Long Beach Island To Sponsor Beauty Contest

TRENTON — How would you like to be "Miss Magic Long Beach Island?" This is the question asked by the Long Beach Island Board of Trade in sponsoring a new beauty contest.

According to the Department of Conservation and Economic Development, prizes worth $600 will be awarded to the young lass voted "Miss Magic Long Beach Island" and the rules are few and simple.

The contest is open to single girls between the ages of 17 and 25, with good character, charm and poise. The contestants must be bona fide residents of Long Beach Island or Stafford Township. However, non-residents may qualify by spending two weeks in the above mentioned areas during the 1958 summer season.

Fair Lawn Democrats Seek New Leader

FAIR LAWN — A meeting of the Democratic County Committee will be called to appoint a new Democratic municipal chairman, Henry Kopp said yesterday. Kopp submitted his resignation as municipal leader and committeeman from the second voting district.

Kopp, who has failed to recognize Morton Ruben, said "he will call a meeting of the county committee as his final official act."

Ruben was elected Democratic municipal leader by an 18 to 5 vote of the county committee at a meeting in June. The committee appointed Ruben after casting a vote of no confidence in regard to Kopp.

Kopp has maintained that he was the duly elected municipal leader and termed the June meeting of the county committee "illegal". Ruben has claimed the meeting was "legal".

The Seminole Indians who live in Florida today are descendants of tribes who called Florida home hundreds of years ago. Their indelible imprint is to be found in the names of rivers, lakes, springs and towns still bearing the musical Indian names.

TRI-BORO

Preparations for the twenty-fifth anniversary parade and celebration of the Haledon Emergency Ambulance Association are gradually reaching completion. Several more squads have indicated they will attend, a motorcycle escort with white shirts and helmets will lead off, and the mayors, council members, police departments, fire companies and auxiliaries, all joining in this tri-boro effort.

The new ambulance will be dedicated to the service of the three communities on that day. The nine surviving charter members will ride in convertibles in the parade and will appear on the platform during the ceremonies at the Roe Street Recreation Field.

The three boroughs really have demonstrated a true cooperative spirit in the past through their contributions to the ambulance association through the years.

Now with the referendum for the Regional High School scheduled for October 9, the three boroughs will again be working for a common good, the expansion of educational facilities for the children of all three boroughs.

Last Wednesday, August 13, when the Regional Board members appeared before the board of local municipalities to apply for excess credit for the region to establish the school, they were highly praised by the State Board.

A 20 page brochure containing every available bit of information on the region as it is today, and on the planned educational plant, had to be presented. It is required to be presented to the state before the actual time of the hearing, and our was. However, it seems that our Regional Board was the first one ever to apply which had actually gotten the complete information down there before the hearing. Much praise was given for the thoroughness and accuracy of the reports, and the detailed explanations added for clarification.

If anyone had any doubts about the advisability of hiring a Superintendent, this one job alone should be proof. The information that had to be collected, collated, summed up, analyzed, written and presented, was voluminous and the ordinary lay person could not have done the job. As Mr. Gorab, our superintendent of the Regional High School had experience in the building of two other schools, two months of valuable time was saved. This means that with this one report and visit to Trenton, the permission to hold the referendum was granted two months earlier than could be reasonably expected.

I think all members of the Regional Board should be given a vote of thanks for all the work they did in holding special committee meetings, visiting and collecting material for Mr. Gorab for the reports. Some of the members made special trips during their vacations to hold or attend meetings; some left their jobs for a day at a time to meet with representatives of the state or county, or with land owners involved in the acquisition of the site for the school.

We should all feel proud of the people who represent us on the Regional Board and back them up with our attention and appreciation of their efforts in securing a better secondary education for our children.

'Incidentally, one school board in the state didn't hire a superintendent and has already appeared before the State seven times. Sometimes towns are penny wise and pound foolish, but thank heavens our region wasn't.

HALEDON

In connection with the ambulance Corp's celebration, Charlotte and Gloria Westfall, 15 and 12 respectively, and Eddie Hewitt, had a sale last week or rather, they held a bazaar for the benefit of the Ambulance Association.

They sold toys, jewelry and any other donated items, the money going to the ambulance fund. Perhaps they'll keep it up as long as the goods hold out, but they've already donated $5 and a pair of crutches to the corps. The bazaar was held in front of the Westfall home at 435 Haledon Avenue. Charlotte is a sophomore at Central High; Gloria is a seventh grader and Eddie Howitt of 18 Mangold Street, will be starting his freshman year at Central in September. Good going, kids, you're setting a fine example of the community spirit we were talking about in the earlier part of the column.

New arrivals in the borough include a daughter, Terrie, to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Engold, 17 Summit Avenue, on July 30; and a daughter, Shirley, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Post, 21 Harris St., on July 29.

School district clerk, Al Troyano, will have the entrance cards for all students who will attend Central High School and Paterson Technical and Vocational High from Haledon, the week of August 25. All students must have a card in order to get into school and as there was a mix up last year when students picked up cards for their friends, this year each student must pick up his own card. They may go to Mr. Troyano's home any day next week at 6 Bernard Avenue.

Harold E. Kampf has appraised chemicals, dyestuffs and other merchandise of the Haledon Textile Processors, Inc., of 299 Morrissee Avenue, at the sum of $3,532.50.

The materials are at the Martin Warehouse at 188 Lafayette Street. Haledon Textile Processors have been named defendant in an insolvency proceeding. Jacob Paer of Paterson was named receiver.

Miss Linda J. Hardt, 10 Pompton Road, will attend with 20 other students from the Paterson area, the Bucknell University at Lewisburg, Pa., for a four day orientation program on September 13.

The members of the Kiwanis Club certainly had beautiful weather for their annual outing Wednesday at the home of Ben Fischer, 11 Avenue B.

Vince Martinez, welterweight boxer of Haledon, Paterson and Miami Beach, Fla., was married August 16 to Joette De Lorenzo of Clifton at St. Mary's R. C. Church. Rev. Eugene McQuaid, assistant pastor, officiated. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Circle Restaurant in Wayne, attended by 300 guests.

Frank Yannucci returned home Monday night bringing home his wife, Marian, and daughter, Marjorie, from a stay with friends in Milanville, Pa. They plan to return for another week starting August 29.

Election of officers will be held at the September meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of Fire Company number two, on September 10. Two new members were welcomed at the August meeting. Roberta King, and Margaret Sinnott. The auxiliary will participate in the ambulance parade on September 20.

Susan Maffei recently returned from a stay in the hospital recovering from a throat infection.

OPEN LETTER

from Haledon Library Association

The 1958-59 membership cards are now available, and we are asking you to renew your membership in the Haledon Library Association and give your support to the Library. Membership dues will continue to be a major factor in maintaining the library headquarters.

We have progressed rapidly since we organized in May, 1956. The Library has been established, new bookshelves were recently added, and over a hundred new children's books were purchased. Adult books are being purchased and the free public library, staffed entirely by fine volunteers, is functioning smoothly.

In the first six months since the Library opened, more than 350 free borrowers' cards have been issued and more than 3,000 books were in circulation. Library hours, beginning September 1 through May, are: Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, 2 to 5; Friday evening 6 to 8; and Saturday, 10 to 12 a.m., and 1 to 4 p.m. Summer hours are: Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, 1 to 4, and Friday evenings, 6 to 8.

Won't you stop in at the Library and renew your membership? Dues are $1.00 for adults; fifty cents for juniors (up to 14 years of age). Checks for membership dues may be mailed to Mr. Joseph Garbaccio, treasurer, Haledon Library Association, 408 Morrissee Avenue, Haledon; and membership cards will be mailed. We need your continued support.

Sincerely,

MRS. JOSEPH AQUADRO,
Membership Chairman.

Opportunities Unlimited:

Wife and Mother 20 Years; Could She Go "Back to Work"?

BY ANNE HEYWOOD

HAVE you ever thought, on rainy days when the children were driving you crazy, "Well, some day when they're grown, I can always go back to my teaching"? Or nursing or merchandising or whatever it was?

With Mrs. M., it had been teaching. She came to see me the day after her youngest child's wedding, an imposing-looking woman in her late forties, tall and with smartly coiffed gray hair.

"I really mean business now," she said. "My husband will be retired in six years, and we've never had a chance to save any money. If we're to live half way decently, I have to get a job and save for the next six years."

She wanted me to help her get back into teaching. "But I've registered everywhere, and people just look at me blankly," she mourned. "I guess twenty years is too long to be out of your professional field. I guess the skills that I packed away when the children were born are just as out of style as my trousseau dresses."

Mrs. M. had taught art, and it was true that methods and techniques had changed drastically. But I pointed out that, after all, she had lived for those years and had learned certain things—and perhaps some of her home and volunteer activities could be made to add up.

"Well," she admitted timidly, "I have done a lot with arts and crafts for the Brownies, and the Boy Scouts. And I sold more war bonds than any mother in our neighborhood. But that's just amateur stuff!"

I told Mrs. M. to get a list of firms that manufactured arts and crafts materials. We wrote letters, mentioning her art teaching background, her twenty years of experience with her own children and the PTA, and her excellent sales experience with the War Bond Drive. It worked. She got a job selling finger paints to schools and hospitals.

If your business or professional experience is out of date, you don't have to throw it away. Like a good but out-of-style dress, you can add some accessories, remodel it a little here and there, and find it just as usable as ever. The clue to the accessories is always in the homemaking you have done for the volunteer community projects at which you worked in the intervening years. The difference between work we do in an office and work we do at home or in the community exists largely in our own minds. No experience is ever wasted. It can always be put to use.

Cerebral Palsy Building Too Small For Needs

To give effective treatment that will meet the standards set by the Cerebral Palsy medical specialists of the National Academy for Cerebral Palsy, it is necessary to provide more treatment space than the Passaic County Elks Cerebral Palsy Treatment Center's present building provides. This was announced at a recent committee meeting of the board of trustees and the center's medical director and members of the medical advisory board.

The present building, located at 1481 Main Avenue, Clifton, opened in 1951 with 65 patients. Since that time the number of cases has increased to 155, more than double. Every available bit of space is being utilized but more is needed.

The committee will make its report to the Passaic County Elks Crippled Children's Committee and will recommend that further studies be made regarding expansion of the present building.

"If you'll just sign here we can consider this whole business just a loan."

The sales manager was delivering a terrific dressing down to one of his salesmen. He became so abusive in his anger that the culprit protested, saying, "Don't talk to me that way. I take orders from no one." "That's what I'm raising hell about," snapped the manager.

WHAT'S GOOD FOR YOUR DOCTOR . . .

There are 206,000 doctors and 430,000 nurses in the United States. These 636,000 persons are key figures in maintaining our health.

They are interested not only in curing us when disease strikes, but in preventing disease before it strikes. When science develops a new preventive against a disease, they are anxious to make full use of it. That is why once-dreaded afflictions like smallpox and typhoid have been virtually wiped out of the country.

Today our doctors are trying to wipe out another terrifying disease — paralytic polio. Only a few years ago polio epidemics swept this nation like a plague, crippling tens of thousands, reducing them to helplessness for life.

But the Salk vaccine, developed on March of Dimes research funds, has cut the polio toll down to 5,894 cases in 1957, an 85 per cent drop from the 1950-54 average.

Because the medical profession has vaccinated 65 million Americans with the Salk vaccine, polio no longer makes newspaper headlines. But for the 46 million persons under 40 years old who have failed to get their vaccinations, polio is still a serious threat.

That is why the American Medical Association, the American Nurses' Association and the American Hospital Association have all urged their members to get vaccinated themselves and to encourage their patients to do likewise.

Your doctor knows what he is talking about. If polio vaccine is good for him, it's good for you. An ounce of prevention now may save you from a lifetime of crippling.

KILLER OF CHILDREN

Burns cause more injury and death among children than any other agent. Every parent should know how to identify and treat them.

This point is stressed by Today's Health, an American Medical Association publication. It then provides some simple but vital rules:

Youngsters will grasp everything within reach, so never allow conditions to exist which can lead to accidents. Keep matches from children; keep pots from the edge of the stove, and keep youngsters from fires.

Determine quickly the degree of burn. In a first degree burn the skin is red; in second degree, the skin is blistered; in third degree the skin is charred.

For first or simple second degree burns, coat affected area with antiseptic ointment or olive or baby oil. This relieves pain and prevents skin from cracking and drying out.

For deep second and all third degree burns, call a doctor immediately. Shock and infection may occur. A layman should not attempt to treat burns of these types.

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

A friend of mine complained to me the other day that his wife is a very good cook but that after more than twenty years of marriage, her cuisine had become a little monotonous to him.

The same old things year after year, he said, beef, pork, lamb, chicken, peas, beans, carrots, fried potatoes, boiled potatoes, baked potatoes. Even frozen, they still look and taste the same as before. Just like reading the same book over and over. No suspense, no surprise, nothing new.

It turned out that we and my friend and his wife all celebrated anniversaries in the same week, so we decided to show the women how fancy cooking is really done, and took them to a fancy restaurant in New York for our celebration.

We really had the works. Starting with Petite Marmite Bearnaise. But the girls showed us that it was really nothing but a soup made of boiled boneless short ribs and a chicken. To two pounds of beef and one chicken, four carrots are added, two leeks, one stalk of celery, two turnips and a marrow bone. Then chervil, tiny bits of chive and a few pinches of parsley. This is served in bowls with toasted slices of rolls and launched on the soup as it is served. Delicious!!

We continued later with Caneton a L'Orange. Plain Long Island duck that, but glamorized to a fare-ye-well with Digarde sauce.

For dessert we had Baroque Jambon Madera. Know what that is? Sponge cake cut in layers, sprinkled with brandy and kirsch and spread with a filling of egg yolks with sweet butter added and stirred until the mixture gets thick, put into the refrigerator to harden and glazed with sugar and chocolate melted together.

This meal, the girls were told by us well fed men, was more like what we had in mind and for them to copy. Funny, the girls just sat there smiling until the check came. As my friend and I swallowed hard and gathered up all our hard earned dough to hand over to the robbers who ran the restaurant, the girls smiled and said, "You give us that kind of money for meals every day, boys, and we'll cook 'em!"

Needless to say, the chicken, ham, beans, etc., looked awfully good from then on, and we kept the budget in line too.

New Jersey Turnpike Traffic Hits Highest Mark To Date During July

NEW BRUNSWICK — Traffic on the New Jersey Turnpike in July totaled 4,012,815 vehicles, the first month since opening to attain the four million figure.

This is shown in the monthly report just mailed to bondholders. The traffic was up 4.7 per cent compared with July 1957, when it amounted to 3,834,253 vehicles. Toll revenues June 1958 were $3,083,458 against $2,976,723 in the same month a year ago.

For the 12 months ended July 31, 1958, the traffic amounted to 40,150,434 vehicles against 37,822,239 for the same 12 months ended July 31, 1957.

Including concession revenue, income from investments and miscellaneous income, the total revenues for the year ended July 31, 1958 were $32,981,383. In the corresponding period a year earlier total revenues totaled $31,238,522.

Budgeted operating expenses amounted to $6,404,749 against $5,406,352 one year previously. After reducing these operating expenses but before debt service or reserve requirements, there remained $26,576,934 compared to $25,832,169 on July 31, 1957. In the current 12 months there were disbursement from the Reserve Fund, as provided in the Bond Resolution, and not provided for in the budget as operating expenses, of $980,262 compared to $49,881 in the 2 months ended July 21, 1957. These latter disbursements were for extraordinary expenses.

Wayne Township Ponders New Ordinance

WAYNE — Some refinements of the proposed "growth control", zoning and planning ordinances were presented at a sparsely attended public hearing before a joint meeting of the planning board and the township committee Thursday night. The original plan calling for underground utility lines in residential A zones has been altered. The tentative plan now is to permit overhead lines.

Both boards emphasized that all proposals heard Thursday were tentative.

These lines, however, must be 15 feet in the rear of houses. Street lights must be supplied with electricity through underground conduits.

Reason for this change from the original tentative proposal was the prohibitive cost the idea presented, according to George Sullivan, township committee-man.

CUB SCOUT TOURNAMENT

MacBurney Promoted In National Guard

George E. Mac Burney, son of Mrs. A. MacBurney and the late Edward MacBurney of 45 Tilt Street, was one of several members of the 114th Surgical Hospital (Mobile Army) Unit of the New Jersey National Guard recently promoted to the rank of specialist, third class.

MacBurney joined the New Jersey National Guard under the Reserve Forces Act in 1957. He took his basic training at Fort Dix, and was then stationed at Brooks Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where he received advance medical training. He is now on the administrative staff of the Surgical Hospital Unit at the Paterson Armory.

Besides being an active member of the New Jersey National Guard, MacBurney is active in civic affairs. He holds charter membership in a local political organization; is an active member of the local Board of Education and works for the Grand Union Company as a Department Manager in one of the company's newest Super Markets.

MacBurney admits that spare time is scarce in his life but receives much enjoyment and satisfaction from helping others and hopes to continue this endeavor.

The ambulance was summoned by Miss Jo Ann Sidor, park director, and the child was rushed to the Beth Israel Hospital, Passaic, where he was admitted for treatment.

NEWARK COMBAT OVER FORTY BIAS

Social Security Beneficiaries Should Keep Track Of Their Earnings

Social security beneficiaries who have not already done so, should notify the Social Security Administration if they are under age 72 during any part of the taxable year and expect their earnings to exceed $1,200, Stanley J. Fiorese, district manager of the Paterson social security office said today.

"Do not wait until you have reached the $1,200 mark if you expect to earn more," he advised, "since you may have to return some of the payments you have already received. Each year some people are overpaid because they fail to notify us in time for withholding benefit checks to which they are not entitled. Naturally the beneficiary had to refund the overpayment."

Mr. Fiorese attributed most cases where claimants fail to file a timely report to these causes: "Some people, at the beginning of the year, plan to limit their earnings to $1,200, and later on decide to earn more. A few do not keep a record of their earnings as the year progresses and suddenly they learn that they have already earned over $1,200. Others do not realize that their earnings for the entire taxable year in which they reach age 72 must be included to determine if they have earned over $1,200, he pointed out.

Mr. Fiorese gave the following summary of the earnings rule. A beneficiary who limits his earnings to $1,200 or less during the taxable year will receive all his checks. If he earns over $1,200 in his taxable year, one month's check is not payable for every $80 (or fraction of $80) in earnings over $1,200. For example — for earnings of $1,200.01 to $1,280, one check is not payable; for earnings of $1,280.01 to $1,360.00 two checks are not payable, etc. An exception to this rule is as follows: Even if a beneficiary earns over $1,200, he will get a check for any month in which he neither earns wages as an employee in excess of $80, nor renders substantial services in self-employment.

"Those beneficiaries who need to report may do so by contacting their social security district office," advised Mr. Fiorese.

The Paterson Social Security office is located at 245 Market Street.

TINKER TOM DAY

Gene London, the Tinker Tom, will make an in-person appearance this afternoon at the Palsades Amusement Park.

VACATION TIME

...AFTER SPENDING EVERY PLEASANT VACATION AT THE SEASHORE AND BURNED TO A CRISP, YOU MEET YOUR OLD PAL CHARLIE WHO GIVES YOU THAT USUAL GREETING...

While on vacation last summer at a lake in Mississippi we got into conversation with an old-timer who rented boats. When we asked him if many people used his boats for fishing, he drawled, "Well, use some people fish." Then: "And some people catch fish." After a pause he added. "And some people just drown the worms."

At a Horn & Hardart automat during the breakfast rush the man ahead of me asked the server for the lone piece of dried-up French toast left in the warming tray. She refused to give it to him, telling him firmly that a fresh batch would be along any minute. Just as firmly the man replied that he would take it anyway. The woman, adamant, said he must wait for the fresh toast.

Exasperated, the man retorted, "Look, lady, if I'd wanted a fight for breakfast, I'd have stayed home!"

"Are you sure 'crepes suzettes' mean baked beans?"

Grouse In Jenny Jump Forest State Park Follows Caretaker On Mower

TRENTON — A rare experience this season for visitors to Jenny Jump State Forest in Warren County is the occasional sight of a ruffed grouse trailing behind a forest workman as he goes about his duties. One of New Jersey's shyest and most celebrated game birds the grouse is a strictly forest bird, rarely or never appearing in open, broken farmland country. Yet, something about quiet Jonah Howell, or the noisy power motors, woodsaws and other machinery he operates, caused one bird to completely reverse the normal traits of its species.

District Supervisor Alfred Appel, with headquarters at Jenny Jump, first reported the phenomenon to officials of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, responsible for the administration of this State forest.

Mr. Appel said early in the spring Mr. Howell noted the cock bird observing him from the edge of a clearing. By midsummer, the grouse strutted behind as Mr. Howell guided the mower through picnic areas. If the workman pauses and extends his hand the grouse will ruffle his feathers and stage a ferocious mock battle. Spectators may observe from a respectful distance, but if camera fans come too near, the grouse will scurry into nearby underbrush.

Protective coloring makes him almost invisible against the leaves and branches near the ground. His back is typically reddish brown with the sides of the neck bearing large tufts of glossy greenish feathers. The broad tail, flared during battle, is reddish brown and crossed near its tip by a broad band of black. Behind this band is a lighter, almost whitish one. Throat and underparts of the body are buff with characteristic blackish-brown bars at the sides.

A chief concern as fall hunting season approaches is that the bird may become so tame as to be an easy target for sportsmen. The season usually extends through November, December and part of January.

Belmont Avenue Paving Being Considered

A request from Haledon for the resurfacing of Belmont Ave. in its entirety was referred to the county engineer and road supervisor by the Board of Freeholders.

The Haledon borough clerk, who asked for the resurfacing in a letter, commented that borough residents and merchants requested the work.

GARDENIAS

MRS. GARRITY

Mrs. Garrity read the item from Hal Boyd's gossip column in The Blade for the fourth time, staring at the paper which lay on the table in the supply room as she wrung out her mop. She always read Hal Boyd. His column kept her abreast of all the doings among the big people, people she saw sometimes in the hotel.

When she had first read the item on the subway coming to work, it had struck her with as much impact as if the two persons mentioned had been her own daughter and son-in-law and now she went about her work without spirit, missing the warm delight with which she always contemplated cleaning their rooms.

Such nice young people they were and, after all, she had known them since that first morning, Mr. Miller even longer. And they had always been so happy together. It didn't seem right. She lifted the bucket tiredly and started walking to the rooms which had been Mr. Miller's even before they married.

Everything in the bedroom was the same and the picture mingled with the implication of the item brought a sharp tug to her heart. His coat was lying over the chair. He must have worn the camel's hair this morning, she thought. Well, she supposed it was warm enough, although the wind was sharp, biting. The coat had been there like that the first morning. And she had put the bucket down, yes right here in the bathroom, with a dazed feeling, unable to disguise her surprise at seeing the lovely lady in his room.

And then he had said: "Mom"—he always called her mom—"I want you to meet Mrs. Miller. Isn't she a lovely thing?"

"She is that, Mr. Miller."

"Marianne, this is mom — Mrs. Garrity. She's taken care of me for a long time."

"Ah, you're always kidding, Mr. Miller. I just clean his rooms for him, Mrs. Miller."

"And never touches any papers that shouldn't be touched," he had said. "And always puts the slippers in the proper spot under the bed."

"I suppose now you'll be needing a regular woman." She was strangely frightened at the thought.

"We will not," he had said.

And then Mrs. Miller, such a sweet, kind girl, had said: "Of course not, mom. If you need extra time, you take it and we'll be happy to pay you for the extra work."

Joy and good feeling and bright spirit had filled the room that morning. And gardenias, dozens of gardenias, in the pitcher on the dresser, in another pitcher on his little bookcase. Mrs. Miller had listened almost enchanted by the story, it seemed, as he explained the reason for the gardenias.

"They have a special significance," he had said. "It seems that I was going into a flower shop and she was coming out and I was going to buy gardenias and she had already bought them. And we bumped and I knocked them out of her arms. And we had lunch. And we got married. And there's a gardenia for every day of the two months we were courting, Mrs. Garrity."

They had always been happy together.

You could tell that by the way their faces brightened when they looked at each other, Mrs. Garrity thought. Mrs. Miller had just been starting out then but now she was a big star and Mrs. Garrity went to the neighborhood theatre both nights when she was playing in a picture and told Mr. Garrity and her children how well she knew her and got autographs for them.

"And she's as sweet and kind as you could find," Mrs. Garrity always said. Scrubbing the bathroom floor, Mrs. Garrity remembered all the dresses she had given her, the rich perfumes, books for the children, and never forgotten to ask about Mr. Garrity's health.

Of course, they couldn't have a house, not with her in Hollywood so much. But they had made the hotel rooms cozy and home-like. And when she was in the city, they had such good times.

It had never occurred to Mrs. Garrity to doubt the item in the column and she was not unduly surprised when she saw the suitcases in the bedroom. That was why Mrs. Miller had come back this time, then, to take the things of hers that were in the room.

There was a short note on the dresser.

"Please take the black dresses in the closet, Mrs. Garrity," it said.

Now wasn't that just like her, Mrs. Garrity thought, remembering me, even with all her sadness. And her heart must be so heavy today. No, it wasn't right. Even if they were apart a lot. It had probably been some foolish argument they would both get over in time. Hadn't she argued with Mr. Garrity? Yes, many times when they were younger. And it was nicer than ever when you made up.

The idea of gardenias came suddenly to Mrs. Garrity in the maze of memories that were flashing through her mind. There wasn't much time. Mrs. Miller was probably only out for lunch and would be back any minute.

Mrs. Garrity reached into her pocket, pulled out a small wad of bills. She counted them carefully. There were seven. Well, the grocer would just have to wait. She went down the service elevator and hurried to the flower shop on the corner.

"I want seven dollars' worth of gardenias," she told the florist.

He stared at her, bewildered. "Seven dollars worth," she repeated, looking at him sternly. He shrugged his shoulders and started to work. She walked rapidly back to the hotel with the large box.

In the rooms again, she hurried to the typewriter and fingered the keys idly, her rough, gnarled hands looking strange in this position. Now what should she say? It was very important, what she said. It had to erase a lot of things, it had to say a lot of things.

She started to type with great care and deliberation. "Because they are beautiful like you . . ." Yes, that was all right. Maybe he would be able to put it better, him being a writer, but that is what he would mean. " . . . and to wish you happiness wherever you go . . ." Yes, that was all right. She felt almost romantic, reading it to herself again. "With all my love . . ."

Hurriedly, she filled two vases with water, put the gardenias into them, placing the note auspiciously beside one, and then she began to clean the rooms, working spiritedly, feeling much better now. She managed to finish her work before Mrs. Miller returned.

Reading Hal Boyd's column on the subway the next morning, she felt her heart quivering with intense happiness. felt a lilt there that she could hardly believe was possible for a woman of her age. Her eyes glazed with tears as she read the item for the fourth time:

"Darrell Miller and his missus, Marianne Lane, say it isn't so that they are through and they have a message for Mrs. Garrity . . . the message: 'If you think it's that important, so do we.'"

Mrs. Garrity got off the subway, her eyes dreamy, walked proudly into the basement of the hotel.

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

THE CONSTITUTION AND THE GUERRIERE

During the early months of the War of 1812 the little American Navy, with only six first class frigates, didn't seem to have much of a chance against the strong and proud British Navy. American morale was low at the time. Then on August 19, 1812 came the great sea victory of the Constitution over the Guerriere.

The U.S.S. Constitution, one of our finest warships of that time, was a 44-gun frigate, 204 feet long, 1576 tons, staunchly built of oak and cedar timber by skilled shipwrights. Paul Revere had done the metal work on her. When the War of 1812 broke out Captain Isaac Hull was in command of her at Boston.

Boldly defying the British squadrons in nearby waters, Hull sailed his ship northward toward Halifax. About 600 miles east of Boston he came upon the Guerriere, a British 38-gun frigate. She was a strong ship, and Captain James Dacres, commanding her, had boasted that no American ship could stand up to her. Proud Dacres had publicly bet his hat that he could beat any American ship in 15 minutes.

Both ships recognized each other as deadly enemies at sight. Eager for battle, both captains prepared for a duel to the death. Cleverly Captain Hull worked in close and kept his guns silent, steering his ship to escape the full effect of the Guerriere's long range fire. Many of the British cannon balls bounced off the Constitution's thick hull, and at sight of that a shout went up from her sailors, "Look how they bounce off her iron sides!" So "Old Ironsides" was nicknamed in the heat of battle.

The Constitution closed to within 50 yards. Plump Captain Hull, leaping excitedly on the deck, shouted, "Now, boys, pour it into them!" and let his whole broadside go at once. The British ship reeled and down crashed her mizzenmast. Now the Constitution rocked her foe with deadly fire. "Hull her! Hull her!" shouted the Yankee gunners. And Captain Hull lulled her.

The Guerriere's bowsprit snagged in the Constitution's rigging, then the ships wrenched apart, leaving the Guerriere wallowing as the green seas poured into her hull. Another Constitution broadside cut down the Guerriere's formast. Then her mainmast crashed. She drifted helplessly, strewn the waves with flotsam and corpses.

His ship now a dismantled, helpless wreck, with 79 of his crew killed and wounded, Captain Dacres surrendered. The battle had lasted half an hour. The Constitution, with 14 casualties, was hardly hurt. It was a bitter moment for Captain Dacres who only a short while ago had been boasting big.

The tall, proud British commander came over and silently offered his sword to the dumpy little Yankee captain. Hull, remembering Dacres' boast, shook his head. "No, no, Captain. I'll not take a sword from one who knows so well how to use it. But," he said with a chuckle, "I'll trouble you, sir, for that hat."

The wrecked Guerriere, too damaged to be saved, was set on fire after her crew was removed. The Constitution then sailed back to Boston where a grand victory reception was given to Hull and his officers. Congress awarded Captain Hull a gold medal and gave $50,000 in prize money to the officers and crew of the Constitution, the mighty "Old Ironsides" whose brilliant victory did much to build up our country's morale in those trying times.
