HANDY SPACE SAVERS

DANCER NANCY KILGAS points the way to a new concept in space saving convenience.

By STEVE ELLINGSON

Aren't we lucky, even if we can't save money we can still save space? Each year more space becomes available. In a short time now, they tell us, we'll have everything between here and the moon.

For all this we are supposed to be grateful and I suppose most people are in an indifferent sort of way. But if you were to ask the average homemaker what her biggest space problem was, she would immediately say that she needed more places for storing household articles.

In most homes, all available storage places are filled. There is one place remaining, however, that as yet hasn't been utilized. That place is handy and out of the way behind doors.

The shelf pictured here with NBC's television dancer pretty Nancy Kilgas may be used behind almost any door in your home. It's shown on the inside of a broom closet door, but it may also be used in the inside of pantry, bathroom, basement, linen closet and kitchen doors. You couldn't find a handier place to put your polishes, cleaners, spices, cosmetics, foods and all sorts of things. And the best part of it is, a shelf of this kind keeps things neat and orderly. The articles are always visible and easy to find.

Of course, this shelf doesn't necessarily have to be hung on a door, it may also be used on a wall. It's good looking and decorative as well as handy. In a workshop too, you'll find this handy for storing nails, screws and little hardware articles. They are easy to find when kept in glass jars.

Building this back-of-door shelf is easy when you use the full size pattern. You simply trace the pattern on wood, then saw out the parts and finally put them together. It may be made taller and wider, or smaller, depending upon where you want to use it. Simple tools are all you need and complete directions are printed on each pattern.

To obtain the full size back-to-door shelf pattern No. 171 send 50 cents in coin to Steve Ellingson, The Chronicle, Van Nuys, Calif.

Robert Baumle Meyner will be inaugurated to a second four-year term as governor of New Jersey at noon Tuesday. In 1954, the start of his first administration he was a bachelor and an unknown quantity as a political personality. This year, he takes the oath as a Benedict celebrating his first anniversary, and as one of the chief contenders for the Democratic nomination as presidential candidate.

The highly advanced experimental rocket shown here has gone out of the earth's atmosphere and returned due to the blunt-nosed shape of its first-stage rocket. The story behind this feat will be unfolded on January 19 on CBS Television's "Conquest," which will be presented in cooperation with the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Academy of Sciences.

Can Paterson Do As Well In 1958?

By J. PALMER MURPHY

Many Challenges Still Remain!

Far better than other communities in North Jersey, Downtown Paterson in 1957 held its own as a retail, commercial, economic and professional center.

Can we do as well in 1958?

It is quite possible for Downtown Paterson to do better in 1958, despite increased competition from suburban areas, uncertain economic conditions, and similar factors.

Downtown areas, or central business districts, are neither dead nor dying, although some have committed suicide. People will still come downtown in large numbers if downtown wants them to, and downtown businessmen will make the effort to attract them.

Paterson fortunately had the foresight to understand that things might be a little more difficult in the future, and has been preparing for present conditions for the past five years. While other communities thought conditions might get very bad, leaders in those communities wrung their hands and gnashed their teeth, and waited for the axe to fall. Paterson acted.

In 1952 the merchants of Downtown Paterson began planning, a long range plan designed to meet the competition that would exist in 1957 and subsequent years. Through the Distribution Division of the Greater Paterson Chamber of Commerce, committees began to study the problems involved, to test programs, to consider projects.

On Jan. 6, 1954, at a dinner meeting Division President Jerome S. Levine sounded the call to action with a hard hitting talk on individual responsibilities. Harry D. Adamy, president of Quackenbush's, then galvanized those present into action with a stirring analysis showing that Downtown Paterson had a most attractive future.

From that meeting came the Commercial Development Fund for Paterson's Future, a new idea of a community wide promotion of a central business district. Over 30 other communities throughout the country have since copied Paterson's plan.

The Commercial Development Fund, using money raised each year by voluntary contributions, has expended $158,000 (through December, 1957) for the promotion and advertising of Downtown Paterson. The Fund's sole effort is promotion and advertising of the Downtown Paterson business district: its retail stores, professional offices, financial institutions, commercial establishments, amusements, eating places.

About a year and a half after the Fund's organization, business and civic leaders joined together in what became popularly known as "The Forward Paterson Movement", to bring into actual being those projects that spell progress for a city, and to revive community spirit. Under the aegis of this group, many long dormant projects were revived and put into operation, many previously insurmountable obstacles were smoothed over, and progress has been made.

Meanwhile, the Greater Paterson Chamber of Commerce continued its most active program on many fronts for community betterment.

The revival and the progress of the past two years would not have been possible without the full cooperation of the city administration, and Mayor Edward J. O'Byrne and his city officials have fought consistently and courageously for a better Paterson, for an improving and progressive city.

Other civic and social groups have taken up the campaign, and the momentum that has been generated can and will carry Paterson ahead in 1958 and 1959 and future years.

Momentum of past accomplishments, however, is not enough to meet the problems of 1958. In 1957 the central business district successfully withstood the opening of two of the largest shopping centers in the United States — competition unequalled in any other city in the country during the year. Retail stores, financial institutions, amusements, all have sprung up in surrounding suburbs, and along the highways. There is no time for Downtown Paterson to relax, nor for any other segment of the city to relax, for it must be borne in mind that the central business district pays 27 per cent of the taxes in the city, and strongly influences the entire economic life of the community. The central district is needed to support the industrial and residential sections, which in turn complement the downtown area. Paterson is a unit, and must think and move as a unit.

The year ahead must see more community thinking. Much greater progress could have been recorded in the past had there been less selfish thinking, more civic spirit, more cooperation.

It is important to everyone in the city that new industries be attracted and that the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and the city's Industrial Commission along these lines have full support. The citizen who commutes to New York each day cannot shrug off the city's industrial problems, saying "That doesn't effect me." It effects everyone.

Work has started on a major urban redevelopment project in the First Ward. This is a progressive step, but in the year ahead there must be citizen support for further redevelopment projects, to stop the spread of slums and blighted areas. There must be industrial redevelopment, for too many of our plants are becoming obsolete and unable to measure up to modern requirements.

Paterson needs better highway connections. The New Jersey Highway Authority, operators of the Garden State Parkway, have never lived up to past promises or legislative directives requiring the completion of a parkway spur into Paterson. The city badly needs the Bergen - Passaic Expressway, the Paterson - Newark Expressway, the completion of Route 208. The fight for these highways cannot be abated.

Off street parking in Paterson is now adequate, due to remarkable work by the Paterson Parking Authority. Last year the city finally named a full time Traffic Engineer. Traffic congestion is today a greater problem than parking, and the Traffic Engineer must have backing in his efforts to solve this mess. Corrections will call for drastic action, for the traffic congestion has been growing unchecked for years. Selfishness must be discarded in favor of the overall good, and the traffic recommendations of a highly qualified, unbiased expert such as Traffic Engineer Herbert Keegan must have a fair and complete trial.

Merchants must not only continue and expand their cooperative efforts through such things as the Commercial Development Fund and the Chamber's Distribution Division, they must give serious thought to a "new look" for Downtown Paterson. Money must be spent for store modernization. Every possible action must be taken to make downtown more attractive. A cleaner city must be one of these objectives. The Mayor's Cleaner Paterson Committee is supplying the leadership for such a program. Individual responsibility must be exercised not only by those in the Downtown area in keeping their sidewalks and curbs clean, but also by residential and industrial property owners.

It is easy to think of the grave international problems, of the need for greater scientific advances, of sputniks, and of the federal budget. Newspapers are full of reports and comments on these great and serious problems. They deserve thought by all the citizens.

Yet we cannot close our minds to local problems. Everyone who lives or works in Paterson must give some thought to Paterson's problems in 1958. There must not be pessimistic thinking. Paterson needs constructive, creative thinking, support, and action in 1958. With it, our progress will continue.

Failure to induce former Domestic Relations Judge Milton Schamach resulted in the naming of Robert Shavick as West Paterson magistrate. Some back-fire may be expected. Judge Shavick was sworn in at a special meeting of the mayor and council Wednesday night over the objections of the lone two Democratic members. They charged the new magistrate with being a political appointee to the Paterson Parking Authority, forgetting he had been renamed by a Democratic mayor on the basis of a job well done. Shavick has ability and will lend a great deal of dignity to the post.

The selection of Alvin G. Blau as North Haledon GOP leader came as a complete surprise to many party stalwarts in the borough. He is a relative newcomer to the area.

Hawthorne Police Chief Ryan Vandervalk had himself a Florida vacation and was back to his duties before many residents knew he had left.

They tell us the North Haledon Republican school board candidates are selected by a unique Democratic process . . . They are named by GOP leaders.

Former mayor Vincent Perneti of North Haledon was to act as host mayor to Branch 120, National Association of Letter Carriers at installation ceremonies. Since Perneti's resignation came before the affair, no host mayor was available.

Walter Kelvin, more affectionately known as Walter Kattwinkel of Totowa Borough, postcards from Cleveland where he is singing the lead in the road company of "The Most Happy Fella". Walt's family lives at 68 Garfield Place.

While not generally known, Larry Doby's sound financial advice comes from a Fair Lawn insurance man, Leo Minuskin. The Baltimore Orioles centerfielder has wisely made a number of good investments on Minuskin's recommendations.

Joseph W. Smith of Garfield, former president of Local 217, United Rubber Workers Union, will be honored at a testimonial dinner February 22 at American Legion Hall. Smith achieved an impressive record as a fair-minded, sincere trade unionist during his tenure. He was also active in many civic and fraternal organizations in the Garfield area.

It appears that Mayor David Brown of Haledon will have his hands full this year with four members of the council reportedly opposed to many of his views.

Incidentally, we hear Haledon Councilman Nicholas Ficca refers to himself as "Romeo".

The GOP Political Action League, which had its start in Little Falls, has been rather dormant lately. The reports are that the group will become re-activated in the spring in attempts to capture the county leadership.

Charles Kornreich's decision not to seek re-election in the East Paterson school board contest is reportedly not motivated by the pressure of business.

This Bowling World

By RON PHILLIPS

Perhaps the biggest thrill that a baseball player gets is hitting a home run especially in a World Series game. Well, it's the same thing in the sport of bowling as a kegler enjoys nothing better than getting a 300 game, especially when it comes in an American Bowling Congress Tournament.

The fact that only 14 men have bowled a perfect game in 54 ABC tournaments makes a 300 game a rare achievement. Certainly this is one of the things that makes the annual event or 10-pin show as you may call it one of the year's top sport events.

FIRST IN 1913 — When the late Billy Knox of Philadelphia authored a 300 game in 1913 he was the toast of the bowling world. He was the first bowler to toss 12 consecutive strikes in an ABC tournament and maybe the last many thought.

It wasn't until 1926 that the second 300 game was tossed and this came by Charley Reinie of Racine, Wisconsin. In 1933 another performer entered into the selected field when Jack Karstens of Fort Sheridan, Ill., came along with the third charmed 300 game.

The 11 others were rolled by the following: Carl Mensenberg, Scranton, Pa., in 1935; Mike Blazek of Conneaut, Ohio, in 1938; Bill McGeorge, Kent, Ohio, in 1939; George Pallage, Akron Ohio; and Mike Domenico, Canton, Ohio, in 1940.

Bill Hoar of Cicero, Ill., in 1941; Leo Rollick from Huntington Park, California, in 1946; Vince Lucci of Trenton, N. J., in 1951; Ray Mihm, Green Bay, Wis., in 1953; Tony Sparando, of Rego Park, N. Y., in 1954; and Myron Erickson, of Racine, Wis., in 1955, round out the great list of ABC tournament stars who have come through in fine fashion throughout the years in sanctional ABC play.

The most puzzling story surrounding the 300's is the fact that not one of them has been rolled in team competition. Eight of them have come in the individual event, while the other six have come in the doubles.

EASTERN COLLEGE LOOP — Another week has gone by in the Eastern Intercollegiate Bowling race, and still at the head of the pack with a 30-6 mark is Brooklyn Polytech.

Manhattan College which has been in the second spot all season long is closing the gap and is coming along near the top as they follow with a 26-10 record.

Fordham University, NYU, St. John's, and Iona College are all bunched for the third place position with each of them sporting a nifty 25-11 won-lost mark.

While the local schools in the Passaic - Bergen area have been finding the goings pretty rough all season long after having great campaigns in the 1956-57 race.

Montclair State is the only local squad to sport a winning mark, as they have posted 24-12 combination won-lost record.

Fairleigh Dickinson niversity, of Rutherford, N. J., is just below the .500 mark as they are 17-19, while Paterson State, a victorious winner all last season, is way down in the standings with a 12-24 record.

FRANKIE AND DINAH — Dinah Shore and guest star Frank Sinatra find time to relax before starting a busy rehearsal schedule for the NBC-TV colorcast of the "Dinah Shore Chevy Show" Sunday, Jan. 26. The pair scored a hit when Frankie was Dinah's guest on her first color show last season.

GOVERNOR MEYNER TAKES COURAGEOUS STAND

On Tuesday, Governor Robert Baumle Meyner will be inaugurated to a second four year term of office. In 1954 he assumed the office as a bachelor and on Tuesday he accepts the oath as a Benedict celebrating his first anniversary.

In the short space of four years, from a position of almost political obscurity, the Governor has gained such a degree of national prominence that he has become one of the leading contenders for the presidency of the United States.

To relate here how this was achieved would require too much time and space. Let it be sufficient to say that the Governor is a man of principles and convictions who has recognized his duty to the people and has performed accordingly.

In his annual message, the Governor outlined a comprehensive program for the years ahead to "meet the challenge of the times."

Critics labeled his message to the joint session of the legislature as "lukewarm" and as one in which he failed to state his position clearly.

The Chronicle disagrees with those critics and in addition to extending our sincere best wishes for his continued leadership, we want to state that he made a courageous stand, insofar as we are concerned.

In the first place, there is no question that the Governor advocated an increase in gasoline tax. He said so and it took courage to state his position on such an unpopular subject as taxes. This certainly cannot be termed "lukewarm".

Secondly, we feel the Governor showed a great deal of courage in stating his conviction when he called for a restoration of rent control.

There are many voters who oppose rent control. Yet, even among those who oppose it, we are certain there are many who will recognize and appreciate the quality of leadership Governor Meyner displayed in making his sentiments known on such a controversial subject.

So if the message was "lukewarm" the Governor, in our opinion, gave it just the right "heat" at the right time.

His is the kind of leadership which can only bode well for our people in the tense times ahead.

SUPPORT FOR SCIENTIFIC EDUCATION

The Esso Education Foundation — which was established in 1955 by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has announced a wide variety of grants to 84 privately supported colleges and universities to stimulate science teaching at the elementary, secondary, college and graduate school levels. This is being done under a special three-year $1,500,000 program, of which the first part has been put into effect.

There is evidence that we are lagging in scientific education, particularly at the grade and high school levels and the Esso Foundation, with its special science program, has set a precedent that great numbers of American enterprises should enthusiastically follow.

'How Do You Feel About Communism?'

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

I can't imagine what is happening to the present generation. It seems that the percentage of youngsters reading books is getting smaller and smaller as time goes on. Nobody wants to sit and read anymore. The stock reply seems to be "what, and miss television"?

No wonder some of these kids can't spell or know the meaning of two syllable words! The only thing that gets attention it seems is television and the latest rock and roll record. The kind that sounds like jungle drums and drives you crazy.

Whatever happened to Frank Merriwell and his brother Dick. I'll admit they were never part of the classics but they were excellent reading and each book taught a moral lesson which certainly lacking nowadays.

Burt Standish was quite a man and a prolific writer. Notwithstanding, I could read them faster than he turned them out and each month I would be down at my favorite newstand clamoring for more.

Then there was Nick Carter. What a hero he was! The invincible; the master sleuth who always solved the baffling case and brought the culprit to justice in a thrilling finish.

But the point is we used to read avidly and discuss each new book intensely. We would vie to see which of the members of our group could read more than the other. Thus we learned! Our vocabulary increased and we learned to spell. Nowadays, the kids know all the words because they hear them on TV, but they can't spell them or use them intelligently in conversation. We need a decided revival of reading habits.

Schools do ask for book reports but the kids are wise and rewrite the synopsis which is on every book-jacket. You can't win.

The only way to do it is for parents to insist on a reading hour every day. Test your children tomorrow. Let me know if I'm wrong. They can't read!

Masiello is too valuable a man to be sacrificed to satisfy political vengeance.

Talk around town is that Assemblyman Robert Wegner will be approached to pit his vote-getting ability against that of Gordon Canfield for the congressional seat . . . Wegner, who has been designated as head of the Passaic County Assembly delegation, could turn the trick this year . . . Incidentally, they say that it may be his brother, John C. Wegner, Jr., who will be named chairman of the Paterson Housing Authority.

OUTLOOK — Business forecasts are mixed. Some economists think the business downturn has run its course. Other economists say lightening of inventories will be necessary before there can be an upturn. The bulk of forecasts call for recovery after the middle of the year.

WAGES — There are sharp differences as to the part which several years of rising wages have played in the current business dip. This year, negotiations for labor contracts will be carried out against a background of labor oversupply. Some say recovery will be hastened if negotiations result in no significant 1958 increases in wage rates. Halting the spiral of production costs is of the utmost importance.

CONSTRUCTION — More money was spent on construction in 1957 than in any previous year, but rising costs held volume below levels of 1956 and 1955. The total outlay was estimated at $47.2 billion, an increase of 2.4 per cent over 1956. Major categories included utilities, which invested more than $8.2 billion in new and expanded facilities; the highway program, which accounted for about $5 billion; and public school construction, nearly $3 billion.

This year increased investment in facilities is planned by electric and gas utilities, while telephone expansion may be lower than 1957 when the Bell System invested $2.5 billion. Spending is expected to be accelerated under Federal - State highway building program.

In recent weeks, residential housing, which slumped during 1957, is staging a comeback and 1958 will bring more than one million housing starts. Some say the total could rise to above 1.1 million, topping both the 975,000 starts of 1957 and the 1,093,900 starts of 1956.

POSTAL RATES — It is certain Congress will boost the letter mail rate from three cents to four cents and increase rates on newspapers, magazines, advertising material and catalogues. A measure passed in 1957 by the House would bring $462 million in extra revenue. The Senate is likely to okay this bill with minor changes.

"MISS RHEINGOLD OF 1958" New York — Lovely California-born Madelyn Darrow, 22, holds a bouquet of flowers after hearing that she was elected "Miss Rheingold of 1958". The title is worth about $50,000 to the winner of the yearly contest.

THE SHOWCASE

By D. G.

Alan Ladd, William Bendix, Kenan Wynn, James Whitmore and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., male stars of "The Deep Six," lived at the Naval Base on San Clemente island while filming off-shore battle scenes aboard a destroyer for the Jaguar production for Warner Bros.

RUBINOFF RETURNS — One of the most famous violinists of the 20th Century returns to broadcasting Sunday, January 26, on "The Steve Allen Show" (NBC-TV, 8-9 P.M.). The artist: Rubinoff. To radio listeners of the 1930s "Rubinoff and his violin" was favorite feature on Eddie Cantor's weekly program. Now, 20 years after his radio hey-day, Rubinoff brings his violin — and his humor — to TV. Rubinoff made his radio debut 30 years ago this month in a one-hour program on WMCA, N. Y.

"The Naked and the Dead", filming in a coconut grove in Panama, is racing against time to finish shooting in that set before the coconuts ripen and begin falling. Natives say the Hollywood troupe has about two more weeks to get out from under the hundreds of 60-foot high trees before the area becomes dangerous. Potential targets for getting beamed are players Aldo Ray, Cliff Robertson and Raymond Massey, director Raoul Walsh and producer Paul Gregory.

LITTLE NOTES

Jerry Lewis' father, Danny, and his son, Gary, will appear for the first time together in a motion picture, Paramount's "Rock-A-Bye-Baby" . . . Feminine roles for "The Naked and the Dead", Aldo Ray-Cliff Robertson starrer, will not be cast until company returns from Panama location early February . . . Robert Hutton is packing for London where he will star in a film from his own original story, "The Face in the Window" . . . Audrey Hepburn arrived in Rome January 3, to prepare for her starring role in "The Nun's Story", which begins filming in the Belgian Congo mid-January. Orson Welles will essay role of a national magazine editor in 20th-Fox's "The Best of Everything" . . . Miiko Taka, Marlon Brando's pretty Japanese sweetheart in Warner Bros.' "Sayonara", donned one of the colorful kimonos she wore in the film in the Rose Bowl Parade New Year's Day.

The young lady eyed her escort with extreme disapproval.

"That's the fourth time you've gone back for more punch, Albert," she said coldly. "Doesn't it embarrass you at all?"

"Why should it?" the young man shrugged. "I keep telling them I'm getting it for you."

Mrs. Mather was going away after a long visit.

"Do you remember what time my train leaves tomorrow?" she asked her son-in-law.

"Sixteen hours, seventeen minutes, and thirty seconds from now, dear Mama."

Little moron's wife sent him downtown for a bucket of ice. He came back with a pail of water. "I got this for half price because it was melted."

Dentist: "I'm sorry, but I'm all out of gas."

Girl in Chair: "Ye Gods! Do dentists pull that old stuff, too?"

Tourist: "Good river for fish?"

Fisherman: "It must be. I can't persuade any to come out."

"How did Oscar lose the fingers on his right hand?"

"Put them in the horse's mouth to see how many teeth he had."

"And then what happened?"

"The horse closed his mouth to see how many fingers Oscar had."

"How far is it to the next filling station?" the driver asked a farmer.

"Nigh onto two miles as the crow flies."

"Well, how far is it if the damned crow has to walk and roll a flat tire?"

IT'S AN ILL WIND — Toronto, Can. — You never see a cat cry over spilled milk. Nor do the felines shed any tears when comes a big freeze that pushes the milk right up out of the bottles, as happened here. The "push-up" provided the kind of lollipop that makes a hit with a cat.

"Power - hungry bureaucrats with control of our tax dollars pour money down an ever - increasing stream of non-essential federal programs which give them control over vast areas of government activity. Of course, the taxpayer pays the bill.

"Government . . . never goes out of existence. Government has no competition so there are no competitive factors that force it to be efficient."

"When you hear the fire trucks coming — pull off the road — give them the right of way — and give firemen every possible advantage in their always dangerous assignment . . . Don't make their job that much harder by your desire for excitement or lack of consideration for the life and limbs of others. It may be your property they are trying to save."

"Why are we behind the times? The answer is obvious. American people have forgotten that progress for the satisfaction of human vanities is shaky progress, and that until we place values on exploration, research, intellectual discipline and progress for humanity, we can expect to be behind the times. And these things do not start at the top, but rather, they start at the grass roots and surge upward in direct ratio to our degree of interest and activity."

"With the current exposes by the Senate Rackets Committee of the squandering of funds paid by union members, the average American must realize that he was the one who paid the money that made these lush funds available. Whatever funds find their ways into labor racketeers' pockets are added costs paid by the American public. Whatever wage demands are made by labor unions are paid by the American public."

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH by Russ Arnold

"Hollywood calling..."

BY LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

Evie stared at the telegram that young Tommy Bender had just given her as if it were a communication from Mars. Time was when a telegram might have meant the world and all — in the days when Evie was Eve Collyer and Hollywood had started to smile a little. But that had ended five years ago when Eve Vollyer admitted defeat and had become again little Evie Kraus and married Pete Lennard, a smart young lawyer in her home town, Maranville, Ohio.

Pete came from the breakfast room as Evie stood looking bemusedly at the telegram. Young Paul, aged four, and Sandra, two, taking their cue from Evie, looked with great round eyes at the yellow envelope in her fingers.

"I wonder——" She became aware of Pete, watching her with affectionate amusement. "I wonder who sent this. I can't think——"

Pete shook his head slowly. "The way of a woman with a telegram — Darling, why don't you open it and find out?"

"Why, I——" Evie flushed. She thrust the envelope at him. "Here — you open it, Pete."

He looked at her fondly, opened it and read:

PASSING YOUR WAY, EVE. WILL STOP OFF FOR A FEW HOURS THIS AFTERNOON TO SAY HELLO FOR OLD TIME'S SAKE. GUS.

Pete's dark brows went up. "Hm!" he said. "An old lover maybe?"

"Don't be silly, Pete." Evie reached for the telegram. "It's from Gus Avery, who used to be my agent in Hollywood. I haven't heard from him for five years — not since we've been married. You'll like him."

Pete shook his head. "I'll hate him. I'm still jealous of that glittering past of yours, Evie." He slipped an arm about her still slender waist. "Ever regret chucking up a career like yours to marry a small town lawyer and —?"

She put her hand over his mouth. And squirmed a little. She always did, deep within her, when people alluded to the career she had sacrificed to marry young Pete Lennard.

"This Gus fellow, did he ever——?"

"No," said Evie. "He never. He's fat — or was — and jolly, and has the thirst of a camel. You're in charge of the camel-department; so don't forget."

Pete saluted, grabbed hat and coat and made a lummstead exit as the bus swept around the corner of Maple Avenue and Pine Hill.

ed him board the bus on the fly. Her eyes were bright. Regret? No, she had never for a moment regretted marrying Pete. Her life had been good, full and satisfying. In Maranville there would always hang about her an aura of glamour. She had heard it so often: "That's Evie Lennard — she used to be in the movies as Eve Collyer. She turned down one of the biggest parts on the screen just to marry Pete Lennard ——"

Maranville would never forget it. Maranville five years ago had been a rural town of party-lines, and everybody who owned a phone was on the line the night Seth Altman called from Hollywood.

She had been at a party at the Reddens house and Mamie Sommers, the phone operator, had got in touch with her there. She could still hear Mamie's breathless voice: "Evie — Eve that is — Mr. Seth Altman calling you."

crowding shamelessly out into the hall. And they stared at her in wonder and awe and near-disbelief as she told the greatest mogul of them all that she had found what she wanted most right here in Maranville. That she wasn't interested in playing the world-coveted part of Marsha Vale and that, if there was a fairly large body of water handy he knew what he could do.

She thought of that night as she made ready for Gus Avery's visit. Good old Gus! She remembered fondly just how good Gus had been to her; how, when she was hungry he'd fed her; when discouraged, had heartened her; when finally, beaten, she had said, "I'm through, Gus. I'm going back home and marry the boy I used to go with in high school." Gus had said, "Look babe, you should stick it out. You'll get the big break yet. I got wires out——"

No go. She had kissed Gus on his bald spot and, crying a little, she had taken the train East.

A long black convertible drove up to the white, green-shutered house, just on the strike of four. Evie, her work about done, was wearing green — Gus had always told her to wear green, and gold drop earrings — and she looked lovely.

Pete was with Gus. "Here's your man!" Pete called. "Cop on the corner directed him to my office. We're pals already."

"Gus!" All the old memories, bitter and sweet, came crowding back to her.

"Evie!" Gus threw away his cigar. "My own dear girl! And lovelier than ever — ah, I knew it would be so. And happy——"

He bent to kiss Sandra and hug young Paul. "I'm so glad."

"Don't cry, Gus." Evie was almost crying herself. She was glad that Gus found her still lovely, that he saw and recognized her happiness.

After dinner they sat in the garden drinking cafe royal and watching the gray cigar smoke drift across the flowers.

"Evie," said Gus, nodding his head, "you were a wise girl. You were right — in every way right. This ——" He waved his cigar — "why there's nothing in the world better than this."

"Do you think, Gus," asked Pete, "that it really makes up for all she sacrificed! I don't make much dough. We get along, but it's pretty humdrum at times. I've often wondered if ——"

"Oh, Pete ——!" She couldn't listen to this again. It had gone on too long. "Maybe I — I shouldn't spill this ever, but I know you love me enough for it not to matter any more. Maybe I was a fool to think it would ever matter. But, you see, I didn't want people to think you married a failure, or that I was seeking safety in marriage because Hollywood had really given me a beating——"

"What are you trying to tell us, Evie?"

"Simply that it wasn't Seth Altman who called that night — it was good old Gus here. Gus could always imitate Seth's bad grammar and buzz-saw voice. I wrote and told him what I had in mind. So he promised to phone, pretend to be Altman, and make a big offer so I could tell him to jump in the ocean. There! It's out and I'm glad."

Pete looked dazed. Gus Avery choked on his cigar. In the garden were only the low summer sounds and a swooping hawk sounded like a dive-bomber.

"Well?" she asked, finally.

Peter came over to her, bent and kissed her.

"And so, that's that." Evie got up. "I must see what the kids are doing."

She went across the sparkling grass, a still slim, still lovely, still magic figure of a woman. The two men smoked in silence.

"Women," said Pete at last, "are funny."

Gus stirred his big hulk in the deck chair. "I don't think you know just how funny. I don't know even if I should tell you . . ."

"What is it, Gus?"

"It's just this," said Gus, leaning forward and speaking in a hoarse whisper — "I never got to call Eve that night . . ."

"Then — oh, my gosh——" They stared at each other. "It must have been — oh, NO!"

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN'S ANNIVERSARY

This week we honor the memory of a world-famous American on the 252nd anniversary of his birth. His name was Benjamin Franklin. He was born in a crowded home in Boston's Milk Street on Sunday, January 17, 1706, the 15th child of Josiah Franklin, a tallow-chandler.

He grew up to be a strong boy fond of physical play. Yet he also read a lot and had an eager curiosity about all sorts of things. At the age of 12 he was apprenticed to his half-brother, James, a printer. Five years later young Benjamin struck out for himself and went to Philadelphia, then the largest city in America, where he arrived with his pockets stuffed with extra clothing and one silver dollar.

Hungrily eating a penny loaf of bread and carrying two other loaves under arm he passed by the house of a Mr. Read, whose daughter, standing in the doorway, laughed at the young man's ridiculous appearance. The young lady later became Ben's wife, some time after he got a job with her father as a printer.

This was the start of Benjamin Franklin's long life of achievements and fame as an author, diplomat, inventor, patriot, printer, philosopher, scientist. How did he do all this? He had physical strength, tremendous energy, a keen mind, and a passion for improving himself. He never stopped thinking, questing, doing. He read widely, learned to write well, and he taught himself French, Spanish, Italian and Latin. And he knew how to get along with people.

As a printer Benjamin Franklin was outstanding with his Pennsylvania Gazette, and especially with his Poor Richard's Almanac whose homely sayings were not only repeated throughout America but also translated into foreign languages. In later years he wrote his autobiography, a work which still makes interesting reading.

Constantly experimenting, he invented an improved heating stove, and his kite experiment with electricity became famous. He established the first circulating library in America, and the American Philosophical Society. For twenty years he was Postmaster for the thirteen colonies.

Benjamin Franklin's fame spread to Europe and smoothed his way later as a statesman and diplomat in England and France. He represented the colonies before the British Parliament. As a leading member of the Continental Congress he helped draft the Declaration of Independence and was one of its signers. In France during the Revolution, he got that country to come to the aid of the fighting colonies. And after the war he was one of the committee that drew up the peace treaty with England.

Now he was old and could look back in the fullness of his years in a rewarding life. Still active at 81, he was a member of the convention that drew up our Constitution in 1787. Old Ben's wisdom and rich humor were valuable assets at the service of his country to the last days of his long life.

He died in Philadelphia on April 17, 1790, venerable and renowned with his 84 years of useful living. He had enjoyed life, taking of it lustily while giving generously of himself through his wide range of interests. Benjamin Franklin, the self-made man, the lowly tallow-chandler's son, the staunch republican, the many-sided careerist who could move with ease and honor among the aristocrats of Europe and joke with royalty, was a symbol of the greatness of America.
