COVER PICTURE:

Haledon, North Haledon and Prospect have teamed together in planning a new Regional High School. Our Cover picture shows an architects sketch of the proposed new school. The residents of the three boroughs will be given an opportunity to express their desires in the forthcoming referendum which will be held Thursday, October 9.

Jackie Gleason stars as Joe, "a good-hearted loafer", and Betsy Palmer plays Kitty Duval, a girl who finds romance in a San Francisco waterfront saloon, in William Saroyan's Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy, "The Time of Your Life," Thursday, Oct. 9, on the CBS Television Network's "Playhouse 90." Dick York, Bobby Van and special guest James Barton co-star.

Waterfowl Season To Open November 10

TRENTON— The Clapper Rail season in New Jersey, opened on September 1, has proved to be very popular, the State Division of Fish and Game, Department of Conservation and Economic Development announced today.

Although the population of these birds remains at high levels today, as lower temperatures arrive and rougher weather appears they will begin to move southward and the hunter of New Jersey will give consideration to the waterfowl season which is scheduled to open on November 10.

The Division of Fish and Game announced that the public hunting area of the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge will again be available during the waterfowl season to the sportsmen of New Jersey under a cooperative agreement between the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the New Jersey Division of Fish and Game.

Social Security Affords Family Protection

When asked why social security taxes were taken out of their pay envelopes, many workers recently queried could not come up with the three main reasons, Mr. Stanley J. Fioresi, district manager of the Paterson social security office, said today.

Most of them knew about old age benefits, but fewer were aware of survivors' benefits — payments to a worker's dependents in case of his death. Some did not know about disability insurance protection for the worker, and for disabled children.

"Every working person and his family should know that, through his social security tax payments, he is building three-way protection. He should realize that the modest deductions from his pay envelope can provide a monthly income if his earnings are cut off either by old-age, disability, or death," Mr. Fioresi pointed out.

Discussion Night On Regional School Monday

A "Regional Discussion Night", sponsored by the Haledon Board of Education, will be held Monday, October 6, in the auditorium of the Kossuth Street School at 7:30 p.m. Members of the Regional board of education and superintendent Gorab will be on hand to explain the regional program and the referendum which will be held on Thursday, October 9, from 2 to 9 p.m. in all three boroughs.

Members of the Haledon PTA will care for children of parents who cannot find baby sitters.

Continental Can Co. Chest Drive Participant

Convinced that united giving to the single Greater Paterson Community Chest Drive is a more sound theory than donating to 16 separate campaigns, which the agency represents, the employees of the Continental Can Co., Plant No. 48, Getty Avenue, Paterson, yesterday contributed a total of 25 per cent of their annual In-Plant Charity Fund to unofficially inaugurate the 1958 Chest campaign.

This is the huge Continental Can Company's first year of participation in the Greater Paterson Community Chest drive, with approximately 500 employees taking part, according to Phil Ielia, chairman of the In-Plant Fund's Board of Directors.

It signed up as a Good Citizens Fund Company in the Fall of 1957 after being selected as a pilot plant in a demonstration to the community of how Good Citizens Funds could be of assistance in the maintaining of high standards of health and welfare services. It is expected that proceeds from Continental Can's Good Citizens Fund this year will reach $6,000.

County Planning Board To Continue Service

Although many county and municipal planning boards throughout the State and nation are charging fees for their various reports, the Passaic County Planning Commission will continue, as one of its many public services, its long-standing practice of distributing all of its publications free of charge, to all interested planning agencies and other interested parties throughout the country and in several foreign lands.

The fact that other planning boards are charging from $1.30 to $3.00 per copy for copies of their reports, according to size, while others have placed no price tag on them, was brought to the county board's attention through a report received from the American Society of Planning Officials.

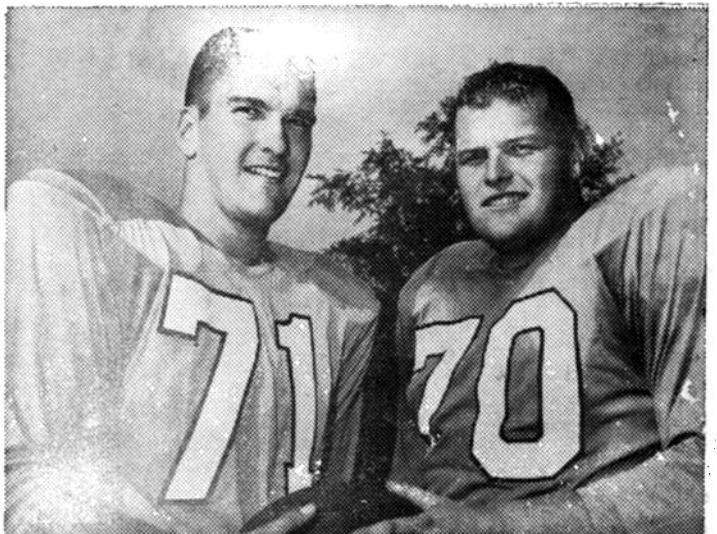

After this had come to the attention of the county planners, George W. Mason, who is a member of the commission by virtue of his office as county engineer, said: "We never have charged anything for our reports and while they are prepared, published and distributed with county funds and the demand for them has been great, I am not in favor of charging for them, because we are doing this as a public service."

Tri-Borough Notebook

It sure is hard to get back to work again after spending four days in Atlantic City at the Sixth Annual Workshop of the State Federation of District School Boards. Met so many interesting people, and talked and ate and just generally relaxed and had a good time.

Haledon had a display in the Public Relations section of the convention about the success of our first year's operation of our trainable class for mentally retarded children and received many nice comments about it. Some new school board members got quite enthused and I feel we may have encouraged them to start some classes in their areas. That was the purpose of the exhibit and I'm sure they'll be as pleased as we are, here in Haledon.

Our regional board members were also at the convention and we had some stimulating conversation on the upcoming referendum, to be held on Thursday, October 9.

You'd be surprised how many school districts out of the 537 in the state would like to be in our shoes, and be in the position of being able to get a new high school.

I'm a little worried that the people of our region just don't feel strongly enough about this new school of ours. Some people have even said to me that they didn't realize they had to vote again, because on the regional vote in April of 1957 they thought that was for the purpose of saying yes, we want a Regional High School.

But that's not so! That first referendum was just to establish a regional district and a regional district board of education made up of members and representatives of the three boroughs of Haledon, North Haledon and Prospect Park. Then they had to investigate to choose a proper site with enough land to fill all state and local requirements, choose an administrator who could establish just what type of school plant would be needed to fill the needs of the youngsters of this area, and then to hire an architect, decide on proper plans and site development and to get options on the land so that it would be there to buy when the money is voted in by the people.

Our regional board has done all of that. Now they must wait for the referendum to be passed before any more steps can be taken.

A referendum is a mandate brought to the people to decide on. No land can be bought, no shovel of earth turned, no equipment bought, no one else hired until the referendum is passed.

Someone said to me, "What a waste of time, we could get the school up earlier if we didn't have to go through this red tape." Actually, the school will be able to be ready on time, if the referendum is passed next Thursday. But I don't think this referendum is a waste of time. It's a way that the state provides for the people to check what their representatives on the regional board have done up to date, and to check on their planning for the future. Everyone with any real interest should investigate now before they vote. They should not vote either yes or no until they actually know what is going on. After the school is built is no time to complain about anything, so it's really a case of put up or shut up.

After having attended most of the regional meetings, having traveled with the board members to various schools where they interviewed the administrators of those schools to see if they were satisfied with their plants, and having seen the amount of preparation that went into these plans, I feel supremely confident that our school will be all we want it to be.

We have a good cross section of people on the board, who take this job seriously. They have probably had to work much harder than any other school board around here, because they had to start right from the beginning. Most new school board members get on a board, with some more experienced people on with them to show them the ropes. But here, the regional board had to even establish their own board first, with rules and procedures and requirements to be met.

This board established a very good policy as regards their co-operation with the three municipalities. They met with the three mayors and discussed their proposed plans with them, received some good suggestions and thoughts and incorporated this information into their planning. They went to Trenton several times to find out just what was required in order to expedite this referendum, got the material ready, appeared at three hearings, and won the unanimous approval of every board and committee they appeared before. They had the most complete and comprehensive program of any board that has applied for regionalization in years.

With this excellent preparation, it needs work on our part, to the extent of investigating and voting, to provide the funds to take the next step. The architects are at work right now perfecting their plans to be presented to the state. This requirement usually takes four months, which from the time of the referendum would mean until February 9. Just about time before February meeting of regional board. At that meeting specifications for bids could be released. At the March meeting, the bids could be received and probably some could be awarded. In the Spring of the year when the contractors are making up their work schedules for the summer season is an excellent time for us to be receiving bids.

In other words, by April of 1959, next Spring, could see the earth being moved to build our school. An average of 15 months, barring all unforeseen difficulties is required to completely construct and equip a new high school. That would take until July of 1960. That would leave us with two months, July and August to use as a cushion, just in case some problems should arise, and it could very well be, that the target date, set by the regional board, of September 1960 will be the opening of the school.

Of course, if this referendum is voted on on Thursday, it will take 60 days before another vote could be taken and there would go the two months cushion.

On Tuesday night of this past week, the Food Fair Stores, Inc., donated the deed to the five and onehalf acres of land that they have donated for the school site. The tract is bordered by Church Street, Bridge Street, Lake Shore Drive and Oldham Brook.

The options have all been received on the other tracts of land, and as soon as the bond issue is okayed, the land will be purchased and work begun. It's up to the residents now.

If anyone from any of the three towns were not able to attend the public hearing held in Prospect Park last Thursday night, they are cordially invited to attend a Parent's Discussion Night at the Kossuth Street School Monday night, October 6 at 7:30 p.m. Members of the local and regional board will be there to discuss and relate the news of the referendum. Coffee will be served. Anyone who has not been able to get a baby sitter for the evening may bring children to school and members of the Haledon PTA will entertain the children in the kindergarten room while their parents are discussing the regional program.

Come and meet the regional board members and ask questions and see the slides of the school as it is proposed.

REHABILITATION PAYS OFF

The investment of relatively small sums of money in the rehabilitation of handicapped persons for professions really pays off.

That is the finding of a recent Oklahoma survey. Dr. Jean S. Felton, professor of preventive medicine at the University of Oklahoma, reports on it in the August 16 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Because some people think that only craft, custodial or service workers are produced by vocational rehabilitation services, Dr. Felton confined his survey to those in medicine and related fields. They numbered 190, and 26 different disabilities were represented. After rehabilitation they were placed in 16 medical or paramedical categories, including nurses, laboratory technicians, dental technologists, physicians, and x-ray technicians.

The cost to the state for rehabilitation work ranged from nothing to $5,282. The average was $533, and the total for the group of 190 was $95,470. Dr. Felton estimates that they will earn more than $34 million before retirement, and will pay Federal income taxes of more than $5 million and state income taxes of more than $170,000. Thus, they will return to government in taxes more than 60 times the amount invested in their rehabilitation.

That's not all. Rehabilitation helps to fill needed occupational categories. Perhaps most important, it helps to restore the dignity of the individuals involved. It's return in human values is beyond estimation.

THE CHARACTER OF A NATION

Some time ago an economic organization listed a series of reasons for confidence in the future of this country.

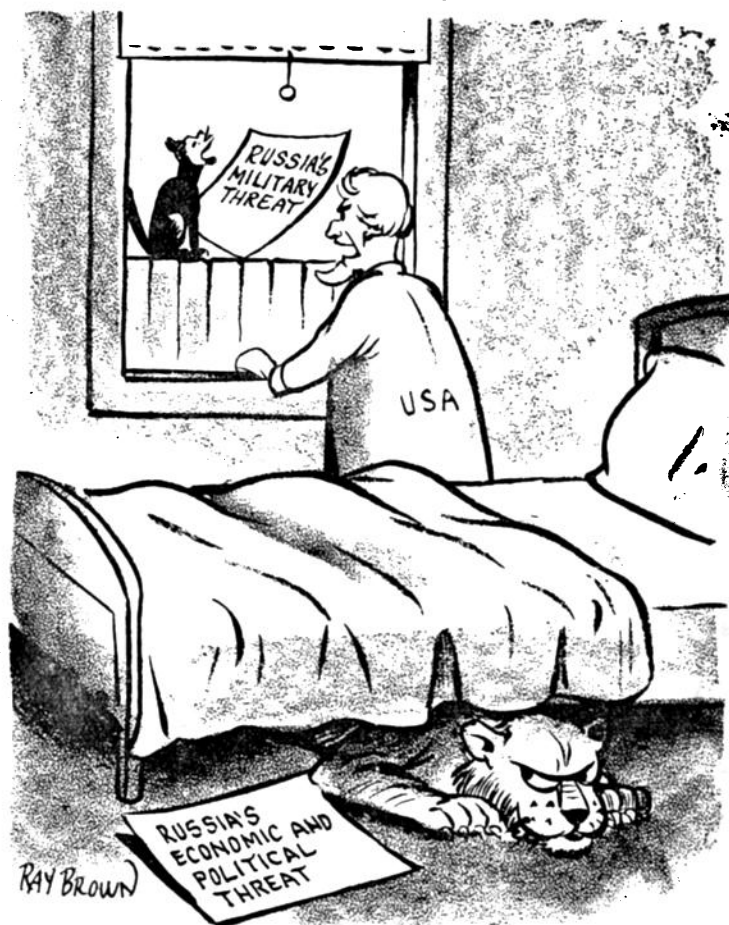

One reason is the growth of population — it has doubled in 50 years and 4 million infants arrive yearly. Another is more jobs — estimates say the 1957 figure will be 22 million ahead of today's. Another is family income, which now runs to $5,300 a year after taxes, and is expected to pass $7,000 by 1975. Another is more production — it has been doubling every twenty years. Another is more needs — according to the economists, in the comparatively near future we will need $500 billion worth of new schools, new highway, new homes, new durable equipment.

So it goes, down the list of confidence-reeding factors. They are certainly impressive. But they are all, naturally, material. None of them will mean much unless values of what we call a spiritual nature are added and maintained.

For instance, it is perfectly possible for the most ruthless dictatorship on earth to produce striking material progress. But the people, no matter how great the output of farms and factories, still are slaves. They will get only what their masters decree. They do what they are told, on pain of brutal punishment.

The material achievements which everyone expects for this country in the future will have meaning only if the people remain free. The character of a nation cannot be measured by the standard indices of production and distribution and the rest. It is measured in the pride, the self-reliance, and the independence of its people.

"SCAT!"

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

Whoa!

Slow up, man, don't you see that landslide ahead of you? Do you want to get buried under it? Do you want to get smashed to smithereens, and your car, too?

No, I am not speaking of automobiles now, or actual landslides.

I am speaking of the way too many of us are racing toward perdition, unless we put the brakes on right this minute and stop this confounded foolishness.

What on earth has happened to us? What has happened to our sanity, our optimism, our constructive thinking? Why is it that we have so many carpers, critics, revilers — STINKERS among us? We didn't used to be that way in the days of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln. In those days America was America, not a land of Communists, crooks, grafters and degenerates, but the country of our dreams, ambitions and achievement.

Look what it is today! You cannot open your newspaper without reading about traitors, grafters, cheaters, thieves and every other sort of criminal. Instead of such inventions as the telephone or the tractor, we read about atom bombs, jet planes, guided missiles. Instead of lofty speeches about the progress of our country, about great opportunities, about romantic loves, we read about murders, atheism, military expenses, divorces and about statesmen abusing and accusing each other.

Yet throughout the world the churches are overflowing with people who are hungry for spiritual guidance and for a return to God.

All these preachers of doom seem so small, so insignificant, so COWARDLY, in the face of our majestic mountains, our ever rolling seas, our rivers and lakes which renew each other daily in never ending perpetuity, in the face of God's inexhaustible replenishment.

No, I predict that America will still be here in all her glory long after they turned to what they are even now — DUST.

Peterson Reappointed On Bank Committee

F. Raymond Peterson, chairman of the Board of First National Bank and Trust Company of Paterson, has again been appointed to serve as a member of the Government Borrowing Committee of the American Bankers Association. The one-year appointment was made by Lee P. Miller, President of the Citizens Fidelity Bank and Trust Company, Louisville, Kentucky, who recently took office as president of the American Bankers Association for the ensuing year. Mr. Peterson was first appointed to the committee in 1948, and has served continuously since that time.

The Government Borrowing Committee is composed of twenty-one bankers from various parts of the United States. It acts in an advisory capacity to Mr. Robert B. Anderson, Secretary of the Treasury and other Treasury Department officials. The committee meets frequently in Washington, D. C., with Treasury and Federal Reserve officials and studies fiscal and monetary affairs including the requirements of the United States Treasury for new funds to assist in the functions of the government and the re-financing of maturing government obligations.

Answer to Cross Word
Puzzle
on Page 15.

Deep in the African jungle two cannibals were wending their way — a mother and her youngster. Suddenly there was a frightening noise in the sky, and the child ran to his mother for protection.

"Ooh, Mummy, what's that? he whimpered. "It's all right, dear," said the mother, looking up through the trees. "It's just an airplane".

"Airplane? What's that?" "It's a little like lobster. There's an awful lot you have to throw away, but the insides are delicious!"

Senator, do you think that, by raising the salaries of members of Congress, the country could get better men to serve?"

At a Chicago night club where Joe E. Lewis was appearing, a guest at a ringside table offered the comedian a bunch of choice grapes. "No, siree" said Lewis. "You don't catch me taking my wine in pills!"

AROUND TOWN

"I don't care about the wallet, but could I have the money back? It was left to me by my grandfather"

Lucy-Desi Guest

Maurice Chevalier, the ageless French troubadour, guest stars with the irrepressible Lucy and her Cuban spouse in the premiere "Westinghouse Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz Show," Monday, Oct. 6, on the CBS Television Network. Regulars Vivian Vance, William Frawley and Richard Keith also star in the hour-long comedy romp.

DEATH for DINNER

A policeman stood on each side of Don Alley. His arrest for murder, in my opinion was a foregone conclusion, but he clung stubbornly to his story.

"Carol called me up and asked me to drop in about dinnertime," he said to Jorgensen. "She said Bill had left her for good. I got here about seven. The apartment door was unlatched. It pushed open when I knocked on it and I could see her body. I came inside and was stooping over her when Bill showed up. He screamed that I had killed her and came rushing at me. I didn't even have a chance to get my hands up to defend myself."

Bill Waterhouse, the husband of the murdered woman, growled something under his breath, then said, "Why should you have had a chance to defend yourself? What chance did you give Carol?"

"I didn't kill her," snapped Don Alley.

Two policemen entered the room with the woman from the next apartment, a Mrs. Elsa Robins. It was she who had heard the fight between the two men and had called the police. She was about thirty-five and more than willing to talk.

"Tell me about Bill and Carol Waterhouse," said Jorgensen. "How did they get along?"

"They didn't," said Mrs. Robins. "They were always fighting. Last night Bill walked out on Carol."

"What was the fight about?" asked Jorgensen.

"It was a two way fight," said Mrs. Robins. "Bill accused Carol of being too friendly with Don Alley. Carol said Bill was playing around with Kathy Hughes."

"Who's Kathy Hughes?"

"She lives in the apartment across the hall."

"Get her," said Jorgensen to one of the policemen. And then to Mrs. Robins, "How did you happen to hear all this?"

"I couldn't help it," said Mrs. Robins. "The walls in this dump are paper thin."

The policeman sent after Kathy Hughes came back and said there was no answer to his knock on her door and Jorgensen then turned to Bill Waterhouse. He said, "What about the quarrel last night, Waterhouse?"

Bill Waterhouse shrugged his shoulders. "We did have a quarrel," he admitted, "and I did walk out on Carol, but I came back and we made up. We never fought as much as Mrs. Robins says. She's just an old gossip. This afternoon Carol called me up at the office. She begged me to get home early tonight, if I could. She said she had made a lemon pie in celebration of our — our new life together. We always called it that after a quarrel. I said I'd make it by seven, sure. I was only a few minutes late—just a few minutes late."

His voice trailed off. He glared at Don Alley, then mopped his hand over his face. He seemed stunned at what had happened.

Jorgensen glanced at the covered figure of the dead woman. She had been choked to death. He took a turn around the apartment, spent a few minutes in the bathroom opening and closing drawers, and then headed for the kitchen. I followed him into the kitchen, wondering what was bothering him. A newly baked pie was on the table, its meringue a golden brown, but skimpy at the edges.

"You like lemon pie?" asked Jorgensen. "I don't think I could take any right now," I answered.

"I could," said Jorgensen. "I always go for lemon pie. Who do you think we ought to arrest?"

Don Alley, on the face of things," I answered promptly. "He practically had his hands on the woman's throat when her husband burst in."

"What about the husband?"

"There's your answer, the lemon pie. She wouldn't have baked it for herself, Jorgensen. Or for anyone but her husband if a lemon pie had become a symbol between them."

"Let's go make the arrest," said Jorgensen.

We went back to the parlor. Jorgensen called one of the policemen aside. He said to him, "Go to that door across the hall and hammer on it until you get an answer. Then bring the woman who answers, in here. She's home. Dig her out for me."

I stared at Jorgensen amazed.

He was looking at Bill Waterhouse, scowling, and I knew what was coming, even though it was hard to believe.

"Waterhouse," he said grimly, "you are under arrest for the murder of your wife."

"What do you mean?" gasped Waterhouse. "You're crazy. I didn't kill Carol."

"I'm afraid you did," said Jorgensen. "You killed her, then waited until Don Alley showed up and jumped him the minute he got to Carol's side. You were so prompt in jumping him I have a notion you were waiting in Kathy Hughes' apartment, across the hall. We'll find out when we get her in here. I think she'll talk. I don't think she'll want to face the charge of being an accessory."

"That a pack of lies," screamed Waterhouse.

"You told me your wife telephoned you to hurry home," Jorgensen continued. "You said she told you she had baked a lemon pie."

"And she did. The pie's out here in the kitchen."

Jorgensen looked at him thoughtfully. "There's a pie in the kitchen," he admitted. "But it's not a lemon pie. It perhaps looks like a lemon pie if you don't look at it too closely, but if you look closely you'll see the meringue doesn't completely cover the top. At one of the uncovered edges there's a piece of banana. The lemon pie is banana cream, Waterhouse."

"Then it was a banana cream pie Carol baked."

"But you said she told you it was lemon. Of course, actually, your wife didn't telephone you at all. You say the pie and made up the story. And the pie, probably, was intended for Don Alley, who, if he's honest, will admit he came here for dinner, sure you were out of the picture."

Don Alley nodded his head. He was beginning to breathe easier.

"Here comes Kathy Hughes," said Jorgensen. "We'll see what she has to say."

"I'm going to take a look at that pie," said Waterhouse.

He stepped to the kitchen and from the kitchen, made a break for the back door, but one of Jorgensen's men got him. Later, I went to the kitchen myself to take a look at the pie. I had seen it before, but hadn't looked at it closely. The pie was banana cream.

"Just a little mistake," said Jorgensen. "It's funny, sometimes, how small a mistake can trip a man."

"But you've got to have the imagination to see it," I answered.

"Or you've got to love lemon pie," Jorgensen chuckled. "I'll buy you a piece on the way in."

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

BATTLE OF ANTIETAM

One of the saddest days in American history is September 17, 1862 because it was also the bloodiest day on American soil. For on this bright late summer's day two armies of fellow-Americans, the Union and the Confederate armies, fought and slaughtered each other to a standstill on the battlefield at Antietam Creek.

General Robert E. Lee's army, moving north and invading Maryland, had taken a strong position on the south bank of Antietam Creek, a little stream flowing into the Potomac River. General "Stonewall" Jackson, having captured Harpers Ferry, 18 miles away, two days previously, had hurried most of his troops back to join Lee's army at Antietam Creek. The center of Lee's line was before the village of Sharpsburg, Maryland. General George McClellan's Union army had followed the Confederate forces and caught up with them on September 16. Now the two armies were drawn up on opposite sides of Antietam Creek.

The country was beautiful here. On all sides spread golden fields of wheat, wide acres of green corn, pastures of sweet-smelling clover and timothy rippling in the warm breezes, and big orchards of luscious pears, peaches and apples. And here thousands of Americans in blue and other thousands in gray faced one another tensely for the big battle shaping up.

There was skirmishing and an artillery duel on the afternoon of the 15th. The armies camped on the field that night in preparation for the fearful day ahead. At sunrise of the 17th the battle opened with an assault by the Union forces against the Confederate left flank. Hooker's, Mansfield's and Sumner's corps attacked Jackson's troops. The fighting was desperate as the swirling ranks of blue dashed against the gray. Three times the Union charges broke the Confederate line. Three times counter-charges threw the Union troops back. General Mansfield was killed; General Hooker wounded.

In mid-morning the Union attack shifted to the center. Here began the terrible fight in the "Bloody Lane," a sunken road where concentrated fire left heaps of dead piled against the rail fences. The Confederate center was driven back.

Came the afternoon and the attack on Lee's right flank by Burnside's men charging across a stone bridge over the Antietam. They were pushing the Confederate line back when reinforcements in the shape of 3,000 of General Hill's division dashed into the battle after an 18 mile march from Harpers Ferry. They fell upon Burnside's men and drove them back across the bridge. And then night came, the firing stopped, the slaughter ended.

The two armies reeled back, bleeding and battered, to their original positions. Strewn over the bloody, dismal battlefield were more than 23,000 dead and wounded men, divided almost equally between the two armies. Along Antietam Creek every stalk of corn had been sheared off as though cut by a knife, and the dead lay in rows almost as they had stood in ranks. The cries of the wounded and the sickening smell of death and mangled flesh rose in the night air.

Antietam was a drawn battle. Lee retreated back across the Potomac, but McClellan did not pursue. Neither side won, but America's loss was measured in the thousands of her brave sons who fell on the bloodiest single day of a war between brothers.
