Fran Molendyke's

Tri-Borough Notebook

Do you remember the headaches you had when you were building your home? Remember how you inspected all the model homes getting ideas to incorporate into your house? Remember all the negotiations to get your property free and clear; deciding on the style and design of the house? Then came the decisions on the exterior finish, interior decor, how many bedrooms and baths to include, and whether to plan on additions to the family?

Well, multiply these problems one hundred fold and you have some idea of what your Regional School Board has to go through in building a new high school.

Why they all haven't got ulcers and flat feet, I'll never know! Just to give you an idea of what they go through, I accompanied six members of the board, along with Superintendent Joseph Gorab, when they inspected the W. Thesper Clarke High School in East Meadow, Long Island, N. Y., last Saturday.

This is only one of many they have visited since they chose the architect who will actually handle the building of the school. (Before they made the final decision on the architect, they interviewed twelve, at length, and visited numerous schools built by all the applicants.) Now that the architect has been chosen, they're visiting the latest samples of the work done by the firm to make sure the newest advances are incorporated into our school plant.

Before being escorted through the school we were taken on a tour of the new office building of Frederic P. Wiedersum Associates, our architectural engineers, Valley Street, Long Island. There we saw rooms full of color charts, paint samples, bits and pieces of tile, accoustical materials, marble samples, stone samples, bricks and blocks of every type available. Planning rooms, drafting rooms, rooms piled high with blue prints, drawings, and charts. In fact every room in the building itself, shows off the various materials and styles that will be used in constructing their new buildings.

The school we visited, open only a month, is a dream of what a modern educational plant should be. It's much larger than we contemplate but the information gathered can all be integrated into our plans.

The different sizes of classrooms to suit certain subjects; the use of natural light wherever construction permits; the use of color in rooms and hallways to brighten dark areas and to highlight stairways for safety, and the use of color to install pride in the pupils and staff, was especially interesting.

Various interior finishes; plastered walls, finished brick, wood grain plaster board, accoustical tile, finished blocks, as well as synthetic materials, ceramic tile, marble and stone and glass, each with its specific purpose and all used harmoniously was beautiful. Classrooms, shops, the cafeteria, (stainless steel throughout, with the most modern and efficient equipment to provide hot lunches for hundreds of hungry pupils at one time) the library, auditorium, music rooms, business practice rooms, chemistry labs, arts and crafts classes to mention only a few, were fascinating to picture in our community.

The domestic science rooms with their modern kitchens featuring both electric and gas stoves, complete cabinets, dishwashers and laundry equipment made me wish I could take samples home.

The overall effect was to make me want to go back to school again.

Of course, there were many things in this school that we couldn't include in ours because it featured many more vocational courses than we'll be able to handle, but it showed what could be done in either field or in combination.

Now, after viewing this and other schools, here is what your regional board has to decide.

How many classrooms are needed for each subject; how large an auditorium, cafeteria, library and gymnasium and where they should be situated. How many and what type of shops to provide, and music facilities. When that is decided they must get the approval of the state board of education whose purpose is to protect the taxpayer while providing the best possible in education for the residents of the district.

Of course, the layout of the rooms is important. Which rooms must have natural light, which can best use artificial lighting and what type. Situating the most used rooms so you won't have certain hallways jammed with student traffic while others are relatively empty, in case of fire drills or air raid drills.

Add these to the problems of actual construction, plumbing, sewerage, water availability, electrical work, exterior and interior finishing, roads to provide access to the school, landscaping, parking areas, play areas, etc.

After those you have to provide equipment. Furniture, business and office machines, lighting fixtures, kitchen and cafeteria equipment, telephones and intercom systems, shop machines and library equipment just to mention a few.

This takes many committee meetings, discussions and more meetings with local, county and state groups to acquaint them with the progress being made, as well as to get information as to pupil load, which courses of curricula to specialize in, what extra-curricular activities to incorporate to provide a well rounded school program, material to be collected, collated and digested for reports, regular meetings, besides preparations for referendum elections on bond issues and land acquisition.

All in all, these citizens whom you've chosen to represent you, are doing a Herculean task in trying to provide the best possible school for the least money; without skimping on necessities and without going overboard on frills. This trip as an example, shows the board's dedication to their job. Why not attend the next regular monthly meeting of the Regional Board of Education which will be held on Thursday, May 8, in the cafeteria of the North Haledon Memorial School on Squaw Brood Road, at 8 p.m. Schematic plans will show the tentative layout of the school. If you'd like to see them, voice your opinion, or ask questions, why not attend.

Show your interest in the job these people are trying to do. They want to make possible the things you want for your children. Give them the moral support of your attendance. I'll be there, I'd like to meet you there too.

SOLVING A DIFFICULT TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM
Cleveland, Ohio — Ingenious is the word for the chaps who specialize in moving things from here to there. This 91-ton, 112-foot long steel box girder presented a problem when it arrived in Cleveland on three railroad flat cars. The girder is for the Inner Belt Bridge in Cleveland. Solution of the problem of getting it to its destination was solved as you see here. It was put on two trucks, one going forward and the other in reverse. Men on top of the girder moved wires and traffic lights en route for the two miles of the big carry.

Three Minutes

Most people associate the words, "three minutes" with eggs, or the time of a long distance phone call.

But a lot of other things can happen in three minutes. A tornado can wipe out a whole community; a baby can be born; or a father of a family can be infested by the polio virus which may make him a dependent for the rest of his life.

Perhaps he's a wise father, and uses three minutes to prevent that from happening!

Three vaccinations, of one minute time each, spaced several months apart, can do it.

Over 65 million Americans have taken advantage of this miracle to prevent facing a lifetime of crippling. But some 45 million people are asking for trouble by neglecting these vital three minutes, that might save themselves, their families, and their community a lifetime struggle.

Anyone who neglects this opportunity is encouraging a polio epidemic in his vicinity. Not until everyone has his series of three Salk vaccine shots, can we wipe Polio off the blotter.

Summertime, usually gay and carefree play time, is also the time when the polio virus goes on the rampage. Summertime is nearly here.

Now is the time to start getting your Salk vaccine shots!

It's painless, it's not expensive, it only takes three minutes out of your busy lifetime. Think how it would be if you couldn't be busy!

"Spring"

Even though rainy cold days depress your spirits now when the calendar officially claims it's Spring, it only takes a little probing to prove the calendar is right. Rake aside the dead leaves from last fall very gently and you'll find the first green tender shoots appearing. Many spring blooms are already coloring gardens in this area.

But to really believe in spring as a feeling in yourself, not only as a season in time, get out into the woods, a park, or the nearby countryside, and see if you can find a Bluet, or Lady's Slipper, or Dutchman's Breeches, or the Purple Trillium, or even some good old fashioned skunk cabbage, and then you'll really get the feeling that spring is here.

Of course, if your wife has you painting the screens, or moving all the furniture, or spading up the garden, you've already gotten the message and perhaps a little get-a-way into the country until "Spring Cleaning" is over, might be an idea.

Anybody Got A Formula ?

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

This is one time the editor listened:

Dear Editor:

Can't you do something to campaign against the names and types of women's styles? We girls need a fashion dictionary just to buy a dress to go to the PTA meeting. Look at the ads! What's a "Back Belled Sheath," "Black Organza Trapezerie" or a "Cocoon Chemise". Are they kidding with those names?

But you should see what you get when you finally ask for the fool thing. Personally I've been dieting six months, and really lost a little here and there you know, but with being fashionable I shouldn't have bothered. Really, I look just as "plump" (I think that's such a genteel word) as before I lost the weight.

Now I've had a few kids, and I couldn't wait to get rid of those maternity clothes. So I gave them to my sister-in-law! So help me with a belt at the bottom those smocks are practically "haute couture". (That means high style according to the book.)

Well, anyway, I think you men should start a campaign because you fellows are really responsible. It's the men in Paris who start these fads, so you men in America should put your foot down and say what you want us to wear.

Of course, my husband is reading this over my shoulder and he says we should wear house dresses and then we won't have to worry about being stylish or about going out. But we'll ignore his type because he thinks if he sits up with me to watch Jack Paar it's a big night for me!

But I still feel you gentlemen of the press should start a crusade to get us girls looking like girls again instead of caterpillars or circus performers. We like to be looked at and smiled at but not LAUGHED at.

Sincerely,

An almost stylish stout.

Let's Talk

Politics

—by OJAY

The opinions expressed in this column are exclusively those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy and opinion of The Chronicle.

The professional politicians are somewhat of a strange species always in constant activity and on the lookout against the lesser satellites who are forever attempting to encroach on what they consider private domain. But the real menace to the general public are not the pros but rather those in the sub-strata, who in order to create more favorable impressions as to their own importance, often get eloquent about party policy over which they have no control. They delude themselves into believing they have inside information on impending appointments and events. When their batting average on prophecies is close to the zero mark excuses fly thick and fast blaming everyone but themselves for the turn of events. Currently, the Democratic Party is overloaded with an abundant supply of "inside dope boys" because the party star is in ascendancy. These "maybe" vendors are dangerous to party harmony.

The leadership has its hands full with weeding these boys out and putting the "clamp" on them. This state of affairs was one of the principal reasons behind State Senator Anthony Grossi's decision to maintain his city leadership.

John Kotran

A number of changes are definitely scheduled. When new leaders emerge, Zoning Commissioner John G. Kotran will be recognized for his ability to organize and unite.

Kotran carried the ball for the organization's tilt against Sam Bruno in the Third Ward. Even in defeat Kotran's qualities were evident.

There has been no official announcement yet as to whether Joseph Donatelli of Clifton or John Bergin of Passaic will be retained as assistant prosecutor after the May 12 confirmation of Prosecutor John Thevos. There is a move afoot to attempt to move Adolph Romei into the assistants spot. Adolph is a capable attorney and a loyal party worker.

Martin Verp, long active and long on the sidelines, is also being prominently mentioned. The trouble stems from the fact that there are too many "good workers" and too few jobs. No wonder leaders are in a quandry.

From another quarter, there are reports that a group of citizens will begin a movement to change Paterson's form of government. Whether or not this activity gains any favor remains to be seen.

Richard Schiffman, who will soon become first assistant prosecutor, has piled up an impressive record of legal wins in court appearances. The Alberti mistrial was attributed to Schiffman's skillful handling of the case.

Mayor Edward O'Byrne has still not returned to full duties at his mayoralty post. It will take several more weeks before he is fully restored, according to reports.

GOP leaders in various municipalities, under the aegis of County Chairman Lloyd Marsh, are being exhorted to conduct membership drives and campaigns in a desperate attempt to stem the Democratic tide which is picking up considerable steam because of economic conditions. Even if the employment picture changes, it will be too late to make much change in the outcome of the November elections.

"OPERATION ALERT 1958" SET FOR TUESDAY - WEDNESDAY

Nearly 1,000 posters announcing a public participation air raid to be held Tuesday, are being distributed throughout the city. This exercise is in connection with the nation-wide "Operation Alert 1958".

The posters, in red, white and blue, will be in store windows, public buildings and all conspicuous locations, it was announced by local CD-DC headquarters.

Lt. Samuel Silvestri's Paterson CD-DC executive director, said the training session — which will last two days — is Paterson CD-DC premier effort. Following a series of conferences with officials from other cities, county and state, he said Paterson's civil defense endeavors will be watched closely by the state.

Paterson's more than 142,000 residents — at home, at work and school — will take cover at about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, said Lt. Silvestri. They will be required to stay in shelters for approximately 10 minutes or until they hear the Alert signal repeated. This will be a three-minute steady blast on sirens.

The city's industry has been directed to implement their civil defense plans. All highway traffic will be stopped by regular and volunteer police and CD wardens. Taking part in the exercise with civil defense will be the Women School Crossing Guards and the gas station attendants warden service group.

The two types of air raid signals to be sounded during "Operation Alert 1958" on Tuesday, in Paterson as in the state, are:

Alert — a steady three-minute blast at about 9:30 a.m. You should turn on your radio for official civil defense instructions.

Take Cover — a wavering 3-minute siren pattern blast. You should seek shelter immediately.

Second Alert— Further instructions are forthcoming. Listen to your radio. (For this exercise only, it can be assumed that the exercise is over and traffic may resume.)

Comedy Show By Singac School PTA

LITTLE FALLS — The School 3 PTA will present a comedy, "Channels of Fun", Friday and Saturday, May 9 and 10, at the Singac School auditorium.

Mrs. Michael Vavrek will direct the production and Arnie Vedsred is in charge of musical arrangement and direction.

Refreshments will be served during intermission. Tickets are available from members of the PTA executive committee.

OES To Form Secret Pal Club

HAWTHORNE — The Hawthorne Chapter 222 Order of Eastern Star is forming a Secret Pal Club. Mrs. Alice Smallwood, chairman, has requested members who desire to join to contact her at HA 7-2626 or by writing her at 43 Ravine Drive, West. Mrs. Smallwood asks information on applicants' birthday, anniversary days, size of hose, lingerie and gloves, as soon as possible.

Legion, Auxiliary Present 'Revue'

WEST PATERSON — Rehearsals for the "Legion Revue" presented by Memorial Post 238 and Auxiliary, American Legion, will be held twice weekly, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

The Wednesday rehearsals will be held at the Rifle Camp Road Firehouse. The Friday rehearsals will be held at the home of Harry Schwartz, Browertown Road.

The revue will be held on Friday and Saturday evenings, May 16 and 17 at School 4, McBride Avenue.

Issue Warning To Dog Owners

HALEDON — Borough authorities have issued warning to all residents to keep dogs tied up outdoors.

A number of cases of persons bitten by loose dogs have prompted police and dog warden to take action against violators. Summonses will be issued to all offenders.

With the approaching warm weather and with more and more children playing and walking outdoors, it is necessary that every precaution be taken for their protection, authorities said.

IN A WHIRL OF HIS OWN — New York — Two-year-old Danny Sirc is lost in enchantment as he watches his top whirling around on the tip of his shoe during finals of the Spinning Contest at The Children's Aid Society's Lower West Side playground. The championship event marked the start of the outdoor season at the Society's eight centers.

"Harold is awfully obstinate."

"In what way?"

"It's the hardest thing in the world to make him admit I'm right when he knows I'm wrong."

"A fellow told me I looked like you."

"Where is he?"

"I killed him."

One evening Jones was discovered by Brown trying to push a horse on to his front doorstep.

"I say, old man, do give me a hand," he pleaded, and Brown, wondering, did so. "Now," continued Jones, "let's get him up the stairs and into the bathroom."

After a lot of struggling, they got the horse safely installed, and Jones closed the door on him.

"What's all this about?" asked Brown, puzzled.

"I'll tell you," said Jones. "I've got a brother-in-law living with me and he knows everything. When he goes in the bathroom tomorrow morning he'll shout down: 'Hey, there's a horse in the bathroom,' and for the first time I'll be able to shout back: 'Yes, I know!'"

"I've decided I won't be married till I'm 25," confided the co-ed.

"And I, said her elder sister, have decided not to be 25 till I'm married."

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH by Russ Arnold

PUSS IN PAN — New York — What a time to interrupt a fellow — just when he's taking his first luscious lick from king-sized pan of milk. Hungry kitten looks up at camera-man Walter Chandoha, of Huntington Station, L.I. Picture was one of 108 selected out of more than 1200 submitted to "Photo Maxima" sponsored by Pictorial Division of Photographic Society of America.

"IF SOMEONE DOESN'T FIND FAULT WITH YOU, YOU HAVE TO WORRY" — New York — Susan Strasberg, one of the youngest stars on Broadway, isn't at all sensitive about criticism. "At the age of 19, if people did not criticize me, I'd be terribly bored. I'd have no place to go," Susan explained. Susan's first Broadway appearance was in "The Diary of Anne Frank"

It's a sure bet Toby Reed, emcee on "Top Dollar," checked the serial number of that dollar bill before lighting up because the new CBS Television Network quiz program offers cash prizes to viewers holding dollars bearing the lucky serial numbers. The new quiz program, patterned after "ghosts," is broadcast every Saturday.

COMPLEX

By GARRET SMITH

By noon forlorn hoppers in the employment manager's ante-room at Cromby & Co. boiled down to Jimmy Wheeler and the "Plucked Chicken." They had simmered since nine, waiting to be hired or to hear, "We'll file your application and let you know if anything turns up." Jimmy put the first of these chances at less than hundred-to-one shots. Adds had reversed on him since that independence day two weeks ago when his ex-boss had spoken overwarmly and Jimmy's free soul chased Jimmy off the payroll.

As for the Plucked Chicken, Jimmy considered the Old Run-around formula a sure thing. He hadn't given her a second look for fear he'd feel sorry for her. No name to put to a maid in distress, the formerly chivalrous Jimmy admitted guiltily. But he'd seen too many such lately. He'd soured on the six anyhow since his boss' secretary lied herself out of a jam and him into one after he'd stood up for her. "That chivalry complex of yours is a damned nuisance!" the boss had roared. Old Fletcher needn't worry. Jimmy agreed with him now.

The assistant manager gave Jimmy a blank to fill and turned to the Plucked Chicken. Elizabeth Bond was her name actually. Someone's private secretary once, would grab a typist job now. "We have a long waiting list. I'm afraid it isn't worth while calling again" was all she drew. Not even the Old Run-around! Jimmy handed in his blank. "Thanks," said the assistant. We'll file your application—

"—And let me know if anything turns up," Jimmy finished. He wondered how many such days his hundred-buck reserve would stand, as he followed Miss Bond's wake.

The girl was waiting for the elevator, a fragile arm braced against the wall. The dim light here softened the cheek-line, hid worry-lines, and ash-grey bleakness. Why she was class, a beauty once, before she began starving to death! The elevator came and she swayed toward it, would have fallen if Jimmy hadn't caught her.

"Thank you. I'm clumsy!"

Her face lit and Jimmy looked into deep violet eyes. Then face and eyes went dead again. She'd keel over on the street, he worried. No breakfast probably. He must do something quick. At the street door Jimmy clutched the germ of an idea.

"Pardon me. Aren't you Miss Bond — in Cromby's just now? They said you might do a letter or so for me. I'm James Wheeler. Publicity man. With the Fletcher Bureau once. Cromby had another good typist on their list but couldn't reach her. Leaves me in a jam."

Her eyes widened warily then turned eager.

"Yes. I'm free this afternoon."

"Got a date then," Jimmy improvised. "Have to dictate at lunch. Mind going to Mike's place around the corner?"

He hoped she wouldn't cave in and have to be carried. But she made it and dropped in a chair with a sigh that sounded contented. Jimmy mumbled something about phoning and hunted up Mike himself. Jimmy knew the answers for too much food and drink. But how did they treat a gal all out of practice? And not let her know it? He told Mike all.

"You start her easy. Mr. Wheeler. Leave it to me."

Jimmy returned to their table as Mike brought cups of golden bouillon.

"Won't you try our new special on the house?" Mike invited. "Shall I fix up a nice little lunch as usual, Mr. Wheeler?"

Jimmy deferred to Miss Bond. She was already sipping her bouillon blissfully.

"I've a feeling anything here'll be good," she agreed and set down her empty cup. "I'm a pig! Just couldn't help it," she added wistfully with a blush.

Jimmy grinned. "Won't have stenographers who aren't good feeders."

She laughed. Jimmy heard silver bells. Her bouillon worked fast. Violet eyes stayed alive now. Jimmy would like to spend a week feeding this girl. He had learned she was called "Betty". Jimmy thought "Betty" was his favorite name. By the time Mike brought second aid, he had her talking. He liked it. No whining. She was alone and on her own like himself, flotsam and jetsam from small towns. Jimmy told job-hunting yarns, too; made them light, set them in a remotish past. She loved the one about the boss' secretary who balled up her letters which Jimmy corrected until a prize bull slipped by and the boss got wise. "And I was the one the boss bawled out," Jimmy added. "Called it my fault for coddling the girl and spoiling her."

That was while they sipped demitasses.

"Aren't bumps fun to look back on!" she laughed.

She could laugh at bumps only one meal and a couple of bucks away! She'd walk out of his life and begin starving again. Jimmy almightily didn't want her to starve. Jimmy almightily didn't want her to walk out of his life. How could he help it? The query fuddled his bogus letters to theoretical publicity prospects as Betty pot-hooked them like a streak on paper Mike furnished. She had to tinker his sentences.

Suddenly a thought popped up like an unexpected check. Why not really mail those letters? He might land free lance work and keep on using Betty!

"Look here," he said. "How about a regular job, if we're satisfied after swapping references? My office is under my hat yet, but I'll find a cubby-hole."

Betty's former employer told him over the phone she was as good as Jimmy thought, lost her job only because the company failed. Jimmy persuaded her to take expense money and a week's salary in advance, by pretending he'd be away on business most of the week. Betty had a feeling this was all the reference she needed from him. Jimmy didn't argue. Old Fletcher might say something sour if Jimmy referred her to his ex-boss.

But, at parting, qualms began to wiggle around in Jimmy.

"Look here," he said. "If you get a chance at a better job, take it!"

"I've a feeling you may back out if I don't run," said Betty.

After Betty ran, everything went greyish. The impossible didn't seem as possible. It seemed plain impossible later, after long hours of hammering at his best prospects. The only spark he struck was "Come and see us after business picks up." By five Jimmy hit bottom. He started home deciding he'd just tear up those letters Betty had agreed to send over by messenger. But the letters weren't there, the hall man reported. Jimmy thought that over, feeling as if somebody had kicked him. Stung again! Neat little game! That reference he called up, a plant, of course. He ought to have seen she came out of her dumps a little too fast! He was a fine judge of women!

Jimmy's phone was ringing as he stumbled into his apartment. "Mr. Wheeler?" a remote voice said. "This is Mr. A. B. Fletcher's secretary. Could you see Mr. Fletcher here tomorrow morning? He didn't tell me to call you but he spoke about you today. Said he'd hoped you'd be over your grouch and back on your old job before this. I'm just tipping you off."

"Well!" Jimmy exploded. "Uh — say — you're not Miss Moseley?"

"Mr. Fletcher's old secretary? No. She's left him. I got a feeling from things I heard at luncheon today there might be a vacancy where you said you used to work. And I got a feeling you'd be relieved if I found another job. I bought bargain clothes and tried it."

The voice trailed off in silver bells that could not be disguised. Jimmy as beyond speech.

"Please don't be mad. Mr. Wheeler. You saved my life. I'll pay back your money."

"The devil with the money!" Jimmy suddenly felt all right. "I'll be around if you think Fletcher will have the fatted calf ready — and you'll have luncheon with me."

"Maybe we'll have Mike cook the fatted calf," said Betty.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

WASHINGTON'S INAUGURATION

Thursday, April 30, 1789 was a great day in our country's history. On the sunny afternoon of that day the first President of the United States was inaugurated at Federal Hall in New York City, on the corner of Broad and Wall Streets.

Two weeks previously, on April 14, Charles Thomson, secretary of Congress, arrived at Mount Vernon to inform George Washington of his unanimous election to the Presidency. Two days later President-elect Washington left for New York, the new nation's capital.

It took him seven days to make the 235-mile trip to New York City. The whole trip was like a triumphal march, with flowers strewn in his path and people cheering in every town through which he passed. In Philadelphia and Trenton the most elaborate receptions were given to him. When he reached Elizabeth Point, New Jersey, a fine, satinlined barge, manned by 13 captains in white uniforms, took him across the bay to the foot of Wall Street where he was greeted by Governor Clinton and a large gathering of prominent citizens. Thousands awaited his arrival and the city had put on its holiday dress for him.

The inauguration took place a week later. Shortly after the noon hour of Thursday, April 30, a military procession escorted Washington, riding in a coach of state, to Federal Hall. This building was to be the capital of the new nation. Officials and a long train of citizens followed in the procession.

Senators and Representatives were drawn up in the hall when Washington arrived. He advanced between them, bowing to each one present. Then he was formally conducted out to the balcony overlooking the street. Washington was accompanied by Robert Livingston, Chancellor of the State of New York, Vice-President John Adams, and others. As he came out on the balcony a thunderous cheer went up from the people who jammed the streets, the windows and the roofs as far as the eye could see.

Washington was dressed in a dark brown suit with metal buttons, white stockings, silver-buckled shoes, and a dress sword by his side. His hair was heavily powdered and done up in a silken bag. With him, in addition to Livingston and Adams, were Roger Sherman, Alexander Hamilton, the three Revolutionary generals—Knox, Steuben, St. Clair and members of Congress in the rear.

The people hushed into silence as Chancellor Livingston administered the oath to President Washington at a table covered with red velvet on which lay a Bible on a red velvet cushion. Mr. Otis, secretary of the Senate, held up the Bible on its cushion and the President placed his hand on it while the oath was slowly read. When it was finished he solemnly replied, "I swear, so help me God!" Reverently he bowed down and kissed the Bible.

Chancellor Livingston turned to the crowd, waved his hand, and shouted, "Long live George Washington, President of the United States!" The crowd cheered. Washington bowed to the people, and then returned inside the hall to the Senate chamber where, in a low, grave voice, he read his inaugural address to Congress.

The Stars and Stripes were raised on the staff above the balcony and, above the shouting of the crowd, a 13-gun artillery salute boomed up from the harbor, while all the bells in the city pealed out joyfully. That evening there were grand fireworks in the city. And after that the people went to bed in the happy knowledge that their national hero was leading them as the first President of the United States of America.
