Eileen Hoolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hoolan, 67 Montclair Avenue, Paterson, was selected as the chief executive of the City of Paterson during Youth Week. Mayoralty secretary, Fred Ardis, assisted the youthful mayor in planning the day's activities. The "Mayor" is the first of her sex to hold the office in thirty years. She is president of the Senior Class at Benedictine Academy, Paterson.

Tri-Borough Notebook

Going over the scrapbook of some of the members of the Haledon Emergency Ambulance Association, I found many examples of service rendered by the squad. Here, in this second article about this tri-borough service, I thought I'd tell of a few, omitting the names, of course.

There was the time a driver from out of town had a head-on collision with another car on Belmont Avenue in North Haledon. After arguing between them-neighbor suffered a heart attack. After his removal to the hospital by the ambulance, it was discovered he hadn't known about the fire, though it had been blamed for his seizure. Oh, yes, the boys were found unharmed, as they had executed the well known Army maneuver of "Lighten'a shuck outa here", when the fire started. The "clubhouse" was ruined and so were a few mothers' nerves that day.

Another time neighbors noted selves and the police, both drivers received a summons, and left the scene. A half mile further on, the out of town driver rammed into a parked car so hard that his wife was injured. The ambulance took her to the hospital where she had three stitches taken in her knee. Imagine what she had to say to her husband if he ever "knocked" women drivers?

Many times the ambulance has had to help firemen who suffer burns, or smoke poisoning during the course of a fire. Sometimes people try to fight brush fires, or small house fires before they sound the alarm, and get burned themselves.

There are also many calls due to falls, causing concussion, abrasions or fractures.

One time a group of boys had a "clubhouse" shack. It caught fire and burned furiously as it was made of wood, covered with tar paper and oil cloth. The ambulance was called while frantic mothers searched for their boys. As the firemen put out the fire, a an aged man hadn't been seen about his cabin in North Haledon. Police were summoned and they found him semi-conscious and suffering from infected legs and burns on his hands. A quick trip to the hospital brought eventual recovery.

An exploding oil stove caused a fire in a brooder coop, killing 400 young turkeys. The ambulance at the scene in case of fire injuries, had to take one of the firemen to the hospital under oxygen after he suffered a heart attack.

Of course numerous automobile and bicycle accidents dot the pages of the scrapbook. Each with a major or minor job for the volunteer corpsmen to do.

When a call has been answered and assistance rendered, the team on the "rig" returns to headquarters. No matter what time of day or night, the team then has to put clean linen on the stretchers, replace oxygen if some was used on the call, and replenish first aid supplies. They also have to make sure there's enough gas in the tank and any repairs made so that the ambulance is again "ready to roll". A record of each call, with time, place, name of patient, ailment, what equipment was used, the mileage taken and names of members who responded, is perpetually kept.

Suppose a call comes in from North Haledon. The chief of the corps calls headquarters to get the ambulance rolling, with a Haledon team. Then he calls a North Haledon member of the squad to meet the "rig" at the scene of the call. In this way, time is saved and perhaps a life. This same efficiency is applied to other areas of the three boroughs.

Calls for assistance are the reason for the Ambulance Unit's existence. But to keep the unit in readiness, with supplies available, equipment repaired and replaced, and personnel completely trained is a small business in itself.

The entire corps takes special courses in first aid and refresher courses on any new methods evolved. If any new equipment is acquired they must be trained in its use.

Regular meetings are held once a month, on the first Monday. Records and reports are kept up to date and special activities planned, such as the 25th anniversary celebration scheduled for Saturday, September 20, or the following Saturday, the 27th if it should rain.

A fund drive is held once a year, usually in the fall. These contributions are the only monies received by the corps from year to year. No remuneration is ever given or received by any members of the association. They are volunteers in the true sense of the word.

About seven years ago the Haledon Emergency Ambulance Association was signally honored when it was chosen to appear on CBS, Channel 2, to demonstrate an emergency rescue squad in action. Henry Pohl, safety service director of the Paterson Chapter, American Red Cross made the arrangements for the TV appearance. The members of the corps who appeared were Maurice Metzler, Harold Hamilton, Grace Groppi and Lillian Brown, along with Walter Metzler and Mabel Fiorina, both aged 8 at the time. They demonstrated in first aid, artificial respiration and emergency treatment of burns, fractures and gunshot wounds. A film was made during the telecast, which has been used for demonstration purposes to other squads throughout the country.

Once a year the corps has a beefsteak dinner, during January when new officers are installed. The mayors and their wives of the three boroughs are invited guests. Each association member pays for his own and his guests dinners. No donated money is used for anything but the actual maintenance of the ambulance service.

The three boroughs can be equally proud of these forty people who make up our Ambulance Association. They are people dedicated to service for and to their neighbors with no rewards other than the knowledge and satisfaction of a job well done. When the ambulance association has its anniversary celebration this year, I hope that the residents of all three boroughs will cooperate to make it a happy time for all.

When the fund drive is held for the Ambulance Association this year, offer to help. Offer to help solicit funds if you can, but above all be sure your contribution is made promptly.

Many of us have been fortunate so far, and may not have needed the services rendered by this organization. However, isn't it comforting to know that these friends of ours stand ready to give aid and assistance should that need arrive. Help keep this service available through your support.

Hopes for the Hawthorne Junior High School appear to be getting dimmer and dimmer.

Haledon's Fiftieth Anniversary Committee is doing yeoman work in preparing for the biggest event in the borough's colorful history. What was written here last week intended to arouse a lethargic public which, up to now, doesn't seem to appreciate the time and effort being expended by a small group to see that Haledon gets its deserved place in the sun.

Among those who deserve great credit for the progress made in the preparation for Haledon's celebration is Borough Clerk Dan Ramella who has devoted countless hours of his own time to get the detail work done. The average citizen apparently takes it for granted and is willing for someone else to do the work. We sincerely hope that when it comes credit time that Ramella is recognized as one of the sparkplugs of the entire program.

Councilman Felix Liberti is hard at work preparing his campaign for the Totowa Borough mayoralty.

West Paterson officials are very happy about the soon-to-arrive 100,000 square feet of merchandizing space in a spanking new building on Route 46 between Browertown Road and McBride Avenue. It will be one of the largest discount houses in the area.

Clifton Democratic leader Richard DeMarco and Freeholder Alex Komar can be justifiably proud of the results of the councilmanic elections. Two of the backed candidates, Stanley Zweir and Sam Monchak came out tops.

A record turnout is expected at the friendship dinner for Mayor Joseph F. Ryan of Totowa Borough on June 8 at Donohue's. The mayor, Democratic candidate for freeholder, will be lauded personally by Governor Meyner and Harrison Williams.

We're Part of "Armed Forces"

With the reams of material written, spoken and pictured about missiles, anti-missile missiles, and satellites, we're apt to forget about . . . men.

But this week, May 17, we celebrate Armed Forces Day. Our Armed Forces are men.

Men who must learn the use of these new and terrible methods of war. Men who have families to provide for, and go home to. Men who must decide whether to make the "Armed Forces" a career, or just a time to be served for their country.

Recently some reforms were established in Air Force pay scales to keep trained personnel where we need them . . . on the ready line should hostilities start. This is a step in the right direction, and more inclusive steps should be taken throughout all of the Armed Forces.

If inter-continental ballistic missiles can make war possible on our own land, in our own cities, then WE are all members of the Armed Forces. We can do our part by sharing in our preparedness programs; learning about civil defense and doing our part to make it workable.

We can learn to discriminate against defeatist propaganda that pictures the United States as a decadent nation of ill-manned boors, who cannot even educate their children properly.

We can take a positive attitude toward the recession. Pull in our belts, hike up our pants and do the best we can, (taking time out to write your congressman so he knows the true conditions of his constituents).

While we pay tribute on this special day to those who serve in our Armed Forces, let's line up to be counted in this civilian Armed Force. Our "arms" can consist of faith in God and our Country, love of our fellow men, and determination to win out over every stumbling block.

A Modern Parable

While reading all the gloomy forecasts on the present recession, we were reminded of a modern parable we saw in the Washington, Iowa, Journal. It was about a troubled old king who summoned his wisest counselors and instructed them to prepare a simple text on economic principles, which the people would understand. The wise men came back in a year with 67 volumes, profusely illustrated with graphs and charts. But a venerable old patriarch came forward with his appraisal . . . eight words: "There ain't no such thing as a free lunch."

The High And Low

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

In his latest annual report, J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shows the range of responsibility of the FBI has been widened still farther by Congressional legislation.

In the past year, for instance legislation gave the Bureau new or extended jurisdiction in cases of kidnapping; the interstate transportation of stolen property; thefts from banking-type institutions and malicious damage to aircraft or motor vehicles moving in interstate or foreign commerce.

Also, the FBI has the extremely important and delicate duty of protecting the civil rights and privileges of the people of this country. This is a field where misinformation and controversy are apt to be rife. For a number of years the FBI held a series of civil rights schools for police organizations, and special agents of the Bureau have made hundreds of lectures on the subject. The magnitude of the job is indicated by the fact that in fiscal 1957 1,289 preliminary investigations of civil rights allegations were investigated.

An increasingly important area of FBI responsibility is in the field of domestic intelligence. The purpose is to protect the internal security of the United States and to combat espionage, sabotage, subversive activities and related threats. And here Mr. Hoover's report has some significant things to say about the Communist Party, USA. Despite certain setbacks, he says that "a hard core consisting of thousands of dedicated Marxists in this country has clung to its un-American ideals and emerged into what it interprets as an atmosphere conducive to regrowth and attainment of its goals." The Party's leaders, for the most part, have long-established records of conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the government by force and violence. It is dominated by directive from the Soviet Union. And the members "... have become experts at seeking refuge behind the very rights and privileges which they would destroy." In addition, the Party has successfully devised various "front" groups which are used to dupe loyal citizens into supporting and promoting campaigns which will serve its ends in one way or another.

Let's Talk

Politics

—by OJAY

The opinions expressed in this column are exclusively those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy and opinion of The Chronicle.

The air of mystery which surrounds the naming of five assistants to Prosecutor John Thevos is expected to be cleared this weekend with the following line-up. Richard Schiffman and William Azar of Paterson; Joseph Harrison of West Paterson, Edward Wolak of Clifton and Thomas Chichi of Passaic.

RICHARD SCHIFFMAN

An ill conceived rumor, untrue and without any basis in fact, injured Donatelli and Scheideman. The despicable trick maintained that both candidates had promised Frank Shershin an important municipal post in exchange for his support. In the first place, the records show that both men stumped vigorously against Shershin's return to the state senate. Their efforts were largely responsible for his defeat. It would seem unlikely, even to the most naive, that Shershin could expect to curry any favor with either Donatelli or Scheideman.

But the strength and acceptance of Freeholder Alex Komar was manifest in the election of Stanley Zweir and Sam Monchak who topped the entire field. Komar, a staunch organization Democrat, is a hard working, gifted man with ability to make friends and influence votes. His efforts will roll up an impressive Democratic score in the November elections. GOP leaders are futilely and feebly attempting to curb his popularity.

Among the major problems the Democrats will have to face prior to the General Election is the overcoming of adverse sentiment to the one and one-half percent corporate tax passed by the legislature. Despite all tensions and discouraging news about the recession, lawmakers of both parties are concerned about the home front voters.

Governor Meyner's deletion of two Passaic County Democratic leaders from his list of nominees to various posts is difficult to understand. In the first instance, Joseph V. McGuire merits re-appointment. The second instance is that of Joseph Brumale, Democratic candidate for congress, who was slated to replace Harry Schoen on the North Jersey District Water Supply Commission. Brumale would be giving up his post in Paterson's legal department to accept another post which would offer him hardly more than a better opportunity to expand contacts.

John Bergin of Passaic is slated to remain as an assistant deputy attached to the Attorney General's office. The fate of Joseph Donatelli is still unknown. However, since his unexpected defeat for a Clifton councilmanic post, Democratic leaders are reviewing possibilities.

The tide of the Clifton election has caused some concern among Demo leaders who frankly expected a Donatelli-Scheideman victory. It proves that when citizens are aroused and alerted to certain conditions and situations, organization or no organization, they will vote to protect their best interests. Nevertheless, the results of the balloting cannot be considered a harbinger of things to come since it would take an Einstein to analyze the election of seven candidates from a field of 32. Especially when all of them run without party designation.

The drive will be conducted along Main Street with a tape extending along the street.

Three O.L.O.L Graduates Serve on "City Boards"

During Youth Week "City Administration" was served by 3 graduates of Our Lady of Lourdes Grammar School Class of 1954.

August De Blicke of St. John's High School as City Treasurer.

John De Meyers of Don Bosco Technical School as Chief of Police.

Vincent Notorgiacomo of Paterson Technical and Vocational High School as Street Commissioner.

THE GOOD OLE' U.S.A.

While commenting on the international political mud-slinging these past months, a friend of ours back from occupation duty in Germany thought this story would give us pause to be a bit happier we're in the States despite the victor.

"Sam stopped looking at television ages ago, but he still loves to turn off the commercials."

Rocket Experts

THELMA

"How Can You Think Of Love—When All You Have On Your Mind Is Women"

NICHOLAS DELUCCIA, JR.

Nicholas DeLuccia, Jr., of Paterson, prominent in civic and fraternal circles, was feted Saturday night by the Passaic-Bergen-Morris Counties Funeral Directors' Association at the Swiss Tavern. DeLuccia, immediate past president of the organization, was lauded for his service and "outstanding contributions."

Legion Post Seeks Uniforms

PROSPECT PARK—The Color Guard of Prospect Park Memorial Post 240, American Legion, is in need of uniforms. Rienk R. Kay, color sergeant, has requested Legionnaires who may have uniforms which no longer fit them, to donate the uniforms to the post. Distribution will then be made to members who desire to participate in various post functions which require the Legion uniform.

The post has prepared a program which includes several parades. Kay said the color guard of the "Wooden Shoes" post endeavors to have 20 to 25 men in full uniforms for the parades.

Uniform donations may be made to Kay who may be reached at ARMory 4-5044.

LOCKET

BY LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

JAN'S heart gave a leap when she saw him sitting there in the dimly lighted hall outside her door. He was sitting on his kitbag and there was a weariness in the droop of his shoulders and his uniform showed the weariness of war. For a moment there, as she reached the stairhead, she had thought it was Dave Cotter, that some miracle had sent him back to her; then cold reason told her that Dave would never come again.

And this man — he stood up smartly enough when he saw her — was taller than Dave and darker and older and there was none of the light of youthful illusion in his eyes. Oh, well, she thought maybe it had gone from Dave's eyes too before death found him.

"Miss Pellew?" The voice was oddly soft and musical, and the smile was warm enough.

"Yes, I'm Janice Pellew, I suppose you — you're a friend of Dave Cotter's?"

He nodded. "His best friend, I like to think. My name is Tim Ryder. I'm just home. I — I don't know anybody here and anyway I often promised Dave I'd look you up if ever I got to the Big Town. So here I am — a bit war-worn, beat-up and frayed around the edges. I always wanted to see the girl Dave loved so much."

Jan's blue eyes held his for a long moment. "I thought it was Dave sitting there," she said slowly. "It gave me a start."

"You loved him a lot."

"I loved him a lot."

"Well, he just about adored you — always carried your picture with him. He died with this in his hand. I thought you'd like to have it."

Jan looked down at the tiny gold locket he held out to her. Mechanically her hand reached out and took it and small fingers curled it around it.

"Won't you come in, Mr. Ryder?" She fumbled for her key and opened the door. "I can scare up some supper for us and — and you can tell me all about Dave."

He walked behind her into her apartment, his bigness dwarfing the delicate pieces of furniture Jan had acquired during her years with Colonial Antiques. She motioned to him to sit in the biggest easy chair after she had turned on the lights, and found her own favorite place on the window seat.

She liked the strong brown hand that held the light for her cigarette. liked the lean line of the jaw that the match threw into relief as he lit his own.

"You're lovelier even than the picture Dave had of you — the one he carried around in the leather case. I have it here in my kit bag. I'll get it for you afterwards."

"You're kind. I — it doesn't matter now thought."

"No, I suppose the locket's enough. You'll always treasure that, I know. He thought so much of it. He would never let it out of his sight. I wondered if maybe it shouldn't have been buried with him."

"It should have," said Jan. "Yes — I think that probably would have been better." She still held the locket in her hand. Now she put it down on a tabouret beside her and stood up.

"I'll go find us something to eat," she said. "What you would like, I dare say, if you're anything like Dave, you'll find in that cabinet beside you — the ice cubes are in the kitchen refrigerator."

"Look. This isn't fair, barging in on you this way, without warning. Let's go out to dinner."

She shook her head. "This will be much nicer. I find it pretty lonely here — have for a long time. It's nice to have a man to cook for. Dave was the last one."

She hurried out to the kitchen and soon there was the good smell of lambchops cooking, of coffee making. He came and stood in the doorway, watching her in silence for a while.

She smiled at him, her pale face flushed, the red hair wispy around the small, proud head. She had a white apron with a gay red parrot embroidered on it for a pocket, over her black business frock, and she was slim and young and very sweet.

"Are you home for good?"

"Yes. I'm getting out. I'm going home."

"Where's home?"

"Montana. I have a small ranch — all to myself."

"And I bet you carry someone's picture."

"No one's." He shook his head slowly. "I live there with an old housekeeper and the cowhands. I distrust sentiment and—"

"Cynic!" Jan looked at him sharply. "So you don't believe in true love, in love eternal and undying?"

"Do you?"

She didn't answer. Quickly she put supper on the table and sat down with him in the soft candlelight. And it was a good and happy time and even Dave Cotter's ghost that hovered near them, was a pleasant ghost.

When it was finished and they had cleared up the dishes, Jan lit the fire in the small fireplace and they sat across from each other and talked of Dave.

Rather, Tim talked of Dave, of what a swell fellow he'd been, of the fun they'd had, the dangers they'd shared. Jan listened, in her eyes a far-away look, a dreaming look so that he wondered if she really heard half of what he was saying.

Then it was time for him to go. They stood, facing each other, in front of the fire and Jan moved close to him, her face upturned expectantly, almost eagerly.

Tim looked bewildered, shy, almost frightened; then his big arms reached out and possessed her, crushing her to him with hurting power, his lips at first gentle then burning on her mouth.

They were breathless when he released her and stepped back. "Love eternal and undying," he said bitterly. "You see how it is?" And loyalty to my best friend. Why, you've forgotten him already. You — you wanted that, didn't you?"

"Yes." It was a whisper. "I wanted it. I loved it."

She moved backward and got the locket and held it out to him.

Angrily, he struck it from her hand. It hit a table leg and sprung open. Tim bent and retrieved it.

"You managed to open it anyway," he said. "I never could."

He looked at the picture and his breath came out in a quick gasp. "Why — why that's not you, Jan. That —"

"No, Tim. It's not I. And the locket's not mine either. I always knew there was someone else, but I still believe there can be love eternal and undying."

He looked at her and then, as he went to her, all the war-weariness was gone from his eyes.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

SETTLEMENT OF JAMESTOWN

The first tiny seed from which our nation grew was planted on May 13, 1607. On that day the 105 "gentlemen adventurers" of the London Company went ashore on the James River, in the fair land of Virginia, to begin the settlement of Jamestown, named after their king, James I, in whose honor they had also named the river.

Five months earlier, in December of 1606, they had left England on their three ships, the Susan Constant, 100 tons, under Captain Newport, the Goodspeed, 40 tons, under Captain Gosnold, and the Discovery, 20 tons, under Captain Radcliffe. They sailed under a charter issued by King James to plant a colony in that part of America known as Virginia.

The voyage was long and dreary, lasting all winter. It was spring when the ships finally arrived in Chesapeake Bay. From the shore the weary voyagers were greeted by the singing of birds and the fragrance of flowers. The expedition moved up the broad James River some thirty miles and moored the ships to trees of a low "island" that was really a marshy peninsula whose narrow neck was under water at high tide. The men went ashore and began to build a fort.

There were only a few laborers and craftsmen among them. The rest of them were "gentlemen" out for adventure and the hope of finding precious metals. Among the few men of worth were Wingate, first president of the governing council, Gosnold, sailor and pupil of Walter Raleigh, and John Smith.

A fort, a church, some cabins enclosed in a palisade were built. But the colony was in bad shape from the start. During the first seven months deaths from disease and hunger reduced the settlers from 105 to 32. Captain Newport had sailed back to England with the three ships, promising to return as soon as possible.

It was January of 1608 before he returned with food supplies and more colonists. The whole colony would have perished in the meantime but for the courage and ability of John Smith. He managed to get food from the Indians and he forced the idlers among the survivors to work. On one of his exploring trips he was captured by the Indians and saved from death, according to legend, by Pocahontas, daughter of the Indian chief.

In the fall of 1609, when John Smith returned to England, Jamestown had grown to 500 settlers. But during the following winter famine almost wiped out the colony. It was "starving time." The Indians were now unfriendly and gave no food. The suffering was frightful. Men ate roots, bugs, snakes, old shoe leather, and there was even some hideous cannibalism. By the spring of 1610 only 60 were left alive out of the 500.

Sadly the survivors decided to abandon Virginia. Early in June they gathered together their few possessions, and to the doleful roll of drums they left their cabins to sail away in the four little vessels left to them, hoping to reach England. At the mouth of the James River next morning they met Lord Delaware's three ships coming up the bay with a year's supply of food and several hundred more colonists. Happily the Jamestown survivors turned back and reoccupied the settlement. Jamestown and the colony of Virginia were now saved, and from then on, despite hardships, political bickering, Indian wars, it grew and finally prospered with tobacco as its main crop.

Here in 1619 was begun the first government of the people in America through the House of Burgesses. In the same year the first Negro slaves were landed here to begin the institution of slavery. And withal, what the founders of little Jamestown planted became not only the Virginia of Washington, Jefferson, and Madison, but also the cradle of the United States of America.
