COVER PICTURE:

Old Firehouse No. 1, located at West 35th Street and Providence Avenue, Little Falls is shown in our cover picture being demolished as a tank roars through the frame structure. The old building, which was erected in 1938 was reduced to kindling in a matter of minutes. A new single story firehouse and meeting hall has been completed on an adjoining lot. The demolition work was done by V. Ottilio and Sons.

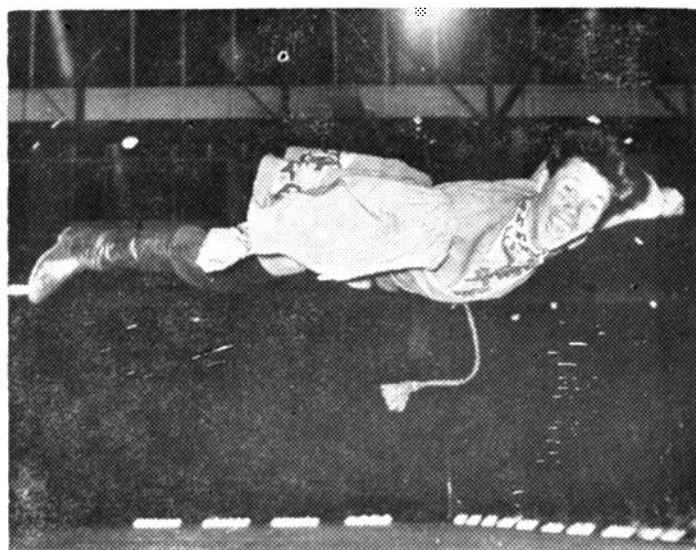

The CHRONICLE

LO! THE POOR INDIAN — Wiesbaden, Germany — Dressed in traditional cowboys and Indians style, members of the German Red Indian and Cowboys Clubs watch one of their number twirl a lasso at the Indian camp near Wiesbaden, Germany. These Indians aren't as tough as their predecessors, though. They called off a "war game" because the grass was too wet!

POKIN' PIG — Topeka, Kansas — Believing that the weeds are always greener, etc., this pig pokes its nose through the fence for a good whiff of eau de weed. With its eyes closed in rapture, the porker seems to be enjoying the scents from the other side of Frank Webb's Topeka, Kansas, farm.

RUSSIAN SPACEMAN — Stuttgart, Germany — It looks as though the Russians have succeeded in putting a man in orbit, as this Cossack dancer makes like Superman. He's caught in mid-flight during a performance of the Omsk Choir and Dance Group at Stuttgart, West Germany.

New Jersey Regulations Require Three For Water Skiing

TRENTON — That is the reminder issued to water sports enthusiasts by Joseph E. McLean, Commissioner of New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

In an effort to promote safety as well as fun in water sports, a regulation was passed early this spring requiring that all boats towing one or more water ski or aquaplane riders have at least one person with the boat operator. The ruling followed incidents in past years in which it was apparent that when a skier is in any difficulty the boat operator may find it impossible to give assistance and simultaneously handle the boat properly.

There is general observance of the regulation already, Commissioner McLean said, but in instances where violations have occurred, it appeared that the boat operators were not familiar with the new ruling. "When they realize it is for their own safety as well as others on the water, they help to spread word of the regulation and its purpose," he added.

The ruling also specifies that while the boat is underway towing ski or aquaplane riders, it must keep at least 100 feet from any shore, wharf or pier or persons in the water. It must keep the same 100-foot distance from any other boat or craft. Skiing and aquaplaning and the towing of such riders are permitted only between sunrise and sunset.

Fair Lawn Budget Provides Large Sum Annually for Memorial Park

FAIR LAWN — Approximately $20,000 will be spent annually by the borough in improving Memorial Park, Borough Manager W. T. Williamson told members of the Memorial Park Civic Association. The funds, said Williamson, will be spent annually until the park has been improved.

Williamson also warned that residents permitting others to use their tags would lose their swimming privileges at the park pool. The pool is open only to residents and their guests.

Improvements to be made at the park this year, according to Williamson, include: surfacing half of the parking lot; installing additional drinking fountains; clearing and planting banks along the edge of the lot.

Tri-Borough Notebook

TRI-BORO

This is in the form of a thank you note from Ruth MacMurray and her mother, Mrs. Westra of 64 Bernard Avenue, Haledon. Mrs. MacMurray is confined to an iron lung as the aftermath of a bout of polio, several years ago. Last Saturday the neck band on the iron lung became defective. The Haledon Emergency Ambulance members responded with oxygen and tried to repair the neck piece. Calls were made but no repairs could be made fast enough. The Ambulance Association called Valley View Sanatorium to see if they could repair it, but they suggested taking a new iron lung down to replace the broken one. Another call was made to Ideal Farms who provided a truck. Scores of volunteers from all three boroughs, alerted by the police and ambulance squads helped pick up and load the huge life-saving machine onto the truck at Valley View and bringing it down to the Bernard Avenue home. Meanwhile, neighbors and friends hastily built a ramp which vastly speeded up the unloading of the lung into the house. Then the damaged machine was taken back to Valley View. Ambulance members got the new lung in operation and placed the tiring patient into it. Mrs. MacMurray is just recovering from a respiratory ailment which added greatly to her discomfort and added to the worries of the scores of people who helped during this emergency.

As I say, this is a thank you letter from the two ladies directly involved, and also from the police and ambulance squads to the many, many volunteers whose very necessary assistance was so rapidly and effectively given. No one could possibly get everyone's name, but we hope this will let them all know their prompt and kindly aid was and is very much appreciated.

Speaking of the Haledon Ambulance Squad, at a recent special meeting the ambulance committee, along with the executives of the association have been given the green light by the members to order a new ambulance, previously accepted and approved by the membership. Delivery is expected within a few weeks. This will be in addition to the ambulance already in service, not a replacement, thus giving extended service to the more than 18,000 residents of the three boroughs it serves.

Both Haledon and Prospect Park have received citations in the past week in recognition of the fact that no traffic fatalities occurred during the year.

Opportunities Unlimited:

Can't Find Part-Time Work? Maybe It's Your Own Fault

By ANNE HEYWOOD

"IF I could only find a part-time job that requires no experience! I must have extra money, I can be away from home half a day, and I'd do just anything!"

That is a refrain I hear constantly, but sometimes I wonder if they really mean it.

Television Assistant

You see, last week a friend of mine, a wonderful woman who runs a cooking show on television, asked my help in finding her an assistant.

Her show goes on every day for fifteen minutes, Monday through Friday. My friend wanted a woman from ten a.m. until 2 p.m., five days a week, and was willing to pay $2 an hour, or a weekly salary of $40.

She wanted a woman who would help her with the behind-the-scenes work. This involved buying the foods that are used on the show, lining up the bowls, knives and other equipment, preparing the icebox and stove, and cleaning up after the show. My friend is a hard-working woman, who thinks nothing at all of scouring a refrigerator or mopping up a work table, even though she is, so to speak, a television star.

Sounded Ideal

It sounded like a cinch, and I was only afraid too many women would want the job. After all, it offered a chance to make wonderful money while the children were at school, to work with a nice person, and to get behind the scenes in television. But it didn't work out that way.

Dozens of women were interviewed, but as soon as we mentioned that they would have to do the cleaning up, scour the refrigerator, and mop up generally, they bristled.

"In other words," one of them said, "what it really requires is a maid."

Not for the Housewives

In short, not a single one of the housewives would touch it. So what did we do? We hired a bright young business girl, who could manage to live on the $40 per week, and who wanted desperately to get into the television business. She didn't mind the menial aspect at all, because she could see beyond it.

A Television Cooking Show
Needed an Assistant.

Sometimes the housewife who complains that "industry never will give us a break on part-time jobs" had better face the fact that the fault isn't always on one side only.

Fanning officiated and a reception followed at The Suburban. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Petricone and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Oates.

MRS. JOSEPH DI BARTOLO

An Ad In The Paper

One of the most valuable tools that has been used for combatting the current recession is the advertising power of home town and neighborhood newspapers. At the end of every production line stands the consumer and national prosperity is but the sum total of local prosperity. In thousands of communities all across the country because of editorial comment encouraging people to buy in their own neighborhood or in their own home town and as a result of newspaper advertising programs undertaken by local merchants, local retail sales, the pulsebeat of national prosperity, have been much encouraged.

An ad in the local paper has always been the mark of a successful business and the experience of recent month has only served to prove the point.

"Every Day Is Commencement Day"

A short time ago thousands of young people graduated from schools and colleges throughout the nation. And something said by William Park, chairman of American Stores, should stay in the minds of all of them:

"We must recognize that formal education is not an end in itself. It is rather a period of preparation for the duties of life and the opportunities of a career.

"There is really no time in life where we can say, 'My education is complete.' As we work, we learn; as we learn, we progress; as we advance, we increase in knowledge. So for all of us, whether we are recent graduates from high school or starting retirement, we look forward to new experiences and every day is commencement day."

Medical Armor For The Baby

From the moment an infant is born modern medicine begins to wrap a protective cloak of science about him.

Silver nitrate is immediately dropped in his eyes to guard him against blindness.

At two or three months he is vaccinated against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus.

At three or four months he is immunized against smallpox.

At six months he is inoculated against typhoid fever.

No wonder the number of deaths among infants under one year old has dropped from 162 per thousand in 1900 to 29 per thousand in 1955.

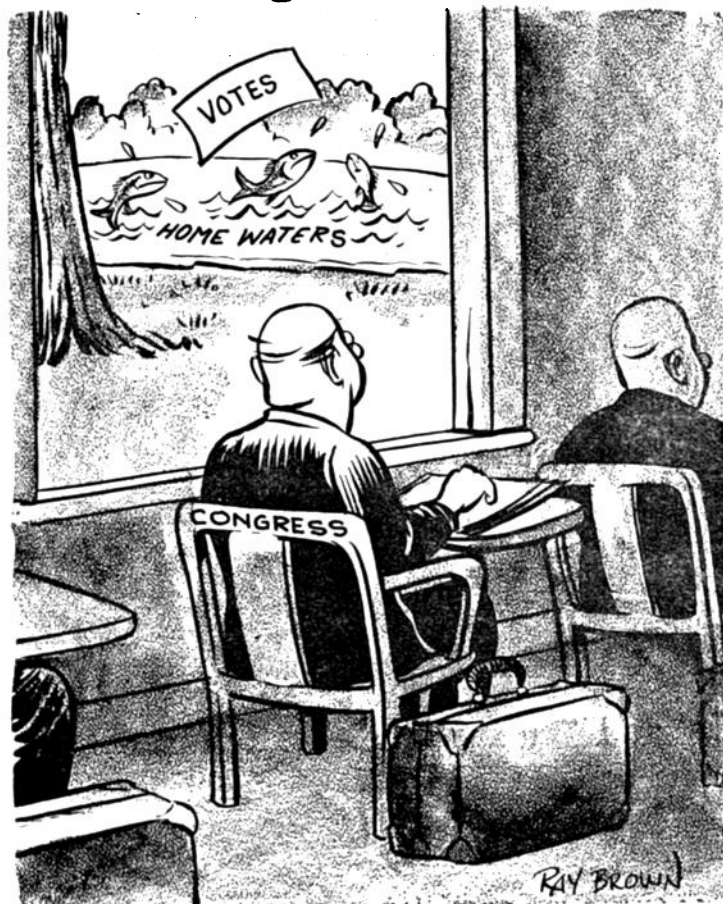

Since 1955 a new link has been forged by medical science in the infant's armor against disease — the anti-polio vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk on March of Dimes funds.

Too many parents do not know that even the tiniest tots may be stricken with paralytic polio. Nothing is more pitiful than to see a baby bereft of the power of motion, encased in an iron lung before he has even learned to walk. Until three years ago there was little we could do to prevent it. But now that we have the Salk vaccine, it is gross negligence on the part of parents to deny their babies this protection.

Last year infants under one year old showed the highest rate of polio attack. Babies from one to two years old came next.

Many physicians recommend the first Salk shot for babies at the age of two or three months. Consult your doctor now.

Fishing Season Is Here

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

Did you ever stop to count the innumerable things that are considered necessary today for the simple process of living?

There is one time when you realize how complicated life has become — when you go on a trip. We are going on a one week trip to the shore. But you should have seen the preparations! You should have helped my wife and me collect all the stuff we have to take on a one week's trip.

I lugged two suitcases and one of those new-fangled zipper bags that you hang up in your car, out of the attic. When I opened the bag — and I swear this is true — a whole flock of wasps flew out of it and almost knocked me down. And mind you this bag was securely fastened with zippers!

Here is another one that may sound unbelievable.

My wife took her extra-special black faille bag out of her dresser. The thing was in a carton, wrapped in tissue paper and, of course, it too had a zipper. When she opened it a whole family of little brown beetles came out to greet her. How they ever got into the thing is beyond her as well as me.

Now came the packing. What to take along? We argued for two hours on how many shirts I should take and what colors. How many pairs of shoes? Should she wear the black ones, the brown ones, the red ones or what? A dress for evening wear? How many handkerchiefs, socks, pajamas, etc., etc., etc.

And so it went. Just an endless discussion about what to take and then came the collecting of all the things that just HAD to be taken just in case something happened.

Finally came the question of what to take the hostess for a present. One HAS to have a hostess present. Since our hostess-to-be is a very, very good friend of our, we finally agreed: Two pounds of real, genuine Roquefort cheese. Not the usual thing, but certainly something she'll enjoy. That was MY idea. My wife thinks Roquefort cheese as a hostess present is an insult to the hostess.

I have to close now. My wife's zipper is stuck.

Bruce H. Nicoll writes in The Reader's Digest: "Do you know what goes on in a field of growing corn? From a small seed it grows eight weeks to a plant with over 1,400 square inches of leaf surface — one of the most remarkable feats of growth in the plant kingdom. And in eight weeks the plant establishes a root system which, if laid end to end, would extend a distance of seven miles. There's saying that in ideal weather you can hear the corn grow. It isn't quite that good, but the plant often does grow as much as four inches in a day."

Plans Complete For Lions Club Picnic To Be Held On September 9th

HALEDON — Plans for the Haledon Lions Picnic to be held at Camp Veritans on September 7 were finalized at the regular meeting held Tuesday night at the new Cedar Cliff Hotel. The meeting was conducted by president Kryn Bosland who took office July 1.

Raffle tickets are now available from Lions Club members for a TV set and a clock-radio. These items will be raffled at the picnic with the proceeds to go to Sight Conservation Fund which is a special project of the local organization.

Former president, Al Caporossi delegate to the Lions International convention held earlier this month in Chicago gave his report to the assembled members. More members will probably be able to attend the 1959 convention which is scheduled to be held in New York City.

Two birthdays were celebrated at the meeting, for Ernie Koces and Dom Cavalieri. Two guests, Ralph Spinella, former member of the Little Ferry Lions and now a resident of Aberdeen Court, Haledon, and Jack Eulitt of the Charlotte, N. C., Lions, who was visiting in the vicinity on his way home from the convention.

The meeting scheduled for August 5, will be held jointly with the Hawthorne Lions at Karl's Restaurant in Hawthorne.

Mr. Joseph Gorab, Superintendent of the new regional high school for Haledon, North Haledon and Prospect Park, will be the main speaker at the meeting planned for September 9. He will give a progress report on the proposed school and any events coming up in connection with the regional program.

All members cordially invite all residents of the community to join with them at their annual picnic to be held September 7. Every year families in the area have a great time and this year, with the new item on the program, the raffle, everyone participating will be able to share in the work of the organization in helping those who can be helped, to save their eyesight.

Animal Kingdom: The story is being told of a momma mouse and her baby mouse who were walking along at sunset when suddenly, from an abandoned building, a bat flew out the window. The baby mouse looked up and said: "Look, momma. An angel."

The wife of a middle-aged business executive met him at his office late one afternoon. As they were going down in the elevator, it stopped and a high-octane secretary got on. Poking the executive in the ribs, she said gaily: "Hello, cutie pie!" Unperturbed, the executive's wife leaned over with a smile and announced, "I'm Mrs. Pie."

The dentist told the millionaire Texas oil man that his teeth were in perfect condition. "But I feel lucky today," pleaded the Texan, "drill anyway!"

New Jersey Ranks Fifth Highest In Number of Mental Hospital Patients

How does New Jersey rates nationally in the right against mental illness, which afflicts one of twelve residents?

A recent survey rates New Jersey fairly high, although much improvement is needed, according to the New Jersey Association for Mental Health.

Dr. Edward P. Duffy, Jr., of Nutley, State President, reported today results of the survey made by the American Psychiatric Association and the National Association for Mental Health.

He said the survey shows that New Jersey has the fifth highest number of mental hospital patients, rates better than many States in adequacy of hospital staffs although far less than recommended standards, and spends more than most States for mental care, but not as much as its population and income might warrant.

The cost figures show that New Jersey is fifth highest in its maintenance expenditure per patient and eighth in the percentage of the State budget allocated to mental care. However, New Jersey ranks only thirty-second in the percent of total personal income spent for support of State hospitals and eighteenth in its per capita expenditures for this purpose.

As for mental hospital staffs,

New Jersey ranks thirteenth in the number of psychiatrists per capita, ninth in the number of physicians, twelfth in other professional personnel including nurses, social workers, psychologists, and others.

Dr. Duffy praised the citizens of New Jersey for the progress which they have supported in the last few years, making this state one of the leaders in the mental health field.

SUPPORTS TRADE PROGRAM

A spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm organization, voiced strong support of a five-year extension of the reciprocal trade program before a Senate committee. He said: "It is not unreasonable to contend that the high and increasing standard of living enjoyed in our country during the past 25 years can be attributed in substantial part to the fact that we have had the trade program."

52 MARKET ST., PATERSON 1, N. J.

The girl standing before Hans Seuthe smiled quickly, her clear blue eyes looking squarely into his. She was definitely the woman for the part. He quickly surveyed the grace of her beautiful figure, her rich blonde hair, and the appeal of her glance. There was nothing cheap or tawdry about her. She could be trusted to find out the information his government desired.

"You have agreed to meet this Screiner?" Seuthe asked coldly.

"Tonight," she replied.

He eyed her carefully. "You'll get the information about the bomb-sight then? He'll give it to you since he works inside the plant?"

"I will do my best, Hans," she said simply, "you know I want that information as well as you, and the Leader must not be allowed to treat us as he did Fritz. Poor Fritz . . . he tried so hard."

Hans Seuthe looked out of the window. "Fritz was a fool," he said. "Yes . . . a stupid, blundering fool. The leader cannot tolerate fools."

He came over to her. "You must get the information tonight, Maria. This is the last chance I will give you. If you fail me tonight your name goes in . . . that is all."

"Heil, heil," she echoed.

In the little restaurant where they had agreed to wait, she kept watching the door. She remembered suddenly the first time she had met Otto Screiner. It had been in this very same restaurant, the night of the huge German rally. They had danced the old waltzes. That had been three years ago.

She saw his wide shoulders coming through the group of people standing on the sidewalk. How young and straight he looked. How clean and fine. Past the few guests he came, smiling broadly.

"Hello, Maria . . . I'm a little late."

She laughed quickly, feeling light and gay. "That's all right, Otto, I'm always happy when I sit waiting for you. It's fun to watch for your funny head bobbing through the people, and then I see those massive shoulders, and I'm completely thrilled all over."

"You're a flatterer," Otto whispered.

"Oh, I know, darling . . . but I love you so."

He sat down and took her hand in his. They ordered port. Then they sat looking over the rims of the glasses, laughing and joking while they sipped the wine. Maria finally said: "You must be working very hard. You look tired, darling."

"I am," he replied. "It's getting tougher every day. They demand more and more . . ."

"You're still on the bomb sight?"

"Sure, I've got that thing on my brain . . . it's a great invention."

Maria watched his big, brown hands cupping the glass. They could break her like a toothpick. He moved his fingers quickly in time with the music that had started. "Otto," she said, "what does this bomb sight look like? Is it big?"

"About this high," he measured the height holding one of his hands over the table. Then he suddenly looked at her sharply. "You wouldn't be a spy, Maria?"

"Otto, she said, 'why should I want to be a spy?'"

He laughed. "You never know today. It's like doubting your own mother, the way they want us to hide any information."

"Everybody has to be careful these times," she added evenly.

"Right. I'd like to get my hands on one of those foreign rats."

Her heart was racing. She knew it was now or never. "Otto," she gasped. "I'm one of those rats . . ."

"You?" he said . . . "don't tease me, Maria."

"But I am, Otto. Honestly. I was sent here to find out how the new bomb sight is made . . . even to get you to sketch it for me. Or better, I was to get you to work with me and get the real plans out."

"My God, Maria . . . do you realize what this would mean? What if you were caught? What if you did get the plans for the bomb-sight, what would happen to you and me?"

She looked at him helplessly. "I know, darling, that's why I had to tell you. I can't go through with it . . . I love this country too much, and I love you even more." Her face, torn with grief, suddenly made him weak and afraid for them both.

Espionage for Two . . .

"Look," he whispered, "there's only one solution."

He continued rapidly. "You must trust me. I'll give you a sketch of the instrument. You return to your headquarters and hand it over to the man you are working for. Act happy. Make him think you have done a great piece of espionage . . . Will you do it?"

"Oh, yes, Otto," she said, "but what of you?"

"Leave that to me. I'll be all right. You just have to report with the details, and everything'll be okay."

She nodded. He handed her a sketch of a bomb sight which she placed in her shoe, under her innersole. Then she rose from the table. "You do know Hans Seuthe?" she asked calmly.

"Oh, yes," he answered. "I have known Seuthe for a good many years. We were close friends in the old country."

"I hope everything works as you want it."

"It will," Otto shot back quickly. "all you have to do is report with the information and act as though you had secured this from me under casual conversation. Tell him I knew you had the drawing . . . act your part and I'll do the rest."

"Good bye, darling."

He rose quickly and kissed her. "I love you, Maria, don't you forget that for a single minute."

"Never," she murmured.

* * *

Hans Seuthe smiled happily. "How did you get Screiner to give you this drawing? It's a wonderful accomplishment, Maria."

"Oh, I used my feminine charm . . . that and the help of the wine," she winked prettily at him.

"This will be a feather in your cap, Maria. The government will reward you well . . ."

Suddenly the door of his office flew open and in walked Otto. He advanced rapidly, with long, menacing strides toward Seuthe's desk. He stood tall and straight and gave the military salute. "Herr Seuthe?"

"Yes, Otto?"

"That woman is weak . . . she has confessed her dislike for the Leader. I heard her denounce the government. She should be done away with . . ." He glared hard at Maria, then she saw him wink.

"I suspected as much," Hans replied, "Maria, you shall be deported in the morning. Your trial shall be arranged under the most promising circumstances." He grinned confidently. "I'm very glad Mr. Screiner had the opportunity to test you out. Your days are numbered."

"So are yours, Seuthe," a voice hissed behind her.

Five policemen had entered.

" . . . nice work, Otto," the big cop said. "We didn't think you were on the level at first. We've been after Seuthe for a long time."

"So have I," Otto replied, "ever since he had my brother Fritz shot for doing some of his dirty work."

"Fritz . . ." Seuthe screamed.

"Sure, you little punk." Otto said, coming toward him with his fist clenched, "you didn't know that Fritz was the first stooge to try to get the plans for that bomb sight? You didn't know that I tried to get him to tell me where you hid out, and that he refused, and because he failed to do your dirty work you had him shot. You didn't realize I was the same fellow who gave you a phony sketch of the bomb-sight before . . . just like that phony one on your desk."

"Then you're not Otto Screiner?" Hans Seuthe cried.

"No," Otto replied. "I'm Herman Bammann . . . remember?"

"Bammann!"

"Yes, Bammann."

Hans Seuthe yelled, "The Leader would give anything to get you . . ."

"C'man," the cops barked, grabbing him violently.

The newly exposed Otto Screiner turned toward Maria. "Do you still love me, even though my name has suddenly changed?"

She came running into his arms.

"You can change my name, too," she whispered.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

Far out in the wilderness of the Great Lakes region a fort was built and a tiny new settlement was begun on July 24, 1701 by a 43-year-old Frenchman, Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac. He called the place Fort Pontchartrain du de troit (Fort Pontchartrain on the strait). So began the great city of Detroit, Michigan.

Antoine Cadillac was a brilliant and resourceful French soldier and explorer who had been placed in charge of the western part of New France, as Canada was then called. This wilderness was known only to trappers, traders, explorers, and French missionary-priests. The French and English were fighting for the rich fur trade of this region.

Cadillac went to France to get permission to plant a new settlement out in the wilderness. He was a proud and energetic man, sharp of tongue and temper, and keen of mind. He enlisted the support of Count Pontchartrain, French Minister of Colonies, and got a grant of land located by the narrow river connecting Lake Erie and Lake Huron. Returning to Canada, he made his preparations and set out from Montreal at the beginning of June with 50 soldiers, 50 workmen, and 100 Indians in 25 canoes. His nine-year-old son went with him. Second in command was a French officer named Alphonse de Tonty.

Seven and a half weeks of hard traveling brought the expedition to the spot on the wooded shore of the narrow strait, now known as the Detroit River, where Cadillac's experienced eye picked the best place for a fort. Here on July 24, 1701 his canoes swung into a sandy beach at the foot of a high clay bank. Here on high ground Cadillac built Fort Pontchartrain du Detroit, named in honor of the French minister who had supported him. Years later, when the English took over the settlement, the name was shortened to Detroit.

In the dense forest Cadillac's men felled trees and set up a palisade 12 feet high and 200 feet square. Inside the walls they built log houses and, being good Christians, they also built a church which was named St. Anne's. And this is how Detroit began.

"The banks along the river," wrote Cadillac in his report to Count Pontchartrain, "are vast meadows where the freshness of beautiful streams keeps the grass always green. These same meadows are fringed with long and broad avenues of fruit trees which have never felt the hand of a gardener; and fruit trees, young and old, droop under the weight and multitude of their fruit." He described the region as "so temperate, so fertile, and so beautiful that it may justly be called the earthly paradise of North America."

To encourage settlers, Cadillac had his wife and Madame Tonty, wife of his lieutenant, come out from distant Montreal. The two ladies came by canoe. They were Michigan's pioneer women who braved the dangers of the wilderness to make new homes for their families and to set an example for others to follow.

As commandant, fur trade and land monopolist, Cadillac dominated the place for ten years. He made friends with the Indians and many tribes established their villages at French Detroit.

The end of Cadillac's rule came in 1710. He had powerful and jealous enemies. They prevailed upon the French government to remove him from the settlement on the narrow strait and to send him far south to be governor of Louisiana. And that was the end of his influence at Detroit. But he had planted well. If not for Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac there would have been no Detroit.
