COVER PICTURE:

The CHRONICLE

SOFT SOAPING — Chicago — Although it looks as if the snow has come to stay in this wintry scene, the deceptive white stuff stems from another source. It's nothing but soap suds flowing from sewers in this suburban area outside Chicago.

LET 'EM EAT CAKE — Paris — The U.S. Marines take the cake, according to Paris pastry cook Pierre Franchiolo. He whipped up this 150-pound tribute in honor of the 183rd Anniversary of the Marine Corps. The cake is decorated with historic scenes and insignia of the Marines, plus a replica of the Eiffel Tower, which Franchiolo, as a proud Frenchman, couldn't help adding.

SKYLINES — Governors Island, N.Y. — Against a background of the Manhattan skyscrapers it will defend, an Army Nike-Hercules Missile adds a futuristic touch to autos and a slow-moving ferryboat as it rests on Governors Island, N.Y. With atomic warheads capable of stopping whole formations of planes, the new weapons are adding their knockout punch to the defense of the New York area.

North Haledon Zoning Vote Postponed

Action on the revised zoning ordinance in North Haledon was postponed for one week by the mayor and council.

The postponement was at the suggestion of the mayor, who said he would like to have all councilmen present to participate in the discussion. Councilman William Tanis was at present out of town on business the mayor stated.

The hearing will be held coming Wednesday evening.

At its last meeting the council passed a resolution approving plans for the Saw Mill Road drainage project.

Citizens Protest Sunday Soccer in Haledon

The citizens of Haledon have petitioned the council protesting the use of Roe Street Memorial Field for Sunday soccer games.

Area residents say that soccer played at the field on Sunday has created an "unsavory" situation with loud and profane language being used by players and spectators.

Councilman Les Dean alleged that out-of-towners were responsible for the disturbance. The matter was referred to the Board of Recreation for study.

Pacific Ocean To Be Testing Area for Missiles

The Navy has revealed that they are considering using much of the Pacific Ocean as a vast testing area for missiles and space vehicles.

The proposal made to the Department of Defense includes an area of a million square nautical miles bordering on Johnston, Tarawa and Christmas Islands in the South Pacific.

Included in the Navy outline was the recovery area for Project Dinosaur in which a man would be orbited around the earth and then recovered.

The Navy described Manus Island as the best location for launching an equatorial-orbit satellite. This would be valuable because it could be made to travel at the same speed as the earth and could remain over one spot on the globe.

ADULT EDUCATION TO BE HELD IN HAWTHORNE

A program of adult education will start in Hawthorne on February 3. Twenty courses will be offered and the cost per course will be approximately $10.

Fortunate Dog Escapes Serious Injuries

A fortunate dog was not in his coop when a terrific explosion wrecked his domicile. Detectives promptly came to investigate the cause of the explosion. They promptly put their magnifying glasses to their eyes to see if there were footprints in the newly fallen snow. They could find none. The surrounding area was thoroughly combed for evidence. None could be found. An expert from the state laboratories was called in.

It was decided that hay used for bedding was the cause of the explosion. The friction of the dog ruffling in the hay together with strong winds created the explosion. They said this was not an unusual explosion. It was a good thing for puppy that Mrs. felt sorry for him and took him in the house to get warmed up a half hour before the explosion. It was not determined how much insurance the puppy had on his cabin. Maybe a charity drive should be started to build a new house for the puppy.

Memoirs of Adams To Be Published Soon

The Harper Brothers Company, a publishing firm, has announced it plans to sign a contract soon for the publication of former presidential assistant Sherman Adams' memoirs.

The Boston Globe reported that Adams would receive $100,000 for his story.

It was disclosed that Adams is now working on his memoirs, and that they would deal mainly with inside details of White House activities before he resigned in September.

BURGLAR APPARENTLY NEEDED A WASHING

A Passaic Steam bath establishment was broken into recently. There were no valuables to take. The side door was forced open and entrance was gained into the steam room of the bath house.

EDUCATION AND WATER GUN FOR SAME GROUND

The proposed Pancake Hollow reservoir may make it necessary to revote on the $2,000,000 referendum of the Wayne Township School System. This was intimated in a talk by Mayor Roe of Wayne. The site of the new Junior High School lies within the territory wanted by the Passaic Valley Water Commission for a water storage basin.

Star of "Hasty Heart", Dec. 18 Special

Don Murray stars as Lachie McLachlan, a stubborn Scotch sergeant, in "The Hasty Heart," John Patrick's Broadway comedy-drama hit about a sextet of soldiers in Burma, Thursday, Dec. 18, on the CBS Television Network's Du Pont "Show of the Month." Barbara Bel Geddes co-stars as the nurse who falls in love with Lachie, and Jackie Cooper plays Yank, an American GI, in the 90-minute special program.

CHRISTMAS OFFERING — Shirley Temple reads to her own children some of the traditional rhymes from the Sunday, Dec. 21, NBC-TV Network colorcast of "Mother Goose" on "Shirley Temple's Storybook." The children are Lori, 4; Charles, 6, and Linda Susan, 10. Miss Temple has the role of Polly Baker in "Mother Goose" and her three children portray visitors at a fair.

Totowa Borough to Determine Its Boundary

Totowa Borough has instructed its attorney to investigate and determine to which extent the borough is involved in the mysterious cutting through of Cumberland Avenue from Chamberlain to Chatham Avenue.

Paterson maps indicate that Chamberlain Avenue is half in Paterson and half in Totowa Borough. The council examined a 1903 map and a 1953 assessment map which indicate that the street is entirely in Paterson.

Mayor Joseph F. Ryan said no borough residents had been questioned concerning the road by Paterson officials, and that he did not know when the road was cut through.

The attorney has been authorized to resolve what responsibility or obligation the borough may have in the event the road is found to extend into the borough.

Docu-Drama Program Planned by Committee

A meeting with civic organizations is planned by the Paterson Citizens Committee for the Public Schools. The purpose is to plan a production of Docu-drama, a unique presentation aimed at developing public understanding of the operation and needs of the local educational system.

Mrs. Herbert Salzberg has been named the chairman for the program.

Docu-drama was successfully presented in Fair Lawn before a capacity audience. It was written by playwright Philip A. Lewis.

The presentation is planned for February or March of next year.

Organizations of Paterson interested in taking part in the venture are asked to contact Mrs. Salzberg at ARmory 4-2700.

Hawthorne To Light Up For Christmas Season

The tree lighting festival plans for Hawthorne have been completed, and the event will take place at the Municipal Building on December 15 at 5 o'clock.

The Hawthorne High School chorus will sing Christmas carols, and Mayor Louis Bay will light the Christmas tree.

REV. O'DRISCOLL TO SPEAK

The breakfast meeting of the St. Anne's Holy Name Society will be addressed by Rev. Anthony O'Driscoll, OFM.

Members of the society will assemble in front of the church at 7:45 a.m. and will meet in the new school hall following the 8 a.m. mass.

THE COMOS AT HOME—Perry Como, star of the NBC-TV Network's "Perry Como Show" Saturday colorcasts, relaxes with his wife Roselle and their children — Terri, 11, Ronnie, 18, and David, 12.

What with Perry's rigid schedule of TV rehearsals and frequent recording dates, a get-together with the entire family is difficult to arrange. This time a photographer was on deck to snap the Como clan.

A LETTER FROM MAMA—Cliff Arquette (at right in each photo) prompts host Jack Paar of "The Jack Paar Show" to varied reactions — frowns, disbelief, chuckles and hearty laughter — as he reads his bi-weekly letter from Mama Weaver about her misadventures in Mt. Idy. Arquette is a frequent guest on the Monday-through-Friday late-night NBC-TV Network series.

Husband-Wife in Dec. 15 Drama

Eddie Albert and his actress-wife Margo Channing in "The Night the Phone Rang," the "Westinghouse Desilu Playhouse" presentation on the CBS Television Network, Monday, Dec. 15. In the hour-long drama they play a happily married couple whose lives are disrupted when an underworld organization blackmails Albert into becoming its trigger man in a proposed murder. Desi Arnaz is host of the series.

BIG DIPPER — Stockholm, Sweden — Fish don't seem to have a chance on the River Stroemmen, which runs through the Swedish Capital of Stockholm. Scorning hooks and lines, fishermen, like this one, use giant circular nets, attached by wires to a pole, which are dunked and hauled up with the catch.

Uncle CHARLEY'S "EpiGrins"

Money ain't everything, even Sunday school pennies are used to build character.

Most gals ain't th' same after they're ALTARED.

Folks who stay hitched are well harnessed.

Some gals who marry t' have someone t' talk to find out that th' rascal won't listen.

The way some fellers strut they ought to see a head shrinker.

Zed Peters says when the judge threw the book at him he spoke volumes too.

Some kids rise 'cause they were raised that way.

Yep, a kid in the home is worth two in the car.

H.F. writes: The son that sets never gits to be one of the stars.

Cities need more lillies of the valleys, and fewer villians in the alleys.

Tod Bolton attended an auction, reached up to scratch his head and found he had bought seven pigs.

Yep, these corny T V programs sure do go agin' the grain.

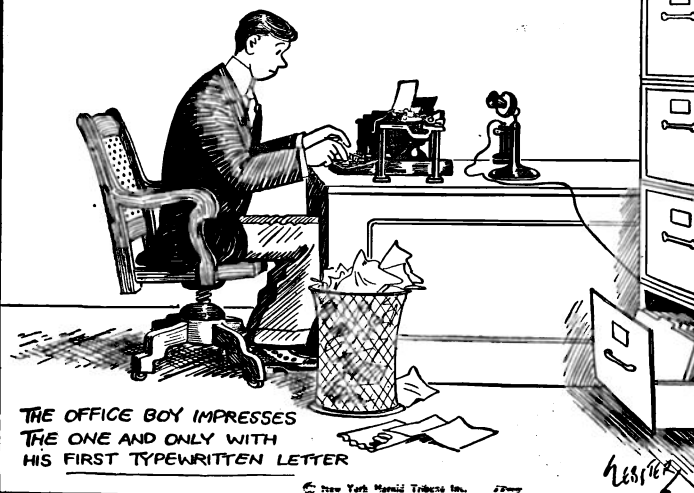

Every time some fellers jump to conclusions they git out of step.

NEW RECORD

When the Christmas sales are totted up, retailing's total sales for the year will be the highest in history, and last year's whopping $200 billion of volume will have to step aside for a new summit.

That prediction is based on reports from all categories — grocery, drug, variety, general merchandise, mail-order and so on. The great majority of these have been showing marked increases over equivalent periods last year — in some cases more than 20 per cent.

This is good news of a high order. The volume of retail trade, needless to say, is one of the most potent forces in determining whether general business conditions are good or bad. Our magnificent production system would falter and ultimately halt unless the goods were moved in sufficient quantity into the hands of consumers.

Despite the record-breaking increases registered in sales, net profits have not been keeping pace. In many instances there have been declines, some substantial. Rising operating costs are one of the causes of that. A mighty small part of the consumer dollars stay in the hands of retailers after all the bills are paid.

SMEARING THE FBI

At its 40th annual convention last September, the American Legion went on record commending the FBI and its director, J. Edgar Hoover, particularly for their work in protecting the nation from communist subversion.

Since then the Legion's National Commander has been repeatedly asked: "Why was it necessary to reiterate a confidence in the FBI and Mr. Hoover shared by every loyal American?" Here is his answer: "There are some individuals in this country and certain publications determined to discredit the FBI and its director . . . That a deliberate 'smear Hoover and the FBI' campaign, similar to the Communist Party's unsuccessful efforts of 1940, has been launched is no mere supposition."

He then cited several specific examples — including a publication branded by a Senate sub-committee as the organ of a communist front organization.

The truth is that the FBI, under Mr. Hoover, has gone to every length to respect and defend the rights and freedoms laid down by the Constitution. At the same time, it has done an absolutely invaluable or kin exposing the communist conspiracy. A successful "smear campaign", which undermined public faith in this great organization, would perform yeoman service for the Kremlin, its agents, and its followers.

Head Stone

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

The French, creators of many new ideas, some time ago hit upon an innovation which might well be imitated by others and particularly by us in the United States.

Hereafter, anybody caught in a Communist riot will be sprayed with a penetrating blue dye which cannot be washed off, thus identifying the culprit forever after for what he is.

This, of course, should suggest to every song writer in America some kind of a ditty such as:

"You are Red because you're blue,
"Darling, I am onto you."

Imagine if that sort of thing were done here in this country! In the first place it would prevent all these Communists who claim to have "reformed" from making such claims. I believe there is no such thing as a reformed Communist.

How could anyone proclaim that he now hates Communism and all it stands for if he is forever colored with blue dye?

But the law here should be not only to dye the Reds blue if they are CAUGHT in a riot but as soon as they are FOUND to be Communists. It would save millions of dollars in court trials.

If we DO start a law of coloration in this country, we may as well go a little farther. We could have a different color for each crime — such as purple for murder, yellow for embezzling, red for adultery, green for robbery and so forth and so on. The possibilities are unlimited. Imagine how our whole legal procedure would be simplified.

The only thing I am afraid of is that our dear ladies would immediately take the whole thing up as a fad and paint themselves all over. Even without the law, they certainly have a pretty good start.

Disabled Children Are Included In Social Security Provisions

Even though a child is over eighteen years of age, he or she may be entitled to benefits as a disabled child, according to Stanley J. Fiorese, district manager of the Paterson social security office. A child's benefit under the old-age and survivors insurance program is usually terminated by the attainment of age eighteen.

Mr. Fiorese offered the explanation that a disabled child may receive child's insurance benefits regardless of age if certain conditions are met. To receive monthly benefits as a disabled child, it would be necessary that the parent upon whose wage record the claim would be based, have an insured status under the social security law. The child's disability must have occurred prior to the time the child had reached age eighteen.

The disability must be of severity as to prevent the child from engaging in gainful activity and it must have existed for six months or more and be medically determinable. This physical or mental condition must be of an indefinite or long-term duration. The child must be unmarried at the time of application, and be the child of a person currently receiving social security old-age insurance benefits or of a parent who died after 1939 insured under the law.

Mr. Fiorese suggests that contact be made at the local social security office, 245 Market Street, Paterson, N. J., for further information or for help in filing a claim by or on behalf of a disabled child.

UNEMPLOYMENT DECLINES

Non-farm employment, seasonally adjusted, declined 120,000 in October to 50.7 million, reflecting the industrial disputes in the durable goods industries. In most of the major industries, employment advanced or was maintained. The average factory workweek declined, contributing to a reduction in average weekly earnings. Both the workweek and weekly earnings remained somewhat above a year ago. Unemployment declined 300,000 further to 3.8 million. The seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment was 7.1 per cent of the civilian labor force compared with 7.2 per cent in September and 7.6 per cent in August.

SECTION OF ROUTE FOUR TO BECOME BUSINESS ZONE

The Planning Board of Fair Lawn has requested the rezoning of a section of Route 4 from residential to business. The section involved is on the north side of the highway between Kenneth Avenue and the East Paterson.

At a recent meeting of the borough council a resolution was approved which would grant the request of the Planning Board.

An ordinance will be drawn up to cover the change in the zoning ordinance.

5,000 STUDENTS AT MSU ARE MARRIED

The Michigan State University has an enrollment of 20,000 students. Of this number one-quarter, or 5,000 are married. Even though the university's may not win the football championship, they certainly seem to be winning in the matrimonial field.

CANCER LOSING ITS FIGHT WITH TOBACCO IN ENGLAND

During July, August and September the tobacco sales in England reached a new record of $756 million dollar's worth sold.

It seems Britons don't take seriously the published link between tobacco and cancer.

Will you leave your family a home —or a mortgage?

THE ODDS that you will die before you pay off your mortgage are 16 times greater than the chance your house will catch fire. Yet, most prudent families wouldn't think of being without fire insurance. Why be without mortgage insurance?

Equitable's remarkable mortgage repayment insurance plan protects your family against forced sale... loss of savings... or loss of home. Costs are low for this basic protection. For full information call...

Mayor Edward J. O'Byrne (second from left) presents proclamation setting aside this week as Civil Defense Week to Frank X. Graves, Jr., municipal disaster control director, (third from right). Civil Defense officials participated in the City Hall ceremonies during which Mayor O'Byrne called on Paterson residents to take part in CD programs. Left to right are: Mike Batelli, public information officer; Mayor O'Byrne, George W. Burton, operations officer; Lt. Gordon Rodgers, assistant deputy director; Freeholder Graves, Donald Walker, alarm supervisor and Capt. Samuel V. Gatti, deputy director.

TRADEMARK — Bat Masterson, famed Western hero whose cane became his trademark as well as a useful weapon, is sketched with several of them. Masterson, who is portrayed by Gene Barry in the NBC-TV Network's Wednesday night series, became so adept in the art of batting an opponent with his cane that he earned the highly regarded name of "Bat."

Soviet Author Is Hiding In West Germany

Alexander Tscheyshevili, prize-winning Soviet author, has fled to West Germany, after the Communist attack on fellow author Boris Pasternak. He is hiding somewhere in West Germany. It is said that he is in no mood to talk.

Tscheyshevili was the 1955 winner of the Stalin Prize for literature.

The State Department confirmed that U. S. Military authorities had granted Tscheyshevili asylum in West Germany. The American Friends of Russia Freedom is caring for the author, but they refused to give information as to his hiding place.

PROGRESS IN CHINA

In Peiping, China, the radio heaped praise on a young husband who was so interested in his occupation that he didn't even take off from work when his wife was taken to the hospital to have a baby. What kind of a job was he so interested in? — building a blast furnace at Anshan. Apparently big events become insignificant, and the mediocre become paramount, in China.

"Where We Stand II," Report on U. S., Soviet Strengths, Weaknesses, on CBS Television Dec. 16

CBS News Staff Interviewing Key Military, Civilian Experts, Screening Mountains of Filmed Material For Second 2-Nation Survey

"Where We Stand II," a full-hour CBS News report to the nation's viewers assessing and comparing the relative positions of the United States and the Soviet Union in the vital areas of arms, economics and education, will be presented as a special broadcast on the CBS Television Network Tuesday, Dec. 16, it was announced by John F. Day, Director of News for CBS News. The broadcast will evaluate strengths and weaknesses of both countries in these areas and will recapitulate progress made on the various fronts in the cold war during the past year.

In preparing its report, CBS News has, during the intervening months, assigned its worldwide news staff to sifting fact from rumor in voluminous reports and studies, screening many thousands of feet of film, and interviewing hundreds of authorities in the fields of arms, economics and education. Many leading figures in these areas will give their views on "Where We Stand II" in filmed interviews with CBS News Correspondents. Among these experts will be:

Major General Bernard A. Schriever, Commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, Inglewood, Cal.
General Matthew B. Ridgway, former Army Chief of Staff and former Commander in Chief of the Allied Forces in Korea, and currently Chairman of the Board of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

Rear Admiral John T. Hayward, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for Research and Development.

Dr. T. Keith Glennan, Director of the newly formed National Aeronautics and Space Agency.

Dr. Henry Chauncey, President of Educational Testing Service, which administers College Board exams for admission to major U. S. colleges.

Prof. Abram Bergson, professor of economics at Harvard and specialist on Soviet economy.

Prof. Sumner Slichter, professor of economics at Harvard and a leading authority on the U. S. economy.

On "Where We Stand II," viewers will see U. S. Air Force Thor missiles coming off a production line, being loaded into huge cargo aircraft for shipment to England, and the reaction to their arrival in Britain; the plant where the Thor is manufactured and the complex automotive procedure involved in testing and firing this IRBM missile; a pictorial explanation of the Navy's Polaris missile; an animated presentation of the proposal to sink ICBM launching sites below ground; a pictorial report on Aeroflot, Russia's rapidly expanding jet passenger service; and filmed coverage of the Russian and American school systems including interviews with teachers, students and experts.

The first "Where We Stand" was presented as a 90-minute CBS News report in "The Twentieth Century" series on January 5, 1958. In stating the aim of the original program, Mr. Day pointed out that the cold war had changed from a question of political advantage to one of naked survival and that there was an overpowering need to inform the nation's viewers exactly "Where We Stand" vis a vis Russia in these vital areas.

CBS news Correspondent Walter Cronkite will be anchor man for "Where We Stand II." Principal reporter will be CBS News Washington Correspondent George Herman. Other veteran CBS News Correspondents assigned to major roles on the hour-long broadcast are Richard C. Hottelet, CBS News Paris Correspondent David Schoenbrun and CBS News Washington Correspondents Howard K. Smith and Paul Niven.

"Where We Stand II" is being produced by the Special News Show Unit of CBS News, headed by Leslie Midgley, under the general supervision of Mr. Day, Associate producer and director is Av Westin.

Writer of "Where We Stand II" is John Sharnik. Editorial consultant in scientific areas is Stephen White of the Physical Science Study Committee at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Jane Bartels is in charge of general research.

Khrushchev Weakening; Can't Take Vodka

According to Senator Hubert H. Humphrey the Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has been ordered by his doctors to drink mineral water instead of vodka. He apparently is having trouble with his kidneys. It appears that even Khrushchev can't do as he pleases when it comes to the organs of his body. Maybe he should learn that other people have different ideas than his and that they won't do what pleases him

The White Madonna

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

Probably the most illustrious name along the woodcarvers of Quebec is that of Paul Simard, the slim, quiet little man whose workshop, with living quarters upstairs, is in the street of the Pigeons.

Paul Simard was not always so well known, so well-to-do, but from his days of poverty he always had Jeannine, the lovely Norman blonde wife who made him the envy of every man who set eyes upon her.

Jeannine was practical. She managed on the little in the way of money that Paul's work brought. She never complained, but sometimes she would look pensively at him when he would at last, showing her his statue, say, "There, Jeannine, is a little masterpiece, I hope."

But she would know in her heart that the handicraft festival at the Chateau and only masterpiece would go to the big show — the a few expects would recognize the genius that went into its making.

But there seemed nothing she could do. Each year, Paul would say, "This time, it is better, Jeannine — this time I have done it." But the tourists went on buying the fat cures and Huron Indians that the other woodcarvers turned out.

Then came the year of the White Madonna, Jeannine was the model for this small exquisite carving. How he carved and polished and cut and shaped for hours, days and weeks, until even Jeannine lost patience with him.

"What then?" One day she exploded, the blue eyes flashed, the golden blonde hair seemed to have sparks and gleam brighter than the golden, star-pointed crown of the White Madonna. "Maybe you will one day be famous. But now is now, my little old one, and we grow no younger and life slips by and there is so much — so much—"

Her voice broke and the tears came and she rushed to him and kissed him and then hurried upstairs.

She had never acted so before — no, not once in the ten years of their marriage. Paul sat there in a daze, his eyes fixed on the White Madonna.

"I will lose Jeannine," he whispered "She wearies of me. My Madonna—"

The handicraft festival was three days off. He had built up the highest hopes for it this time, but now he knew it would be the same old story. He glowered at the White Madonna. He felt a mad, sudden urge to smash it to splinters.

But even as he stared at it a spine-prickling thing happened to him — such a dazzling thing that, as one blinded by a blazing light, he closed his eyes. The golden crown of the madonna seemed to glow with a rich refulgence, a light not of earth.

At dinner he told Jeannine about it. She listened intently and looked at him for a long time.

"Maybe," said Paul haltingly, "maybe it's a sign from Heaven that Our Lady is pleased—"

"Yes—yes, I do believe it is that, Paul," she said, "why don't you go fishing this afternoon?"

It was his turn to look at her. He loved to go fishing but seldom found the time. Now he knew for sure she was afraid for his sanity.

Was she growing weary of him? Was she afraid his mind was giving away? This

He piled his gear in the little Citroen that sudden suggestion that he go fishing now.. had served them so long, and drove away. The little car struggled and wheezed up the steep grades and at last, at the top of the mountain, stopped.

He gazed down at the streets and rooftops of the old city. What was that—that flash of cerise passing down the Street of the Pigeons, through the byways of the Lower Town.

Jeannine—he was sure it was Jeannine—she who rarely went out of an afternoon. He knew each place she passed. He knew well the one she entered and he swore a silent oath.

For it was the house of Roche Pelerin that Jeannine had entered—a handsome, laughing swashbuckler, a marvelous skillful worker in metals, a very devil with the women.

"Now — now," muttered Paul through grinding teeth — "she is weary of me.."

Paul hadn't much heart for fishing, much heart for anything. He had never in his life left so poor, so empty, so aimless. Jeannine — without Jeannine he was as nothing.

"I shall not go to the handicraft festival this year, Jeannine," he said. "You are the one who arranges our show anyway, so I shall leave it up to you." Only once again had he looked at the White Madonna—and he heard no music, saw no golden nimbus pay about her head.

Jeannine said she would look after things. But the day of the grand opening, she said before she piled the last of the display into the Citroen: "I want you to come to the show this afternoon, Paul. I want you to be there when your madonna blance is judged."

"But I—"

"For me, Paul, you will come," she said softly.

"I will come," he said.

The great salon was crowded when Paul entered. The judges were coming to his own display, followed by a train of buyers.

He saw Jeannine standing by the display, the loveliest thing there—lovelier even than the White Madonna. But she had done wonders under a canopy of rich purple velvet, star-spangled, like the sky of night. And Jeannine had set her on a pedestal of alabaster.

She was something from Heaven. Paul could not tear his eyes from the figure. It was like the other day when he had seen and heard those wondrous things—like a miracle.

God of Heaven! It was happening again. He saw the head glow with a golden radiance that shone up to the starry sky, and all about were the soft beautiful strains of the Ave Maria.

Ah, ciel! But it was lovely. If only the rest of them could see and hear. He awoke from his trance and gazed about him and saw that the others were affected the same way as he. Wide-eyed, rapt, they watched and listened until the light about the Virgin's crown slowly faded, until the last Amen of the musc died away.

They shook the salon with their applause.

As in a daze he heard the name of Auguste Lebel, the great manufacturer of religious objects, and heard the big man tell how he would make millions of these lovely things out of some wondrous plastic—"And with the halo-light and the little electric music-box in the base — why, we shall never keep up with the demand. It is inspired, Monsieur Simard!"

a vision. But I knew he would balk at trying "It is," said Jeannine. "It came to Paul in to bring the vision to reality, so I got Roche Pelerin to make the music-box in the pedestal and to do the delicate work of running the wire for the light to the Virgin's crown. It is lovely, Paul? You are pleased, my little old one, are you not?"

Queer people, thought the great Mr. Lebel —why, the royalties on the White Madonna would make the fellow rich — and they didn't even seem interested. But then Mr. Lebel did not know that their hands were tightly clasped and that the little woodcarver's iron hard grip was almost breaking the soft fingers he loved so much.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

—BY WILLIAM BRODIE—

DEATH OF BLACKBEARD

The most feared and hated pirate in American waters met his bloody doom off the coast of North Carolina in November 22, 1718. He was Edward Teach, better known as Blackbeard because of the long black beard that he wore braided and parted at the chin to give him a ferocious appearance.

Little is known of Blackbeard's early life. He served as an English privateer, commissioned to seize enemy ships during the War of the Spanish Succession. When the war ended in 1713 he turned pirate.

Blackbeard carried on his raids in the West Indies and then turned northward along the Atlantic Coast, capturing ships, looting and killing as he went. So daring and feared did he become that he actually blockaded the port of Charleston, South Carolina, where he appeared in May of 1717. After capturing several ships he sent messengers ashore to say that unless a big chest of medicines was sent out to him at once he would kill all his prisoners, burn all the shipping in the harbor, "and beat the town about our ears." The people of Charleston were afraid to resist. They obeyed the pirate's orders.

Blackbeard later turned up at Pamlico Sound, North Carolina, and made his headquarters at Ocracoke Island from where he carried out his raids on the coastal shipping. Governor Charles Eden of North Carolina seems to have been a corrupt official who winked at Blackbeard's piracy and shared some of his captured booty.

Now Blackbeard in his snug quarters at Teach's Hole, near the present village of Ocracoke, led a merry and depraved life.

The neighboring planters were forced to supply his demands, and all ships entering the inlets of North Carolina had to pay him heavy tolls. In desperation the planters and ship-owners appealed to Governor Alexander Spotswood of Virginia for help.

Governor Spotswood was a strong and upright official. He lost no time in answering the appeal of Blackbeard's many victims and nest two war sloops manned by British sailors under command of Lieutenant Robert Maynard to seize the pirate in his den.

Sailing down to Pamlico Sound from the James River the two sloops arrived off Ocracoke Island on November 22, 1718 and moved up the inlet to Teach's Hole. Blackbeard was trapped in his lair, but he and his pirate crew put up a terrible battle. The pirates loaded their cannon to the muzzles with all kinds of shot and scrap iron. They fought like wild beasts, and many men, including all the officers of one sloop, were killed before the pirates were overcome. Blackbeard, fighting like a bearded devil, was wounded 25 times before he was shot dead by Lieutenant Maynard in a hand-to-hand struggle.

When Maynard sailed back to Virginia Blackbeard's bloody head dangled from his ship's bowsprit. The captured survivors of the pirate crew were brought to Williamsburg, capital of Virginia, where they were soon hanged.

Blackbeard's head was set upon a tall pole at a spot where the Hampton and James Rivers joined behind Old Point Comfort. And there, according to tradition, the black head swung for years as a warning to all other pirates.
