HOLIDAY SALUTE — Barbara Cook (left), Alfred Drake and Mindy Carson will be seen and heard in "And Freedom Sings" on the "Telephone Hour" colorcast of Friday, Nov. 11. The show will offer a Veterans Day salute to the armed forces, with Drake portraying the American service man in four wars, and Miss Cook and Miss Carson appearing as "girls he left behind." This program of the bi-weekly "Telephone Hour" colorcast series will be part of NBC-TV's "Color TV Day—U.S.A." observance.

ELECTION TEAM — David Brinkley (left) and Chet Huntley will be anchormen of the NBC News election coverage Nov. 8 on the NBC-TV Network. The Emmy Award-winning correspondents won wide acclaim from viewers and critics for their coverage of the national political conventions last Summer. Among their regular assignments is the Monday-through-Friday "Huntley-Brinkley Report."

The Man from Equitable asks—

Will you leave your family a home
—or a mortgage?

THE ODDS that you will die before you pay off your mortgage are 16 times greater than the chance your house will catch fire. Yet, most prudent families wouldn't think of being without fire insurance. Why be without mortgage insurance?

Equitable's remarkable mortgage repayment insurance plan protects your family against forced sale... loss of savings... or loss of home. Costs are low for this basic protection. For full information call...

ON THE COVER

United States Senator John F. Kennedy, Democratic Presidential candidate, is shown in one of his characteristic action photos shot while addressing a record crowd of people assembled in front of the Paterson City Hall when the Senator visited this area in the early part of October. (Please turn to page 8 on why our choice for President is Kennedy.)

MID PLEASURES AND PALACES — Rosemary Clooney (standing) appears a bit pensive as she observes the "comforts" of avant-garde furniture, like the chairs in which Dick Van Dyke and Carol Burnett "relax." These three — plus Miss Clooney's husband, Jose Ferrer — will star in NBC-TV's Thanksgiving Day (Nov. 24) colorcast of "No Place Like Home," a sprightly full-hour revue on man's efforts to make a home through the ages.

Sounds Good To Us . . .

Though special tiles and other acoustical materials are more widely used than ever to dim the din, and though sounds we can't hear — ultrasounds or "silent" sounds — are making our lives safer and more comfortable in scores of ways, few people are aware of how many noteworthy facts there are in the fascinating world of sound.

Did you know, for example, that the speed with which sound reaches your ears depends partly on the weather? It's a fact — the velocity of sound increases about two feet per second for every centigrade degree rise in temperature. Were you aware that "silent" sound can wash dishes, tenderize meat, even tune on the TV set? Or that the less quiet form of sound known as noise costs American industry literally millions of dollars a year. The National Noise Abatement Council estimates that the figure reaches at least $50 million and probably runs higher.

Through an ingenious transmission set which utilizes some of the body's tiniest organs — the incus or anvil bone of the middle ear is the smallest of your 206 bones — you are enabled to hear sounds ranging in pitch or frequency from 20 to 20,000 vibrations per second. Near your lower limit is the orchestra's rumbling double bassoon (32 vibration per second); a note three octaves above the highest piano note, which is 4,096 cycles per second, would be inaudible to human ears!

Man's best friend does much better, a fact which once mystified superstitious humans. Noticing the tendency of dogs to perk up or howl for no apparent reason, they theorized that canines must be able to sense the presence of ghosts and the approach of death — unaware that Fido was simply tuned in to sounds his master couldn't hear.

Other types of sound gave rise to equally imaginative legends. The Greeks believed that thunder was the weapon of Zeus, king of the gods — hence a signal of divine displeasure. Echoes, they thought, were the moans of a nymph condemned by an unfriendly goddess to be voiceless — except for her ability to repeat the last words someone else had just said. As if this weren't hard enough on the girl, she also developed an unrequited love for the handsome youth Narcissus, and eventually pined away to nothing but her voice.

Some old myths are unexpectedly verified: hence a nationally syndicated cartoonist of oddities recently reported proof that Joshua's cool horn and the swinging shouts of his hip henchmen really did bring down the house at Jericho. This information would probably come as no shock to some university researchers who have been experimenting with the shattering effects of noise. According to a study made at Colgate University, the average office worker wastes about one-fifth of his energy trying to shut out distracting sounds. Medical researchers at Columbia University found that noise causes a marked rise in pulse rate and blood pressure level. Consensus: though noise alone can't drive you off the deep end, it can lead to mental fatigue and contribute to the development of neurosis.

If this is true, some of the luckiest people in the country work at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Murray Hill, New Jersey. In the "Dear Room" of this laboratory are produced the world's purest sounds, with 99.9 per cent of their echoes eliminated. At the other extreme, the smooth bare surfaces of a typical modern home (polished tile, wood tables, glass picture windows, for instance) bounce back up to 99 per cent of the sounds that strike them, causing all sorts of domestic repercussions. That's something to reflect on, as is the fact that the home can be "sound conditioned" with porous acoustical ceiling or wall tiles which absorb up to 85 per cent of the noise that strikes them. That accounts for the noticeable "hushed" effect in rooms treated with acoustical materials.

It's the sound we don't have to mute — because we can't hear it anyway — that's having the biggest repercussions, however. Behind the big boom in ultrasonics lies a very simple scientific fact: sound is a form of energy, and the higher the pitch of the sound, the more energy is released. If Enrico Caruso could shatter a wine glass with the unaided power of the human voice, imagine the punch in machines which can release sound of up to one million vibrations per second. Produced by ultrasonic "irradiators" which focus the waves in a tight beam directly on the chosen target, ultrasonic energy cleans, mixes or cuts molecules with unbelievable precision and speed. It can homogenize milk and age whiskey within minutes, put a perfect "head" on beer, cut diamonds, clean optical lenses and decontaminate machinery and clothing exposed to deadly radiation in atomic research labs.

Medical applications are even more startling: ultrasonic energy has been successfully used to diagnose cancers, cut out tumors like a scalpel, drill cavities out of teeth with almost complete elimination of pain — and with none of the heat, noise and vibration that used to plague victims of the dental drill.

Still in the experimental stage: an ultrasonic tenderizing process which will break up tough food fibers without altering the color or taste of the food. Hospitals are already using the forerunners of the high frequency dishwasher — a machine that cleans surgical instruments with a bombardment of sound waves. Freed of dishwashing tasks, TV viewers will tune programs in and out with already-developed ultrasonic remote control devices which operate without wires, batteries or physical connection with the set. Another remote control device based on ultrasonics will disintegrate any bombs or missile an enemy might aim — while they're still in the sky. "Fences" of sound will protect us from enemy ground attack, say military experts; the paralyzing vibrations they produce will provide an all but impassable barrier.

Safeguarded by the ultimate in ultrasound, shielded from distracting noise by acoustical materials, you'll lean back to enjoy that cascade of stereophonic sound, turning off the broadcast with still another "ultra" sound device.

Harlem Globetrotters Set New Horizons; 34th Season

Meadowlark Lemon at Teaneck November 24

The fabulous Harlem Globetrotters are in the process of playing their way around the world for the 34th season, in the most fantastic sports story ever written. The saga of this basketball team which combines comedy and court skill, under the astute supervision of their founder-owner-coach, Abe Saperstein, is replete with amazing highlights.

An objective study of the Globetrotters would have to be regarded as three-dimensional, publicists for the team have stressed: (1) Their accomplishments of the past season and the exciting years preceding it, (2) The present season now unfolding in glamorous fashion, and (3) A future carrying with it the promise and space-age adventure that well may eclipse all that went before.

Abe Saperstein's merry-mad magicians of the court started this 34th season of play with the almost-unbelievable record of 6,784 victories against 303 defeats achieved in 72 countries on all six continents, before potentates and peasants, in settings ranging from the most magnificent arenas to haylofts and other weird settings.

Looking back over the immediate past season, more than twice the length of that covered by other teams, the Trotters swept 174 games in their regular campaign without sustaining a setback, the finale being an 88-82 triumph over a team of college all-stars at Chicago Stadium with the largest crowd of the year, a turnout of 20,613 in attendance.

The opening game of the team's annual summer tour of Europe, Great Britain, and the Middle East followed, including a first visit to Bulgaria behind the partly-lifted Iron Curtain. The Trotters rolled to their 6,700th victory in winning from a picked squad of college and pro aces in London. The nimble imps played and won 85 games on that trek. While not going to Russia, as they had the previous summer, they went to Bulgaria on a sudden bid and there performed before laughing, whooping cheering crowds of 39,000 and 31,000 in Sofia's vast Lenski Stadium on successive nights, Saperstein's men receiving ovations they never will forget.

Now, another flair for the unusual which is the trademark of the Harlem team, is being exhibited this season. While one more new invasion is scheduled for the Trotters — in India — the future holds nothing beyond possibility for the adventuresome Saperstein and his equally-daring charges. Two years ago, they made reservations with a travel agency for the first ship to fly commercially into outer space. For the high-flying Trotters, this is to be expected.

The team has some newcomers on the roster, along with the ever-popular fun-making ace of the troupe, Meadowlark Lemon. The big man from Wilmington, North Carolina, is convulsing audiences for the sixth year as the clowning ring-leader, but besides his comedy antics, he is a skilled basketball player. He captained his high school football and basketball teams, received a tryout with the Globetrotters while he was a serviceman in Germany, taking advantage of the team's appearance in that country on tour. On returning to civilian life, he caught on with the team and has made millions laugh ever since.

Among other players on the roster this season are such veterans as Charles "Tex" Harrison from Houston, Texas (6 feet 4), Joe Buckhalter, Chicago giant who towers 6-8, Clarence Wilson from Kentucky, and dribbling magician Murphy Summons who is a 6-3 speedster from Detroit. New performers on the squad include Frank Burks, Chicago lad who is 6-4 and Ernest Wagner, another king-sized player from Detroit. Burks, one of the most highly touted rookies to join the club in years, started for the University of Wisconsin and previously was a scholastic standout.

The Globetrotters will be making their only North Jersey appearance on Thursday, November 24 (Thanksgiving Day night) at the Teaneck Armory. The team will oppose the Washington Generals in the feature, but Saperstein will present a three-shows-in-one program that night, starting at 8:30 p.m., he has announced. The show will get under way with a condensed version of Olsen and Johnson's "Hellzapoppin" and the game will follow. Between the halves, the third unit of the entertainment package will feature a table tennis tournament involving four international stars, representing the United States (a former Polish resident), Japan, Great Britain, and France.

Interest in the Teaneck appearance of the Globetrotters is high, it has been reported at headquarters for the game, established at the Charles Berman carpet stores in Fair Lawn, Paramus, Lodi and Paterson. The game will mark the third visit to Teaneck by the Globetrotters in recent seasons and the Bergen drillshed always has been a favorite stop for Saperstein and Company.

Powder Horne Mill Inn Has Historical Charm and Environment

First off, let it be understood, George Washington did not sleep here.

Built in the year 1726, the Powder Horne Mill Inn once was used to grind grain for Washington's troops — Colonial "K" rations you might say. The troops were stationed on Federal Rock Hill directly behind the mill to be on lookout for the troublesome Tories.

Alexander Hamilton once availed himself of the miller's services here. Now, with all its historical charm and history, The Powder Horne Mill Inn is still serving the public.

A charming colonial restaurant, with random floors, fireplace and beautiful antique place settings. You dine in a distinctive atmosphere by candle light and soft music.

There is also an old mill pond, surrounded by gardens and in the warmer weather, you may dine outside on the terrace overlooking the old mill pond.

The waitresses are garber in colonial dress of that period, and are a delight when passing out all the homemade jams for the hot biscuits and relishes.

Your hosts, Ted Iseli and Ted Prescott invite you for an evening you'll never forget

Their specialties are "The Colonial Beef Pot Pie", with its tantalizing crispy crust and "The Old Mill Casserole". These two dishes are from out of the past right to your table.

Of course, everything is good eating, from the Turkey right down to the lobster. And the desserts, well, all of the pies and pastries are right out of the Powder Horne's ovens.

And with Thanksgiving and Christmas just around the corner, it's the place to enjoy your holiday dinner. For reservations call one of the Teds.

OUR CHOICE -- KENNEDY FOR PRESIDENT

This passionate political race has reached fever pitch. By this time, we believe, most Americans have already made up their minds whom they will support to become the 35th president of the United States.

If nothing else, this campaign has demonstrated that both candidates are young, vigorous men, each with a keen analytical mind in attempting to give his version of the potential solutions to the monumental problems which lie ahead.

Despite armchair generals, amateur and professional pollsters, and members of the betting fraternity who have been furiously setting and changing odds during the past month, it still remains for the people to have the final decision in determining who shall be given the governmental reins for the next four years.

Reams of paper and lakes of ink have been consumed on both sides of the political fence extolling the virtues and the talents of both aspirants. So much propaganda has been aimed at the voters that it is no wonder many of them are confused.

At this stage of the game, it is difficult to decide the winner based on the sizes of the crowds which turn out to hear either or both of the hopefuls. In many, many instances the same people have gone to listen to both Vice President Richard M. Nixon and U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy.

Some of the people are merely thrilled by crowds, others love parades and fanfare, and others just glory in being close to celebrities. So very often it is a fallacy to judge any man's chances by the crowds he draws. The majority of his audience may be opposed to the things he stands for.

~~But~~ while others are indulging in the presidential sweepstakes, we too, want to take the opportunity to announce our choice.

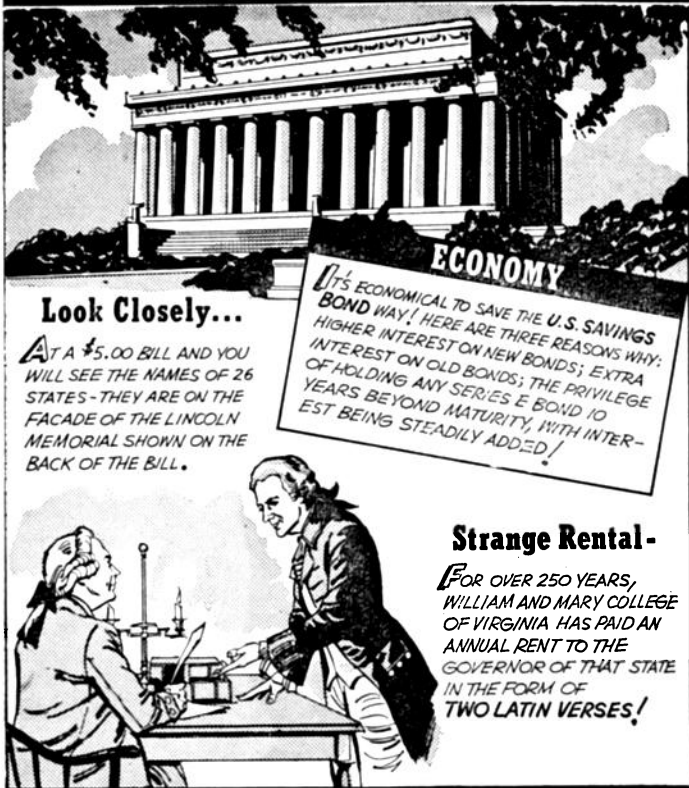

It is a decision not based on crowds, speeches, but rather on what we feel to be his courage, his perseverance in the face of tremendous odds, and the ability he has had in being able to capture the hearts and imagination of millions of Americans.

We feel that John F. Kennedy has demonstrated all of the above mentioned qualities in his quest for the highest office in our land.

We believe he is absolutely right in maintaining that our country faces new frontiers in the years ahead.

Not only in the conquest of outer space, but in new techniques in dealing with the various peoples of the universe. The job ahead is an arduous one and requires the heart and courage of a lion-hearted leader. We strongly believe Kennedy has these qualities of leadership.

On the other hand, his opponent, at best, can only promise us a continuance of the same type of leadership we have had for the past eight years. We don't believe the American people are ready and willing to accept that type of "let's carry on" type of government.

New and more adventurous days face us all. New and more adventurous steps must be taken to cope with whatever the future holds.

We believe Kennedy has struck the resonant chord in the hearts of all forward looking citizens and will sweep the election on that basis alone.

One more thing which may or may not be relevant. Kennedy has developed a team of followers young in years, young in outlook and young in heart. Such a group will shake off the lethargic mantle dropped by a 70-year old president. The other side of the coin shows that Nixon will perforce be obligated not only to present policies, but to the present policies but to the present members of the administration, already tired in office.

So, we happily endorse Kennedy for president and join with other forward looking Americans to a brighter, happier and more abundant future.

FRANK X. GRAVES

Frank X. Graves, Democratic mayoralty candidate, looms as the undisputed winner in Tuesday's election contest. Political observers in both parties believe he will rack up one of the largest majorities in Paterson history.

A native of the city and product of local schools, Graves has been considered a good mayoralty prospect since he became of voting age.

On January 1, 1960, Frank X. Graves, Jr., became the first Democratic Freeholder Director in Passaic County in twenty-three years. He is married to the former Ethel Kirsop and they have two daughters, Linda and Nancy.

JERSEY FACTS

New Jersey has 23 State Forests and park areas — about 26,000 acres — administered by the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Reports from the United States Census Bureau indicate losses of population from New Jersey cities to the suburbs. The population in Newark declined 9.7 per cent while the population directly outside the central city increased by 29.9 per cent. Trenton's population declined by 10.9 per cent and outside the central city it increased by 49.1 per cent. Atlantic City's decreased by 5.9 per cent and outside the city the population rose 40.1 per cent.

The Jersey coast is one of the world's best fishing grounds. From Sandy Hook to Cape May it offers every variety of bay, surf, ocean and deep sea fishing.

"If there's a Canfield tradition, then Walter P. Kennedy helped to shape that tradition," said Congressman Canfield. He said that among the honors that had come to him over the years were many he could not have enjoyed had it not been for the help of his secretary Walter P. Kennedy, who is my choice to succeed me in the Congress of the United States.

He said that Kennedy had helped with the detail work that had made it possible for him to receive the national citation, one of two presented by the Reserve Officers Association of America for his work in behalf of the national defense and another from the National Housing Conference for his support of national housing programs and better housing.

Canfield described Kennedy, the Republican Congressional candidate as a "young man trained on the job and for the job," as he was trained by his predecessor, the late Congressman George N. Seger.

Garden State Modern Symphony Open For Recruits

Musicians of all ages, regardless of sex, race or creed, are invited to join the Garden State Modern Symphony Orchestra; a group that plays for enjoyment with an eye toward bigger and better things to come.

You do not need money to be a member, just your instrument whether it be woodwind, brass, percussion or string. If you play the piano, good! Of course, it is essential that you read music. Vocalists, actors, composers, song writers and M.C.'s are also welcome. The group is led by a very capable and experienced music maestro. For further information call evenings ARmory 1-1254, or write to the secretary, Mrs. E. Ricalde, 95 Brookview Drive, West Paterson, N. J.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

You're not the only good driver on the road, and you know it. But, you'll be a lot safer if you conduct yourself as though all other drivers are blooming idiots.

When driving, you are no safer than the worst driver you meet. Although you conscientiously obey traffic regulations and try to avoid accidents, you cannot be sure that another driver will not put you into an accident situation by his conduct on the road. You can, however, minimize this danger by being prepared for it.

Make up your mind to drive as though all other drivers are utterly incompetent. That way you can anticipate driving errors by others and be prepared to take corrective action.

Be ready and willing to yield the right-of-way at all unprotected intersections. You know it isn't worth risking your life for the few seconds you might gain at an intersection, but assume the other driver doesn't. No matter how right you are, give way to the driver who contests the right-of-way. You'll both live.

Watch approaching drivers carefully. Many rural accidents are caused by head-on collisions. If the other fellow gets out of his lane, blow your horn, slow down and give him plenty of room to go by. He may be asleep at the wheel, sick, or just plain reckless. Assume he is all of these, and be prepared to avoid the head-on crash.

Rear-end collisions are becoming more numerous, especially at night. Don't follow too closely behind another car. Assume he's going to make a sudden stop at any moment, and give yourself room to stop safely in case he does.

Watch parked cars at the curb when you approach them. Assume that the driver may suddenly pull out into traffic without checking to see you coming. Be ready to avoid him if he does.

Here's a suggestion that makes sense. It's a bit of advice from top highway safety people. They say — concentrate only on driving when you're in the driver's seat. Then add that driving is a full-time occupation and requires your complete attention.

Things To Do This Week...

SATURDAY

A silver anniversary of the Hawthorne Republican Unit will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the American Legion Hall, Legion Place, Hawthorne. Mayor Louis H. Bay will be toastmaster with Lloyd B. Marsh and Congressman Gordon Canfield as principal speakers.

A dinner tonight at 7:30 p.m. will officially open the 46th season of the Paterson Jewish Folk Chorus. The affair will take place at the Progressive Workers Center, 89 Carroll Street.

The Junior Ladies Auxiliary of the Barnert Memorial Hospital will hold a supper and barn dance at Camp Veritans, Haledon, tonight. Supper will be served from 8 p. m. Mrs. William Stern and Mrs. David Salzman are co-chairmen of the event.

An Autumn dinner and dance sponsored by the combined societies of Our Lady of Lourdes R. C. Church will be held tonight in the Parish Hall. Music will be by Dittamo Brothers Orchestra.

SUNDAY

The third annual dinner dance of St. James R. C. Church, Towowa Borough, will be held today at the Mazda Brook Farms, Parsippany. The affair will be held by the combined societies of the parish.

A joint recital by Harold Rafael Mertis and Armen Boyajian will be given today at 1:30 p.m. at the YW-YMHA. This will be a benefit performance for the Paterson Lyric Opera Theatre and will be the first of a series of concerts.

MONDAY

The youth division of the Paterson YMCA will sponsor a trip to the horse show at Madison Square Garden tonight. Buses will leave at 6:15 p.m. in front of the "Y", 128 Ward Street.

TUESDAY

The Paterson B'nai Brith Lodge will hold its annual barrel of fun night in the Temple Emmanuel ball room. Entertainment will be by Morris Fishman and Herb Zane. The affair will begin at 8:30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY

A professional variety show is scheduled tonight at Eastside High School sponsored by the combined societies of St. George parish.

A lecture and film on the Auburn Screen tour series by the Radcliffe Club of New Jersey will be presented at 8:15 p.m. at the Hillside School, Orange Road, Montclair.

FRIDAY

A rummage sale of the Hawthorne Woman's Club, American Home Group, will be held tonight and tomorrow. Mrs. Louis Bay II is in charge.

Uncle CHARLEY'S "EpiGrins"

If the Reds ever did take over the country, how would they pay the taxes?

Too many dumb bells try to swing their weight around.

Jr. Hinch wants to let loose a swarm of bees in a nudist camp.

Yep, eatin' Q cumbers will W u up.

Nothin's as lonely as the sound of a fog horn early in the morning.

A feller is usually happy with his old car till his neighbor gets a new one.

Nope, they've never found a substitute for honesty.

Too many fat people have platter trouble.

Yep, nothin' is what people believe more than anything.

"THE NATION'S FUTURE"—Two of the world's foremost authorities on population problems will debate the need for international birth control on the second program of "The Nation's Future" Saturday, Nov. 19, on the NBC-TV Network. They are (left) Sir Julian Huxley, eminent British scientist and former director general of UNESCO, and Jacques Mertens de Wilmars of Belgium, chairman of the United Nations Population Commission.

Senator, do you think that, by raising the salaries of members of Congress, the country could get better men to serve?"

COMPLEX

By GARRET SMITH

By noon forlorn hoppers in the employment manager's ante-room at Cromby & Co. boiled down to Jimmy Wheeler and the "Plucked Chicken." They had simmered since nine waiting to be hired or to hear, "We'll file your application and let you know if anything turns up." Jimmy put the first of these chances at less than hundred-to-one shots. Adds had reversed on him since that independence day two weeks ago when his ex-boss had spoken overwarmly and Jimmy's free soul chased Jimmy off the payroll.

As for the Plucked Chicken, Jimmy considered the Old Run-around formula a sure thing. He hadn't given her a second look for fear he'd feel sorry for her. No name to put to a maid in distress, the formerly chivalrous Jimmy admitted guiltily. But he'd seen too many such lately. He'd soured on the sex anyhow since his boss' secretary lied herself out of a jam and him into one after he'd stood up for her. "That chivalry complex of yours is a damned nuisance!" the boss had roared. Old Fletcher needn't worry. Jimmy agreed with him now.

The assistant manager gave Jimmy a blank to fill and turned to the Plucked Chicken. Elizabeth Bond was her name actually. Someone's private secretary once, would grab a typist job now. "We have a long waiting list. I'm afraid it isn't worth while calling again" was all she drew. Not even the Old Run-around! Jimmy handed in his blank. "Thanks," said the assistant. We'll file your application—

"—And let me know if anything turns up," Jimmy finished. He wondered how many such days his hundred-buck reserve would stand, as he followed Miss Bond's wake.

The girl was waiting for the elevator, a fragile arm braced against the wall. The dim light here softened the cheek-line, hid worry-lines, and ash-grey bleakness. Why she was class, a beauty once, before she began starving to death! The elevator came and she swayed toward it, would have fallen if Jimmy hadn't caught her.

"Thank you. I'm clumsy!"

Her face lit and Jimmy looked into deep violet eyes. Then face and eyes went dead again. She'd keel over on the street he worried. No breakfast probably. He must do something quick. At the street door Jimmy clutched the gem of an idea.

"Pardon me. Aren't you Miss Bond — in Cromby's just now? They said you might do a letter or so for me. I'm James Wheeler. Publicity man. With the Fletcher Bureau once. Cromby had another good typist on their list but couldn't reach her. Leaves me in a jam."

Her eyes widened warily then turned eagerly.

"Yes, I'm free this afternoon."

"Got a date then," Jimmy improvised. "Have to dictate at lunch. Mind going to Mike's place around the corner?"

He hoped she wouldn't cave in and have to be carried. But she made it and dropped into a chair with a sigh that sounded contented. Jimmy mumbled something about phoning and hunted up Mike himself. Jimmy knew the answers for too much food and drink. But how did they treat a gal all out of practice? And not let her know it? He told Mike all.

"You start her easy. Mr. Wheeler. Leave it to me."

Jimmy returned to their table as Mike brought cups of golden bouillon.

"Won't you try our new special on the house?" Mike invited. "Shall I fix up a nice little lunch as usual, Mr. Wheeler?"

Jimmy deferred to Miss Bond. She was already sipping her bouillon blissfully.

"I've a feeling anything here'll be good," she agreed and set down her empty cup. "I'm a pig! Just couldn't help it," she added wistfully with a blush.

Jimmy grinned. "Won't have stenographers who aren't good feeders."

She laughed. Jimmy heard silver bells. Her bouillon worked fast. Violet eyes stayed alive now. Jimmy would like to spend a week feeding this girl. He had learned she was called "Betty". Jimmy thought "Betty" was his favorite name. By the time Mike brought second aid, he had her talking. He liked it. No whining. She was alone and on her own like himself, flotsam and jetsam from small towns. Jimmy told job-hunting yarns, too; made them light, set them in a remotish past. She loved the one about the boss' secretary who balled up her letters which Jimmy corrected until a prize bull slipped by and the boss got wise. "And I was the one the boss bawled out," Jimmy added. "Called it my fault for coddling the girl and spoiling her."

That was while they sipped demitasses.

"Aren't bumps fun to look back on!" she laughed.

She could laugh at bumps only one meal and a couple of bucks away! She'd walk out of his life and begin starving again. Jimmy almightily didn't want her to walk out of his life. How could he help it? The query fuddled his bogus letters to theoretical publicity prospects as Betty pot-hooked them like a streak on paper Mike furnished. She had to tinker his sentences.

Suddenly a thought popped up like an unexpected check. Why not really mail those letters? He might land free lance work and keep on using Betty!

"Look here," he said. "How about a regular job, if we're satisfied after swapping references? My office is under my hat yet, but I'll find a cubby-hole."

Betty's former employer told him over the phone she was as good as Jimmy thought, lost her job only because the company failed. Jimmy persuaded her to take expense money and a week's salary in advance, by pretending he'd be away on business most of the week. Betty had a feeling this was all the reference she needed from him. Jimmy didn't argue. Old Fletcher might say something sour if Jimmy referred her to his ex-boss.

But, at parting, qualms began to wiggle around in Jimmy.

"Look here," he said. "If you get a chance at a better job, take it!"

"I've a feeling you may back out if I don't run," said Betty.

After Betty ran, everything went greyish. The impossible didn't seem as possible. It seemed plain impossible later, after long hours of hammering at his best prospects. The only spark he struck was "Come and see us after business picks up." By five Jimmy hit bottom. He started home deciding he'd just tear up those letters Betty had agreed to send over by messenger. But the letters weren't there, the hall man reported. Jimmy thought that over, feeling as if somebody had kicked him. Stung again! Neat little game! That reference he called up, a plant, of course. He ought to have seen she came out of her dumps a little too fast! He was a fine judge of women!

Jimmy's phone was ringing as he stumbled into his apartment. "Mr. Wheeler?" a remote voice said. "This is Mr. A. B. Fletcher's secretary. Could you see Mr. Fletcher here tomorrow morning? He didn't tell me to call you but he spoke about you today. Said he'd hoped you'd be over your grouch and back on your old job before this. I'm just tipping you off."

"Well!" Jimmy exploded. "Uh — say — you're not Miss Moseley?"

"Mr. Fletcher's old secretary? No. She's left him. I got a feeling from things I heard at luncheon today there might be a vacancy where you said you used to work. And I got a feeling you'd be relieved if I found another job. I bought bargain clothes and tried it."

The voice trailed off in silver bells that could not be disguised. Jimmy was beyond speech.

"Please don't be mad, Mr. Wheeler. You saved my life. I'll pay back your money."

"The devil with the money!" Jimmy suddenly felt all right. "I'll be around if you think Fletcher will have the fatted calf ready — and you'll have luncheon with me."

"Maybe we'll have Mike cook the fatted calf," said Betty.

FAMOUS AMERICAN TAVERNS

The Sheridan Inn in Sheridan, Wyoming

Ripley Called it the "House of 69 Gables"

The Indian battles were over, the Custer Massacre was something that belonged to the irreparable past, the Big Horn country was opening up to settlers and the railroad reached Sheridan, Wyoming, in 1892. But perhaps the most momentous civilizing event in one of the most colorful of America's western frontier towns was the opening of the Sheridan Inn on July 1, 1893.

Many changes have come to the Far West and to the city of Sheridan since Col. William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody first led the grand march in the dining room of the hotel, but the Sheridan Inn is still much the same as when Buffalo Bill's hotel company was running it. At the time of its opening it was considered the finest hostelry between Chicago and San Francisco. Many people believe it remains so today.

The 60-room inn was the first building of any size and importance in the ranching and coal-mining center growing up along the old Bozeman Trail. Its bathtubs were the first in town. Sheridan's first barber shop, scene of much ceremonious trimming of the famed Cody locks and goatee, occupies its original corner in the inn. And the visitor can still quaff a beer at the Buffalo Bill Bar, an oak and mahogany masterpiece built in England and freighted overland to Sheridan.

The exterior is equally notable, for the second and third floor bedrooms all have dormer windows. In Ripley's "Believe It or Not," it is called the "House of 69 Gables."

The corridors of the Sheridan Inn once echoed to the booming laughter of "Teddy" Roosevelt, while at other times President Taft and President Coolidge warmed themselves before the cobblestone fireplaces. From the inn's broad veranda, "Buffalo Bill" Cody reviewed acts bidding for places in his great "Wild West" show, which is the likely meaning of the picture above.

Today's visitors entering the beamed lobby probably will be greeted by lovely white-haired Miss Kate Arnold, who has been house-keeper of the inn and part of its unique personality for 60 of its 67 years. Miss Arnold remembers all the famous guests who have stopped there, but best of all she remembers Buffalo Bill.

"He could be a perfect gentleman even while doing an Indian war dance with a feather duster stuck in his coat collar," she recalls.

MRS. JOHN DeJESUS

St. Francis of Assissi R. C. Church, Haskell, was the setting for the wedding ceremony of Miss Carla Specht and John Michael De Jesus, both of Midvale. A reception for 250 guests was held at Chirchella's Anchor Casino in Haskell.

MRS. JOSEPH GILSENAN

At a nuptial Mass in St. Gabriel's R. C. Church, Saddle River, Miss Joan Schweitzer and Joseph Gilsenan, both of Ridgewood, were united in marriage. A reception followed at the Swiss Chalet, Ramsey. The newlyweds are on a trip to Florida and Nassau for their honeymoon.
