COVER PICTURE:

This week's cover shows Haledon's present mayor, David Brown, congratulating Haledon's first mayor, Edgar B. Lupton, upon his being made honorary mayor for 1958 at the 50th Anniversary dinner dance, held Saturday, June 14, at Camp Veritan. 450 people attended the gala affair, with these two handsome gentlemen representing the fifty year span of Haledon's existence as a borough. Mr. Lupton saw his wife Mrs. Sophie Lupton crowned as Haledon's Golden Age Queen. He is a spry and hearty man even after suffering a broken leg last year, and he thoroughly enjoyed the festivities. He and Mrs. Lupton have headed the committee that has worked for four years on Haledon's anniversary book. Everyone wished both Mr. Brown and Mr. Lupton many more years of happy Haledon living.

IKE AT THE CONTROLS — Washington, D.C. — Robert W. Sarnoff, President of the National Broadcasting Company, explains the operation of the control room in NBC's four million dollar broadcasting center to President Eisenhower after the Chief Executive spoke at the building's dedication ceremony. The ceremonies were broadcast coast-to-coast and marked Mr. Eisenhower's first appearance on live color television.

VIKING RENDEZVOUS — New York — The sixty-nine foot ancient oar and sail-propelled Viking vessel used in Kirk Douglas' production, "The Vikings," provides sharp contrast to Norway's most modern ship, The Stavangerfjord of the Norwegian-American Line, as they rendezvous off the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor.

COMBINED BEACH UMBRELLA-DRESSING TENT — Frankfurt, Germany — A pretty model is demonstrating something new for the beach. It is a beach umbrella in cretonne and is a double-duty gadget. At Left the model carries it as an ordinary beach umbrella. At Right, the sides unfurl to protect the owner from the elements or to permit the owner to change in or out of a bathing suit with comparative privacy.

North Haledon Seeking Additional Water

HALEDON — Three alternate proposals were presented to the Mayor and Council from North Haledon Authorities seeking an increase in water supply facilities.

North Haledon officials said, in a letter, that its population was outstripping its water facilities and immediate action was needed.

The appeal was made to Haledon because the borough is the principal supplier of North Haledon water.

The three proposals offered were: 1. Can Haledon increase and improve water facilities to meet North Haledon's needs. 2. Will Haledon sell that portion of the system which presently exists in North Haledon, including a reservoir in Franklin Lakes. 3. Will Haledon enter into a common water authority with North Haledon to serve both communities.

The matter was referred to the borough engineer and the borough water consultant.

Tri-Borough Notebook

HALEDON

How about that Fiftieth Anniversary dinner! Being a gal who cooks for a family of seven, I was fascinated in finding out some of the details of the preparations, so I called Mary Pipp.

First of all, our anniversary dinner was only one of four that Mary catered Saturday, June 14. Altogether she served over 3,000 meals that day! Imagine the hours of planning, buying, preparation and serving that were expended.

Now, just to get back to OUR dinner. Early Saturday morning Mary and her banquet manager, John Ariens (also a Haledon product) and their crew prepared gallons of fresh melon balls, strawberries, grapefruit and orange sections, bananas and fresh pineapple for a really refreshing fruit cocktail.

Friday night the soup stock pot was started and simmered all through the night. In the morning the vegetables, seasonings and noodles were added and steamed slowly all day, for a fresh, delicious bowl of minestrone as the second course.

When my husband finds out he could have had a second bowl of minestrone, he'll scalp me, because I said he shouldn't ask!

Of course, the celery, olives, and lettuce and tomatoes were readied just before serving time.

350 pounds of filet mignon were prepared for the 450 people present, and served with drawn butter. Along with the meat came generous helpings of crisp delicious french fries. Mary explained that how she was able to serve so many potatoes and keep them hot and crisp and not the least bit greasy was her secret. Sorry girls, I tried!

Mary always uses fresh vegetables too, which meant that pounds and pounds of carrots and peas were scraped, sliced, podded, and cooked Saturday so they came fresh to the table with all their delicious flavor retained.

Fresh lemon sherbet which Mary has made to order, "with real sugar as I find it tastes better," and Martinson's coffee made the "old fashioned way with the coffee bag brewing in the pot", topped off the meal.

Sixteen waiters kept the food moving, so that everything was really hot and fresh when it reached the tables. This is such an important item in such a large undertaking.

Friday night Mary and John Ariens went up to the Veritans hall and set up the tables. The seating arrangements were changed because the tables were usually placed across the room, which meant that half of the diners would have had their backs to the dais. The representatives of the Veritans organization agreed that Mary's idea on seating was better and probably the change will remain in effect.

John set the tables Saturday morning with the tablecloths, dishes, glassware, silver, and decorations brought with them the night before.

"That Johnny Ariens is really my right hand," Mary said. "Naturally we wanted everything just right for Haledon's birthday party, and it's such a comfort to me to be able to leave these arrangements in such capable hands, while I traveled around supervising the other three dinners too."

Mary thanked me for my interest and my compliments, but I'm thanking her for all of us who were there. The food was excellent, the service fast, friendly and courteous; also the music was perfect; the speeches were exciting, interesting and fun, and for quite a while there, everybody liked everybody else.

Regional High School In Need of Name

Have you mailed in your suggestion as to what the name for the Regional High School should be? The official title now is The Regional High School of Haledon, North Haledon, Prospect Park, which is cumbersome to work with. There will be no contest on the name because there probably will be many duplications with so many residents having the same ideas. But if you think you might have a good idea mail it to Joseph Gorab, Superintendent, 43 Linda Vista Avenue, North Haledon.

Joseph and Evelyn Garbaccio (he's Haledon's man who handles money as he's tax collector, custodian of school monies for both the Haledon schools and the Regional High School, and treasurer of the library Association among others) slipped quietly up to Berta's in Midvale Wednesday evening for a quiet dinner to celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary. Everyone wishes this popular couple many, many more.

Picnic Time is here. The Passaic Bar Association picnic will take place June 26 at the North Jersey Country Club and the Prosecutor's staff will hold its outing on July 16 at Roberto's at Green Pond.

Speaking of picnics, the Haledon Regular Republican organization will hold its picnic at the home of Ben Fischer Wednesday, June 25. The Democratic Club will hold its picnic at the home of mayoralty candidate Joseph Albanese, Saturday, August 16.

The Haledon School Board meetings look more like council meetings these nights when the arguments fly thick and fast. But the amazing thing is, after they're over, everybody goes home friends. That's the way to do it!

East Paterson — Edmund Gore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gore, Bredder Court, was the valedictorian for the graduating class of East Rutherford High School, held at Riggins Field, East Rutherford last week. He was president of the senior class and won the Sons of the American Revolution award as Outstanding School Citizen.

The three man council did not fill the council vacancy created by the removal of Joseph Matule as was expected. Mayor Richard VanderPlaat stated that a decision on the replacement would not be made until June 24, at which time councilman Elden M. Shonka would return from his vacation. Interesting to see what finally happens here.

The Democrats in Fair Lawn are still fighting. First it was over the election of Norman Samuels as president, now it looks like a whole new Democratic organization is really getting going. Anyone for a third party?

Last Saturday, three area boys participated in the Road-e-o held at Rutgers stadium under the sponsorship of the New Brunswick Junior Chamber of Commerce. ## A Toast To Haledon

Today a field day will be sponsored by Haledon's Fiftieth Anniversary committee marking the end of this phase of the borough's fiftieth birthday. True, in the fall, a pageant will be given, and a parade is still being pondered over, but the bulk of the festivities are now behind us.

Many people will think that not too much has been accomplished. But let's face it! Everyone has been made aware that there's a town called Haledon around the area, that's been getting some fun out of life in honor of their borough's birthday.

Haledon assumes the place in your affections the same way some men see their wives. They love them, but they see them every day, and the change is so gradual they don't notice when she has a new hair do, or buys a new dress, or wants to go out occasionally now that the kids are older. He takes her for granted. Yet he would not want to live without her.

It's the same way with the community in which so many live and work, Haledon. It is part of you, and only unwillingly would you leave it. Yet you seem to have forgotten how to praise it, remember apparently only to criticize.

There is so much however, that is good. Your physical location is equal in beauty to any in the country. "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills, from whence cometh my help," sang the Psalmist, and any resident of Haledon can see the green hills rising around the borough.

Your people can be praised too. Some jokers claim that Haledon is too politically conscience! But isn't that part of being a good citizen? Being interested in local, as well as county, state and federal government!

There isn't a fund drive, or charitable organization that has ever come to the borough for aid, that hasn't had ample assistance from the workers and aid from every resident.

Your people have been fortunate also in having had as their leaders, men from among them who have demonstrated their strength, character and good will.

Your children are healthy and always uppermost in your thoughts. Active organizations see to it that every recreational activity is made available, if at all possible. Your schools are constantly being refurbished, replenished, and kept up to date with a modern and realistic approach to educational problems.

Your industrial might has kept up to par despite the much talked of "recession".

Your social, service, civic, as well as religious organizations are active and alive to the wants and needs of a growing and modern community.

Your governing bodies are keen and alert to the wants and needs of the people in the community, and the people feel they have a distinct part in the business of their town.

Your shopping areas are clean, and parking facilities available. The shopkeepers are courteous, friendly people who need not fear big city competition because their customers are their friends.

For a toast to Haledon on it's fiftieth birthday, may we say, 'First in family life, first in contributions of her citizens to their town and to their country, and always first in the affections of your people. gentlemen, we give you Haledon.

Signs Along The Road

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

June is commencement month. Boys and girls are graduating from elementary, high schools and colleges all over the country. The college graduates, in most cases, are prepared for their life's work and will immediately go into their particular field of endeavor.

It is slightly different with the graduates at the high school level. Each year, better than a million boys and girls enter the labor market. The majority of them enter the world of work with very little realization or appreciation of the opportunities it offers for their talents and skills. For most of these new workers, their progress depends mainly on trial and error. The simple reason for this state of affairs is that these young people have had little or no job counseling or vocational aptitude tests.

During the past ten or fifteen years, counseling and placement services have increased, but they are far from being adequate.

Our schools are responsible for equipping boys and girls to go to work. Their education and vocational training programs should be greatly increased and improved, to help our young people to enter employment with a greater degree of intelligence.

State employment services and our voluntary vocational guidance service, should be supported in their efforts to provide more counseling and placement service for young people by qualified and trained staff.

All our young people need these services. Boys and girls take the first step in their choice of a vocation when selecting courses in school. The next and more important step takes place in the transition from school to work. During this important period in their lives, a great many of our students fail to get competent vocational guidance and placement service.

To be properly prepared, can mean the difference between a good solid citizen or one who will cause considerable harm to himself and the entire community as well. Employers very often are seeking those young people who know exactly what they are looking for in terms of employment.

As citizens interested in the welfare of our kids, it is imperative that we take stock to find out what provision our educational system is making, to insure a healthy and well trained labor force from among our young graduates.

Proper safeguards in insuring our graduates, competent vocational guidance and training, will do much toward curbing the problem of juvenile delinquency.

NEA Commission Report Critical Of Hawthorne's School Board

According to the NJEA Review issue of June, the NEA Defense Commission blames politics, lack of educational leadership, and voter apathy for the school crisis in Hawthorne last year. Its report, released last month, cites "ignorance, ineptness, and apathy" prime causes for the newspaper advertisements by which Hawthorne teachers solicited positions elsewhere and for the high school faculty boycott on supervision of extra-curricular student activities.

The report says "The voters of Hawthorne have apparently permitted themselves to be placed in the unenviable position of endorsing the proposition that a sound educational opportunity for the children of Hawthorne residents is secondary to the maintenance of a low tax rate."

After reviewing the Hawthorne history of rejected school budgets and controversies over teacher salaries, the Special Committee concludes that the salary schedule in Hawthorne is "inadequate" and "poorly designed to attract and hold quality teachers."

The school board is urged to welcome citizen participation in meeting educational problems. Non-partisan screening of board candidates is suggested. It is suggested that board meetings be held in a manner that the press, teachers associations and interested groups have no difficulty in following the discussions and the agenda.

Accident Insurance For PAL Activities

James D. Sees, secretary of the PAL has announced insurance will be issued to insure against accidents that might occur during a child's activities while participating in PAL activities. The amount has been set at $1.50 per child per year.

PAL officials recommend the purchase of this insurance by parents whose children are active in PAL. This offer will not be available after June 25. Any further information can be gotten by contacting Mr. Sees, by calling MU 4-0802.

Veterans Buy Emergency Housing Units

With sales of New Jersey's veterans emergency housing nearing completion, it is apparent that in more than half the cases this program enabled veteran occupants to purchase their homes.

Joseph E. McLean, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development and administrator of the Public Housing and Development Authority, observed that 543 single and 2-family dwellings in 35 municipalities have been offered for sale thus far. Veteran occupants purchased 396 of these homes in 29 communities. The prices paid ranged from $3,300 for a single family dwelling in Jersey City to $13,600 for a two-family building in Cliffside Park.

After the contracts expired and the homes erected by State and municipal cooperation were scheduled for sale the veterans were given opportunity to buy.

Totowa First Aid Squad Installs President

TOTOWA BOROUGH — Mrs. Dominic Trowse has been installed as president of the auxiliary of the First Aid Squad. Mrs. Harry Santhouse served as installing officer.

Other officers installed include Mrs. Louise Ceralli, vice president; Mrs. Alexander Roberto, secretary; and Mrs. Charles Frederick, Jr., treasurer.

F. J. Vail, president of the First Aid Squad, presented the past president's pin to Mrs. John Pacillo, outgoing president. Members of the auxiliary also presented several gifts.

Three men were driving through the countryside very late on a pitch black night. Two were in the front seat and the other in the back, half asleep.

Suddenly the driver asked the man in the back to look out the rear window and see who the crazy driver was behind them. For the past five minutes he had been trying to let him pass and, to top it off, his car had only one light on. The man looked out the back and then said very excitedly: "No wonder he can't pass you—he's on tracks!"

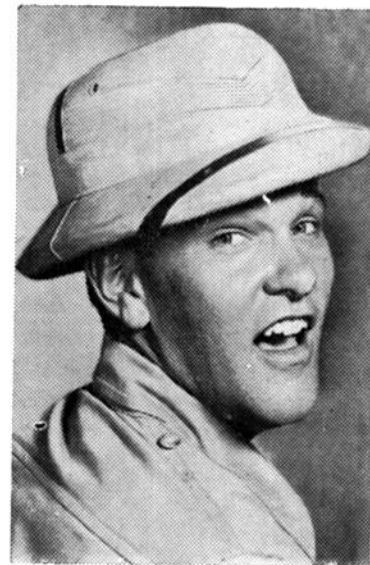

"Is that you, Sam?" the wife called out to the late-returning and somewhat inebriated husband. "All I know," grumbled Sam, slamming into the buffet, "is that I'd damn well better be."

Clergyman: "Isn't there a still, small voice, madam, that tells you what to do and what not to do?" Mrs. Laffwell: "Oh, that thing? I never listen to my husband!"

"Now son . . . stand like this, then simply push your feet like . . . HELP!"

JAPANESE GARDENERS HAVE GROWN RADISHES
AS BIG AS BASKETBALLS, AND WEIGHING 45 POUNDS!

The telegram and the girl with the dark blue eyes, although not even remotely related, arrived at about the same time.

The wire came while Bart Brown, in bodrowed coveralls, was investigating the vitals of his Ajax "8" convertible at the rear of the Lakeview Filling Station. The car had developed a slight knock, something Bart did not think an Ajax should do even after one hundred and ninety thousand miles. He glanced at the message, thrust it into a pocket and was about to resume work on the car when he saw the girl.

She was standing at the corner of the station looking at him questionably. Bart remembered then that Ed Ellis, who operated the station, had gone for cigarettes.

He faced her, wiping his hands. "Something?" he asked in Ellis' friendliest manner.

The girl smiled. Bart became aware of softly curved lips under the blue eyes, plus a small, firm chin. "Just information," she said. "Does the bus for North Lake stop here?"

"Yes," Bart glanced at his watch, "and it's about due." He noticed the small suitcase she was carrying. "Vacationing?"

She smiled again. "For ten days."

"Good," said Bart. "So am I." Then, as her eyes took in his coveralls, "Sort of a busman's holiday — working on my own car." He paused, then added: "if you'll wait until I get this valve cover on you can ride over with me."

The girl was looking at the big blue convertible with open disapproval in her gaze. "No, thanks. I think that's the bus now."

Bart watched her disappear around the station, then looked at the Ajax. What was there about the car that she or anyone else could possibly disapprove of?

He turned back to his work on the motor, but his mind remained on the girl. A really fine looking kid. Dark blue eyes, cream-and-pink complexion, the softly curved lips and the small determined chin—

That evening he drove over to North Lake. The lack of a decent suit was regrettable—he'd come with fishing only in mind—but he trusted to the lure of an open car on a moonlit road to overcome this disadvantage. He returned late that night in a happy mood. An acquaintance had been firmly established.

Her name, he'd learned, was Grace Ansley. She was born in a small town in Ohio, but now lived in Chicago where she worked. He had made his own story equally brief. At sixteen he'd left his home on an Iowa farm to work in a garage because he loved motors. When the Ajax company had been launched he'd gone to work for them and was still on the job.

They spent the next afternoon together. It was then he noticed the small diamond on her finger. From a certain George Underwood, she told him, who worked for Ajax Motors in the Chicago branch.

The real shock came two days later. "I've decided to go home," she said. "tomorrow."

"Tomorrow! But you still have six days!"

"I'm cutting my vacation short."

"But why?"

"As long as I've decided," Grace's chin firmed, "it doesn't matter why."

"I suppose not," Bart said slowly. "Well, at least let me drive you to the train."

It was a short five miles to the station.

Bart slowed the Ajax to a crawl: "Look," he said. "Stay a few more days—"

Grace shook her head. "I don't dare stay."

"Why? Is it because you like me, a little?"

"I like you," she said simply, "a lot."

Bart Brown considered this a moment in silence. "Tell me about George," he said.

The girl drew a deep breath. "There's not much to tell. George is fortyish. He's sales and dependable; he saves his money and he works hard. He's getting places. He's sales manager of the Chicago branch, and when they open up the West Coast division he hopes to be put in charge."

"Tell me about me," Bart said.

Grace looked at him. "You're young, strong and alive," she said. "You're handsome. You'd be wonderful to live with because you enjoy life. But you're impractical."

"Why do you say that?"

"For one thing, this car," Grace said. "Tell me, can you honestly afford a car like this?"

"You might call it my one extravagance."

"Exactly. And it will always be just that.

Your family will be threadbare and hungry but they'll ride in a $4,000 car."

"But they'll be happy," Bart said. "It just so happens that my wife will love me—"

"Love!" She turned on him, her face tense with emotion. "Listen, I'll tell you a story. My mother married for love and nothing else. My father was a bookkeeper. There were five of us. He earned enough to keep us in comfort with careful management. But he had a hobby.

"With him it was hunting. Oh, I'm not saying he did not deserve some fun. But his hobby rode him. He could never see a new gun but he must buy it. A rifle that cost a hundred and seventy-five dollars, an automatic shotgun that cost over two hundred. Items like that, all through the years, while mother scrimped and slaved trying to keep her children clothed and fed."

"And yet," art said, "she may have been happy."

The girl said nothing. With a sigh Bart slowly increased the speed.

The train was standing at the station. With her suitcase stowed aboard Grace stood on the step of the coach. "Goodbye," she said.

Bart turned away. "Goodbye," he said.

The train was pulling out as Bart Brown turned the corner. The convertible stood waiting on the drive. Warily he swung himself up under the wheel. His foot touched the throttle.

"Bart!"

Grace was running toward him.

"Grace!" Bart leaped from the car.

She was panting when she reached him. "I made them stop the train, I pulled the cord."

"Then you're going to stay?"

She nodded, "I'm going to stay — with you."

"In spite of all that George can offer?"

"In spite of anything. I'll save and patch and darn just as my mother did—". Her eyes grew moist. "And be happily in love, just as she was."

Bart did not answer; their lips left nothing to say.

It was later as they sat in the car that Bart suddenly remembered the telegram.

"Darling," he exclaimed. "I've got to send a wire. I'll be right back."

As he hurried into the station he pulled the message from his pocket and read it through again. It was addressed to Barton B. Brown, President, Ajax Motors, and read: "What is your final word on the West Coast manager? I would suggest either Underwood or Hall. Signed, E. M. Carson, Gen. Mgr."

Bart Brown fingered the message, smiling. It might be fun to tell Grace now, but it would be more fun to let her discover it later. In the meantime poor old George certainly did deserve something. He took a blank, addressed it, and then wrote across it tersely: "Give Underwood the job."

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

SERGEANT JASPER'S HEROISM

The name of William Jasper stands out among the heroes of our Revolutionary War. His act of heroism, one of the earliest of the war, occurred on June 27, 1776, at Charleston, South Carolina during a furious ten-hour bombardment by a British fleet.

William Jasper was of such humble and obscure origin that the exact date and place of his birth are not known. He had no education, he could not read or write. But he was a gallant soldier in the cause of freedom.

He was about 25 years of age and living in South Carolina at the outbreak of the Revolution. In July of 1775 he was recruited into the patriot forces by Francis Marion, the "Swamp Fox," and he joined Colonel William Moultrie's 2nd South Carolina Infantry. Jasper was quickly made a sergeant. In the spring of 1776 he was in a group sent to Charleston to prepare the fortifications there against British attack. On Sullivan's Island, at the harbor entrance, the American force of several hundred men commanded by Colonel Moultrie, built a strong fort of palmetto logs. This position, called Fort Johnson at the time, was later renamed Fort Moultrie.

Down from the North the British sent large forces commanded by Sir Henry Clinton and Sir Peter Parker to capture Charleston and hold the Southern colonies. On June 27, 1776 the British fleet began its bombardment of the fort on Sullivan's Island.

The cannonading was hot and furious. The guns of the fort returned the fire of the ships shot for shot. Sergeant Jasper was in charge of one of the fort's cannon. Hour after hour the bombardment continued. The fort's garrison fought heroically under the terrific fire, but it remained for young Sergeant Jasper to distinguish himself above all other brave men there.

The American flag flying over the fort, which was the flag of South Carolina, a blue banner with a white crescent in the upper left-hand corner, was shot down. In the heat of battle Jasper shouted to Colonel Moultrie, "Colonel, don't let us fight without our colors!"

"Can't be helped, the staff is gone!" replied Moultrie. "Then I will replace it!" cried Jasper, and in the face of the deadly fire, with shot and shell whizzing all around him, he leaped over the wall and grabbed the fallen flag. Calmly he tied it to a sponge staff and remounted the flag on top of the wall. Daringly he stood there in full view after the flag was flying over the fort again, and gave three cheers before jumping down to his gun to fight gallantly to the end of the battle.

The British fleet was repulsed with heavy damage. The brave defense of Fort Moultrie, inspired greatly by Sergeant Jasper's heroism, saved Charleston. The Southern colonies remained free from invasion for nearly three years.

A lieutenant's commission was offered to Sergeant Jasper, but he declined the honor because he could not read or write. He felt that his lack of education would embarrass him as an officer. But his brave act in recovering the flag swiftly became known throughout the country and he became a national hero.

Three years later, in the fall of 1779, at the age of 29, Sergeant William Jasper was killed in action at Savannah, Georgia, with the flag of his regiment in hand. His fame as a hero never died, though. The name of Sergeant Jasper has come down to us as a symbol of self-sacrifice and personal bravery in our country's earliest cause.
