SCIENCE FACT AND FABLE

MAN'S KNOWLEDGE OF VITAMINS HAS GROWN CONSIDERABLY SINCE 1588 AND THE DEFEAT OF THE SPANISH ARMADA. ONE REASON THE ARMADA WAS BEATEN WAS AN OUTBREAK OF SCURVY AMONG SPANISH SAILORS. THIS VITAMIN DEFICIENCY DISEASE IS NOW RARE IN THE U. S.

VITAMINS WERE NOT EVEN NAMED UNTIL 1911, ALTHOUGH SOME SCIENTISTS WERE LONG AWARE THAT SUCH SUBSTANCES HAD TO EXIST IN FOODS.

TODAY SCIENTISTS KNOW THAT THE LACK OF ESSENTIAL FOOD ELEMENTS CAN RESULT IN POOR HEALTH. WHEN A FAULTY DIET OR CERTAIN ILLNESSES PREVENT YOU FROM GETTING NECESSARY VITAMINS AND MINERAL, CONSULT YOUR PHYSICIAN TO SEE IF YOU NEED VITAMIN SUPPLEMENTATION.

The Man from Equitable asks-

Will you leave your family a home
—or a mortgage?

THE ODDS that you will die before you pay off your mortgage are 16 times greater than the chance your house will catch fire. Yet, most prudent families wouldn't think of being without fire insurance. Why be without mortgage insurance?

Equitable's remarkable mortgage repayment insurance plan protects your family against forced sale... loss of savings... or loss of home. Costs are low for this basic protection. For full information call...

ON THE RANCHO — The fate of a destructive longhorn steer is argued by Ed and Maria Kerr (played by Rosita Fernandez and Bill Shurley), operators of a meager ranch in South Texas, in this scene from "Sancho, the Homing Steer," to be repeated in two full-hour NBC-TV color broadcasts on "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" Sundays, June 10 and 17. The story tells of the adventures and travels of Sancho after the steer is sold by the Kerrs.

Rx for Health

New Drug Derived From Pineapple Plant

The ordinary pineapple plant, so prominent in the romantic history of the Pacific islands, has provided medical science with a new drug that is proving dramatically useful in the treatment of black eyes, bruises, sprains, boils and other inflammatory conditions.

The pineapple as a medicine is grounded in ancient folklore. The Maya Indians of Yucatan, for example, made a concoction from the stem of the plant for use in dysentery. In this country, at the turn of the century pineapple juice was a common home remedy for "clearing the throat"—ridding it of mucous concentrations. The juice has supposedly been used successfully for worms, lice, scurvy, tonsillitis, diphtheria, bed sores, corns and boils.

But it was left to modern medical science to determine the real value of pineapple as a therapeutic agent, and to produce a clinically valuable product. We now know that there may have been something to the ancient beliefs, for the pineapple plant contains one of nature's true wonders, and great mysteries, an enzyme. Specifically, it is bromelain.

Enzymes are the chemical machinery that make the body work; they are essential to life, and are found in all living things. There are many hundreds of enzymes and each performs a specific duty. Bromelain, it was found, destroys fibrin, the body's material that walls off an injured or infected area. While this wall has certain value, it also prevents antibodies and nutrient fluids from getting into the inflamed area to combat infection.

The body has a chemical that eventually breaks down the fibrin wall, but this may take days or even weeks. For example, a black eye will usually clear in about 10 days, with swelling subsiding slowly. The pineapple enzyme product, called Ananase, substitutes for the body's natural chemical and will clear up a black eye in about three days, with the swelling going down in one.

A carbuncle is an infection that has been walled off by the body's natural defenses. It becomes swollen and painful and will not be relieved until drained. The enzyme, taken in tablet form, works from within to penetrate the wall. The area is drained internally, swelling subsides and pain is relieved. The body can then begin to heal the damaged area. In this sense, the new drug can be called a "chemical surgeon."

Ananase, sold only on prescription, is also used as part of the treatment for athletic injuries, including fractures. Boxers and other performers in famous Madison Square Garden were among the first to benefit from it.

'Biff' tells a love story

By Gene Brockhaven

Picking his way slowly through he mases crowding toward the exits, Matt Walsh, sports writer, pondered the sensational ending of the ring battle he had just seen. He was blasé about quick knockouts; he had seen many of them. But he still thrilled to the brilliant and masterful job turned in by Spot Mathers.

Well, here was a new champion and Walsh felt he should know more about the boy. Something of his personal life.

It was after midnight when he got to the hotel at which the new champion and his entourage were stopping. At the door of the Mather's suite he was halted by a blast of noise — the victory celebration. The big room was a bedlam and the company was high. Walsh glanced about the room but saw no sign of Mathers. He sought out the boy's manager, Peter Miley, in the role of host.

"Mathers? Just went down the hall to room 1117," Miley said. "Go on and see him."

Walsh did. The door was slightly ajar. He tapped lightly, waited, then tapped again. When he got no response he peered in. He stopped back, closing the door. Mmmm-m, that tableau was something unexpected and unusual on victory night in the fight racket. Young Mathers, his arm around a dark-haired girl — a sleeping baby tucked in carefully between pillows at the head of the bed. This was no time for an interview, so Walsh returned to the other room. He managed to coral Biff Jones, old-timer in the business and Mather's trainer.

"Biff, how about some dope on the new champion? And what about that gal and the baby down the hall? Let's go some place where we can talk."

"Okay. The party's almost over anyway." They went down to the hotel grill and sat at a table in the corner of the room.

"Now, tell me about Mathers."

Sure, I can tell you lots about the kid and about his wife and baby, too. I like 'em, all three of 'em, and I'd like to tell their story. But I gotta tell it my way."

"All right, tell it." "Well, it begins some two years ago. Me and Pete Miley is sittin' in Pete's office talking about nuthin' much when in walks a cock, good lookin' kid. He's got a letter for Peter from some guy. He walks up to Pete, ignorin' me, and says: "You Pete Miley? This is for you." Pete takes the letter, reads it and looks up at the kid.

"So, you're a fighter, eh?" Pete says.

"Yeah, and a damn good one."

"As I was saying, the kid says, 'I gotta get a fight right away. We gotta eat.'"

"Pete says, 'We, who's we?'"

"Me and Sally," the kid says and goes on talkin' about him and his wife comin' up to New York to pick up some of the big fightin' sugar they been readin' about. They come up in an old jalopy, the kid says, and now the dough's run out. Pete asks the kid his full name and the kid says, without battin' an eye, 'Spottingham T. Mathers.' Pete kinda grins, but he ain't laughin'. I could see Pete takin' a likin' to the kid and soon he hands him a finif.

"Pete tells the kid to go out and buy him and Sally a steak and come back tomorrow with his fightin' togs and he'll see what the kid's got. I was at the gym the next day and Pete sticks the kid in there with an old war-horse. The kid considerin' he ain't been eatin' so good, does okay and Pete holds him.

"We got our first peek at Sally when Pete moves her and the kid over to Pete's hotel. Pete tells the kid to go to the gym and for me to work with him.

"Well, as I says, we get our first peek at Sally, and boy, she's somethin'. She ain't got only looks but she's got somethin' else I don't know what. I go for Sally big—don't get me wrong, my courtin' days is gone — she's a nice kid. Well, them two kids, eatin' regular again with Pete payin', bloom. Soon Pete spots the kid in a four-round prelim and the kid comes through with a quick kayo. O'course he knocks over a bum, but we like the way he does it.

"It ain't long before the kid's moved up to semi-finals and then finals, because, as I say, he's good. Him and Sally is livin' on their own now because Pete's been pullin' down good pots for him and I know personal that Pete ain't takin' any cut, leastwise not much. He likes them kids, specially Sally, like everybody does. But this Sally ain't no eyewaver. She's stuck on Spot and no bones about it. But that Spot, now, he's got a bit of a rovin' eye, and he's a cocky punk and he ain't against steppin' once in a while, now the dough's comin' in. But I guess when a kid's 21 he thinks he's something special.

"Well, these steppin's begin to get quite frequent and many's the night I keep Sally company on lonely nights when that milk-sop is sowin' a few oats. I feel sorry for Sally and I tell her it's just like a case of the mumps or the measles, a little sick and you're good as new again. But Sally can take it, she's no plater, and she keeps smilin'.

Biff reached for his glass and drank.

"Well, he resumed, "like a'll them smart-alex, the kid gets himself tangled up. He's been seen around with a show girl. I talk to him.

"Listen, knob-ears," he says, "you keep outa this." He tells me a lot more about him and this show gal gettin' married after he wins the title and gives Sally the air.

"Next day I tell Pete all and we go to the gym where Spot's workin' out. Pete quizzes him and all he gets is abuse.

"I go around to see Sally to see if she knows about this marriage business. I poke around kinda and then quiz her if she heard anythin' about Spot and this show gal. Well, she starts cryin' and I feel like a dope. I don't know what to do and keep sayin', 'there, there,' like a mother with a cryin' child. It don't do much good. Sally keeps on cryin'. Pretty soon she says she's goin' back home. And she does, leavin' a note for Spot.

"He goes around a couple of days sour-pussed. I don't hear a word from Sally for weeks and I don't think the punk has either. But Pete goes around with a wise look and I get a hunch he knows somethin'. The kid has changed some. He ain't so cocky and he seldom goes out at night. One night, just before we're leavin' for the trainin' camp, where the kid's gonna get ready for the final 'limination bout, I'm in his room helpin' him.

"It ain't long and the phone rings. The kid is near it an' answers. He says, 'I ain't here,' and hangs up. Pretty soon comes a knock on the door and dummy me ops it. A dame is there. I figure it's the show gal. She steps over to the kid. 'Honey,' she says, 'you ain't seen me lately.' The kid keeps on packin'. Then he says he ain't gonna see her again.

"Then the fireworks start. The dame gives him hell and when she's in high gear she heaves a water bottle at h's head and staks out. He ducks and the bottle whams against the wall.

"It's two, three days later when I see Pete at the camp. I tell him about the show and he looks at me kinda funny and says now's the time to tell him and maybe he's all over it. I don't catch the drift, but I go along with Pete. The kid's restin' when me and Pete come into the room. Pete says, 'Spot, I got some news for you, news from Sally.' The kid sits up sudden like and he gets kinda white. He don't say nothin'. 'Sally,' Pete says, 'is goin' to have a baby.' Just like that.

"The kid jumps up and he starts to cry. I think I kinda like him then, even though he's actin' sissy. 'Pete,' he says, 'I gotta go to her! I gotta!'

"Pete says okay and take a couple days off. So the kid goes home to see Sally. You never see such a changed guy when he comes back. He's talkin' again and he's happy and even gets friendly with me and I kinda like it, too, seein' he ain't the smart-alex no more.

"So you see, like I once say to Sally, it's like the mumps, a little while sick and you're okay again, and so's them kids, all three."

"Maybe, maybe," grinned Walsh. "It's a good yarn, Biff, but not for me. It belong to the lovelorn column!"
