June 2-7 To Be Clean-up Week in Totowa

TOTOWA BOROUGH — Mayor Joseph F. Ryan and members of the council have designated the week of June 2-7 as "special clean up week."

All residents are requested to place extra refuse and debris at the usual pickup places in front of their homes. An extra garbage collection will be made in efforts to assist the average spring cleaning in borough homes, the mayor said.

COVER PICTURE:

Many times, on Memorial Day, on radio, television and in your papers you will hear and see these words, "That they have not died in vain." Don't just pass over them. Think about them! Use this Memorial Day week end to think about your future and the future of our country. Decide what part you can play to make sure our country preserves the freedoms for which so many have died. We must build for our war dead a monument of strength which shall be, in form, a monument of peace for our generation and those generations to come. We must build this monument so that we will "Let them not have died in vain."

PRIME MINISTERS OF NORWAY AND FINLAND IN WASHINGTON — Washington, D.C. — U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert W. Murphy was on hand at Washington's National Airport to greet Foreign Dignitaries and their wives upon arrival from Minneapolis, where they participated in the Minnesota Statehood Centennial Celebration.

MEET THE FISHER FAMILY — Hollywood, Calif. — Two-and-one-half-month-old Todd Emanuel Fisher, held by his mother, Actress Debbie Reynolds, makes his camera debut while proud pop, Singer Eddie Fisher, holds daughter, Carrie Frances, 1-1/2, who points to her new brother.

GIFT FROM THE "NEIGHBORS" — Washington, D.C. — General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Chairman of the Inter-American Defense Board, presents a bank of miniature flags of the 21-Latin American Nations to President Eisenhower after the Chief Executive conferred with the Military Chiefs at the White House. Representatives of some of the "Good Neighbors" stand in background.

Couple To Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Christopher S. Adams and his wife, the former Annie C. Archibald, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary with an open house party at The Brownstone House, 347 West Broadway, Sunday, June 1, between 3 and 5 o'clock.

The popular and active couple were married in St. John's R. C. Church in Slaterville, Rhode Island, on June 2, 1908, by Rev. P. J. McLoughlin. They came to New Jersey in 1909 and settled in Haledon in 1912.

They were blessed with five children: Marion A. Kuncik, Ramsey; Christopher D. (deceased); John B., Ramsey; Edna M. Patterson, Preakness; and Robert E. of Prospect Park. They have four grandchildren, Harold J. Durant, Carol M. Durant Arrix, Roger Durant, Mark Robert Adams and two great grandchildren, Nancy Leigh Arrix and Stephen C. Durant.

Mr. Adams is a former councilman of Haledon; tax collector from 1941-1948 and a former member of the board of education.

He is a prominent realtor with his office at 218 Belmont Avenue where he conducts his real estate and insurance business with his son, Robert.

Calendar Party At St. Paul's Last Tuesday

PROSPECT PARK—The third annual calendar party sponsored by the combined societies of St. Paul's R. C. Church was held in the School auditorium last Tuesday evening.

Frieslanders To Hold Reunion Friday

On Memorial Day, the U.T.Y. Society will hold a reunion at 1 o'clock at Leonard's Field, Haledon. The society is made up of men and descendants of the Province of Friesland, Netherlands, who settled in the United States. Twice each year, around Memorial Day and Labor Day, they gather with their friends and families. The men play a game of ball called "Keatsen", while the women and children visit with each other, some of whom they haven't seen since the last get-together. These outings which were started in 1893 have become a tradition in this section. The committee in charge includes John Sieswerda, Martin van der Ploeg and Tunis De Young. The public is invited to join the group and admission is free.

MOTHERING PIGEON — Lynn, Mass. — Patricia Kasabuski, of Lynn, is happy in her newest role, that of "mothering" Squeaky, a 3-week-old pigeon, found by her father in a trash barrel when the bird was hatched. Patricia keeps Squeaky on a leash while taking a stroll. When he is old enough to fly, Squeaky will be released.

BIG ASSIGNMENT FOR CRADLE FIDDLER — Brighton, Mass. — Jodi Hackell is only seven months old and still in the three-corner pants stage, but already she has an ear for music — particularly the music of Dad's bass fiddle. Here Jodi gets the fiddle into position for some hot strumming.

JAYNE MOBBED IN CANNES — Cannes, France — Actress Jayne Mansfield is carried in the arms of her husband as they pushed through the throng that had gathered to catch a glimpse of the film beauty upon her arrival from London. Jayne and Mickey are in Cannes for the film festival.

TAKING DAD'S PROMOTION IN STRIDE — Philadelphia, Pa. — Promotion ceremonies are mysterious and lengthy sessions to a two-year-old, so Kenneth Webb found himself a nice soft spot on the carpeted floor while his dad, Detective Herman L. Webb was being promoted to Detective Sergeant of the Philadelphia Police Force at City Hall.

Haledon Commencement Brings Back Memories

Many interesting mementoes have turned up while collecting data for Haledon's Golden Anniversary. One item was a copy of a commencement program of the graduating class of 1908. As it is again near graduation time, only a half half century later, we felt it might be interesting to see what was on the program fifty years ago.

There were twenty-seven graduates that year, and the first honor student was Alma Loretta Fiedler. Second honor went to John Carlyle Barbour and special mention was granted Elizabeth W. McQuillon and George Harrison Savale. Other graduates were Elsie May Andrews, Helen Eugenia Brown, George Boothney, Helen Lowell Duggan, John Dick, Almeda H. Ford, Myrtle Fredericks, Elizabeth K. Hueck, Charles H. Habersbusch, Frederick Halbach, Bill Hamer, Clara Lauber, Margaret Lupton, Albert Abram Lydecker, Mary Martin, Edith Mae Martin, David McKersie, Leo Adolph Meyer, Charles Melvin Post, Mae Stehlin, Louisa T. Schroeder, Ethel Marie Savale and Georgine Westerfield.

Miss Harmon played the opening march and the Invocation was given by Rev. J. H. Timbrell.

Some of the songs sung that June night long ago were, "Over the Meadows Fair," "Old Mammy's Sleepy Song," "When the Roses Bloom Again", and "The Blue and the Grey."

Resitations included, "Mrs. McDuffey on Baseball", Mrs. Jones' Pudding," "The Bell of St. John", and "Over the Teacups."

The presentation of the class was made by Mr. Absalom Grundy, and the diplomas were presented by Mr. J. Henry Leonhard.

There was a notation on the bottom of the last page that read, "The Mehlin Piano used on this occasion is from the warerooms of L. & M. Kersinger, 116 Broadway, Paterson."

We would love to hear from or about any of these people who live in or around Haledon still. If you'd like to drop us a card, write to Fran Molendyke, care of The Chronicle, 170 Butler Street, Paterson, or call my home, MULberry 4-8829. I'd like to hear from you.

HALEDON

As the time is drawing near, here is the schedule of events for the Fiftieth Anniversary celebration.

The churches of Haledon will incorporate discussions of the anniversary in their services on June 1st, 8th and 15th. Mary Hardt was the chairman of the committee to make these arrangements.

A "Teen Age Block Dance" will be held on Roe Street in and near the Masonic grounds, on Friday, June 6. Music has been donated by the G & M Vending Co., and will feature Jack Sliker and his orchestra. "Keystone Cops" will aid auxiliary police in maintaining order. Adults who try to crash the party will be put into "jail". Dancing will continue from 7:30 to 10:30 and there will be prizes given to the boy who can grow the best mustache and to the girl who makes and wears the best bonnet. Nicholas Kruck is the energetic chairman of this committee.

Saturday, June 7, from 2 to 5 o'clock, a band concert will be held at St. Mary's Jarish Hall. At the same time there will be four exhibits to see. An art exhibit of paintings of Haledon scenes, by Otto Benz; a flower display by the PTA; a display of products manufactured in Haledon; plus an antique show. Mrs. Donald Bishop and Mrs. Betty Joffe are chairmen of these exhibits.

The Fiftieth Anniversary dinner dance will start with a cocktail hour at six o'clock at Camp Veritans on Pompton Road. There will be an "Aquacade" held in the pool, courtesy of the Paterson Y.M.C.A., featuring the "Aquacons", during the cocktail hour. The dinner for 450 people will be held in the huge dining hall. Sliced filet mignon is the "piece de resistance" of the menu, catered by Joe "Pipp" Criscenzo. Congressman Gordon Canfield will be among the honored guests and the main speaker will be Rev. John M. Infanger, Jr., pastor of the Cedar Cliff Methodist Church and a noted raconteur. Tickets are getting scarce, but contact treasurer, Joe Garbaccio at the tax office if you still haven't gotten yours. Americus Coral is chairman of the dinner committee, with Joe Garbaccio, Charles Cona and Betty Joffe as the dinner ticket committee.

A "Modern Age Queen", a Haledon teen age girl and a "Golden Age Queen" a woman of fifty or over will be crowned at the dinner. Music will be provided for dancing, following the dinner. James D. Parker, Jr., and Mae Steenstra are in charge of selecting the queens.

Saturday, June 21st at 2 p.m., a Field Day will be held on the Haledon Memorial Field on Roe Street, for all the children in the borough. Games, prizes, awards, and refreshments will be the order of the day. Ernest G. Ford is chairman of the field day committee and serving with him are Edward Kocses, Louis Gniska and Pete Van Der Jagt.

A pageant called "Down through the Years" written and produced by the teachers and pupils in the borough schools has been scheduled for October. With examinations, field trips, and graduations all being held during the first three weeks of June, it was decided to postpone the pageant until the fall when the school schedule is not so heavy.

Mr. Edgar B. Lupton is honorary chairman of the Fiftieth Anniversary Committee. There should be special honor for this gentleman and his wife who have labored so long and arduously on every facet of this celebration. The anniversary book which is scheduled to be off the presses by June 6, will be available to be picked up at the borough office. This book has been compiled mainly through the efforts of the Luptons, who have spent several years in gathering pictures and fragments of information and back history to make up this souvenir of Haledon's first half century.

George Bernascone, as general chairman has been the ringleader, in the circus of making up committees, and groups, and individuals to get each job done. He's argued, begged, pleaded and perhaps browbeaten some, but I think we will all agree when everything is over, that it has all been worth it, (although I'm sure George will have a few more gray hairs, and will have chewed up a small fortune in cigars.)

Friends have been asked not to invite Mayor O'Byrne to evening galas or meetings as his doctor has warned him to avoid evening work, until he is completely recovered. He returned to City Hall last Friday after attending to official business at home during his recent illness. He will try working for limited periods at a time at City Hall.

A lot of hard feelings were garnered when the Passaic County Park Commission neglected to invite the County Board of Freeholders to attend the opening of the nine new holes at the Passaic County Golf Course. After all fellas, it was the freeholders who appropriated the funds to make this development possible you know.

"Covered Dish Supper Party" held at the installation of new officers of the PTA in North Haledon last Friday night was a great success. Instead of the formal dinner gatherings, something new was added in the informal atmosphere of everyone's joining in the preparation of the food and in the games and fun afterward. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Weiner came right from their plane trip from Florida to the party and joined right in.

The much talked about NEA report on Hawthorne school problems got scant mention at the Passaic County school superintendent's monthly meeting at the Swiss Tavern last week. After all, things have certainly changed for the better since a year ago, and everyone has the right to put his own house in order.

Watch for more mention and notice to be given Mrs. Ann Lateri of Clifton in Republican quarters. She might be regarded as an Assembly or Freeholder candidate next year. She's hard working and loyal, both good attributes.

All school board members, whether from an appointed or elected district will agree with Paterson School Board president, Vincent C. Duffy, when he calls committee meetings "workshop sessions". It's all work, and no matter what the board members decide on, somebody will think they should have done something else.

Mrs. Betty Van Dine Smith was chosen first vice president of the Association of Board of Elections at the convention in Atlantic City, over the week end. She is Superintendent of Passaic County Board of Elections and a real hard worker. Leave it to the girls to get things done.

Three area residents serving on the Federal jury panel in Newark are Mrs. Dorothy Patterson, Leo R. Etzkorn, Paterson librarian, and Mrs. Dave Welsh of Fair Lawn.

With committees working for the borough's fiftieth anniversary celebration and committees working on the Ambulance Association's twenty-fifth anniversary celebration, there is more activity going on in meetings in Haledon than ever before. This area will be on the map!

It is at this contest that the finalists for the "Miss America" Pageant will be selected.

All I Ask

MEMORIAL DAY

Every editor in the country will be trying to use this Memorial Day holiday to remind people of the uselessness and horror of war. Or trying to assuage the lingering pangs of grief in the hearts of relatives and loved ones left behind, by men of war and soldiers of peace.

More words will be written about the awful death toll on the highways; when we Americans slaughter our fellow men with our two-toned, chrome plated, souped-up, "pleasure cars."

We editors know the problems that others in our trade are facing today. We know that we're all trying not to "parrot" what's been said before, or "harp" on the same old subjects time and again.

But what scares the pants off me is, what are editor's going to be saying about Memorial Day fifty years from now. Will they mark this as the peak year for a build-up to an almost earth-shattering explosion? Will they mention the petty bickering of politicians who obscured the real dangers until too late? I hope they will note how the Democratic nations stood shoulder to shoulder against every hostile attack by the evil forces of slavery. Or will they still be repeating the warning that internal strife, here and in other lands is still keeping the headlines hot?

Will they perhaps, be noting that parts of this country were wiped off the map by missiles carrying atomic war heads? Will they be celebrating several memorial days . . . one for each major city?

Perhaps this holiday weekend we should take time out to study several newspapers. Not just about "Zsa Zsa's" minks, or "Kim's" cars, but about our place in the world community. Our necessity to work things out to prevent a global war. Our necessity to keep our neighbors to the North and South of us, convinced of our faithfulness to the true concepts of democracy.

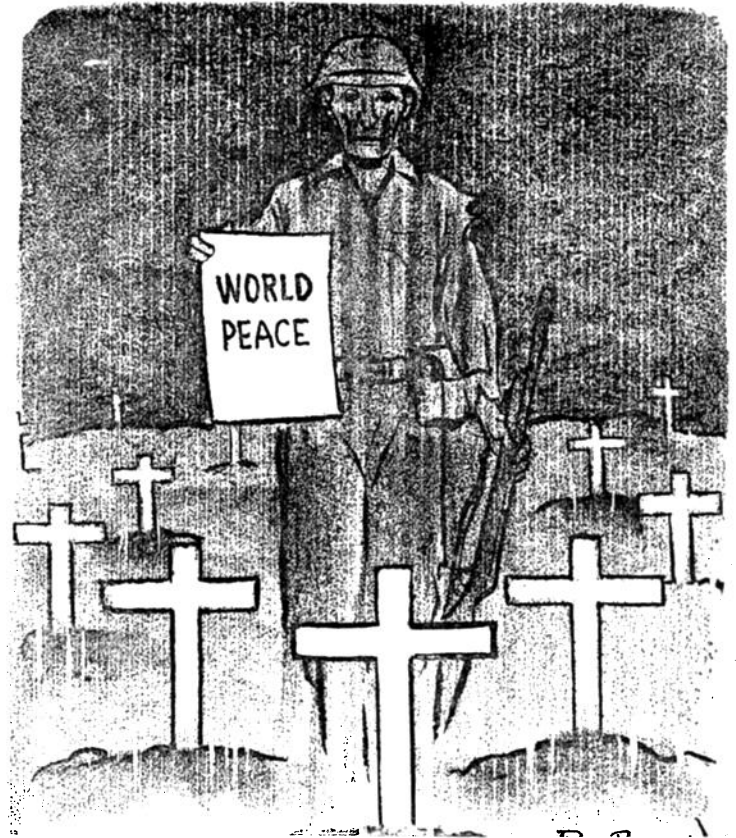

There may be different types of democracy; that will not exactly duplicate ours. Should we then "dictate" and say, "if it's not just like ours, then it's no good and we won't recognize it until you change to our way?"

Many times today on radio and television and in your papers you will hear and see these words. "That they have not died in vain." Don't just pass over them quickly. Think about them!

Isn't it a shameful waste of people's lives if after every war we haven't learned at least part of a lesson? Isn't it a disgrace to be so complacent because there are oceans on two sides of us and friendly neighbors to the North and South? Are we taking these friends for granted? Shouldn't we have been a little more concerned about the incidents involving Vice President Richard Nixon and his courageous and lovely wife, Pat?

Use this Memorial Day week end to think about your future and the future of our country. Decide what part you can play to make sure our country preserves the freedoms for which so many have died.

Remember, the next battle map may look just like the one folded crookedly in the glove compartment of your car. The front lines may be your street! Think and act so they will only be observing this same Memorial Day, fifty years from now.

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

MEMORIAL DAY WEEK END —

"Memorial Day Week End" means a family outing.

This tickles the little ones, leaves teenagers pouting.

They have to be coaxed, because of the holiday,

You can see they've decided it won't be a jolli-day.

They'd rather be out with their own social set,

But parents don't feel they're "quite old enough yet."

Dad's got his summer weight, casual suit on,

(The baby will use it to spill strained baby fruit on)

Mom's donned her new sundress, it's almost a "sack"

Junior describes it, "the couch cover, without any back."

Sis's shorts meet with Dad's outraged disapproval

Resulting in hasty retreat and removal.

She slips on a pair almost down to her knees

Dad still's afraid "before we get home tonight, she'll freeze!"

Packing meat, buns and relishes jar after jar,

Piling picnic hampers in the trunk of the car.

Folding last year's road maps; locating cushions and jugs

Collecting lotions and repellents for bugs,

Mom checking off lists for each family member

(You'd think they'd be gone until next September)

Soon everything edible's packed in and stowed

With the whole family off on the wide open road.

For the first family picnic, of the new summer season,

(These urges come on folks, without any reason)

Now if they find the same spot they discovered last year

If they remembered the can opener! Is there a rest room near?

If there's no poison ivy tickling sister's bare knees

If Junior manages not to fall out of the trees

If they're not stalled in traffic, or don't blow a tire,

If they've brought some paper and wood for the fire,

If none of these happen, (or even if they do)

They'll do it again next year!

(So would I! Wouldn't you?)

The opinions expressed in this column are exclusively those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy and opinion of The Chronicle.

JOHN V. HINCHLIFFE

The editor of this publication regrets exceedingly that the comments about John V. Hinchliffe were allowed to 'slip through' and get public notice.

This publication has in the past commended Mr. Hinchliffe for his fairness, honesty and vigor with which he has served his community. We still feel that way about him. He has served well in the past and is doing a commendable job now. We hope he will continue to have the trust and good fellowship of his constituents for many years to come.

We again express our regrets that the article which was inadvertently printed has caused any discomfort to a fine gentleman the like of John V. Hinchliffe.

With Paterson's Mayoralty elections two and half years away, two separate lines are already being formed by two outstanding votegetters in particular who some day aspire to succeed Mayor Edward J. O'Byrne. Because of ill health at the present time, it is almost a certainty that O'Byrne will not succeed himself. Besides, there is always the possibility that he might relinquish the Mayor's chair before its expiration, making it necessary to have a special election. The two most prominently mentioned are Freeholder Frank Graves, Jr., and Assemblyman Robert Wegner. Closer than two peas in a pot, only tomorrow can tell what fortunes are in store for Frank or Bob.

Some good news in World politics shows up this Memorial Day week end, regarding the proposed Summit Conferences. Last December when the NATO powers met in Paris, the Western leaders felt that a Summit meeting at that time would weaken NATO, and that this was probably the same reason the Soviet leaders were demanding that such a meeting be held.

During the past few weeks, the United States' position outlined by John Foster Dulles, that a carefully prepared and approved agenda be submitted before the Summit meeting would be agreed upon, has placed the West in the driver's seat. Soviet leaders want to give free reign to their propaganda at these top level meetings. They don't want to be tied down to the business at hand, such as inspection and disarmament agreements. They want to be able to call names, tell lies, and generally discredit the NATO powers, when the eyes of the entire world are upon them.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev said last week: "We want summit talks. but we don't want our heads on the chopping block". As his own place in the sun in Soviet politics is none too firm, he dare not back down now either.

Right now the Western powers have taken positions which will leave them blameless if the meetings fail to materialize.

Passaic County Host To Five County Conference of Planners

Honored with its selection as host at a five-county conference of planners, the Passaic County Planning Board has completed elaborate arrangements for the event, which will be held in the new County Service Building, 317 Pennsylvania Avenue, at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The conference, in which the Passaic, Bergen, Morris, Sussex and Warren County Planning Boards will participate, as will representatives of the municipal planning boards of this county, is expected to be attended by approximately 100 delegates.

It is felt that the conference will bring to Passaic County a great deal of prestige in planning circles throughout the State and nation, inasmuch as it may result in a discussion of a master plan for the general development of the entire five county area and be publicized in planning publications throughout the United States.

At the conference, Robert Paul Lippman will welcome the delegates in behalf of the Passaic County Planning Board. Then, as director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, County Planning Commissioner Maurice C. Kreger will extend a welcome to the conferees in behalf of the county.

The conference then will be turned over to J. Marshall Miller, associate professor of planning at Columbia University, planning students of which institution recently completed a study of the five-county area. Sketches prepared by the Columbia planning students on the basis of their study will be exhibited and explained by Professor Miller, who will point out the various phases of their design for the proper physical development of the five Northern New Jersey Counties.

Following the conference, the delegates will be afforded an opportunity to inspect the service building and the County Planning Board's new and modern headquarters there.

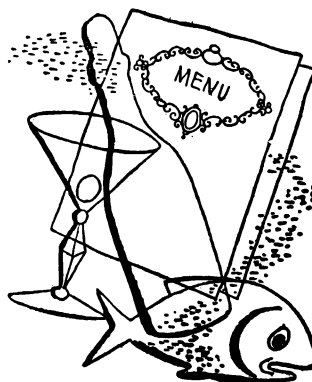

Chairman Lippman and the members of the County Planning Board will hold their regular meeting in their new quarters at 7 p.m. in order to complete the transaction of their regular business prior to the opening of the five county conference which will be held in the large and beautifully appointed demonstration room of the County Home Economics Department on the first floor of the Service Building.

The

Handicapped

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

MARTHA GANNET saw Toni just as soon as she turned the corner from Mont Street into Pine — and Toni was skipping, sure sign of happiness and six-year-old freedom from care. Also, the yellow organdy dress, the matching hat atop the golden mass of curls, seemed to have suffered little damage from the two hours and more of St. Augustine's Church Lawn Fete and Garden Party.

"Steve!" Martha reached out and jiggled her husband's arm. "Here comes Toni back from the garden party and she's got something —"

"Not whooping cough, I hope —" Steve dropped his paper. "There's a lot of it —"

"Don't be silly. I mean she's got a—a box or something. Look!"

Steve's eyes were not so practiced as Martha's in detecting differences in Toni's contours when she was still almost a block away in the early dusk of August, still he could see — or imagine he saw — a little packet clutched tightly in Toni's hands.

"I hope she didn't pinch anything, Martha. You know, Toni's ideas of meum and tuum aren't very well defined as yet. Maybe she swiped the vicar's silver."

"Oh, she wouldn't. Sally Franks took her to the party and I'm sure Sally kept an eye on her. She said she'd see her home right to the corner and I know she did. But I wonder what she's got."

"Oh, some junk she won in the Fish Pond, maybe," yawned Steve. "I remember once I won a woolly lamb as big as an Airdale."

Martha wasn't listening. She had got up from her chair and stood now at the head of the steps of the Gannet's neat white cottage. Toni had seen her and was skimming over the pavement like a gorgeous yellow butterfly, the golden curls tumbling as she came up the steps and flung herself into Martha's arms.

"Look — look, Mummy — look what I won!"

Martha took the lovely gold papered box. Steve craned forward for a look.

"Fleurs du printemps," Martha read in her best convent French. "La Maison Malmery. Why, my Lord, Toni, where ever did you get this? It costs a fortune and this—" She pulled out the exquisite cut glass flacon from its purple velvet sheath.

"Why, there must be anyway six ounces. Mm—" She pulled the stopper and sniffed it and closed her eyes. "Heavenly! Smell, Steve—"

Steve took a sniff and muttered. "Wow!" They both looked a bit fearfully at their lovely daughter in whose violet eyes was the light of the heaven from which she was so few years away.

"How did you win it, Toni!" said Martha, ready for the worst, hoping for the best.

"For being handicapped," said Toni seriously.

"For—" Martha looked stricken.

"What in—" Steve began to hear the rumble of the fiery temper that had made him a hockey star before he went into banking. "Just who—"

"Oh, it's all right," Toni assured them with earnest gravity, "I can be cured. Miss Wynant says I'll learn fast. You have to start when you're young like me —" She looked for a moment, appraisingly, at Steve and Martha. "I don't suppose you could, but if you want I'll ask her—"

"Who's Miss Wynant?" Martha, from long experience with Toni, took things slowly.

"She's a new lady. She lives on Exeter Street and has a grand garden and a big dog and—"

"How did you come to meet her, darling?" Martha went back to the glider, drawing Toni with her, handing her back her prize. Steve sat down again.

"Give, Toni," she said. "What happened?"

"Well, the garden party was grand fun and we had races and games and—"

"Yes, of course."

"—and ice cream and grape punch and—"

They let her go. Finally she got to the big scene.

"Then they had a contest to see who could smell the most different perfumes. A perfume man from Mal—Mal—"

"Maison Malmery," helped Martha.

"Uh-hum, from Mal-Well, he passed around little blotters with a different perfume on each and we had to write down the names of each one and I had seven out of eight—I had rose, violet, carnation, lilac, mignonette, Mayflower, jasmin and phlox—"

"You did not!" Martha and Steve made a perfect duet of it.

"Well—" Toni squirmed a little. "It was the same thing. Miss Wynant sat next to me and she printed the names on my paper."

"But didn't she hand in a paper?"

"Oh, no!" Toni made the curls glint in the sunset as she shook her head. "She didn't hand in any. She's a lot of fun. She said—and all the people around us were laughing—this was when the man gave me the prize—no one else would guess more than one or two—Miss Wynant—" She had lost track again.

"Miss Wynant said," helped Martha.

"Oh, yes! Miss Wynant said, 'It's not fair for me to hand in a card. You people are all so handicapped and it just wouldn't be right—'"

"What in the world did she mean?" murmured Martha. "I can't—"

"She said my handicapped didn't matter," went on Toni. "If I come to see her often she'll help me overcome it, and I'll be able to enter a whole new lovely world—"

"I still don't—" Steve rubbed his jaw.

"There—" Toni jumped away from them. "There she is now—walking down the street with Mrs. Gertner. Isn't she grand! Hasn't she the loveliest smile?"

Steve and Martha stared a bit resentfully at this woman who had dared to say their child, perfection to them, was handicapped.

Then they saw — the slim white cane in the slender hand, the serene look on the lovely face and they didn't ask Toni if she knew what was wrong with Miss Wynant. Toni didn't care, and anyway it didn't matter.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

—BY WILLIAM BRODIE—

PATRICK HENRY'S "TREASON" SPEECH

The cause of liberty in colonial America got a great boost on May 30, 1765 in Williamsburg, capital of Virginia. On that day young Patrick Henry rose in the House of Burgesses, the Virginia assembly, and made his famous "treason" speech.

He was twenty-nine years of age, a rising young lawyer from the back country of Virginia, already known for his speaking ability. He had been recently elected to the House of Burgesses and was sitting there for the first time. Slight and stooped, with a long nose and deep-set blue eyes in a thin face, dressed in rough clothes, and wearing a seedy wig, young Patrick Henry's shabby, ungainly figure stood out among the rich and aristocratic burgesses. But what a speaker he was!

Today he was to speak out against the hated Stamp Act passed by the British Parliament recently to tax the American colonies through stamps to be placed on all newspapers, wills, deeds, policies, shipping papers, marriage licenses and legal documents. It was to raise money to pay for the costly French and Indian War and to support a British army in America. The colonies were violently opposed to this stamp tax.

When news of the passage of the Stamp Act reached Virginia the House of Burgesses was in session. The aristocratic and conservative members hesitated about taking a stand on this hated tax, and the session was coming to a close when young Henry, the new member, offered a series of resolutions. Alone, unassisted, and without advice, he had written them out on the blank leaf of an old law book before he rose to present them to the assembly. In his resolutions Henry denounced the right of the British Parliament to tax Virginia without its consent. Only this assembly had the right to tax the colony, he stoutly declared. The people of Virginia were not bound to obey any law, except of their own choosing.

Now this was so bold a statement of independence as to be almost treasonable. The aristocratic members were startled and a bitter debate followed. His eyes flashing, his voice deep and powerful, Patrick Henry defended his resolutions in a fiery speech that made some of the members rise from their seats in surprise, while others sat in breathless silence.

Listening from the doorway was a lanky, redheaded law student named Thomas Jefferson. To him Patrick Henry seemed like a "son of thunder" with his passionate speech which closed with the inflammatory words, "Caesar had his Brutus, Charles the First his Cromwell, and George the Third . . ."

Shouts of "Treason! Treason!" rose from the shocked assembly. " . . . and George the Third," thundered Henry, "may profit by their example! If that be treason, make the most of it!"

Though the old conservative members opposed the resolutions, the new member's stirring eloquence carried them through by one vote. And the rebellious words that had startled the Virginia assembly spread through the colonies to spark the turbulent opposition that led to the repeal of the Stamp Act the following February.

Patrick Henry's great political career had begun. This moment, also, in effect, was the beginning of the American Revolution.
