The Man from Equitable asks—

Will you leave your family a home
—or a mortgage?

THE ODDS that you will die before you pay off your mortgage are 16 times greater than the chance your house will catch fire. Yet, most prudent families wouldn't think of being without fire insurance. Why be without mortgage insurance?

Equitable's remarkable mortgage repayment insurance plan protects your family against forced sale... loss of savings... or loss of home. Costs are low for this basic protection. For full information call...

ON THE COVER

Sometimes it requires time away from our usual routine to see what is going on around us. Labor Day is one such day. It is during this pause that we take note of the new buildings rising in our town, the new items reaching our store counters, the thousands of products and services we accept as commonplace. All these are signposts saying, "Men At Work".

'MICHAEL SHAYNE' — The full-hour, filmed mystery series — based on the detective novels of Brett Halliday and starring Richard Denning in the title role of the dangerous-living Shayne premieres as an NBC-TV Network Friday night entry. Co-stars of the new "Michael Shayne" series include Patricia Donahue (above), as Shayne's secretary, Lucy; Jerry Paris, Herbert Rudley and Gary Clarke. Novelist Halliday will be story consultant for the series.

'OMNIBUS' — This pioneer full-hour TV series of combined "quality" and "mass" appeal returns to the NBC-TV Network's Sunday schedule with Alistair Cooke in his customary role as host. The critically-acclaimed, prize-winning series has demonstrated in its seven-year history that programs of uncompromising high quality on a wide variety of subjects can attract, entertain and enlighten many millions of viewers. Robert Saudek is the producer of the hour-long programs.

'DEPUTY' — Returning for a second season of their half-hour, Saturday night Western-adventure series on the NBC-TV Network are Henry Fonda as Chief Marshal Simon Fry and Allen Case as his sharpshooting deputy, Clay McCord. Fonda, as the dedicated officer of the Southwest Arizona Territory, will star in 13 of 39 "Deputy" episodes this season and in key scenes of all others, more than double the number of episodes in which he starred during 1959-60. William Fry is executive producer.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Hot Weather Driving

Wise women keep the fun in summer driving by remembering these tips on tires, stalling and overheating.

Keep tires properly inflated. Check them before you start in the morning. Don't underinflate. Have tires checked when you stop for gasoline during a long, hot drive. If you do have a blowout (rare nowadays) stay calm, grasp the wheel firmly, pump the brakes gently.

On very hot days, a vapor lock may make the engine stall. Vapor lock is only temporary. Get off the road, lift the hood to aid air circulation and wait a few minutes.

To prevent overheating, make sure the radiator is clean inside and out and the fan belt is in good condition and tight enough to drive the water pump. If you get stuck in a jam, don't turn off the engine. Speed it up a little every minute or two for about ten seconds.

If the radiator boils, loosen the cap to release steam and pressure. Then remove the cap and add water slowly. And keep the engine running.

Chances are, you won't have any of these problems, but it's smart to be prepared.

JERSEY FACTS

A total of all construction contracts awarded in New Jersey from January to September of 1959 amounted to $1,056,695,000, a gain of 11.8 per cent over the same period in 1958. This was reported in the new monthly publication, The New Jersey Economic Review, prepared by the Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

* * *

An all-time record of 10,822 deer were legally taken in New Jersey during the 1959 open deer season. The Division of Fish and Game reported that 3,563 deer were reported taken during the special three-day antlerless season in December.

Boating accidents in New Jersey jumped from 41 in 1948 to 148 for the year 1959, according to a recent report. Fatal accidents doubled during the 1959 boating season.

CLASH IN WEST — Barry Sullivan (left) and Clu Gulager will co-star in the new NBC-TV series, "Tall Man," Saturday evenings starting Sept. 10. Sullivan plays lawman Pat F. Garrett and Gulager plays Billy the Kid. The two are friends who gradually drift apart on opposite sides of the law.

FACE OF PANIC — George Grizzard (above) stars as a junior executive who commits blunders that project him into a tragedy in "The Twisted Image," premiere drama on the NBC-TV Network's full-hour Tuesday night "Thriller" series Sept. 13. E. J. Karloff is host of the series. Hubbell Robinson is executive producer. Co-starred with Grizzard on the "Thriller" premiere are Natalie Trundy, Leslie Nielsen and Diane Foster.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Woman's vanity has been blamed for many things, often unjustly, but when a woman gets behind the wheel of a car, one aspect of vanity can be decidedly dangerous.

Every woman knows that clothes are important to her looks and personality. But they can make her a good or bad driver, too.

High fashion may dictate spike heels for beauty, but safety says these long spikes can cause serious trouble in an automobile if they catch under the accelerator or brake pedals.

Dainty gloves may help create a picture of loveliness, but a driver needs good, substantial gloves to get a firm grip on the wheel.

A picture hat or filmy veil may be appropriate for most social occasions, but they may obstruct the driver's all-important view of the road ahead.

For safety behind the wheel, a woman's driving outfit should be comfortable and non-restricting, regardless of fashion, say safety experts. So, what is lady to do if she wishes to appear fashionable, yet must drive? She can't go to a party dressed as if she were going to the corner supermarket.

The simplest answer to this is a driving wardrobe, kept conveniently in the car. All it requires is a pair of flat, practical shoes, a pair of driving gloves and a small hat or scarf. These can be stored, ready for instant use, in the pockets of a cloth shoe rack attached firmly to the back of the front seat.

Then, when a social engagement is in the offing, a lady can enter her car, kick off her spiked heels, lay her picture hat and white gloves on the front seat and make a quick change into comfortable driving gear. When she arrives safely at her destination, another quick change prepares her to be the belle of the ball.

By doing this, a woman will find that driving is much easier, since she doesn't have to worry about her party finery and can concentrate on the road. Most important, her family won't have to worry about losing her.

Pioneers Bring League Football Back to Town

BOB HARRELL

Making a pro football project click in any company lower than the stratospheric heights of the major leagues, is no small accomplishment. In fact, even in such company, conditions can assume long-shot proportions and take on the aspect of a long, tortuous climb uphill. The American League teams are due to make that discovery in this first season of fighting for the customer's dollars, against the solidly-entrenched National League.

Just the same, the pioneer spirit exists—and there always will be hardy, intrepid souls willing to take on the long odds. In Paterson, for example, the spirit has taken on a capitol first-letter, producing the Pioneers who are attempting the difficult assignment of bringing back pro football to town after an absence of ten years, it having been that long since the Paterson Panthers were operating here.

Now, a group of determined young men have assembled the team named the Pioneers and entered same in the Eastern Football Conference, which comprises squads from the states of New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania. A formidable schedule has been lined up, the season officially launched with an exhibition program and now the actions 'for the chips' is under way. The circuit could provide some extremely capable and entertaining football entertainment and the fans in this section are hopeful that the action will be brisk and skilled.

Certainly, the men in back of the Pioneers are determined to provide that sort of action. Bill Caruso, a former high school and semi-pro gridder who has been a resident of Passaic in recent seasons, is the general manager of the team; aided by Frank Forresta, Ted Liva, Lloyd Wolfe, and coaches Joe Cipolla and Russ Carroccio to direct the team on the field. All of them have been hard at work on the project and are determined to make it click in solid fashion.

Coach Cipolla was pleased with the Pioneers' pre-league performance and believes his team will be a strong threat for league honors. The squad has been practicing hard and engaging in energetic preparations for the rigors ahead, working out on a five-day-a-week grind. Richie Zurichin and Al Grecco have been handling the quarterback chores and Bill Mosca and Bob Conlon have been taking care of the pass-catching assignments.

Bob "Tootie" Harrell, a former East-side High School standout, also has been a key figure in the early backfield plans for the Pioneers. So has Ralph Vigorito, another former scholastic ace. Among the other players on the Paterson squad are Richard Dalatri, huge tackle who starred for Ridgewood High and North Carolina State College; Art Ackerman, 260-pound tackle who played for Paterson Eastside High and Wake Forest College, as well as on his service team; Jack Cafaro, rugged center who performed for Wagner College; Reggie Powe, ex-Villanova backfield flash; Bill Taylor who came off Paterson fields; Ray Wolak, 220-pound center from Passaic and many others.

Zurichin was a click at Passaic High School and Elon College in North Carolina where he played football and basketball. He went on to Seton Hall University, now at 26, is turning to the pro game where he promises to be helpful as a reliable back and pin-point passer, with exceptional kicking ability and deceptive ball-handling.

Cipolla, head coach of the Pioneers, played high school football and then performed on the grid varsity for the University of Utah, where he was chosen for the All-Skyline Conference team as defensive end in his senior year. He coached a high school team in Iadho and currently is assistant coach at Lyndhurst High. His line coach, Russ Carroccio, is a native of Passaic and starred at tackle, being elected for all-state honors and then went on to the University of Virginia where he played three years of varsity football. Later he played for the New York Giants.

As September action comes into reach, the Pioneers are pointing for a night game with Plainfield on Friday, the 16th and then a Sunday game at Belleville. Subsequent grid play will feature competition opposing Stamford, Stratford, Allentown, Lodi, Port Chester, and Mount Vernon among others. It looms as an extremely busy season for the Pioneers.

Busy and ambitious — but football fans here are pulling for them to go all the way. They have the desire and the drive. Now, they need help from all the other factors, especially the intangibles.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF COLOR

Thrilling color! It's half the fun of a color-TV program, the beauty of a landscape — and an amazingly important factor in determining how we feel and what we buy.

Right now, are the walls around you painted blue or green? If they are, according to a psychological study made at Johns Hopkins University, then you are probably more calm and relaxed than you would be if, the walls were a neutral color such as gray. The room seems larger than it actually is, for things that are blue and green tend to recede into the background, appearing farther away than they actually are.

Warm colors such as red, yellow and orange, on the other hand, tend to stimulate you, according to the Johns Hopkins study, and to seem closer than they really are.

A taste for color can also be cultivated. Auto makers proved this in the past decade, to the point where a black car has become almost a rarity in this country.

Maybe even more significantly, the same thing seems to be happening with a basic, near-universal ingredient of the home — the telephone. Since their introduction some five years ago, more than ten million color phones have been installed in American homes and offices. And a new telephone survey shows that close to 40 per cent of all telephones being installed in homes today are colorful conversation pieces.

Which phone colors are people choosing for their homes? The leader by an overwhelming margin is white. Next come beige and pink. The other shades, roughly in order of preference, are ivory, yellow, green, blue, gray and red.

The unquestioned preference for white seems based in several factors. For one thing, white, with its fortunate penchant for "going well with furnishings," has emerged as an extremely popular decorator shade. Also, white can be a very dramatic color note in a room, and let's face it, is as far from a black phone as one can get. In addition, there seems to be a special luxury connotation to a white telephone, perhaps stemming from the specially-painted white phones that were often associated with silken movie and stage sirens of the thirties.

Color preference tells a lot about a person. Do you favor the stimulating, advancing colors? Then the chances are you're an extrovert — or someone who wishes he were more outgoing. Quiet, restrained folk prefer cool shades of blue and green. And for some unexplained reason, beige, slate blue, ivory and other subtle hues obtained by mixing colors tend to be popular with executives and those of better-than-average educational background.

Equally intriguing are other unanswered hue-done-its. Why, for instance, should dark blue symbolize steadfastness to those of Western European descent . . . trouble to the Cherokee Indians . . . and death to the Chinese? Why does a blue light make people feel that time is passing more quickly . . . yet actually retard the growth of plants?

Regardless of personal color preferences, nearly everyone is a color conservative in the sense of expecting — and sometimes demanding — to see certain colors in certain places. Many people would look with a jaundiced eye, for example, on a doctor who painted his walls bright orange; that flaming hue wouldn't square with the cool, reassuring competence we expect from the medical profession.

Market researchers have unearthed some equally colorful findings that help explain why you buy as you do in supermarkets and department stores. Brown will sell coffee, baked beans or tobacco, but it won't do a thing for hardware, which moves fastest against a blue backdrop.

On a margarine package, a cake of blue ice meant mood indigo for the manufacturer, who found his customers getting colder every day. Market researchers found the reason: the blue ice started the shopper on the wrong train of thought — blue ice . . . lifeless . . . unnatural . . . synthetic! A new drawing of the margarine bar against a background of colorful flowers evoked the more positive associations of life, health, nature — and sent sales shooting up.

Health as well as wealth is affected by color. Mental hospitals are experimenting with color therapy, soothing hysterical patients with blue, stimulating the depressed with yellow and igniting a spark of life in the extremely withdrawn patient by using red and orange.

A different kind of color therapy was practiced by primitive medicos. Their method: banish a disease with an object of the same color. Russians used to fasten nine skeins of red wool around a child's neck to ward off scarlet fever. The ancients thought jaundice could be cured by gazing at a bird called a stone curlew, whose bright yellow eye would surely "draw off" the disease. Among the ancient Hindus, and in many modern African tribes, rainmakers would try to lure black rain clouds by dressing in black, eating burned-black food, and sacrificing black cattle!

One of the oddest aspects of color psychology is the way different nations look at color. White, not black, was the color of mourning in ancient Rome and even in modern China. Red meant heaven to the ancient Chinese, goblins to the neighboring Tibetans. Blue is hated by an Armenian tribe of nomads — their worst curse is "May you die in blue garments!"

The Cherokees symbolized not only qualities but directions with color. Red was east and success; blue, north and trouble; black, west and death; white, south and happiness.

See you southeast — and have a colorful trip!

THE U.N. AND THE CONGO

The United Nations, by its very nature, has had implacable opponents as well as enthusiastic partisans. And even its best friends, on many an occasion, have found it depressingly ineffectual. This, in part at least, results from the excessively high hopes that were held out for it when it was founded just after the war. In those days, few could anticipate the tremendous world conflicts that have developed. In any event, the influences and votes of the Free World and the Communist world have often cancelled each other out, leaving the UN powerless to do much of anything save to serve as a debating forum.

But a change seems to be taking place. In the words of Walter Lippmann, "Anyone who thinks that the United Nations is a mere talking machine and not much practical use should take a good look at the situation in the Congo. He will find that situation is very bad and that the future of the Congo Republic is sure to be full of great trouble. But he will also find that without the UN . . . the situation would be worse than very bad. It would be desperate and hopeless."

The riots in the Congo — with their murders and rapes, and an apparently complete breakdown of the government of this brand-new republic — have horrified the Western world. They stem, of course, from a long-held hatred of Europeans who, legions of Africans believe, have been cruel exploiters. But there is more to it than that. No country was ever more poorly prepared for independence than the Congo. It is almost totally without native technicians, industrial administrators, or a civil service. Educational standards are next to non-existent. When the Belgians moved out, there was nothing left to keep the country running and to maintain order.

In an older age, Mr. Lippmann goes on to say, the situation would have been met in the imperialist manner. The great powers would have moved in, restored order, and probably partitioned this large and potentially rich country among themselves. But in the modern world, this would be intolerable — because the Soviet Union and the United States would have been among the intervenors, and the dangers to the world which such a situation would create need no description.

Thus, to quote him again, "In this situation the United Nations would have to be invented if it did not already exist." The UN force is largely made up of elements from small and more or less neutral states, including African states. It was requested by the Congolese government. The great powers contribute only supplies, not troops. And the UN has the technical and other resources which the Congo so desperately needs if chaos is to be prevented.

Mr. Lippmann writes at the end: "This UN enterprise is the most advanced and the most sophisticated experiment in international cooperation ever attempted . . . No one can say that the experiment will succeed. But there is no doubt that it deserves to succeed."

The Strength Of A Nation

The Editor Speaks

You should see my mail — or any columnist's mail. If I write anything about drink or religion or anything with which a reader doesn't agree, right away he sits down and writes me a letter. (Although most of the insulting letters come from women.)

Just the other day, for instance, a woman who had written me many letters of praise objected to something I had written. She did not just tell me that she objected. She signed herself "Yours very nauseated." The whole letter was a mass of abuse. Every other columnist has had the same experience.

I wonder why it is that so many people think you are a great guy when you agree with them but completely lose their balance when your opinion differs from theirs.

Everything in life is give and take. We may not agree with a person face to face, we argue with him if our opinions vary. However, too many of us forget the ordinary rules of courtesy when we write — or when we talk behind a person's back.

And, whenever such invective is used, it stands out in such a bad light that all the originator of the invective had to do is to read the newspapers the next day to see what a fool he has made of himself.

The same rule that applies to correspondence should also prevail when it comes to gossip. It is mean and cowardly to say anything behind a person's back that one would not say to his face.

The man or woman about whom gossip is spread cannot defend himself. The spreader of gossip is worse than a thief.

"Take away my good name and you take away my life."

SECURITY BENEFICIARIES CAN NOW DRAW "RETIRED BY THE MONTH" ADDED BENEFITS

A new kind of retirement has been developing in the Paterson area in the past few years because of the more flexible rules now in the Social Security Act. Andrew J. Gessner, Manager of the Paterson office, pointed out that the move to "retirement by the month" has brought new gains to beneficiaries under Federal old-age insurance. It also helps the local economy by making available, much more than under the old rules, the productive capacity of older workers.

A generation ago, retirement was thought of as a paramount condition, almost as final as death. Only rarely did an individual "come out of retirement". Now, social security rules measure, first, whether a retiree is "retired" for the entire year — the $1200 test — and then, if he earned over $1200 and so can't be counted as retired for the whole year, they measure whether he can be counted as "retired" for each separate month of the year. If in any one month he neither earns over $100 working for others nor works in a business of his own, he is "retired" for that month and his old-age benefit is due him for that month.

That is how many social security beneficiaries earn well over $1200 during the year, for work in part of the year, and still draw benefits for the other months of the year. They're simply collecting for the months in which they were "retired by the month." For them, retirement is a convenient, adjustable state which they pick up and put aside readily, perhaps several times in one year.

In all probability, Gessner said, a good many other workers of retirement age in this locality who haven't applied for benefits could now apply and draw for one or more months each year — because they are "retired by the month". To look into this, they should contact the local social security office at 245 Market Street, Paterson.

Joelson Names Comm. Badagliacca

Charles S. Joelson, Democratic Candidate for Congress from the Eighth Congressional District has announced the appointment of Comm. Adolph Badagliacca of Hawthorne as his Hawthorne Campaign Coordinator.

Comsr. Badagliacca is a Trustee of the Children's Shelter of Passaic County, Vice-Chairman of the Passaic County Purchasing Board, and President of the Passaic County Young Democratic Club of New Jersey. He is President of Park-Madison Incorporated of Paterson.

He lives with his wife, the former Frances Casbarro, and their two daughters at 114 Lafayette Avenue, in the borough of Hawthorne.

Comsr. Badagliacca is also a member of the Paterson Dux Club, Italian Circle of Paterson, the Hawthorne Columbus Club, the Hawthorne Democratic Club, and the Passaic County Democratic League.

Joelson stated that he is "pleased to have the energy and ability of Adolph Badagliacca working for me and the rest of the Democratic ticket in the Borough of Hawthorne. I know he will assist Democratic leaders Carroll Stark and Lester Kolb in their constant efforts to make the Democratic party a vital factor in Hawthorne."

HUNTING SEASON IN N. J. BEGINS SEPT. 1st

Fall hunting seasons in New Jersey will start on September 1 on the marshlands of the State.

The Division of Fish and Game, New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, announced today that clapper rail will be available to the hunter on the salt marshes particularly in southern New Jersey. The season, which closes on November 9, will offer the first fall opportunity for the harvest of game birds, many of which are produced in New Jersey.

The initial 1960 nesting effort of this species suffered from severe high tides but the re-nesting effort was highly successful. Those birds resulting from the second nesting hatched well in the middle of July and are expected to be on the wing about September 15.

Field men of the Division of Fish and Game claim this late brood will serve to lengthen the period during which good populations of clapper rail will be available to the licensed hunter. Not more than 8 clapper rail may be in the possession of a hunter at any time, under the regulations.

Other rails and gallinules also become legal game on September 1 in New Jersey. The daily bag limit of rails and gallinules is 15, with a possession limit of 30.

'LARAMIE' — The raw and violent Wyoming Territory of the 1870's provides the setting for the NBC-TV Network's full-hour Western-adventure series, returning for a sophomore season in its Tuesday night spot. Co-stars on the popular program are John Smith (left) as Slim Sherman and Robert Fuller (right) as Jess Harper. Young Robert Crawford Jr. will also be seen in several episodes, all of which feature major guest stars. John Champion is the producer.

CARTWRIGHTS CORRALLED — The stars of the NBC-produced "Bonanza" color film series are a frolicky foursome as they get set for their second season of adventures on the full-hour color-casts which start on the NBC-TV Network Saturday, Sept. 10. The group that portrays the members of the Cartwright family — three half-brothers and their father — includes (l.-r.) Lorne Greene as Ben (the father), Dan Blocker as Hoss, Michael Landon as Little Joe and Pernell Roberts as Adam.

Uncle CHARLEY'S "Epi-grins"

The Ridge Corner parson went to sleep listenin' to his own sermon on a tape-recorder.

If money talks why don't it apologize to us.

When a woman guesses right that's her intuition.

As a rule folks who pat you on the back are tryin' to git you to cough up.

To be strong without you gotta be calm within.

It's so easy to mistake grandeur for greatness.

Jr. Hinch don't pray before he eats because his Mom is a good cook.

This metallic age means Gold in your teeth, silver in your hair and lead in your pants.

The folks who cracked the atom blame near busted civilization.

The problem of livin' ain't so bad if you kin find the answers.

The school of experience sure has some tough teachers.

Many a dad has a son to fill his shoes and a daughter to fill his shirts.

To make life easier reduce friction to a fraction.

DRAWING POWER— Tab Hunter stars as a syndicated cartoonist whose two major problems are an easily shocked employer (played by Jerome Cowan, the mustached fellow) and the attentions of dozens of beautiful girls on NBC-TV's new Fall-Winter situation comedy, "The Tab Hunter Show," scheduled Sunday nights. The three lassies keeping tabs on Hunter in this picture are (left to right) Joan Staley, Mary McClure and Lynne Prescott.

LADY IN DISTRESS— Guest star Julie London is shown in a scene from "Queen of Diamonds," the 1960-61 season's opening episode of "Laramie," on NBC-TV Tuesday, Sept. 20. Series co-star John Smith is seen with Miss London in the story of a woman trying to save the man she loves.

'CONTINENTAL CLASSROOM'— A college-level course in Contemporary Mathematics will be colorcast on the NBC-TV Network's Monday-through-Friday educational series during the 1960-61 season, with the first semester devoted to Modern Algebra and the second to Probability and Statistics. Dr. John L. Kelley (above), chairman of the mathematics department at the University of California (Berkeley), will teach the former. Last year's course in Modern Chemistry will be colorcast during the half hours preceding each Contemporary Mathematics colorcast. Dr. Frederick Mosteller, of Harvard University, will teach the second semester on Contemporary Mathematics.

He turned to his nurse. "Miss Turner."
She swung around. "Yes?"
"If Fielding calls, tell him I haven't forgotten him but I've been called away on an emergency."

Miss Turner studied the strong lines of his tanned face and smiled. He was such a nice guy. If only he would pay more attention to his nurses. "Yes, doctor. What shall I tell Operating Room if they call for you?"

He slid into his sport coat. "Just remind them that it's not my day to operate." He cleared his throat. I'll be back in an hour,

the professional touch

probably, but if I should get tied up longer than I expect I'll call you."

Doctor Ralph Buckler was the big, handsome type of person. He had a bedside manner that was the envy of many of his colleagues. In his late thirties now, Ralph was well liked by everyone at Mercy Hospital. While his skin and complexion screamed of the golf course and sandy beaches, he was equally at home in the clinic or the operating room.

As a rule he never took private cases outside the hospital, but this case was an exception. Going out in the car, he thought back to the day little Annie Cain had been born. What a day that had been for him. Her mother had suffered from bad kidneys. He'd finally arranged for a Caesarian delivery and both of them had survived.

Pulling up at the traffic signal, he pushed in the clutch and raced the motor. His mind ran back over the years.

Let's see, just how old would the youngster be now? He finally settled for twelve. That would be about right. So now she was sick and running a high temperature. The maid had sounded quite concerned when she'd called.

Coming into Westwood, he turned out parallel with the University Buildings and drove for about a mile. There it was on the left, you couldn't miss it.

Coming to the entrance, he turned in between the tall, iron gates. The place hadn't changed. There was still the same old mile-long driveway that had appeared in so many movie magazines and the sign that read, "Hedgewood Acres".

Any motion picture fan could have told you immediately that this was the home of lovely Barbara Cain, darling of the Mammoth lot and long time queen of the Hollywood leading ladies.

When he reached the house they were waiting in the doorway. The maid greeted him: "Oh, Doctor. I just thought you'd never get here. Little Miss Anne is so sick! Her temperature is about one hundred and three!"

He calmed her with a pat on the head. "I'll go right up. Now don't you worry about a thing. I wouldn't let anything happen to her for the world."

Quickly he followed the worried maid to the second floor, running his eyes over the spacious living room and palatial staircase as he went. There was little doubt that at least a fortune had been spent on this lovely home.

At the door of the bedroom he was met by the beautiful but distraught mother. He expressed his surprise at seeing her. "I didn't expect to see you here." He took her small hand in his large brown one. "Aren't you making a picture down around Laguna Beach right now?"

She nodded, chewing on the skin at the corner of her thumb, a little habit she had when upset emotionally. "That's right. They called me on location this morning and I came right home. I'm just worried to death. A fever like that is usually a bad sign, isn't it?"

"Well, we'll see."

Quietly he went in the bedroom and closed the door in the face of the worried mother. Little Annie lay there, completely still, her face flushed.

"Hello, Annie. How do you feel?"

For a moment she just lay there and watched his tanned face. Finally she said without conviction, "I feel awful."

He lifted one eyebrow and moved to the edge of the bed. Taking her wrist with his fingers he took her pulse. "Where do you hurt?"

She pouted. "All over."

Putting his bag down on the foot of the bed, he checked her tongue gravely, felt her cheeks and finally looked her right in the eyes for a long time. At last he smiled.

"I think you'll live." He sat down on the edge of the bed and took her hand. "You go to LeConte Junior High School now, don't you?"

Now it was her turn to be puzzled and she fastened those big eyes of hers on his merry ones. "Yes, I do," she answered in a small, hesitant voice.

He leaned down a little closer and asked in a conspiatorial tone, "What was the matter, did they have tests today or what?"

For a minute she pretended not to know what he meant. "I don't know. I'm not sure — I suppose so."

He wagged a cheerful finger in her face. "In the future, when you want to pretend you are sick, don't go reading your father's books and stealing symptoms. You had your mother and everyone else in the house frightened to death."

She let a small hand rest in his, looked up at him and said, "Were you?"

He nodded solemnly.

"I'm sorry."

Quickly he lifted a corner of the covers and pulled out the hot-water bottle she had kept pressed under her arm to make her temperature go up. He tossed it on the chair. "There now—do you think the patient will recover?"

She giggled. "I guess so." She reached up and put both arms around his neck and pulled his head down. "You're not mad at me, are you?"

He smiled. "No, honey. Not mad a bit." He kissed her and rose to his feet. "However, I am a busy man and I do have to get back to the hospital. Now you be a good girl. I guess you'd better stay in bed until dinner time and then get up."

Out in the hallway he took the nervous mother by the arm. "Nothing to worry about," he said conversationally as he led her toward the stairs. "She just put a hot-water bottle under her arm to make a temperature."

"What! What on earth for?"

He smiled that lop-sided smile of his. "Just a small case of wanting to see her daddy. I guess."

That did it. Suddenly Barbara was in his arms crying. "Oh, Ralph," she whispered. "I was wrong, too. I can't get along without you. Won't you please forgive me and come home?"

He sighed contentedly and held her close. "Sure, baby, sure."

FAMOUS AMERICAN TAVERNS

The Eagle Tavern in East Poultney, Vt.

Its Columns Were Made from Naval Masts

During the American Revolution, an officer from perhaps the ruggeddest of the rebelling colonies, Vermont, delivered the most rugged toast to the enemy on record. Rising from his seat in the taproom of the Eagle Tavern, East Poultney, Captain William Watson held aloft his tankard of ale and proclaimed: "To the enemies of our country! May they have cobweb breeches, a porcupine saddle, a hard-trotting horse and an eternal journey!"

The speech brought down the house figuratively, but not literally—for the Eagle Tavern still stands as it did in Revolutionary days, a monument to the practical hospitality and comfort of our forefathers. Today, the custodians of this hospitality and the hosts of the tavern are Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Johnson, a California couple who elected ten years ago to retire not among the date palms, but among the evergreens of Vermont's mountains.

"Our chief interest," the Johnsons say, "is the preservation, both structurally and in atmosphere, of what may well be the oldest caravansary of its kind in the United States."

The visitor to the Eagle Tavern is the beneficiary of the Johnsons' dedication. He will see a Georgian building 175 years old, in a perfect state of preservation, its hip roof supported by twelve Doric columns as stout as when originally cut as masts for the King's navy. He will see huge nine-by-twelve hardwood beams, all notched together and fastened with wooden pegs. Two of the main beams extend the full width of the tavern, forty-three feet. The building incorporates many other souvenirs of the pioneer past, including a trap door leading out of the gaming room!

Advance reservations at Eagle Tavern are necessary, for there are accommodations for only eleven guests, including a "single" in which Horace Greeley lived from 1826 to 1830 while working on a local newspaper. There are no dining facilities except for house guests. Rates are on the high side but both furnishings and fare are sumptuous.

Sometimes the hosts lock the doors and take their guests off to an all-day picnic. This is tavern-keeping at its traditional best.

Once a year on Labor Day we bring our thoughts back from the pleasure we derive from our material possessions, from our appliances, tools and other work-saving, leisure providing purchases, to remember the men who made them . . . the mechanic, the carpenter, the bricklayer, the skilled and unskilled worker. All these and thousands more are busy throughout the year helping to create the vast wealth for which our century is justly famous. To these men and women we offer an appreciative "thank you" on this Labor Day. The advertisers on this page sponsor this tribute to LABOR.
