TV FALL SPECIALS

Lee J. Cobb Stars as "Don Quixote"

Lee J. Cobb stars in the dual role of Miguel de Cervantes, the celebrated Spanish author, and Don Quixote, Cervantes' famed literary creation, in "I, Don Quixote," the Du Pont "Show of the Month" on the CBS Television Network, Monday, Nov. 9. The 90-minute special was written for television by Dale Wasserman after four months of research in Spain, the locale of Don Quixote's famous windmill-tilting adventures.

Team in "Jack Benny Hour" Nov. 7

Danny Thomas (right) guest stars in Jack Benny's first comedy special of the season, "The Jack Benny Hour," Saturday, Nov. 7, on the CBS Television Network. The McGuire Sisters also join Benny in this hour-long comedy and music special.

MAUGHAM CLASSIC — Laurence Olivier plays the stockbroker who — at the age of 40 — forsakes his family and career to devote his life to painting in "The Moon and Sixpence," a dramatization of the Somerset Maugham novel which will be colorcast on the NBC-TV Network Friday, Oct. 30. Olivier is shown with Jean Marsh who portrays the Tahitian girl he loves. The all-star cast of the Friday night special includes Judith Anderson, Hume Cronyn, Jessica Tandy and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

Episcopaleans To Meet In Passaic

The Churches Outreach Program will be the theme of the Fall Convocation of the Archdeaconry of Passaic, Episcopal Diocese of Newark. The Convocation will be held at St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, Passaic, Monday, October 19 at eight o'clock.

The Ven Chester E. Falby, Archdeacon, has announced the program will be presented by three of the Churches of the Archdeaconry. They will respectively describe one aspect of this Outreach theme. He has extended a general invitation for all Episcopalians to attend.

The Church's work among the Spanish speaking people of Paterson will be presented by the Rev. Robert H. Walters, rector of the Church of the Holy Communion, Paterson.

The Rev. Francis D. Daley, assistant rector of St. Paul's Church, Paterson, will make a presentation of the Church's Healing Ministry.

"Operation Shepherd", a vital aspect of the Church of the Incarnation, West Milford, will be presented by the Rev. Robert M. Jewell, vicar.

Arrangements for the Convocation are under the direction of the Rev. R. N. Bolles, rector of the Host Parish, St. John's, Passaic.

Registration of those attending the convocation will be held at 7:45 p.m., followed by a brief service. Refreshments will be served by the Host Parish after the conclusion of the program.

Turnpike Service Areas Sprayed for Mosquitoes

The New Jersey Turnpike maintenance crews are busy spraying service areas with DDT to combat the mosquitoes held responsible for the outbreak of encephalitis in South Jersey.

The spraying operation, it was announced by Joseph Morecraft, Jr., turnpike authority chairman, will cover the eight service areas along the southern length of the turnpike from Deepwater to Milltown.

The crews, under the direction of Col. R. L. Dean, maintenance engineer, are using a truck-mounted tank with pump-agitator and spray hose. They will take in the immediate areas around the service stations and restaurants situated along the 70-mile stretch of turnpike.

Mental Health Group Plans for Up-County

Alphone Pezzuti of Wayne, chairman of the Up-County Regional Committee, organized by the Passaic County Mental Health Association, revealed that chairmen had been appointed for the six towns participating in the Committee's program. The purpose of the committee is to develop a plan and community attitude conducive to the establishment and support of a clinic to serve the area composed of the West Milford, Ringwood, Wayne, Pompton Lakes, Wanaque and Bloomingdale communities.

Accepting the chairmanships of the town committees were Christian Stager, Jr., Pompton Lakes; Mrs. William Downey, Wayne; Dr. Stanley Hayden, Wanaque; Mrs. Maria Shroeder, Bloomingdale; Mrs. Molly McFarland, West Milford; and Ralph Kuhn, Ringwood.

Pezzuti noted that the area in question receives little or no assistance from existing clinic facilities because of extensive waiting lists. In taking the leadership, Pezzuti as a Board member of the Passaic County Mental Health Association stressed the need for the local citizenry to plan for a facility on a "grass roots" level. Emotional disturbances are prevalent in our communities and we have to plan to meet and treat these. Accordingly, town committees are being formed to seek out and develop citizen interest in the mental health needs of this region.

The committees propose to contact clergymen, physicians, elective officials, service clubs, P.T.A.'s, church groups, educators and all others who serve in leadership positions in the various towns. Through these contacts they hope to ascertain actual appraisals of need and more importantly evaluate how cognizant community leadership is of the need for mental health services.

Through these meetings they hope to enlist additional manpower in helping to develop a clinic facility, Pezzuti added. Individuals interested in participating in the planning activities are requested to contact the town chairman in their individual communities and volunteer their assistance.

The next Up-County Regional Committee meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, October 21, at the Pompton Lakes High School at 8:15 P.M.

CHAMP IN ACTION — Golfer Art Wall Jr., winner of this year's Masters Tournament and the leading money-winner on the 1959 golf circuit, shows perfect form as he blasts out of a trap during one of the filmed matches on NBC-TV Network's new "World Championship Golf" series. Looking on is the series' commentator Bob Crosby. Some of the nation's leading golf professionals will appear in match-play competition on NBC-TV Sunday afternoons starting Oct. 18.

Europe Beckons With Year Round Attractions

Are you a sticker for tradition? Do you believe that only summer-time is travel time? If the answer is "yes", you're in danger of becoming old hat. Current thinking holds that travel knows no season, and to support that view, Scandinavian Airlines System has developed the "Treasure Chest of World Travel" — a tour program which brings the world to your doorstep without regard to season.

The Treasure Chest turns the spotlight on special events and attractions that seldom come within the purview of the summer traveler. Celebrate Christmas at Notre Dame, Easter in Rome. Take your pick of fairs and festivals — the calendar is crowded with them. Be in at the finish of an international sports contest, or soak up music and dance in the cultural capitals of the world. It takes only a little forethought to put you in the right place at the right time.

SAS' Festival Tour features Europe's sunshine cities, its gayest festivals and brightest theatrical events. Plan to attend the theatre in London, the ballet in Copenhagen, the Folies Bergere in Paris, the fabulous carnival in Nice. Relax on the Italian Riviera and then explore romantic Sicily.

See Vienna, city of waltzes and Grinzing wine; the eternal glories of Rome; Naples and nearby Capri; the wicked and wonderful French Riviera; the great capitals of London, Paris and Copenhagen on the Carnival Tour—unforgettable in any travel season.

Meet up with German gemütlichkeit and Swiss hospitality on the Carousel Tour. Highlights (depending on the season you travel) include Munich's Oktoberfest revels, famed ski events at Garmisch, the glittering International Horse show at Geneva and opera at Milan's La Scala. To this add the beauties of Naples, Pompeii, Capri — the delights of Rome and Copenhagen.

SAS' pay-later plan brings these specially created tours within reach of all budgets. You can join the 28-day Festival Tour for a down payment of $87.50; the 23-day Carnival Tour for only $83.50 down and the 23-day Carousel Tour for $87.40 down.

Three out of four Americans now depend on gas service in their homes, with 23 million families using gas for cooking, 23 million for water heating, 24 million for house heating, 3.5 million for refrigeration, and 2 million for laundry drying.

Fall Fun In New Jersey Pamphlet Available

A new vacation folder "Fall Fun in New Jersey" is now available free from the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development. The colorful pamphlet features shore and lake-land resort areas, scenic and historic tours, dude ranches, winter ski locations and includes many events scheduled for the fall season.

Some of the resort areas and events listed for this fall include:

Lakewood, this popular inland fall and winter resort in the center of the healthful pine belt has reported many attractions to please the active tourist as well as those seeking rest and peaceful surroundings. There are indoor and outdoor artificial ice skating rinks, gyms, play areas for children and social programs with diversified entertainment. New additions to hotels have been built to accommodate the dancing enthusiasts.

Nearby Deer Park, well stocked with animals from all over the world is especially popular with the kiddies.

On October 20 the British Ryder Cup team with Great Britain's ten leading professional golfers will participate in practice rounds at the Atlantic City Club, Northfield, prior to meeting the United States team in Palm Springs.

Of particular interest to stamp collectors is the meeting and exhibition of stamps October 23-25, sponsored by the American Philatelic Congress at the Jefferson Hotel, Atlantic City.

Asbury Park features the National AAU 40-Kilometer Walk Championship contest on October 18, and a band concert in Convention Hall on Sunday, October 25 for the music lovers.

Some popular contests still in progress along New Jersey's long coastline are: The tournament of fish contest in Seaside Heights, Seaside Park and Dover Township continuing to December 15; the annual striped bass derby on Long Beach Island extending to December 1; Lavellette's Surf fishing contest for many varieties to November 15; the Hooked-of-Sandy Hook fishing tournament which extends to November 1; and New Jersey State fishing contest ending November 30.

Copies of "Fall Fun in New Jersey" may be had free by writing to the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, State Promotion Section, Box F, Trenton 25, New Jersey.

Co-Star in Oct. 21 Comedy Special

Sid Caesar and his new co-star, Audrey Meadows, will be seen in "Holiday on Wheels," the first comedy program of Caesar's new series of specials on the CBS Television Network, Wednesday, Oct. 21. Guest stars in the hour-long premiere, which will take a humorous look at the progress and problems of American transportation since the turn of the century, are Gisele MacKenzie and Tony Randall.

Star in "Bells of St. Mary's," Oct. 27

Claudette Colbert and Robert Preston co-star in "The Bells of St. Mary's," the first of three 90-minute "Special Tonight" productions on the CBS Television Network, Tuesday, Oct. 27. Miss Colbert plays Sister Benedict, in charge of St. Mary's School, and Preston is Father O'Malley, the genial parish priest with whom she disagrees. Featured in the cast are Charles Ruggles, Marc Connelly, Nancy Marchand and Glenda Farrell.

GO WEST, YOUNG MEN (AND WOMEN, TOO!) — That's exactly what Art Lund, Dolores Gray, Patrice Munsel and Brian Sullivan (left to right) will do on the "Telephone Hour" colorcast Friday, Oct. 23 on the NBC-TV Network. Lund and Miss Gray will sing numbers from the Broadway musical "Destry Rides Again" and Miss Munsel and Sullivan will offer a duet from Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West." The entire hour will have a Western theme.

JEANNE BAL—Featured as Jean Baker, a wife and mother, Miss Bal appears in the NBC-TV Network new Monday night "Love and Marriage" series.

Board Chairman George W. Stark of the American Meat Institute predicts that closer cooperation between veterinarians and producers of meat animals could probably wipe out livestock losses which now exceed more than $2 billion annually. He adds "We read and hear much about the huge government budget for agriculture. But did you ever stop to think that it's not nearly as large as the preventable livestock losses from diseases and poor handling? Most livestock losses are man-made and could be prevented."

Four big eastern utilities have been informed of a plan for supplying them with coal in vast quantities via pipeline. The line would be built and operated by Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation and would link West Virginia fields of Consolidation Coal Co. with Consolidated Edison of New York, Public Service Electric and Gas of New Jersey, Pennsylvania Power and Light and Philadelphia Electric. Coal, mixed with water, would be pumped through the pipeline.

HANG UP THAT TELEPHONE

A leading financial newspaper recently ran a lengthy feature article on the investment experience of two brothers who are in the service station business. They had gone over their financial heads in buying stocks — and they had almost invariably lost.

In part, this was due to unfortunate timing — the brothers had bought stocks of good companies at peaks, and declines had followed. But that was a minor trouble. The big reason for the losses was that the brothers “specialized in buying speculative stocks on telephone tips, often from strangers and usually with little or no knowledge of the companies involved.”

Here is the surest known way to lose your shirt in the stock market. It's as certain a road to financial disaster as to follow the advice of professional touts at a race track. The stock exchange have put out warning after warning, in an attempt to stop the practice. So have the reputable brokerage houses. So have the security regulatory agencies, federal and state. So have newspaper columnists who specialize in investment affairs. Yet the telephone stock boomers seem to never run out of customers — or, to use a more accurate word, suckers.

If you want to be an investor, and not a sucker, a simple procedure must be followed. Never buy on tips and rumors. Investigate a stock you're interested in as carefully as you'd investigate any other kind of property. Any legitimate brokerage house will provide you with full factual information on any corporation whose stock is listed on the exchanges. To repeat — hang up that telephone when the tipster calls, and investigate before you buy.

PLASTIC BAGS -- MENACE TO CHILDREN

As cool weather clothes are brought out of storage this season, coverings of plastic bags again become a menace to children. This warning is made in an article by Beatrice Schapper in Today's Health, an American Medical Association publication.

An electrostatic charge may be generated by friction from handling the bag. The youngster, while peering through, is apt to have the bag literally grab him through the electrical attraction to his face. The child cannot tear it. Death by suffocation may result — as it has in tragic instance after tragic instance during the past year.

The bags should never, under any circumstances, be used for make-shift coverings for pillows, blankets or mattresses in baby carriages, playpens or cribs.

The child should never be given the opportunity to handle one of these bags. That means that when they are removed from clothing, they should immediately be shredded, or tied in knots and put in a tightly covered disposal can. The bags can prove as lethal as a loaded gun or a bottle of poison — and should be treated.

The Editor Speaks

By VINCENT S. PARRILLO

It may not be quite apropos in connection with so exalted a subject to mention the fact that three eminent psychologists, at a session of the annual convention of the American Psychological Association, reported to the 6,000 members assembled that the peak of man's intellectual growth is reached between the ages of 20 and 24.

At the latter age he begins to decline and his mind to deteriorate — the deterioration speeding up with every additional year.

The scientists based their facts on the study of about 6,000 persons, mostly prisoners. They found that the less education a man has the greater the decline.

(They also found that there really isn't any more sickness among 90-year-olds than among 60-year-olds, and that probably the oldest working age group in this country is the farmer.)

I checked with my doctor on this “deteriorating after 24.” He confirmed it. He told me that both mental and physical decline begins at about that age, but there is a redeeming feature about the whole discouraging business.

While both the mind and the body reach their zenith at about 24, the mind keeps on developing, while not growing, and experience and wisdom take the place of virile youth.

Thus while, perhaps, those fellows who write love letters at 90 or 50 or 60, are pretty far advanced in mental deterioration, they nevertheless might have been pretty darn important and useful members of society.

Pretty complicated, isn't it?

Singing Group Plans Activities For Winter

The Tone-Aires, Madrigal and folk singers of Bergen County, a colorful and talented group of musicians under the direction of Mrs. Robert Loeser of Washington Township, and Mrs. Edward Weissbuch of Franklin Lakes, are launching their third year of concerts for the benefit of UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund). They have been booked already in and around New York and New Jersey for 18 club dates for 1959-60. Their programs are highlighted with solo numbers from the following individual members interspersed with the group singing:

Sopranos: Miriam Cross of Oakland; Carol Jones of Waldwick; Muriel Miller of Ramsey; Martha Judd of Saddle River and Alma May Vajas of Paterson.

Second Sopranos: Wynne Henderson of Waldwick; Mary Mable of Ridgewood; Katherine Modisett of Mahwah; Mary Powers of Waldwick; and Joyce Ronzone of Waldwick.

Contraltos: Marnee Shorten of Ridgewood; Catherine Tchinnis of Ramsey.

The increasing popularity of the group has been attributed not only to the variety of interesting and stimulating selections presented, but also to its devotion to the cause of UNICEF. The Tone-aires are hopeful that their idea of singing for UNICEF will spread to other musical groups so that eventually there will be a nationwide program for UNICEF similar to the Children's Halloween "Thick or Treat" annual event. Altos, particularly are invited to join the group.

K. of C. To Present Cross Country Trophy

The Knights of Columbus Council No. 240 will present a varsity event in the Passaic-Bergen Catholic Conference Cross Country Championships. The championship races will be held at Westside Park on November 11 at 10:30 a.m. The varsity race will be two and one-half miles cross country. This is quite a grueling race and the boys really give their all to win. The last winner of this race was Don Bosso of Technical School and the runner up was St. Mary's High School. The race will begin in Westside Park then cross the river, along McBride Avenue to the Lincoln Bridge, down Totowa Avenue to the park and the finish line.

Cancer Victim Writes Book "Sealed Orders"

Edna Kaehele is the Columbus, Ohio, housewife whose inspiring struggle against cancer commanded national attention. Today she manages to live an active abundant life. The personal conclusions she has come to during his illness — while trying to extract the greatest amount of joy from each new day — form the basis for her guide to richer living, "Sealed Orders", just published by Prentice-Hall.

In her book she recommends a ten-day campaign to add fresh zest and personal enrichment to every reader's daily existence. Her own experience in the wisdom of giving and sharing is the fount of many of these ideas.

"Sealed Orders" is divided into handy sections for daily use: (1) An 'Order for the day'; (2) thoughts to be remembered; (3) books recommended for additional reading; (4) the 'Captain's Log' in which to record the day's journey, and (5) a poem to be read and reflected upon.

Mrs. Kaehele's "orders" are uncomplicated and easy to follow. Some of them are:

Share yourself — ("Get out and share yourself freely and generously; this is one gift whose source is inexhaustible.")

Be still — ("Our deepest, most beautiful emotions are lessened and made a little ludicrous by the inadequacies of the spoken word.")

Entertain someone in your home — ("Bring back a guest to share the many good things which are yours.")

Mrs. Kaehele, except for brief residence in Detroit, Denver and Sioux City, has always lived in Ohio. She worked on various newspapers as garden editor, religious editor, feature writer and poetry columnist. At one time, in Detroit, she had her own radio show.

She is the author of two other books: "Living With Cancer" and "Training the Family Dog." A mother of four, she also has five grandchildren.

EMPLOYER RESPONSIBILITY

An employer is required by law to report to the Internal Revenue Service the amount of wages he pays to his employees and he is required to remit the social security tax. An employer's records should always contain each employee's full name, his social security number, and the amount of wages paid. Wage reports must be filed quarterly regardless of the number of employees on the payroll.

"THE MOON AND SIXPENCE" — Laurence Olivier is cast as the tormented painter and Jessica Tandy portrays the woman whose life he destroys in the dramatization of Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence" to be colorcast on the NBC-TV Network Friday, Oct. 30. Other stars in the special 90-minute program are Hume Cronyn, Judith Anderson, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Jean Marsh.

IN CLASSIC STORY—Ingrid Bergman makes her television dramatic debut starring as Miss, a governess who protects two young children bound in the spell of ghosts, in the James Costigan adaptation of Henry James' classic, "The Turn of the Screw," on the "Startime" colorcast over the NBC-TV Network Tuesday, Oct. 20. The 90-minute special features Alexandra Wager (pictured with Miss Bergman) and Heywood Morse as the children.

A tall, thin teen-ager had been sent to the principal's office for fighting. Asked why she was always getting in fights, she said, "As long as they call me 'Turnpike,' I'll fight."

"But why do they call you that?" exclaimed the principal. "Not a curve in sight" said the girl sadly.

VACATION TIME...

NEWS ITEM: PROF. OSMOND BURTON BINGLE EMINENT ENTOMOLOGIST, WHO WAS DETERMINED TO CATCH A VERY RARE BUTTERFLY WHILE VACATIONING WAS NETTED BY MISS ISABEL CAROL LOVEJOY

The guide on a sight-seeing bus in Milwaukee informed his passengers that at that moment they were passing the largest brewery in the world. A bored man in the back came suddenly to life. "Why?" he demanded, rising to his feet.

"You're taking too much punishment. Make him work on your head a while!"

Mrs. V. Mott, with a past president pin in recognition of the splendid job she performed during her term in office. After the meeting refreshments were served by our Hospitality Chairlady, Jane Macaluse and her committee.

72 Bridges To Be Painted On Turnpike

The New Jersey Turnpike Authority has received bids from 13 contractors on projects involving the repainting of 72 bridges throughout the turnpike, it was announced today by Joseph Morecraft, Jr., chairman of the authority.

Five firms submitted proposals on the overall work of repainting all 72 structures from mile post to mile post 117. They also bid on three separate contracts covering 1 bridges from mile post 104 to mile post 117, 47 from mile post 84 to mile post 101 and 7 bridges from mile post 8 to mile post 41.

Viewed as a market for goods and services, the importance of agriculture in the U. S. economy is relatively as great today as it was twenty years ago, despite the considerable decline in the number of farms in the population, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. Farmers' purchases of goods and services have quadrupled from the 1937-41 level,

Motorists Urged To Be Alert For Wildlife

The State Department of conservation has urged motorists to give wildlife a break, particularly when traveling on secondary roads.

Automobiles have become a factor in reducing wildlife populations in certain areas. Caution on the part of the driver may avert serious accidents as well as conserving our wildlife.

Ringneck pheasant are in excellent supply this year, but they are being killed in large numbers on the roads of the State. It is felt that by looking well in advance of the vehicle, and applying the brake where necessary, some of the mortality can be averted.

A count taken in many land areas reveals that pheasants are more prevalent this year than any period since the 1930's, an era when the ringneck pheasant reached its peak population in New Jersey.

Other wildlife species which also have shown an increase in population this year include the cottontail rabbit, the gray squirrel, the bob white quail, and the raccoon. These species also are being subjected to a heavy highway kill.

Ruffed grouse has shown an increase too, though not as great as in the other species. The sportsman who wishes to hunt this king of sporting birds will find the opportunity improved over that of last year.

Most interesting is the fact that the wild turkey has become established in a small portion of New Jersey adjacent to the Delaware River in northern Warren County. These birds crossed the Delaware from Pennsylvania and found a desirable habitat in the crowded State of New Jersey on the Worthington Tract. Successful broods were produced this year and the flock is now reported to number more than forty birds.

The State is very interested in maintaining this flock and is hopeful the turkeys will continue to spread throughout the Kittatinny Mountains. Consequently, there is no open season on wild turkey this year.

Underground storage facilities for propane and butane gas are being expanded. Using worked-out salt mines for the most part, the industry has increased its storage space to a capacity of 1-7 billion gallons. Five years ago, only 252 million gallons of storage capacity existed.

Young Democrats To Hold Autumn Dance

The Passaic County Young Democratic Club of New Jersey will hold its first annual autumn dance on Saturday evening, November 14, at the Dux Club Ballroom on State Street in Paterson.

Commissioner Joseph Piastrelli, of the Board of Human Relations, has been selected as general dance chairman. He will be assisted by the following committees: Tickets, James Vasile, Michael Casale, Steve Jorlett, Joseph Dragonetti and Anna Mae Canero; refreshments, Ralph DiMarcantonio, Hal Petty, Michael Retkwa, Sal Vella, and Robert Wagner; food, Anthony Colonna, Alderman William J. Flynn, Frances Badagliacca, Herman Prisman and Joseph Casale; music, Allerman William V. Burke, Burke, Leon Consales, Lucy Salierno, and Richard Stone; decorations, Joseph Williams, Harry Ramos, and James Kearney; publicity, Lucas Badagliacca, Fred Ardis; entertainment, Joseph Batelli, Irma Nelson, Joe Capello, Marion Dalton, and Sam Sheber; hat check, John P. Lloyd, Paul Bordinaro and Marcella Weland.

Honorary chairmen will include Senator Anthony J. Grossi, Freeholders Frank X. Graves, Jr., Alex Womar, Joseph Ryan, along with Assemblymen Robert Wegner, Joseph Keegan, Betty M. Kordja and Sam Biber, and County Chairman Edward J. O'Byrne.

President Adolph Badagliacca, commenting on the autumn dance, said that the affair could very well turn into a victory ball in celebration of the re-election of our Assembly candidates, and the election of Joseph Donato and Mayor Robert Roe, Jr., to the Passaic County Board of Freeholders.

Next meeting of the Passaic County Young Democrats will be held on Wednesday night, October 21, at the Alexander Hamilton Hotel.

The Pay-Off

By PHILIP KETCHUM

Max Murello was quite happy that evening. He felt a celebration was in order. Earlier, just after noon, he had appeared before a state committee which for the past three months had been conducting an investigation into what is called organized crime. If the committee had been more prompt in calling him, or in calling Jim Lopat, he might not have come off so well, but the investigation had moved slowly, and he had had all the time he needed to reach Jim Lopat. What had appeared to be a good case against him, had fallen flat on its face.

Murello had even made a speech at the conclusion of the hearing, and he chuckled now as he repeated portions of it to Bill Waycross. "I really told them something," he declared. "I should have been on television I was that good, especially when I got going about my wife and the two kids I've got in high school. The boy plays football. He's captain of the team. Quite a guy. The girl's a honey. I showed the committee their pictures and laid it on heavy about being a family man and a solid citizen. A couple of the men on the committee looked impressed."

"If Herndon was there I'll bet he didn't," said Waycross.

Murello scowled. He slammed his fist down on his desk. "Someday — someday I'll take care of Herndon. He's one cop I really hate. Do you know what he said to me after the hearing was over?"

"No. What did he say?"

"He asked me how I got to Lopat. I told him I had never heard of the man. Then he said, 'Next time we'll get you, Murello, and it won't be long.' But there won't be any next time for Herndon."

"Lopat could still talk."

"But Lopat won't be around very long. Every contact he knew has been dropped. We've got new men pushing the stuff in the territory he handled. Quit worrying about Lopat. The way this thing is set up now, only five men could point to us. I'm pretty sure of those five."

"Five men and Herndon," said Waycross. "To Herndon, you're still the kingpin of the dope racket."

"But he can't prove a thing. And as I told you, Herndon's on his way out."

"How will you work it, Max?"

Max Murello shrugged his shoulders, then suddenly he grinned. "How about this, Bill? Herndon's a cop who's trying to crack the dope ring. He's head of the police narcotic squad, and he works at it, never misses an angle. Suppose some night he spots a guy who's all hopped up with marihuana. He follows him, corners him, and starts questioning him. The guy's kill-happy. Boom — and it's curtains for Herndon."

"But can you work it that way, Max?"

"You've seen what marihuana can do to a guy, haven't you? Of course, I can work it that way. We might need a plant for the actual kill, or something might go wrong. But a plant can be arranged. Yeah."

Bill Waycross shook his head. "I don't like it, Max. There's too much heat on us right now. If we take care of Herndon like that, the heat will get worse. We ought to coast for a while. Forget Herndon. Like you said, he can't prove a thing — unless he finds another Jim Lopat who will sing before we can reach him. It's lucky for us Lopat had a wife and some kids he's rather fond of, and whom he didn't want hurt."

There was a knock on the door and Pat Johnson looked in. Johnson was another of Murello's men. "There's a fellow out here to see you, Max," he reported.

"Yeah?" said Max Murello. "Who?"

"Sam Herndon."

"Herndon! What does he want?"

"He didn't say, but he tells me it's important. He said tonight was the pay off."

Murello stiffened. "The pay-off!"

"That's what he said."

Murello glanced at Bill Waycross. He opened his desk drawer, checked the gun which was lying there then left the drawer open several inches.

"Do you reckon he got to Lopat?" asked Bill Waycross.

"Never," said Murello. "Lopat wouldn't have dared to talk. It's something else."

"Something else. But what?"

Murello shook his head. He was mentally checking every angle, but there wasn't a loophole anywhere. He was safe. Lopat had been a mistake but he had frightened Lopat into silence and had covered up where Lopat couldn't hurt him. Herndon was bluffing. There could be no other explanation.

"Send him in," he said finally.

Pat Johnson disappeared and a moment later the door opened and Sam Herndon came in. He was tall, thin, and well past middle age and if he felt any triumph, he didn't show it in his face. Tight lipped, scowling, he stared at Murello.

"Well, what is it, Herndon?" snapped Murello. "I'm busy tonight. Haven't much time."

"You've time for this," said Herndon. "And I'm almost sorry for you. I figured a different pay-off."

"A pay-off," shouted Murello. "What are you talking about? I'm clean, Herndon. Clean. You can't touch me."

"No?" said Herndon. "But maybe this will. That was quite a speech you made before the committee this afternoon, particularly the part about your son, Eddie. The football player. You sounded proud of him."

"And why shouldn't I be?"

The detective shrugged his shoulders. "I'll let you answer that. Murello, after you've heard what's happened. Probably, right at the time you were making that speech, Eddie was burying a reefer from one of your peddlers. Or maybe several reefers. A little while later, and while he was still hopped up, he climbed in his car and drove off. They say he was doing eighty miles an hour when he plowed into the brick truck."

Murello stared wide eyed at the detective. "Eddie —" he gasped. "My Eddie."

"This sort of brings it home, doesn't it?" said Herndon. "Yep, this sort of brings home. I've got a car outside if you want to lift down to the mortuary."

THIS WEEK IN American History

By WILLIAM BRODIE

THE UNITED STATES AND THE MACEDONIAN

In the chronicles of the American Navy October 25, 1812 is the date of a brilliant victory.

When the War of 1812 with England broke out not much was expected of our little navy, which was a pygmy compared with the giant navy of England. George Canning, British Secretary of State, expressing the attitude of the British navy, called the armed ships of the United States, "a few fir-built things with bits of striped bunting at their mastheads." That remark was far from the truth, as the events during the months to come were to prove.

True, the American warships were few, but they were new, expertly built, manned by lusty and able seamen, and commanded by some of the finest officers who ever trod a wooden deck. The American crews were highly trained in seamanship and gunnery. They were taught to lay the guns straight on the target and to shoot as fast as possible. As events proved, the American frigates which humbled the haughty British navy, Mistress of the Seas, were superior in speed and hitting power to anything of their class afloat.

One of these stout frigates, of 44 guns, was the United States, commanded by Captain Stephen Decatur. He was ranging far over the Atlantic in search of enemy vessels when a sail was sighted off the Canary Islands on Sunday, October 25, 1812. Had Decatur known at first sight that the ship was the new British frigate Macedonian, commanded by Captain Samuel Carden, he would have sought battle with even keener zest. Carden had been one of the worst offenders in the impressing of American seamen into the British navy, one of the causes of the War of 1812.

Decatur was a mild man who had won the love and confidence of his men. Just before the shooting began his ten-year-old cabin boy pleaded with Decatur to be signed on as a regular seaman. "I want to share in the prize money when we take her," said the boy.

Carden was the opposite, a hard man who kept a tight rein and a heavy hand on his crew. He was noted for his gunnery, and he drew his ship into battle with great confidence of whipping the American.

For 30 minutes the two ships fired at long range. The batteries of the United States flamed so fast and continuously that she seemed to be on fire. The illusion was heightened by the pall of gunsmoke that shrouded her.

Captain Carden, furious at being beaten at his own game of long range gunnery, tried to come close but Decatur stayed clear. In another 15 minutes his guns had riddled the Macedonian with more than 100 hits, killing and wounding scores of men. Decatur then drove his ship across the Macedonian's stern, in a position to tear her to pieces. Carden then hauled down his flag and surrendered. The United States was almost undamaged, with only was a floating slaughter house.

Captain Decatur brought his prize home safely through the British blockade into the Connecticut port of New London. There the Macedonian was repaired and added to America's heroic little navy.

The Macedonian's battle flag was sent to Washington by messenger, a young lieutenant of the victorious United States. And there, at a grand ball, amid the cheers of President Madison, his Cabinet and distinguished guests, the captured flag was placed at the feet of pretty Dolly Madison, the President's wife.
