The CHRONICLE

In Sid Caesar Comedy Special Dec. 2

Above, the stars burlesque courtship fashions in an Italian opera. Guests in the hour-long comedy program include Jose Ferrer, Marge and Gower Champion, and Connie Francis.

IBSEN HEROINE — Julie Harris is amused, pleading, amazed and understanding during the course of the 90-minute colorcast production of Henrik Ibsen's "A Doll's House," which the "Hall of Fame" will present on the NBC-TV Network Sunday, Nov. 15. ## 100 Millions Cars On The Roads In 1970 Predicted

It is estimated that last week's new car production in the U. S. was 111,487 units, down from 133,973 the previous week, but it was well above the 70,973 units produced in the like week of last year. It was estimated that output was cut 16 per cent by labor troubles in and out of the industry, with steel shortages the dominant factor. The week's production brought car output this year to 4,738,569 cars, against 3,045,448 in the like period last year.

The British Motor Corporation in London, in a recent statement, said it expects to sell more than 75,000 cars in the U. S. in 1960, up from about 55,000 this year, despite competition from the new American made compact cars. A British car expert executive has forecast that within the next two years about half of the odd makes of foreign cars now sent to the U. S. will vanish from the American market and that the survivors will share sales of about 500,000 units a year.

President Harold E. Churchill of Studebaker-Packard Corporation estimates that by 1970 there will be "nearly 100 million cars on U. S. roads.

People's Capitalism In America

If Premier Khrushchev should choose to tell the Russian people all about what makes the U. S. economy tick, he could include the following:

1. Communist opinion that U. S. industry is mostly owned by millionaires is a myth.

2. In this decade, marked by fast growth in the number of middle income families, the number of shareholders in U. S. corporations has more than doubled. Just from 1952 to 1959, the number has increased from 6:5 million to 12:5 million.

3. About 75 per cent of the current owners of U. S. corporations have annual incomes under $10,000. Nearly 50 per cent are in the $5,000 to $10,000 income range.

4. In sharp contrast to the situation in communist countries, where all industry theoretically is owned by all the people, U. S. shareholders can and do exert control over their managements. No political facade can perpetuate the regime of inefficient executives. The dynamism of U. S. economic life is linked to the fact that when this nation's 12:5 million shareholders prosper, all prosper. Such is the nature of "people's capitalism" in the United States.

Moving Picture Business Improving

The motion picture industry appears likely to record an increase in movie attendance this year — for the first time since 1948. In the past 11 years the number of indoor movie houses has decreased from 17,000 to only about 11,200. In the meanwhile, the number of drive-in movies has risen from 1,200 to about 5,000. The latter are seen as largely responsible for figures showing that, in the first eight month of this year, attendance at movie showings was up 4.5 per cent over the like period last year. Receipts of drive ins in that period were 25 per cent above the January through August months of last year. In large number, northern area promoters are converting drive-in theatres into year-round operations by providing portable heaters.

Helpful Suggestions In Dr. Johnson's Book

Practical advice for better health, based on the findings of more than three million examination reports, is found in Dr. Harry J. Johnson's new book, "The Life Extension Foundation Guide to Better Health.

It is an indisputable fact, according to Dr. Johnson, that most people function at 25 to 50 per cent below their maximum efficiency level. There is a simple explanation for this phenomenon: they neglect even the most elemental tenets of personal health care. In his book Dr. Johnson discusses up-to-the-minute medical facts relating to sleep, release from tension, the use of alcohol and numerous other factors with application to daily life. Thumbnail summaries at the end of each chapter enable the reader to fix points in mind for future reference.

Dr. Johnson serves as both president and medical director of the Life Extension Foundation, a medical group specializing in preventive medicine for industry, insurance companies, and private patients.

With the number of bowlers in the U. S. increasing (there are more than 22 million today, against 13 million in 1949), the building of alleys has become a $300 million a year business, and may go higher. Forecasts are that 35 million Americans will be bowling by 1966. Construction outlays tell only part of the story of the sports' economic impact. Last year, bowlers spent $1 billion for equipment and fees.

'THE PRICE IS RIGHT' — Bill Cullen, merry and convivial host of the NBC-TV Network's Wednesday night colorcast and Monday-through-Friday black-and-white daytime telecast of one of TV's longest-reigning audience-participation shows, expects to give away more than $1,000,000 in prizes during the new season.

A CLAUS IN HIS CONTACT — Ed Wynn will be seen as a department store Santa Claus in "Miracle on 34th Street," colorcast special on the NBC-TV Network Friday, Nov. 27. The full-hour show also stars Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy.

Low-Cost Drug Therapy For Mental Health

Medicine and pharmacology have provided the mentally ill with renewed hope with the advent of tranquilizers. Because of this growing awareness, the Passaic County Mental Health Association's program committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. E. O. Haserodt, Passaic, is currently planning to develop a low-cost drug therapy program for Passaic County residents.

Still in its formative stages, Mrs. Haserodt indicated that the program would affect that segment of the population who are currently receiving care through the various hospital mental health clinics and who because of economic hardship cannot afford the continuing cost of medication. It is the hope of the Passaic County Mental Health Association that drugs can be made available at reduced cost on a sliding income scale.

Current efforts of the committee, Haserodt indicated, are directed towards an attempt to determine which of the many hundreds of drugs available are most frequently prescribed by local psychiatrists. Fifteen local psychiatrists have been contacted for this purpose. The committee will attempt to select the most frequently prescribed as the drugs used in their program.

In addition the committee is in the process of developing procedural arrangements with the Administrators of the six general hospitals in Passaic County. It is difficult to know, Haserodt noted, the number of individuals who would be involved, but we hope that arrangements could be made to cover the needs of those who receive clinic treatment. To this extent, we would hope to extend this program to include patients of clinics who do not have hospital affiliations, Haserodt added.

To assure that Bloomingdale participates in the development of an Upper-Passaic County mental health clinic, Mrs. Maria Schroeder announced the formation of a Bloomingdale group of the Up-County Regional Committee of Passaic County Mental Health Association.

At its first meeting held recently at the Bloomingdale Public School, the group heard Ira C. Robbins, executive director of the Passaic County Association detail the mental health needs of the Upper-Passaic County area. With Bloomingdale's growing population, he suggested that there would be increased need for mental health services, and encouraged this citizens group to join

Boat Owners Endorse Boat Safety Legislation

New Jersey charter and party boat owners this week endorsed the pending legislation bill A-15 as a means of assuring greater safety to the boating public.

They addressed a letter to the Commissioner as follows:

"In reviewing New Jersey State Bill A-15 (revised) we note that the objectionable feature pertaining to documented vessels, namely party and charter boats, has been withdrawn. We support this move and want to thank the committee for this action."

Captain Joseph Van Buren of Newark, a commander in the Naval Reserve during World War II, and now a party boat owner and New Jersey delegate of the National Party Boat Owners Alliance, said that in 1956 he and President Suydam had worked co-operatively on federal legislation designed to insure greater safety at sea.

"We feel that is the purpose of New Jersey's present A-15," he said. "It is important to have this legislation enacted because it will help increase safety factors on our waterways. With more than 30 years experience of my own, I think A-15 is a good thing for boatmen and I support it very strongly."

Opportunities For Travel During Fall and Spring

Group tours specifically designed for the thrifty fall through spring months, economy fares and pay-later plans can lift any travel dream out of its pipe dream limbo.

Scandinavian Airlines has created a series of wide-ranging bargain priced European holidays especially for average wage earners. They're part of its "Treasure Chest of World Travel", a new concept of off-season tour planning that covers the places and pleasures of the world and adjusts to almost any price category. They offer the cream of Europe's cities and sights — the same you'd see if you paid a fortune. But more important, they put you in line for those special and seasonal events that summer tourists traveling deluxe miss — Christmas fairs, gala openings, winter sports contests, spring and harvest festivals, haute couture showings — the list is endless.

There are two budget groups to choose from. The first, SAS' Pack n'Go year round tours, lists five different combinations lasting from 17 to 30 days, covering the continent from Oslo to Sorrento. And of course, you can "charge it" under the SAS pay-later plan.

The Motorcoach Tours of Europe — a surprisingly economical and comfortable mode of travel — make up the second grouping. The tours operate from early spring through late fall, eliminating the dead of winter attractions but getting you there in time for such major events as Scandinavia's rites of spring, Munich's Oktoberfest, the Passion Play, trade fairs and music festivals.

WHAT ABOUT FOOD PRICES?

Human memories are short. This truism helps to explain many a misconception which exists in peoples' minds. Take, for instance, the matter of food prices.

The "spread" between the prices paid farmers for food in the raw material stage and the prices charged the consumer at retail has increased. So it is periodically argued that this fact virtually proves that retailers and processors and various middlemen are exploiting both producers and consumers.

That argument conveniently overlooks a quiet little revolution that has gone a long way toward transforming the food business. Today, store shelves are loaded with prepared foods which are either ready to eat or nearly so. These have been given an enthusiastic public response, for the obvious reason that they cut the time and the work involved in meal preparation to levels which would have seemed fanciful a decade ago. One study says that a woman can save as much as four hours of kitchen work a day by using the prepared foods which offer "built-in maid service."

This preparation is expensive, in material and labor. But millions of people are willing to spend a little more in order to save time and work. So an increasing proportion of retail grocery business is found in the ready-to-serve foods — and so, inevitably, the gap between raw material and finished food prices increases.

American families, on the average, spend 22 per cent of income on food. But they could duplicate their 1935-39 market basket today for 16 per cent of income if they were satisfied with the same foods they were buying then.

J. EDGAR HOOVER SAYS:

"A valuable ally in the fight against crime, the news media of the Nation can afford further public service in focusing the spotlight of public opinion on those members of the judiciary who, in the face of the present crisis, persist in endangering the public by unleashing young terrorists apprehended at great risk by law enforcement officers.

"Parents who, through bad example, indifference, or lust for worldly gain, inflict upon their fellow men the scourge of vicious offspring deserve to feel the sting of public indignation and to face legal and financial responsibility for the criminal acts of their children.

"At this time, when the increase in youthful crimes constitutes the bulk of the shameful rise in our national crime, serious consideration should be given to lowering the age distinction between a juvenile and an adult violator. We are dealing with vicious young criminals, and they should be treated as such.

"The prevention of juvenile destruction lies in the establishment of juvenile discipline. Assuredly, this is the responsibility of every individual interested in his own safety and the welfare of his country."

The Editor Speaks

One of the most popular subjects in letters from my readers is, "How can I acquire culture in a hurry?"

There is hardly a week that someone does not ask me what to read in order to be able to impress people. But the inquirers haven't much time to spend on the subject. They have to get their culture education in a hurry. Wasn't there some kind of a song some time ago about nine easy dancing lessons? I forgot just how it went, but it was something about becoming popular in a hurry by learning how to dance. Anybody who wants to learn dancing can do so in a hurry. One—two—three—dip or something like that, that's really all there is to it. But culture is something else again. There is no one-two-three—dip to culture.

Culture is not something that can be acquired like dying your hair or using mascara or rouge. A famous German scientist, Justus von Liebig, said, "Soap is a measure of the prosperity and culture of a nation." What he meant, I think, was that a clean nation is a cultured nation. And by "soap" he meant not only cleanliness of body but also of mind.

So I answer my correspondents who want to become cultured in a hurry with two quotations.

Thomas Carlyle: "The great law of culture is: Let each become all that he was created capable of being; expand, if possible, to full growth; resisting all impediments, casting off all foreign, especially all noxious adhesions, and show himself at length in his own shape and stature, be these what they may."

Mary Pettibone Poole: "Culture is what your butcher would have if he were a surgeon."

South Jersey Attracts Many Vacationers

New Jersey's inland winter resort at Lakewood, situated in the heart of the healthful pine belt draws thousands of vacationers in the months of November and December and affords an excellent opportunity to enjoy fall fun in the Garden State, according to Salvatore A. Bontempo, Commissioner of the Department of Conservation.

In addition to dining service for which many hotels are famous, there are varied activities through the day and evening to satisfy the fun and recreation seekers. Week-end package plans and special rates are available by contacting the otel Association of Lakewood, 218 Clifton Avenue, Lakewood, N. J.

Attractions include indoor swimming pools, steam and massage rooms, and free dancing instructions. For outdoors there is horseback riding or horse driven carriages for family rides thru picturesque lake and pine country, including Ocean County Park. Lakewood Country Club, with an 18-hole course, is open for golfers the year round.

All hotels have sun rooms and sun decks, many looking on the scenic pines that fringe the area.

A popular extra which draws family crowds is the outdoor 8,000 square-foot ice skating rink centrally located and built by the hotels for their guests.

Animal lovers usually visit nearby Deer Park, where tame deer roam the grounds and may be hand fed by children. Other animals from all over the world are caged and exhibited.

Evenings in Lakewood feature top flight Broadway entertainment with popular bands for dancing. A new folder, "Fall Fun in New Jersey", provides information on Lakewood and other fall sport areas. It is available free from the N. J. Dept. of Conservation & Economic Development, State Promotion Section, 520 E. State St., Trenton 25, N. J.

The movie industry started in New Jersey. The films were first developed at the Thomas A. Edison laboratories and later moved to the Palisades. The early movieillers were filmed at Fort Lee.

The population of the entire nation has increased by about 15 per cent since the 1950 census, while New Jersey's population has grown 18.7 per cent.

County Bankers Visit Stock Exchange

Over fifty members of the Passaic County Chapter of the American Institute of Banking recently visited the New York Stock Exchange. The tour was under the direction of Mrs. Kay Kirschner, Chairman of the Chapters Public Relations Committee, who is with the Bank of Passaic and Clifton.

The group was welcomed by Miss Higgins of the Stock Exchange and she guided the group to the exhibits and explained the workings of the Exchange. During the tour a "welcome to Passaic County Chapter of the American Institute of Banking" and "welcome to Kay Kirschner, chairman of Public Relations Committee of the Passaic County Chapter of the American Institute of Banking" was flashed on the board which was received on the ticker tape of brokerage firms throughout the County.

Tours such as this are a part of the chapter's program through which members of the banking fraternity have an opportunity to become better acquainted with the financial aspects of our nation.

In the wake of the 1956 steel strike, the price of steel scrap shot up to $67 a ton, compared with a price of $45 a ton when the strike started. No such rise is looked for as a result of this steel strike.

1959 Price Propping Cost Up To $2.6 Billion

In Fiscal 1959, the U. S. laid out a record $2.6 billion for price supports, exclusive of the cost of the soil bank, export subsidies and other kinds of farm aid. During the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30, the government's price propping outlays are expected to dip to $2.5 billion — even though the Federal production index stands at 118 per cent of the 1947-48 average, indicating a 1960 harvest about equal to this year's record-setter. Savings are looked for due to lower support rates for cotton and several other crops.

Bankers Want Interest Ceiling Eased

When Congress meets in January, it will be confronted with a resolution adopted by members of the American Bankers Association, calling on the national legislature to remove the 4½ per cent interest rate ceiling on marketable new Government securities of long than five years' maturity. The A.B.A. resolution, adopted last week, noted that failure to eliminate the ceiling has forced the Treasury to borrow only through securities of less than five years' maturity. This said the resolution has caused generally higher interest rates.

The woman motorist was trying to navigate a traffic jam. She rammed the car in front of her, then tried to back up and knocked down a pedestrian. Then she tried to move over to the curb and ran into a hydrant.

A policeman came up. "Okay, lady let's see your license." "Don't be silly," she groaned; "who'd give me a license?"

A visiting psychiatrist, wandering through the wards of a state asylum, was particularly intrigued by a patient who sat huddled in a corner all by himself and scratched himself, for hours on end.

"My good man," the doctor addressed the patient gently, "why do you stay huddled in a corner all by yourself and scratch yourself?"

"Because," replied the man wearily, "I'm the only person in the world who knows where I itch."

A worker in East Berlin was fired when he showed up at work on time. He was accused of buying an American watch.

"When I got off that crowded bus this morning... there he was!"

Hemingway Star

World heavyweight boxing champion Ingemar Johansson makes his dramatic debut in Ernest Hemingway's "The Killers," the CBS Television Network's "Buick Electra Playhouse" premiere, Thursday, Nov. 19. Johansson plays the pivotal role of a Swedish ex-boxer sought by two hired gunmen in the 90-minute special.

BY PHILIP KETCHUM

Jorgensen made a slow examination of the room in which Willard Hayes had died and I watched him as he circled the bed, stared at the bottles and the glass on the bedside table, then knelt down and peered into the waste basket. There was only a piece of cotton in the waste basket. He picked it up, sniffed at it, then dropped it. After this he moved over to the dresser and looked at the things there. The usual things found on a dresser.

I didn't say a thing but this case, at least, had all the possibilities of being a murder. Willard Hayes had been quite wealthy. Two months before he had suffered a heart attack and almost immediately his two brothers and his sister had rushed to his side. Since then, it seemed, they had waited hopefully for his death and a division of his estate. Hayes, however, according to his doctor, had been in the process of fooling them. He was recovering. Last night, when the doctor had visited him, he had been quite cheerful and felt quite strong. This morning, he had been found dead in his bed. The doctor, suspecting his death was not natural, had called in the police.

"Let's go downstairs and talk to the relatives," said Jorgensen suddenly. "If the coroner reports it a natural death, we'll apologize and get out."

"You'll have to go easy on them until you're sure," I warned.

"I always go easy until I'm sure," he said.

We went down to the parlor. There servants, the doctor, and four relatives of the dead man were waiting for us. There was an air of antagonism in the room which was directed at us as we entered. Several people had something to say, immediately. The doctor wanted to get away to visit his patients. The sister of Willard Hayes said we were being impertinent and the commissioner would hear of this. One of Hayes' brothers referred to us as "The Gestapo."

Jorgensen smiled at everyone. He had a nice smile, a disarming manner. He seemed to agree that the whole affair was quite unfortunate and promised the investigation would be over as quickly as possible. Then he started asking questions. In an unbelievably short time he established these facts. First, that the doctor had called on Willard Hayes, at nine o'clock the evening before, had left after a brief visit. Second, that none of the servants had gone to Hayes' room after 5 P.M. Third, that John Hayes and Edward Hayes had looked in on their brother shortly after the doctor left, and had told him goodnight. They said he had been reading at the time and didn't seem to want to be disturbed. Fourth, that Bertha Edmonds, Willard's sister, had gone to his room at about ten. The light had been out and Willard had seemed to be asleep. She hadn't awakened him. Fifth, that Caroline Hayes, John's wife, hadn't gone near the brother-in-law's room since early in the afternoon. Some of those facts, of course, might not have been facts.

At about this point in the investigation, Jorgensen was called to answer the telephone. When he returned, his manner was grim. He told us what he had learned from the coroner. Willard Hayes had died of an overdose of morphine.

A shocked silence followed that announcement, but what happened next was even more amazing. Jorgensen pointed to the doctor and said to two officers who had followed him back into the room: "There's your man. Place him under arrest and take him to headquarters." He wouldn't listen to the doctor's protests.

Then, another amazing thing happened. Sam Huggins, one of the detectives who had come with us and who was standing near Jorgensen, suddenly collapsed, grabbing at Jorgensen as he stumbled and slid to the floor. Everyone stared at him. Jorgensen bent over and felt his pulse. I crowded closer.

"I sent the doctor away too soon," Jorgensen muttered. "I'm afraid this may be serious. I wish —"

Bertha Edmonds pushed forward. She said "John, Edward, lift him to the couch. Caroline, run up to my room and get my first aid kit."

Her manner was quite authoritative. Jorgensen let her take over. Huggins was lifted to the couch. Bertha Edmonds reached for his wrist, then after holding it for a minute seemed to stiffen. She looked around at Jorgensen, wide eyed, startled.

"You can wake up, Huggins," said Jorgensen. "Miss Edmonds has discovered—your pulse is normal."

Huggins sat up, then got to his feet. He was grinning, but there wasn't much humor in his grin.

"You're a trained nurse, aren't you, Miss Edmonds?" said Jorgensen.

The woman bit her lips. She was watching Jorgensen closely.

"It's like this, Miss Edmonds," Jorgensen continued. "Willard Hayes was killed by an overdose of morphine, heavy enough to knock him out immediately. If he was reading in bed when his brothers looked in on him, the doctor couldn't have administered the dose. The doctor was under arrest until he left this room."

"But I didn't kill my brother," gasped the woman.

"Morphine," said Jorgensen, "is administered intravenously by means of a hypodermic needle. Maybe you will say anyone could use a hypo, and that's true, but I don't if anyone, other than a person with medical or nursing training, would first use a piece of cotton soaked in alcohol to sterilize the place on the arm where the needle is to be injected. Your training trapped you, Miss Edmonds. The piece of alcohol-soaked cotton you used on your brother's arm while he was still sleeping, you dropped in the waste basket near his bed. Training and habit. It's too bad —"

Jorgensen paused, then shrugged his shoulders. Miss Edmonds had collapsed, and this faint was real. It wasn't staged.

"You didn't have to trap her so dramatically," I muttered.

"It's quicker this way," he answered. "I don't like to get these things over with. I don't like murder."

AMERICAN HISTORY

—BY WILLIAM BRODIE—

ST. CLAIR'S DEFEAT

One of the worst defeats ever suffered by an American army occurred on November 4, 1791. On that day the Indians cut to pieces the army of General St. Clair on the east fork of the Wabash River in western Ohio.

The battle was part of the constant warfare between the westward pushing white settlers and the red men for possession of the land. The prize here was the great stretch of rich wilderness country between the river known by the beautiful Indian name of Ohio, and the Great Lakes.

In 1790 the government sent troops under General Josiah Harmar to Ohio to check the Indians who were attacking the white settlers. Harmar built a fort on the Muskingum River, near the spot where the city of Marietta now stands. He then made an expedition against the Indians. They drove him back in defeat.

A year later President Washington chose General Arthur St. Clair to lead an army against the Indians and avenge Harmar's defeat. St. Clair was governor of the Northwest Territory which included the Ohio country. He set out with an army of 2000 men to build a chain of forts and secure the Ohio country against Indian attacks.

President Washington had warned St. Clair to be alert against surprise and ambush, but the warning apparently wasn't heeded. The expedition had bad luck from the beginning. Discipline was bad. There were desertions. And St. Clair wasn't in good health. His army had been reduced to about 1400 men when it camped on the banks of the Wabash without taking proper precautions against a surprise attack.

For days St. Clair's movements had been watched by Indian scouts under the wily Tecumseh. The attack came at dawn, a favorite surprise hour of the Indians, upon the sleeping, unprepared troops. At the chilly sunrise of November 4th the fierce war whoop rang out from the woods and hundreds of warriors, led by Chiefs Little Turtle and Blue Jacket, swarmed upon St. Clair's army.

The surprised troops were quickly disorganized, despite the personal bravery of St. Clair and other officers, and slaughtered by the hundreds. Only a fraction of the army escaped by flight into the forest, leaving more than 600 dead, and all their supplies, on the field. St. Clair was lucky enough to be among the survivors.

When the news reached President Washington weeks later he burst into fury, crying, "Oh, God! Oh, God! St. Clair is worse than a murderer! How can he answer to his countrymen!" But when he calmed down, Washington said, "General St. Clair shall have justice . . . he shall have full justice."

St. Clair was severely censured for this terrible defeat. Though he continued to be governor, his name remained in bad repute and he never rose again in public esteem.

The Indians, flushed with their victories over Harmar and St. Clair, grew bolder in their raids and massacres. It remained for a Revolutionary War hero, General "Mad Anthony" Wayne, to defeat the Indians two years later and break their hold on the Ohio country. After that came the big rush of settlers from the East, and ten years later, in 1803, Ohio became the 17th state in the Union.
