'FIDELIO' — Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio," will be presented in English as the opening colorcast of the NBC Opera Company's season Sunday, Nov. 8 on the NBC-TV Network. The production will feature (left to right) Chester Watson as Rocco, John Alexander as Florestan, Irene Jordan as Leonora and Lee Cass as Don Pizarro. The opera concerns a woman's efforts to free her husband from unjust imprisonment.

ANOTHER EVENING, ANOTHER SHOW — Dancemaster Fred Astaire and his TV dancing partner, Barrie Chase, again will demonstrate their terpsichorean talents during the NBC-TV Network colorcast of "Another Evening with Fred Astaire" Wednesday, Nov. 4. Miss Chase rose to overnight national fame last year after dancing on "An Evening with Fred Astaire," the colorcast that won nine Emmy Awards — a record.

John A. Dale, Jr., (right) welcomes James Udall of California at the Passaic County Board of Realtors' 50th anniversary banquet at Westmount Country Club. Dale is local president of the county group while Udall is president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Looking on is Miss Bertha O'Connell, banquet chairman.

'WICHITA TOWN' — Jody McCrea (left) is featured as cattle foreman Ben Matheson when his father, screen headliner Joel McCrea — starring as Marshal Mike Dunbar — makes his television debut in the new NBC-TV Network Western adventure series built around the huge cattle drives to Wichita in the 1870's. The series is scheduled Wednesday nights.

BEATING THE BAND — Dino (right), host and star of "The Dean Martin Show" — the NBC-TV Network's "Startime" colorcast special for Tuesday, Nov. 3 — persuades guest star Frank Sinatra to conduct the orchestra in a sketch during the hour of comedy and song. Mickey Rooney also guest stars, and the dance team of Augie and Margo is featured. Hubbell Robinson is executive producer.

World Forestry Congress Commemorative Stamp

A United States commemorative postage stamp honoring the Fifth World Forestry Congress, the first ever held in the United States, or in the Western Hemisphere, will be issued on August 29, 1960, the opening day of the Congress, in Seattle, Washington. The United States Government is serving as host for this important conservation Congress which is sponsored by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United States, according to Postmaster Frank W. Murphy.

Approximately 2,000 foresters from all over the world will attend this Congress in Seattle, to discuss opportunities to make each forest area yield the combination of uses best suited to the needs of the people.

The Post Office Department, aware of the importance of conservation programs, has issued in recent years four wildlife conservation stamps featuring the Pronghorn Antelope, the Wild Turkey, the Whooping Crane, and the King Salmon as well as stamps honoring Forest Conservation and Soil Conservation. This series of conservation stamps will be continued in 1960 by the issuance of a Water Conservation stamp on April 18, '60, on the occasion of the Seventh National Watershed Congress in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Richard E. McArdle, Chief of the United States Forest Service and Chairman of the Organizing Committee of the Fifth World Congress, in describing the Congress said, "This scientific, non-political conference, with the theme 'Multiple Use Forest Management' will provide an opportunity for exchange of ideas between nations on multiple-use management of the earth's forest resources for the benefit of the world's ever-increasing population."

"Coordination in the uses of forest land, including timber, water, forage, recreation, wildlife and other related resources, is of world-wide interest, and will be the chief topic of discussion during the eleven-day meeting in Seattle. Technical information on a wide variety of topics will be exchanged, including forestry practices in tropical and semi-arid lands."

Actively participating in planning this Fifth World Forestry Congress are national leaders not only from conservation organizations but also from labor unions, industry, universities, wildlife agencies, recreation organizations, water users, farms, etc.

Good Hunting Predicted In Upland Sections

As the opening of the upland game season approaches it is increasingly evident that an excellent population of upland game species will be available to the licensed hunter, the State Division of Fish and Game said today.

Observations indicate that the physical condition of all species is normal and there is no evidence of any disease or parasite present. The hunter can feel no danger will be presented to him by taking pheasants, quail, squirrels, grouse, raccoon or woodchuck.

There has been no evidence of abnormal conditions in rabbits, but should a hunter see a rabbit that acts in an abnormal way or a lack of vigor, it is suggested that if it is shot it should be handled with care.

Hunting is a healthful recreation and those who participate can be assured that their own well-being will not be endangered by contact with game.

Electronics and Nuclear Book To Be Published

One of America's foremost authorities on electronics and nuclear engineering, Dr. Robert I. Sarbacher — Armed Forces consultant and former student of Albert Einstein — has completed twelve years of work on the most comprehensive compilation of information relating to his specialties ever to be brought together in a single volume. The massive new reference book was designed to be a central source for all the standard definitions which have been approved by every official technical society. It will be published by Prentice-Hall on November 30 under the title, "Encyclopedic Dictionary of Electronics and Nuclear Engineering."

It sets forth in alphabetical order all the terms, equipment, elements, components, and systems used in the scientific fields covered. There are more than 1,400 pages, 14,000 entries, 17,000 cross-references, and 1,400 illustrations.

Dr. Sarbacher is a graduate of Princeton and Harvard Universities and holds four degrees. He has served as Research Director for many industrial corporations and heads the Washington, D.C., consulting firm of Robert I. Sarbacher and Associates. He is also a member of the Nuclear Energy Committee of the National Manufacturers Association, and a Professional Lecturer in Engineering at George Washington University.

TROPICAL ALLUSION — Latin American rhythm will be among the program highlights when the husband-and-wife team of Xavier Cugat and Abbe Lane visits the Louis Jourdan special telecast Wednesday, Nov. 11 on the NBC-TV Network. The full-hour variety show will originate from the Americana Hotel in Miami Beach. Other headline guests of screen star Jourdan on the program are Jerry Lewis, Jane Morgan and Bobby Darin.

'THE DEPUTY' — Henry Fonda (left), starring as Marshal Simon Fry, places a restraining hand on his eager deputy, Clay McCord, portrayed by Allen Case, in the NBC-TV Network's new Saturday night adventure series centered in the Arizona Territory.

Brigantine Wildlife Area To Be Open To Hunters

It was reported that the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge will be open again this year for licensed hunters of New Jersey.

Access to the main marsh area has been improved by a lease allowing the right of ingress and egress by hunters through Scott's Ditch, located on the road to Oyster Creek. The entrance will be adequately marked by signs, it was announced. The privilege of using Scott's Ditch as an embarking point was made on a cooperative basis by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and the State Division of Fish and Game.

The use of a portion of the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge as a public hunting ground is also a cooperative venture between the Federal Wildlife and the state division. Operation of the area has been carried on for several years and as a result an excellent waterfowl hunting ground has been made available to the public.

Cooperation between the Federal and State services extends to many other conservation ventures, but the multiple use that has taken place on the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge is considered to be an outstanding piece of cooperative work with mutual benefits to all concerned.

Further information as to the use of the Brigantine Public Hunting Area can be secured from Mr. Henry Whitley, Refuge Manager, Absecon, N. J., or the New Jersey Division of Fish and Game, 230 West State Street, Trenton, N. J.

Many parents and adolescents visiting doctors about physical ailments may really be seeking help in understanding the adolescents' behavior, according to two Wisconsin doctors, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association. They say the adolescent delinquent is characterized by angry feelings, impulsivity, self-centeredness, and many other physical and psychological symptoms. The family physician may sometimes help an adolescent delinquent overcome his difficulties by the "loan" of strength and a moral code.

Although New Jersey has a little more than three per cent of the nation's total population, the State employs 6.3 per cent of all engineers and 10 per cent of the total number of chemical engineers in the nation.

Contact Lens Symposium Held in New York

Major scientific developments in the contact lens field were reported today by Dr. A. R. Neale of Paterson, who just returned from the National Contact Lens Symposium held in New York.

The symposium was sponsored by the Optometric Center of New York, and drew more than 700 optometrists from every part of the United States and several from Canada, Mexico, France and Asia.

Dr. Neale said that significant among the many scientific papers and demonstrations were these announcements:

1. A pre-fitted contact lens achieving near-perfect accuracy by a unique combination of photography and mathematics, and resulting in sharply reduced fitting time.

2. Contact lenses will be worn by 35,000,000 Americans by 1970 as a result of expanded research in the field.

3. Many post-operative cataract patients have found normal or near normal vision with contact lenses after regular glasses failed.

4. The average American girl under 25 considers contact lenses a "must" for social occasions, and women prefer contact lenses to glasses by a 10 to 1 margin.

5. Checking, and even reversing, nearsightedness in children has been achieved with contact lenses.

6. Keratoconus cases, deformed conical cornea, get normal vision with contact lenses in practically all cases.

The Optometric Center in New York is a teaching clinic supported by the ten professional optometric societies in metropolitan New York.

Figures now available show that in the first third of September the public bought new U. S. built cars at an average rate of about 14,250 a day. That rate was 34 per cent above the rate for the like period of 1958. Since few new cars were being built during early September, the industry reduced its inventory of unsold cars to 635,000. At the start of August, stocks totaled 965,000 cars. Further reduction of new-car inventories is expected during the remainder of this month, with assemblies of new 1960 models not yet reaching large volume.

New Jersey ranks first in the N. S. in the manufacture of chemicals and allied products, contributing 11.7 per cent of the nationwide production.

In 1791 Alexander Hamilton founded the Society for Establishing Useful Manufacturers and selected the Great Falls of Passaic River as the site of the first industrial city of the new nation. The first factory was built at what is now Paterson in 1794. Its product was printed calico goods.

New Jersey ranked first in Selective Service based on population during World War II and had an important role as an embarkation point for military personnel during both World War I and II.

JACKIE COOPER ... stars in the new series about the adventures of a Navy doctor in "Hennesey," on the CBS Television Network.

'THE JACK PAAR SHOW'—With the customary "... and here's Jack," the star of the NBC-TV Network's Monday-through-Friday late-night variety entertainment makes his entrance for a third season of ad-lib fun.

Social Security Provides Disability Insurance and Family Protection

To many working people social security means just old-age insurance. They realize that through the social security taxes taken out of their pay envelopes they are building protection for their years of retirement. Their knowledge of this Federal insurance program stops right there, Stanley J. Fioresi, district manager of the Paterson social security office, declares.

Many of them, he said, are not aware of the family protection they have in case of their death before reaching retirement age. Others do not know that through their earnings and social security tax on those earnings they are also building disability insurance protection for themselves and their dependents.

Every working person and his family should know that through your social security tax payments, you are building three-way protection. You should realize that the modest deductions from your pay envelope can provide a monthly income if your earnings are cut off either by old-age, disability or death. To be assured your family has the kind of financial security you would desire for them, you should plan for the future. In making your plans, you should be well aware of the income you or your family will receive from your social security at your retirement, in the event of your becoming wholly disabled, or in case of your death. You should consider the amount of your social security benefits in providing for other income such as life insurance, annuities or other investments.

For this reason the social security program holds as much interest for younger workers as for those nearing retirement age. It is to the advantage of everyone to learn of their rights and benefits from this program early and not wait until the time they may expect to receive a payment.

Your nearest social security district office has free booklets available for your use in planning your future security. The Paterson office is located at 245 Market Street.

Democratic Freeholder Candidates Describe Their Platform

At a recent meeting of the Democratic Association, the Democratic Freeholder Candidates Roe and Donato explained their platform and among other things stated that if they were elected they would "expose the work of the Board of Freeholders to the Public." As part of their platform they intend to sponsor the formation of a new Council of Communities of Passaic County in order to keep all local officials fully informed.

"We will bring County Government to Hawthorne and meet with your local Governing Body, the Public and the Press, and coordinate your Local problems with County Departments."

The offered intelligent planning, good management and honest representation of all the People of County Government.

Freeholder Alex Komar reviewed the Hathaway Bakery building purchase which skyrocketed from $345,000 to $1,100,000 and pointed out that the building is only partly in use. Komar also recalled the "Escape Proof" Jail fiasco that cost the County $2,000,000.

He said that if the people wanted to get rid of "Payroll Padding" they should add Roe and Donato to the Freeholders Board.

Assemblyman Joseph Keegan speaking for the Assembly Delegation reviewed the highlights of Legislative activity in Trenton.

VOTE "NO" ON COLLEGE BOND ISSUE!

SURVEY NOT FACTUAL The accuracy of the survey which is relied upon to prove the necessity of spending $66,800,000 is questioned for the simple reason that by implication it suggests that the Private College of New Jersey will not keep pace with the growing demands for expanded facilities and that out of state colleges will sharply reduce the number of students that will be accepted from New Jersey. This is just not so!

Practically every Private College in New Jersey has already started or is in the process of planning for expansion to meet the increasing demands. As to the out of state colleges, we need only point to the great number of representatives of these colleges who are present on the occasion of "Career Days" at our various high schools, endeavoring to have our students affiliate with their colleges. There is no proof whatsoever that the large Colleges in this country will depart from their policy of encouraging students not only from other states, but from other countries, to come to their institutions. It has long been their desire to have a cross-section of our population represented in their student bodies.

In addition, we have not had any experience with our new State Scholarship Plan. It might well be that a greater use of Scholarships might ease the situation. We are sure that it would save considerable money.

PEOPLE NOT CONSULTED A favorable vote on the College Bond issue will be another step towards State control of Our College Educational Program.

Every full time student at Rutgers and State Teachers College presently is being subsidized to the extent of $700 to $800 per year. This figure covers only current operations. It does not include the cost of buildings or the amortization charges incident thereto. If the Bond issue is approved, it will cost $240 per year for each additional student for amortization charges alone. This comes very close to providing free College education. The people have never approved of this. It demonstrates however how legislative and administrative devices can be utilized to the disadvantage of the taxpayer.

MONEY TO PAY FOR BOND ISSUE NOT PROVIDED Although the Act covering the Bond issue provides for the interest and principal to be paid from funds derived from Inheritance Taxes, the fact is that Inheritance Tax funds are already committed to other State purposes.

This means that you may find yourself paying for this Bond Issue through an assessment levied upon your real and personal property — your home, your vacant property, your household effects, your stock, your machinery and other equipment if you are in business. See Section 17 and 18 of the Bond Act.

Both Political parties have pledged themselves against a State Sales Tax or State Income Tax. It will require $7,000,000 each year to pay for these Bonds, plus additional millions for operation, maintenance and teaching personnel for these new facilities.

Demands for additional appropriations for Highways,

State Hospitals and Institutions and more State aid for Education in municipalities will not diminish.

Where will the money come from?

CAUTION REQUIRED There undoubtedly is need for some additional facilities, but we question the wisdom of handing out a blank check in the amount of $66,800,000 at this time.

While the Preamble contained in the Bond Act set forth the location of the proposed projects, the Act itself does not require that these declarations be recognized.

Having this huge sum of money available is a great temptation for public officials to spend and we are all too familiar with the lavish hand that is used where the public pays the bill. Under the circumstances, it seems that the best interests of the taxpayer would be served by adopting a "Pay As You Go Plan" as suggested by Governor Meyner last year, which would enable a continuing study to be made of the requirements while consideration is given to the idea of helping the Private Colleges in some legal fashion that would enable them to continue their contribution to higher education in New Jersey. We cannot afford to lose these private institutions which have operated so well in the public service since the founding of the Republic.

The State should not use its power and its tax money to destroy our Private Colleges.

Now is the time to stop State Control of our College Educational System. Vote 'NO' on the College Bond Issue!

The Editor Speaks

Did you ever ask anybody "How are things?" and by their answer you immediately knew that their spirits were way down in the "dumps"? Whenever things are too mixed up for me, or the world seems to be going to the dogs, I go to my children and believe me in a very short time my hope for a brighter future is restored and my spirits are somewhat refreshed.

Day in and day out the daily papers are plastered with bad news. You turn on the radio or television and again you are bombarded with depressing happenings throughout the world. Not too long ago there was something that impressed me very much. I happened to pass a house that had been hit by lightning. Partly destroyed by fire, it was a terrible sight. A little fellow about five years old or so was playing on the porch. As I stopped he looked at me and shouted, "A bomb did this, mommy said so." Here was a child earnest and sincere who has not yet been engulfed with the thoughts of malice and destruction. He is innocent in his way of thinking to cast suspicion or mistrust in anyone.

Therefore, at what age does a boy become a man, or a girl a woman? It is when the first sign of pessimism shows its ugly face. It is when he does not see the world through rose-colored glasses and it is when he acquires the sense of fear.

The change in a child can be seen by the parents best. They are the ones who detect and see the various changes. They are the one who solve the many complicated daily problems that children encounter. And they are the ones who make the children the adults they turn out to be in later life.

It goes without saying that children learn a lot from their parents. And it goes without saying that parents learn a lot from their children. We know too that children possess with all other God-given blessings a larger measure of godliness and decency. Next time you get down low in the dumps spend a little time with your children or your next door children.

Egyptians Are Becoming More Friendly To Us

News dispatches tell of a more friendly attitude toward Americans in Cairo, the capital of the United Arab Republic. Improved cordiality is apparent despite strong emphasis in Cairo newspapers on the impending arrival of communist technicians to start work on the Aswan Dam, using $100 million of Soviet credits. Early in October, Egyptians boycotted a major party at the Red Chinese Embassy — and in Cairo such occurrences are regarded as more significant of the official attitude than what appears in the newspapers. President Nasser is reported increasingly impressed with U. S. help in building a two-lane highway from Cairo to Alexandria, in reclaiming farmland from the Nile Delta salt flats, in helping improve safety standards at U.A.R. airports, in research work against disease and in aiding expansion of Egyptian industries. Hundreds of Egyptian and Syrian students recently recalled from studies in Russia are to be sent to U. S. schools and colleges under a new exchange program.

Nobody in the U.A.R. government is saying anything about improvement in relations, but observers say it is clearly welcomed by both sides.

St. Lawrence Seaway Doing Big Business

Down through the years, until the development of the Seaway, the St. Lawrence River was predominantly an export route. Now imported cargoes have the statistical edge. The Seaway Authority reports that up to September 30, this year's upbound cargo moving between Montreal and Lake Ontario was 116 per cent greater than in the like 1958 period. Downbound tonnage was up 31 per cent. The total of 2-way cargo movements was up 6 7per cent.

Cargoes moving upbound totaled more than 7.7 million tons. Outbound ships carried more than 6.4 million tons. In the corresponding 1958 period, downbound shipments aggregated more than 4.9 million tons, against less than 3.6 million tons upbound.

42,227 Motorists Had Their Drivers Licenses Suspended Since January

The New Jersey driving privilege of 42,227 motorists were suspended during the first nine months of 1959 for varying periods of time for violations of the motor vehicle regulations and traffic laws, it was reported here by Acting Motor Vehicle Director Ned J. Parsekian.

In addition a total of 23,848 licenses were suspended under the Security-Responsibility Law.

The overall total of 66,075 shows an increase of more than 25,000 suspensions for a comparable period last year.

A report covering the first nine months of the 67-70 Mandatory Speed Regulation Program revealed a total of 17,717 suspensions of drivers licenses. Of this total, 4,642 resulted from convictions in local courts by magistrates. The remainder 13,075, were suspended by the Director of Motor Vehicles mainly involving out-of-state motorists.

Director Parsekian pointed out that local magistrates suspended 10,183 licenses for various infractions of the motor vehicle and traffic laws, and of this total 2,121 motorists forfeited their driving privilege for operating a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. The Director of Motor Vehicles further suspended the driving privilege of 315 New Jersey motorists who were convicted out-of-state for driving under the influence, making a total of 2,435 drunken drivers cited during the nine month period.

New Jersey's Point System accounted for 5,062 suspensions during the first nine months of this year.

The failure of motorists to appear in answer to a court summons resulted in 8,574 suspensions; and 8,374 licenses were suspended for failure to appear for driver re-examination.

Among other causes for license suspensions by magistrates were: reckless driving, 648; speeding, 766; careless driving, 660; for racing on highways, 154.

The report covering the 23,849 suspensions invoked under the Security-Responsibility Law disclosed 11,963 motorists who failed to deposit security after being involved in an accident; 10,001 for failure to file proof of financial responsibility; and 1,884 motorists failed to respond to judgments.

Answer to Cross Word Puzzle on Page 15

Why is it that a woman who can put a little tiny thread through the invisible eye of a needle has such trouble getting a great big automobile through the gaping door of a garage?

A famous M.C. interviewing a ten-year-old on television, asked what her first act would be if she were elected President of the United States. The youngster gazed at him in stunned horror for a split second, then replied, "Have the voters' heads examined!"

Nowadays when a cowboy star adds a notch to his gun, it just means he got another sponsor.

Spring is the mating season for everything but the golf socks you put away last fall.

A telephone operator answering a call with the usual "Number, please?" heard a voice reply "Duston."

"What number, Duston?" asked the operator.

"No number. Just Duston," replied the voice impatiently. And then, since the operator still obviously failed to understand, the voice added: "I'm dustin' the telephone."

"I'm worried, doctor. He hasn't moaned or complained once!"

Nov. 5 Hostess

Irene Dunne stars as hostess of the CBS Television Network's "Big Party by Revlon," Thursday, Nov. 5. Her guests in the 90-minute special include Pearl Bailey, Jack Carter, Les Charlivels, Errol Flynn and Gypsy Rose Lee.

New Book on Cemeteries

The story of Forest Lawn, a memorial park near Los Angeles, which pioneered a completely new concept of cemetery appearance, and Hubert Eaton, the man who created and built it, is told by Adela Rogers St. Johns in "First Step Up To Heaven," which Prentice-Hall will publish November 16th.

In the belief that only a cemetery devoid of the customary bleakness was attuned to man's faith in a joyous immortality, Dr. Eaton constructed Forest Lawn to a theme of quiet loveliness. There are no headstones in his memorial park. It does, however, contain valued works of art, picturesque churches which are replicas of lovely old-world models, and elegant landscaping. Many weddings and baptisms which take place in Forest Lawn churches do not appear incongruous in this beautiful setting.

Dr. Eaton's innovations encouraged boycotts and legal and political attacks. "First Step Up To Heaven" tells how Forest Lawn survived and flourished despite these obstacles. The book contains Dr. Eaton's views on business matters, including his philosophy of selling and a description of Forest Lawn's notably successful advertising and public relations programs.

In milk production per cow, New Jersey ranks second in the nation. The average for one cow for a year is 3,493 quarts of milk.

CHEMISTRY IN COLOR—Dr. John F. Baxter will be the regular instructor of the two-semester, college-level Modern Chemistry course — the first to be colorcast — on "Continental Classroom" (NBC-TV Network, Monday through Friday, 6:30-7 a.m. local time). Nearly 300 colleges and universities will offer academic credit for the course.

'BAT MASTERSON' — The cane-carrying Western hero enjoys his work no matter what the job, as in a can-can chorus line. Gene Barry stars in the title role of the NBC-TV Network Western-adventure series telecast Thursday nights during the new season.

State's Official Trappers Cage 3,255 Predators To Protect Crops, Game

Plunderink predators preying on New Jersey farm crops, domestic stock and wildlife are usually halted in their depredations, the State Division of Fish and Game reported today.

During the fiscal year 1958-59 ending last June 30 last, wildlife control representatives of the division, in cooperation with farmers and sportsmen, trapped and removed 3,255 predators after they had ventured into areas where they were not wanted.

These included 480 foxes, 238 cats, 617 crows, 83 hawks, 360 opossum, 260 skunks, 1 snake, 97 squirrels, 98 turtles, 604 raccoons, 33 owls, 39 beaver, 237 muskrat, 43 weasels, 3 wild dogs, 61 rabbits and one porcupine.

Most of the birds and animals were removed by the official trappers at the request of farmers and landowners in the State. The division received 398 complaints against predators during the year.

The division charged with wildlife management, tries to maintain a balance in nature through the use of seasons and bag limits in an effort to control birds and animals that prey on farm crops, domestic stock and wildlife. Low fur prices during the year caused a reduction of the normal harvest in some of these species.

During the period of the year when wildlife is liberated from the several State game farms, an effort is made to reduce predator populations in areas where game will be released. Newly liberated game is very vulnerable to the inroads of most New Jersey predators and it is one of the duties of wildlife control representatives to remove the predacious species so that a larger number of liberated game will be available to the licensed hunter.

This job is accomplished very effectively by the wildlife control representatives. In addition to this duty they are called upon to liberate game, carry on wildlife population estimates, experiment with new trapping methods and maintain a friendly liaison with the farmers of the State.

In addition, demonstrations in proper methods of trapping procedures are made available to any group of sportsmen, farmers or landowners who are interested in carrying out control measures. The excellent crop of pheasants, rabbits and qual will be conserved as much as possible through the efficient service of such men.

BUTTERFINGERS

By ZOA SHERBURNE

Ginny always figured that if once . . . just once in her whole life, she could excel Caroline at something she would die happy.

If she could have hated Caroline it might not have been so bad, but Caroline, besides being Bill's cousin, was Ginny's very best friend. A really lovely girl who had the irritating habit of doing all things very well!

She bowled in the hundred-eighty bracket and golfed a neat seventy-four. She was an excellent cook and housekeeper and a beautiful swimmer. She did charming simple water colors that brought her a flattering amount of artistic recognition and she held down an advertising job that was both lucrative and glamorous.

"The good fairies were out en masse the day the babe was christened," Bill loved to declare. "She's got everything, she has . . ."

Ginny Allison was forced to agree.

The Tuckers and the Allison's were practically inseparable . . . and if the other three suspected anything of Ginny's phobia about her husband's attractive cousin they made no sign. "Butter Fingers" they called her with tolerant amusement. And it was so apt that Ginny cringed every time she heard it.

Ginny was the gal who tripped getting on the bus and spilled fruits, vegetables, eggs, and pastries all over the other passengers. She tried to tint her hair to bring out the coppery high lights and it all turned a vivid unhealthy green that had to be clipped almost to her scalp before she dared show herself in public.

"The only thing I ever did right in my life was to marry you," she told Bill miserably one night.

Bill grinned at her and massaged the little worry lines between her eyebrows with his thumb. "Well, you can't be a hundred-percent right all the time," he comforted her cheerfully.

When Dave got his promotion and the young Tuckers announced that they would be moving West, Ginny's natural sorrow at losing them was tinged with unmistakable elation. Of course, she'd miss Caroline . . . but think of not having the super-plus-perfect example under her nose at all times.

While they were getting ready to sell the place Dave brought home the tomato plants to set out in the back yard.

"It might help with the sale of the place," he told Ginny and Bill.

"Want me to help put them out?" Bill offered.

"Nope . . . I'll leave that to Caroline . . . she'll have better luck with them." He looked down at the small green plants and then up at Ginny. "Here, Ginny . . . take some of these and try your luck with them."

Ginny tried to refuse but Dave talked her down.

It seemed like the finger of Fate that when she tuned in the radio the next morning some man was talking about tomatoes.

"The trouble with most people," the man confided, "is that they baby their plants to death. Always picking off bugs and snipping here and there. Let your plants alone until they start developing . . . and then treat them to a handful of VEG-O-GROW every few days . . . Lady . . . you'll have more tomatoes than you know what to do with!"

Ginny looked thoughtful as she snapped off the radio. Maybe . . . just maybe this was her chance to outdo Caroline. Caroline, she knew, was a bugpicker. When Bill came home that night she asked him to pick up some VEG-O-GROW the next time he was in a seed store.

Bill looked astonished. "What for? What is it?"

"It's some kind of plant powder," Ginny told him seriously. "For my tomato plants. The man says it's a pinkish gray powder with an offensive odor, guaranteed not to hurt your hands or clothes . . ."

Bill smiled as he retired behind his newspaper. "O.K., Butch," he promised. "I'll get you some of the junk. I'm sorry to hear that you've got ants in your plants, though . . ."

Ginny could hardly wait for the time to start the VEG-O-GROW treatments. When the oracle on the radio mentioned that the time was ripe Ginny called Bill at his office. "Bill, I'll bet you forgot my VEG-O-GROW," she greeted him.

She had to repeat it four times before he knew what she meant . . . then he laughed easily. "Oh, sure . . . I got the package. It's down on my workbench, you can't miss it. But, listen, angel . . . be careful of that pile on the end of the bench . . . my brushes are soaking in it."

Butter fingers, again! Well, just wait until he saw her tomato plants.

She found the sack with the pink powder and fed it carefully around her precious plants. Then she soaked the ground the way the man on the radio had suggested.

They were all so busy the next couple of weeks that no one took any notice of Ginny's tomatoes. Caroline and Dave were showing the new owners around the place one evening and stopped to introduce them to Ginny and Bill. The new man whose name was Hubert called over the fence to Ginny. "I've been admiring your tomato plants, Mrs. Allison. They really are beauties . . . must be an expensive cutting . . ." There was a stunned little silence while Caroline and Dave and Bill looked from Ginny's plants to Caroline's and then back to Ginny's again.

"They came out of the same setting that ours did," Caroline said in a puzzled tone. "What did you do to yours, Ginny?"

"Oh, I've been studying up on tomatoes," Ginny said. "They're really quite interesting . . ."

Bill was regarding her curiously. "That's right . . . you had to get some of that plant junk. How come you never used it?"

Ginny shrugged. "I did use it. VEG-O-GROW," she told Caroline. "It's supposed to be wonderful for tomatoes . . ."

Caroline nodded respectfully. "I'll try it if I have a garden again. Ginny's heart was light as she followed Bill back into the house. Once . . . just once she had bested Caroline.

Bill was looking at her in a frankly puzzled way. "What was the idea of telling Caroline you used that junk on your tomatoes?"

"I did use it, silly. I've been using it for weeks . . ."

Bill swallowed. "You're sure?"

"Of course, I'm sure."

He took her by the arm and led her down the stairs and over to his work bench. "Now show me . . ." he invited.

Ginny sighed in exasperation, opened the familiar paper sack and let some of the pink powder sift through her fingers. "Here . . . this is the stuff . . ."

Bill was holding a smaller paper bag at arm's length and his smile was completely delighted. "THIS is your VEG-O-GROW, Butch Fingers. I don't know how you managed it, but you seem to be growing the neighborhood's prize tomatoes with pink kalsomin."

AMERICAN HISTORY

BATTLE OF LEYTE GULF

For three days and nights between October 23-25, 1944 the greatest naval battle of World War II raged up and down the waters of the Philippine Islands. Known as the Battle for Leyte Gulf, it was really a series of three separate furious actions in which the U. S. Third Fleet led by Admiral "Bull" Halsey, and the U. S. Seventh Fleet under Vice-Admiral Tom Kincaid gave the combined Japanese fleet a terrible beating.

"I shall return," General MacArthur had said, and now his Sixth Army, commanded by General Krueger, had landed on Leyte Island in the central Philippines on October 20. The landings were backed up by the two American fleets.

Admiral Soemer Toyoda, fat commander-in-chief of the already battered Japanese Navy, planned to wipe out the invading Americans by naval gunfire. He divided his fleet into three task forces, northern, central and southern. The central group under Admiral Kurita was the big force with 5 battleships, 12 cruisers and 15 destroyers. Here were the world's biggest battleships, the Yamato and Musashi, pride of the Japanese Navy, 64,000 tons each and mounting 18-inch guns.

The southern group had 2 battleships and 12 cruisers and destroyers. Together with the central fleet it came up from the south to engage the Seventh Fleet guarding the Leyte beachhead. There are two main channels through the central Philippines, San Bernardino Strait to the north and Surigao Strait to the south. Swinging through these channels the two Japanese fleets outnumbered Kincaid's Seventh Fleet, and one of them would try to get at the helpless transports off Leyte.

The northern fleet of Admiral Ozawa made up the Japanese main carrier strength with 4 carriers, 2 battleship carriers and 7 cruisers and destroyers. This fleet was to act as a decoy to draw Halsey's Third Fleet away from the Seventh Fleet off Leyte.

On October 23 several Japanese ships were sunk by submarines and planes combing the seas around the Philippines. On the morning of the 24th Halsey's air force, commanded by Vice-Admiral Mitscher struck at the Japanese central force approaching San Bernardino Strait. The American planes and dive bombers battered the Japanese fleet, sinking the mighty Musashi, and several other ships.

Then the approach of the northern Japanese fleet was discovered. Halsey turned his Third Fleet and charged north at high speed. The enemy fleet fled and during all day of the 25th Halsey's airmen pounded away, sinking all 4 Japanese carriers as well as a cruiser and two destroyers. This was the action off Cape Engano at the northern end of the islands.

Meanwhile, several hundred miles to the south at Surigao Strait, the Japanese southern force was ambushed by part of Kincaid's Seventh Fleet under Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf. Here in the 12-mile wide channel the Japanese ships fell into a concentrated fire and were all but wiped out. This was a tremendous blow with a vengeance, for the American ships included the old battleships West Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, California and Pennsylvania which had been raised from the mud of Pearl Harbor.

Suddenly, on the same day, Kurita's central fleet, which was still strong despite the battering it had gotten, broke through San Bernardino Strait, left unguarded when the Third Fleet dashed north, and fell upon the American small escort ships and jeep carriers off Samar Island, inflicting heavy damage. In answer to the Seventh Fleet's frantic radio appeals, the Third Fleet sent its fast ships dashing back to help. But before they arrived the remnants of the Japanese central fleet suddenly drew off and fled, just when it appeared that it had the helpless American transports in its grasp.

And so ended the three engagements of the great Battle for Leyte Gulf, fought day and night amid wild, confused action. The Japanese lost 3 battleships, 4 carriers, 10 cruisers and 9 destroyers, with 35 other ships damaged, while the American losses were 3 carriers and 3 destroyers. The Japanese Navy had received its death blow.
