COVER PICTURE:

In a simple spire-topped meeting house in Philadelphia in 1776, liberty was born on paper. To make each idea live, each phrase was fought for in patriot's blood. Trace the mightiness of our nation today to the sacrifices of this little band of men of great vision.

The CHRONICLE

MAN OF THE AGES — This early-day Paar seems a longhair compared to the late-night Paar, but he conveys the old master's touch of whimsy that prevails on the Monday-through-Friday "Jack Paar Show" on the NBC-TV Network. Illustrator Ronald McLeod rendered the conception of how the television headliner may have looked had he lived five centuries ago.

INVESTIGATORS — Dennis Morgan stars as Dennis Chase, a private investigator in the new series, "21 Beacon Street," and Joanna Barnes plays Joanna, his girl Friday. The crime investigation series is telecast Thursday nights on the NBC-TV Network in the time period of the vacationing "Ford Show."

Summer-Long Fishing Programs For Youths

Summer-long fishing programs for young people, with adequate instruction provided, are being advocated by the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development to replace the one-day fishing derbies formerly sponsored by local groups.

Dr. A. Heaton Underhill, director of Fish and Game says these long programs give an opportunity to stress sportsmanship of the highest order rather than the pressure of competition.

"Fishing is primarily a contemplative sport rather than a competitive one," he said. "For this reason, we are urging local groups to extend their sponsorship from the one-day to the season-long fishing programs, and give youngsters a proper idea of sportsmanship."

Surveys of municipal ponds by Division personnel have shown that more than two-thirds of all youngsters fishing have never fished with an adult," Dr. Underhill added. "In most instances they are using tackle and bait that are totally inappropriate for the ponds they are fishing."

Director Underhill says the surveys also show that many of the municipal ponds have good populations of pan fish and often large bass and pickerel. Under proper management by the Division, they can furnish excellent fishing.

The season-long fishing programs for young people are designed to include instruction in the proper use of equipment, the ground rules of fishing, proper seasons, and courtesy along the ponds and streams. Instead of awarding prizes for the biggest or most fish caught, the youngsters would be rewarded for showing true sportsmanship over an eight-week period.

The importance of conservation laws would be stressed by awarding prizes to the youngsters for tagged fish caught during the fishing tournaments. In addition to other prizes, it is planned to award the youngsters the tags after pertinent data is secured from them, so they may be kept as souvenirs.

"Conservation information secured by youngsters during their first days of fishing will stay with them during their entire lives," declared Director Underhill. "Many local clubs and municipal officials who have heretofore sponsored one-day fishing derbies for the pleasure of the youngsters have had such an objective in mind."

WEDDED AGAIN — Actress Terry Moore and wealthy businessman Stuart W. Cramer III leave The Church of The Hills in Forest Lawn Memorial Park after their marriage. They plan a honeymoon cruise in California waters aboard Cramer's 55-foot yacht. This is Terry's third marriage and the second marriage for Cramer.

Weight Loss With New Drug Made Easier

A new drug that helps dieters help themselves to a three times greater weekly weight loss than patients not taking the pill was described in a study by a New Jersey physician.

Dr. Harold S. Feldman, of Livingston, reports that a compound, 1 phenyl 2 aminopropane alginate, or Levonor, helped overweight patients stick to their low calorie diets without causing nervous stimulation or insomnia, even when the drug was taken at night. Levonor is a prescription drug.

The study appears in the current Journal of the Medical Society of New Jersey, June, 1959.

Dr. Feldman reported on two series of patients. One group of 24 were in a "double blind" study — where neither the physician nor the patient knew whether a "placebo" (sugar pill) or the real drug was being administered to any particular patient. All 24 were given pills identical in appearance and placed on a 1030 calorie per day diet.

Out of the twelve patients on the placebos eight lost less than a pound a week while four gained weight, Dr. Feldman reports.

Of the twelve receiving the active drug, there was an average weight loss of 2.5 pounds a week, Dr. Feldman says. Levonor, besides being an appetite suppressant, made it possible for the patients to stay on the diet.

In the second group studied, 45 overweight men and women ranging in age from 15 to 61 years were placed on a low calorie diet and two or three Levonor tablets a day. "On this program weight loss has averaged 2.4 pounds per week," Dr. Feldman reports.

The doctor noted that, "None (of the patients) has complained of insomnia. This is particularly striking in view of the fact that several of the patients have taken the drug as late as 8 or 9 p.m."

Older appetite - suppressing drugs commonly used, Dr. Feldman explained, cause nervous-system stimulation, and insomnia, especially when taken late in the day.

Levonor was developed by Nordson Pharmaceutical Laboratories, Irvington, N. J.

This fiscal year the interest on the national debt will total $7.5 billion. Next fiscal year it will exceed $8.1 billion.

The instructor in a YWCA charm course was urging her students to give their escorts every chance to be gallant.

"Remain seated in the car until he has had time to step around and open the door for you," she said. Then, bowing to reality, she added, "But if he's already in the restaurant and starting to order, don't wait any longer!"

A friend of ours brought the cheerful news home to his six-year-old son that the stork had delivered a lovely baby sister. "Aw," said the lad, "I was hoping for an older brother!"

EDITORIALS

This week our country celebrates the Fourth of July. Ofttimes, throughout the year we give little thought to the significance of this important date in American history. Few, if any of us, try to recall what it meant to those brave Americans 183 years ago who stood their ground against seemingly insurmountable odds to hew out of the wilderness the great country which is America.

We have come a long way since the first Independence Day. America has provided independence to millions of people who sought refuge from one sort of intolerable suffering or another.

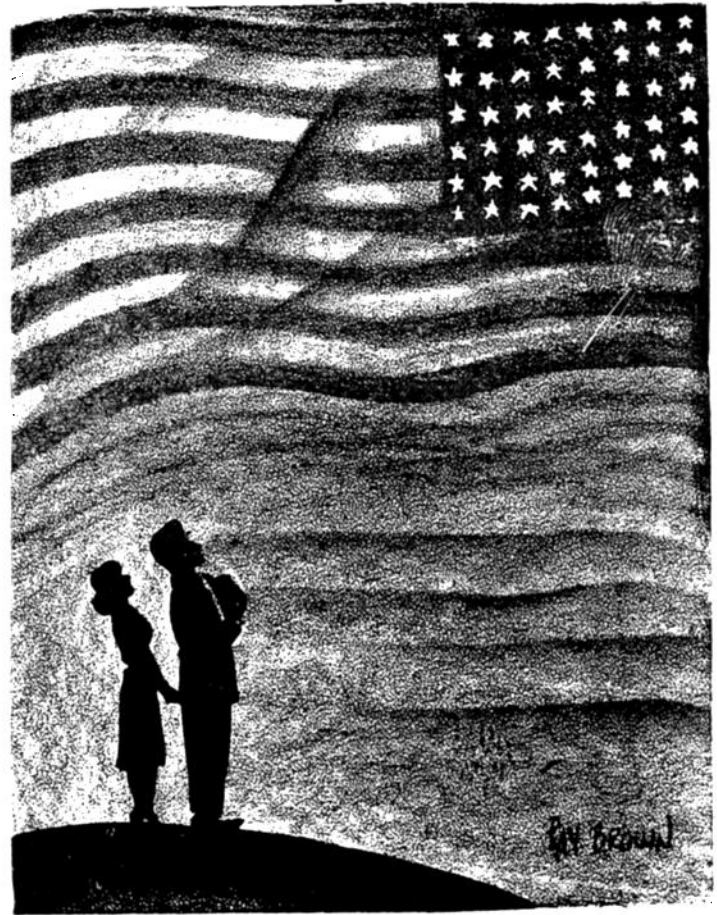

It has provided independence here at home for all of us. The freedom of speech and the many other freedoms we enjoy were all the outgrowth of the original struggle that our forefathers engaged in 183 years ago or more.

It is fitting that we engage in vacation and holiday activities over the Fourth of July weekend. It is fitting that we enjoy ourselves in our great atmosphere of freedom and economic security. However, it might be well for each of us to pause momentarily sometime during Independence Day, to give thanks that we were born free and became naturalized free Americans.

Nowhere in this wide world is there another country such as our where Independence Day means so much to so many!

Look Up To It

The Editor Speaks

VINCENT S. PARRILLO

The pressures of every day living are getting more terrific all the time. The quest for money so that we can live better, the constant search for amusement and pleasure in all sorts of activities plus the requirements of just living are adding up to crowded days, weeks and years.

It seems strange in these times of so many time-saving gadgets and the forty-hour work week that we are troubled for time to do all we wish. Certainly we don't require as much time to clean house as we did many years ago. Yet evenings and especially weekends continue to be nightmares of activity when we try to get everything done. It seems that we have more leisure time for social activities yet we cannot seem to participate in enough things.

Grandfather and grandmother were up with the cows and worked until nightfall yet their lives did not seem to be as hectic as ours. They lived full lives yet had time for shopping and party going visits to Aunt Mamie.

Our social activities, for example, are terrifically demanding. The telephone and the motor car have expanded our horizons so that we are able to know many more people intimately; and because we have the automobile we are expected to visit them more frequently.

Then there are the various types of entertainment with emphasis upon television. There are so many programs that we wish to watch that take up hours of our time. At the same time there are newspapers, magazines and books that we want to read.

Our grandparents visited the beach once or twice each summer with the feeling of great adventure and accomplishment. For us with our cars the beach is only two hours away so that we feel left out if we do not go many times during the summer.

As a result, nervous breakdowns increase as the pressure mounts. Many of us will have to be on guard against being numbered among the victims.

Heavy Fines Imposed For Oyster Dredging

Fines totaling $400 and costs for illegal dredging of oyster beds have been imposed on Eugene Downs of Waretown, and Louis Sokolich of Lanoka Harbor after their appeals were denied by Judge John J. Ewart of Toms River.

Christopher H. Riley, director of the Division of Shell Fisheries in the State Department of Conservation says the pair were apprehended in February by Shell Fish Division Protector Richard Marshall of Parkertown, and Shell Fish Protectors Jennings Stackhouse of Barnegat and Weldon Parker of Parkertown.

Downs and Sokolich were charged with illegal dredging of oysters on natural beds and on leased grounds in Barnegat Bay. Each man was fined $100 on each of the two counts when their cases were heard by Magistrate Walter Wheeler of Barnegat. Appeals were heard and denied by Judge Ewart early this month.

Hackensack Meadows Bedrock Map Available

Engineers, well drillers, and others interested in the Hackensack meadows may now obtain the first "Bedrock Map" of the area, prepared by the New Jersey Department of Conservation, and offered at $2 per copy.

The twenty-six page booklet contains information on kinds of soil found in test borings at specified depths and locations, and is based on reports from well drillers, private and public agencies, and the State Bureau of Geology and Topography in the Conservation Department. The map indicates elevations at bedrock at the bottom of each drill hole.

Dr. Kemble S. Widmer, State Geologist, says the map and sections show only a few of the nearly 1,000 well logs and test borings which have been gathered by the State Bureau and from cooperating individuals and organizations.

The original study already has proved so helpful that it has been expanded and is continuing in the Valley of the Hackensack throughout an area from Spark Hill, N. Y., south through New Jersey to Port Ivory on Staten Island. As additional information is obtained, it will be made available to industries, construction companies and others requesting it.

Copies at $2 each can be obtained from State Bureau of Geology, Dept. of Conservation and Economic Development, Trenton 25, N. J.

HALEDON'S FIRST MAYOR HONORED — A posthumous award, honoring the late Edgar B. Lupton, Haledon's first mayor and first chief, is presented to Mrs. Sophie Lupton by Fire Chief Peter Van der Jagt. Assistant Fire Chief, Bruno Chioccarelli stands by. The fire department had named Mr. Lupton grand marshal of their Memorial Day parade in memory of his son, Thomas who died of wounds received in World War I. However, Mr. Lupton was stricken and died at the Paterson General Hospital on the evening of May 30.

Change In Social Security Provides For Parttime Workers Aged 65

A change in the social security law effective with 1959 permits perment to a beneficiary for any month in which he does not earn wages in excess of $100.00 according to Stanley J. Fioresi, manager of the Paterson social security office. Payments for such months may be made regardless of total wages earned for the year.

This provision does not apply to the beneficiary whose earnings are derived entirely from the operation of a trade or business, since his earnings cannot be determined on a monthly basis. However, according to Fioresi, a beneficiary who is self-employed may receive benefits for any month in which he is not active in his trade or business. Of course, if the beneficiary's earnings from wages or self-employment income or a combination of both does not exceed $1,200.00, he may receive benefit payments for all months of the year. Those beneficiaries who work throughout the year and whose earnings are in excess of $1,200.00 in the year may receive one or more monthly payments if their total earnings do not exceed $2,080. In the case of earnings in excess of $1,200.00 one month's benefit is not payable for each $80.00 or fraction of $80.00 by which the total earnings exceed $1,200.00. For example, if the beneficiary's total earnings for the year are $1,280.00, he will lose one month's benefit. If his earnings are over $1,280.00 but not more than $1,360.00, he will lose two month's benefits.

A beneficiary who is 72 years of age or over may receive benefit payments for all months effective with the month he reaches age 72, regardless of the amount of his earnings. However, in determining if he is entitled to any benefits for months in the year prior to the month in which he reaches age 72, total earnings for the year must be considered.

Another change in the law provides that benefit payments may now be made to wives and children of disabled workers who are getting monthly payments. Similar payments are payable to dependent husbands if the wife qualifies as a disabled worker and is getting monthly benefit checks.

Those people having further questions regarding the retirement provisions of the social security law should contact their nearest social security office for further information. The Paterson district office is located at 245 Market Street, Paterson, N. J.

Mental Health Drive Nearing Completion

Mental Health Fund contributions now total $282,350 in the 1959 drive for the New Jersey Association for Mental Health, according to State Chairman, Walter Reade, Jr., of Red Bank.

He said this total is 75 per cent of the State's $375,000 goal and $62,000 more than the last report of June 6. Last year's final total was 0347,000, a 23 per cent increase.

"If every one of our more than 400 County and Community chairmen and their 35,000 volunteer solicitors will do a good campaign follow-up, I am confident we can achieve our goal and possibly exceed it," he stated. "Progress against our number one health menace is at stake."

Mr. Reade appealed to the several thousand Bell Ringer residential workers who still have their collection kits to return them to the Mental Health Association office. In Bergen, Essex, Hudson, Mercer, and Middlesex counties, the kits may be dropped off at any drug store.

The State Chairman praised five counties that have already exceeded last year's final total: Burlington $11,453, a 50 per cent increase; Ocean $5,700, almost 300 per cent increase; and Passaic $31,136, 25 per cent increase; Hudson at $18,000 and Essex at $84,000 are slightly over last year's final totals.

The money will bring new hope to many residents of the state.

MRS. ALBERT CATANIA

St. Leo's R. C. Church was the setting of the double ring wedding ceremony of Miss Carole Howard of 176 Washington Avenue, East Paterson, to Albert Catania, son of Mrs. Salvatore Catania, 714 Boulevard, East Paterson, and the late Mr. Catania. A reception followed at the Brown Jug. Mrs. Catania is a beautician with Vi's Beauty Salon and her husband, also a beautician, is with Sally's Beauty Salon of Totowa as a hair stylist. The couple went on a wedding trip to Bermuda.

THAT'S A FACT

PRETZEL

WHEN EMPEROR CHARLEMAGNE ORDERED THE CONQUERED HEATHEN SAXONS TO BAKE THE SIGN OF THE CROSS INTO THEIR BREAD - THE SIGN TOOK THE FORM OF THE PRETZEL! THIS SAME FORM HAS LASTED FOR ELEVEN CENTURIES!

LAUNCHING PAD!

WANT TO LAUNCH YOUR OWN FUTURE? START INVESTING IN U.S. SAVINGS BONDS! YOU ACCUMULATE SAVINGS THAT WILL HELP SECURE YOUR OWN FUTURE AS WELL AS THE FUTURE OF YOUR COUNTRY!

IMPORT

KILTS ARE NOT OF SCOTTISH ORIGIN! THEY WERE FIRST INTRODUCED INTO SCOTLAND IN 1745, BY A FRENCH TAILOR!!

ANIMAL... VEGETABLE... OR MINERAL?

ONCE THOUGHT TO BE A WORM HOUSE, THE SPONGE IS ACTUALLY THE SKELETON OF AN ANIMAL!

$4,000 OR BUST?

WELL, YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BUST" TO SAVE THIS AMOUNT! ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS INVEST $7.50 PER WEEK FOR 9 YEARS IN U.S. SAVINGS BONDS. AND YOU'LL HAVE SET ASIDE $4,277.

LIGHT FOR SALE

ON A UNIQUE CONTRACT, THE OWNER OF A FIVE STORY BUILDING AGREED NOT TO BUILD ANY HIGHER, AND SO DEPRIVE THE OCCUPANTS OF AN ADJACENT SKYSCRAPER OF DAYLIGHT. THIS "DAYLIGHT RENT" AVERAGES ABOUT $13,000 PER YEAR FOR 30 YEARS.

U. S. food chains have announced plans for an all-out producer-consumer campaign to move a record-breaking production of eggs into consumption. Some 12,000 stores will participate, and the merchandising effort will peak during two periods — June 4 to June 13, and July 9 to July 18.

At least 35 species or subspecies of poisonous snakes are known in the U. S. Bites are estimated at 3,000 a year, but the death rate is low — 10 to 30 a year. It is pointed out, however, that the hazards may increase as camping and other outdoor activities become more popular.

New Jersey Starts Small Business Research

New Jersey, this week, officially launched a research program designed to aid every small businessman in the State.

Following a meeting in the office of Salvatore A. Bontempo, Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, professors from three New Jersey universities, State officials, and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and the New Jersey Manufacturers Association, discussed their plans for a $40,000 grant made last week by the federal Small Business Administration.

The project is intended to deal with the problems of manufacturers, distributors, retailers, and service enterprises within the small business sector of the State's economy and to bring findings together in a coordinated report.

Director of the overall project is Joel H. Sterns, assistant to Commissioner Bontempo. The study is broken down into four parts which will be integrated into one final report.

The State, in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce and the New Jersey Manufacturers Association, will conduct a series of intensive interviews with 250 representative business firms. Working on this phase will be Mr. Emil Sadloch of Garfield, and Professors Paul Edwards and William Gerish of Rutgers University.

Seton Hall University, under the supervision of William Doerflinger, Dean of the School of Business Administration, will analyze the financial problem of New Jersey's small distributors.

Fairleigh Dickinson University will study the changing patterns of retail business, with Harold Feldman, Dean of its business school, acting as director.

Rutgers University will survey the financing problems of small manufacturers in New Jersey, with the aim of determining their financing needs and the extent to which they are met. Professors Seymour Friedland, William Dymaza, and Thomas Moranian are working on this phase.

Governor Robert B. Meynor will shortly appoint an advisory committee on Small Business to advise on this project and to plan programs for the benefit of small businesses in New Jersey.

Project Director Sterns indicated that one of the principle purposes of this year's study — "will be to define the problems we have to solve in the coming years." He sets the target date for completion of the project as February 1, 1960, and hopes to have the project request for next year formulated by this October.

"In most states, the research funds have gone to a single university, but New Jersey chose to administer the program through the Department of Conservation and Economic Development, so that it would stimulate more interest and provide for broader participation."

New Jersey is one of ten states to receive the grant. It is given under the provisions of the Small Business Act of 1958, which provides for $40,000 grants in each State for research studies for up to fifteen years. This means, pending the approval of the Small Business Administration each year, more than $500,000 will be spent in New Jersey to aid small business between now and 1973.

LOVE or else!

By RICHARD BANKS

Grampa Wiskett cajoled his lanky 97 years in a leisurely pace along the dark sidewalk. Never had been one to hurry, and didn't aim to start in now. If a man knew exactly what he was about, by Joe, he didn't have to whistle his britches getting at it.

It was a clear summer night and the heavy plains' heat felt just about right to old bones. It would have been cozier at home in bed, but when he'd heard Lacey begin the quarrel with Amy Pollard over the phone right after supper, he'd known then it would be pushing 10 p.m. before he hit the hay. Because this thing had to be settled, and soon. Time was short.

He came to the ancient Richmond home and stood for a moment in front, catching up on his breathing. The screen door was slightly ajar and he didn't bother knocking. He just walked in.

Lacey sat in an old wing chair looking stormy.

"Evening, Amy," Grandpa Wiskett said, ignoring his great grandson. "Evening, Lucy." Amy was prettily flushed, sitting stiff and angry on the sofa. Amy was 20 and fully aware that she'd never be 20 again. Across the room, in a high-backed chair, sat Lucy Richmond, parchment and old lace, with the crisp body and pinched cheeks of the nonagenarian.

Lucy Richmond and Henry Wiskett were the last remnants of a generation which had built up this small Indiana town after the Civil War.

Grampa Wiskett said: "Where's your parents, Amy?"

"The movies," replied the girl.

Young Lacey Wiskett rolled his eyes at her and jumped to his feet. "Amy, do we have to have an audience? — For gosh sakes, Grampa, seems you'd let a fellow settle his own problems . . ."

"Lacey!" Lucy Richmond's high, quavery voice was imperious.

Grampa Wiskett's rheumy old eyes shot a gleam at Grandma Richmond. Sort of sly. "I come on a special kind of visit," he said.

"Grampa, for gosh sakes!" Lacey cried.

Amy said, "Shhh!" in a way which meant exactly that. Lacey subsided miserably into his chair.

"The way I see it," Grampa Wiskett began, "either you two are going to get married, or you ain't. It's so dad-gummed simple, I can't figger why all the argying."

"Nor me," said Lucy Richmond, primly but decidedly. Grampa Wiskett felt easier; he had been a mite afraid she wouldn't help!

"First thing it was the kind of a house you wanted," said Grampa. "Always something. Body'd think you enjoyed it—fighting and argying. It's got to stop."

"Two three months now, I've had my wedding suit and ready. But dub take it! Here you are, off again. I'm wore out. If I ever live to see a hundred it'll be pure luck."

Lucy Richmond said, "Henry!" She was the same age.

"It's got to be settled . . . The way I see it, if going off to the army is the stumbling block now, these kids are just plumb daft."

Lacey whipped out of his chair. "I won't have everybody saying I married Amy to keep from going," he shouted.

"Fiddle-faddle," the great grandfather declared. "You already been drafted, ain't you? Everybody knows that. Leaving next week, ain't you?"

Lacey was pacing angrily. "All I said was why not wait until my time is done? Amy fared right up and said I didn't love her."

"All I said was," Amy put it acidly, "you couldn't love me much if you let a little thing like an army stop you from marrying me." The two young people glared at each other.

Grampa Wiskett said fretfully, "Looks like I'll just naturally have to tell 'em, Lucy."

"Tell them?"

He sat down and now he put his thin hands on one bony leg and helped it to cross the other. "It was in the summer of '61," he said with a sigh. "I was courting your great-grandma, Lacey. She was a little giggly, as I look back. But a pretty little thing I got the bug to go to war. Not just a training camp, son. Real war."

"She didn't giggle," Lucy said pertly.

Grampa Wiskett paid no attention. "I was all set to go, leaving your great-grandpa practically at the pulpit, when what happened but her papa routs me out with a muzzle loader, day before I was to leave. I went to war good and married, never fear. And never repented it a single day."

Lacey was saying, "I don't see what that has to do with—" when Grampa suddenly lurched to his feet, his hand clawing at a hip pocket. Amy and Lucy Richmond shrieked as he tugged a ponderous old revolver out.

He pointed it directly at Lacey.

"Don't be an old fool, Henry!" Lucy Richmond said.

"Couldn't find a muzzle loader," the old man said grimly, "or I'd a made history letter-perfect, by Joe! But I'm serving fair warning to you two kids. Either you're married before Lacey goes off to camp, or I'll drill him."

Amy tried to laugh but Grampa's eyes showed flinty behind their water. "Lacey!" she exclaimed. "I believe he means it . . ."

Lacey went swiftly to her. "He's crazy, darling. Don't be frightened. Let's beat it."

The sight of the gun, the abrupt danger to Lacey had shown Amy what might happen in the space of two years. The army was not a health resort. "But he's so right, Lacey," she whispered as they went out of the room. "Don't you see?"

Grampa Wiskett stood, as motionless as his 97 years would let him, until the hum of Lacey's car had faded off down the street. Then he sighed and put away the revolver.

"Couldn't let him make the same mistake I did," he said. "They'll get married now. Just needed a good fancy prod."

Lucy Richmond laid her transparent hands delicately in her lap. She said sternly, "You always were the worst liar in town, Henry."

He turned his old eyes on her and for a slow moment they looked at each other. It was a gentle look, almost-forgotten longing so clouded by the tedious years that it was hardly noticeable.

Lucy Richmond was the first to stir herself. She said crossly

"I didn't giggle, you old coot."

"Now, now," Grampa Wiskett said. "It's all long gone, Lucy. Sometimes I've wished your papa HAD caught me that day. When I got back from the war and found you'd married Brad Richmond, I lost something I don't think I ever found again." He eased himself cautiously into a chair and an irascible look edged through the faint wistfulness of his face.

But I'll stick to my guns, woman," he said. "You giggled!"

CONFEDERATE HIGH TIDE

The roar of cannon announced the beginning of the third day of battle as the dawn came up over the village of Gettysburg in southern Pennsylvania on the morning of July 3, 1863. More than 160,000 men of General Robert E. Lee's Confederate army and General Gordon Meade's Union army had been locked in terrific battle here for two days. Thousands of brave men had fallen over the hills and valleys surrounding Gettysburg without any advantage gained by either side.

Now at daylight of the third day the Union cannon opened fire on Culp's Hill, lost the day before. After four hours of bombardment the hill was recaptured. The Union lines were now back to their original position, with their strong center on Cemetery Ridge, opposite the Confederate center on Seminary Ridge.

After the recapture of Culp's Hill on the morning of July 3 a deep quiet came over the battlefield. It was like the calm before a storm. At one o'clock in the afternoon the silence was suddenly broken by an awful bombardment from the 150 cannon that Lee had massed on Seminary Ridge. The whole crest of the ridge seemed to be on fire with the heaviest cannonading ever known on the American continent. The Union cannon on Cemetery Ridge roared back. The hills seemed to be shaking.

The Confederate cannon stopped firing after two hours, and fifteen thousand picked fresh troops who had been assembled under cover of the woods near Seminary Ridge, charged out across the mile wide open field toward the Union lines on Cemetery Ridge. They were commanded by handsome, dashing General George Pickett.

General James Longstreet, to whose corps these picked men belonged, had opposed the attack, believing it would mean only useless slaughter. But Lee overruled him. It is said that when Pickett asked final permission before beginning the charge, Longstreet could not speak. He only nodded his head and burst into tears.

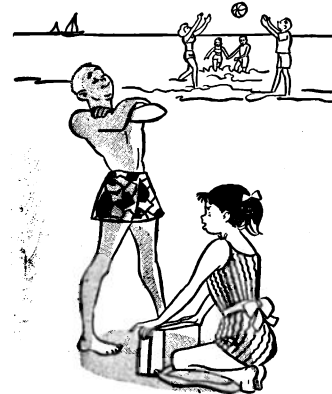

For half the distance across the open field the long column of Pickett's men marched gaily with flags flying and bayonets glittering in the sunshine. Then the Union cannon opened up and tore the advancing ranks with exploding shells. The gray lines reformed and swept on leaving the dead and wounded behind.

Within rifle range the Union infantry poured in a deadly fire. The thinning gray ranks returned volley after volley and quickened their pace. They rushed up to the mouths of the cannon, to the stone wall where the Union Infantry crouched and fired. One of the Confederate leaders, General Armistead, leaped upon the wall, waving his hat on a sword. But now there were too few gray figures to follow him. Armistead was shot down and the rest of the Confederates who reached the stone wall, battling like tigers, were halted in a swirl of savage hand-to-hand fighting. It was the end of the charge.

Pickett's men had gone into a death trap. Great numbers of them fell on the field, some were captured, and the beaten and tired survivors straggled back to their lines on Seminary Ridge. The battle of Gettysburg was over. Here had come the Confederate high tide. And, as the pitiful remnants of Pickett's brave men fell back across the bloody field, the tide of the Confederate cause receded with them, forever.
