. He knew.

He stirred impatiently. What was the matter with him, anyway? A swell girl like Timmy around on the loose and here he had been giving all his time to Karen. It didn't make sense. No use kidding himself. Up till now Karen had been the only girl that had interested him in a long time.

"I must be in a rut," he said aloud. The voice at his elbow startled him.

"I beg your pardon!" He turned swiftly. Two very blue eyes were looking into his and a well-shaped mouth was parted in a lovely smile. Somewhere a radio was playing and a girl's voice was singing: "Say it over and over again . . ."

He must have been staring. The girl blushed and began to move away.

"I thought you were speaking to me," she explained. "I'm sorry."

Tony found his voice. "No," he said, "I mean don't go away. Here," he led her to a couple of vacant chairs. "You see, he said seriously, as they sat down, 'I'm really crazy. That's why I talk to myself just as I was doing then.' He grinned suddenly. "Do you see?"

The girl laughed softly. "I think you must be. There I was minding my own business and then you popped out with that remark. Are you in a rut?" she asked.

Tony shook his head. "Not now," he said, and he realized he meant it.

He reached out and took her hand. Her answering pressure was warm and thrilling. Something electric had passed between them.

"Look," he began. It was funny about his heart. He had just met this girl and it was racing at top speed. He hesitated. "Look," he began again. "Do you, that is . . ."

"Yes," she said softly. "I did from the very first, Tony." She held his hand tightly. "I knew it would be like this."

Karen stood by the doorway and watched Tony make his way toward her. Something's happened to him, she thought. She caught sight of the girl following him. Her heart stopped. Both of them, she thought.

Tony was beside her. She smiled at him. "This is June, Karen," he was saying.

"June Barrie."

She smiled mechanically.

"I'm taking her home, Karen, I'll be back for you in a little while, Okay?"

"Why, of course, Tony," she said.

"I'm going to get my coat. I'll be right back." It was June.

"Tony," said Karen. "Don't come back. You really don't need to. Don just asked me for a date tonight."

Maybe he'll ask me to stay, she thought. Then her heart sank.

"That's swell of you, Karen." Tony was looking at her — kindly. Oh, not that. She forced herself to smile.

"Good luck, Tony." She held out her hand.

"Thanks, Karen." He took it. "I'm sorry. Very sorry."

"Sorry? Sorry for what?" She laughed. "It's been fun, Tony." She began to move away. "Good luck, Tony." She called over her shoulder. How tall and straight he was.

She made her way to the women's dressing room. Her eyes looked strange in the mirror. She rubbed a little rouge on her cheeks and dabbed her eyes carefully. She looked in the mirror again. That was better.

She paused at the door a moment. She'll be better for him anyway, she thought. Two people that care like that must be made for each other. She straightened her shoulders. Besides she knew what she wanted, or did she? She left the room, her lips smiling. No matter. There was always tomorrow. Who knew what tomorrow would bring?

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

FALL OF FORT SUMTER

The dawn of Friday, April 12, 1861 was just beginning to show the first red glow of daylight when, at 4:30 in the morning, a dull boom and a spurt of flame broke the misty silence over the harbor of Charleston, South Carolina. A big mortar shell soared up from the battery on Sullivan's Island and plunged down on Fort Sumter, where it exploded with a thunderous roar. The first real blow of the Civil War that was to follow had been struck.

Edmund Ruffin, a 67-year-old fiery Virginian who had been advocating secession for years, pulled the lanyard of the cannon that fired the first shot on Fort Sumter. "I was highly gratified by the compliment," he wrote in his diary, "and delighted to perform the service, which I did." He could not foresee, in this moment of pleasurable excitement, that in little more than four years he was to die a suicide after the secession cause was finally defeated.

But now, not only Edmund Ruffin, but all the inhabitants of Charleston were happy. They swarmed by the thousands to the waterfront during the day to watch the cannonading and to await the surrender of Fort Sumter, on its sand bar at the mouth of the harbor.

It was certain that the fort would fall. Major Robert Anderson, commanding the fort, and his garrison of about a hundred men, were surrounded and greatly outnumbered. From all sides of the harbor the Confederate batteries poured in a rain of shells. The guns of the besieged fort replied with vigor. But the struggle was hopeless.

There was little ammunition and scanty food in the fort. Under the relentless bombardment the walls began to crumble and the inside of the fort was smashed. The barracks were set on fire. Many barrels of powder had to be rolled into the water to prevent explosions. The air was stifling with smoke, dust and cinders and the men had to breathe through wet cloths.

After 34 hours of bombardment Major Anderson agreed to give up the fort to General P. G. T. Beauregard, the Confederate commander. "I accepted the terms of evacuation offered by General Beauregard," Major Anderson reported, "and marched out of the fort Sunday afternoon, the 14th inst., with colors flying and drums beating, bringing away company and private property, and saluting my flag with fifty guns."

Major Anderson took with him Fort Sumter's riddled flag. He and his garrison were carried out in a small steamboat to the ocean steamship Baltic, waiting outside the harbor, and all sailed away to New York.

Fort Sumter was now in Confederate hands. Not a life had been lost on either side in its capture. But the great rebellion that was to cost lives of many thousands was now on. No longer could statesmen argue and debate the issue. Their voices were drowned out by the roar of cannon over Charleston harbor. Now the final decision could only be found on the battlefield.
