Charles Laughton, Hollywood and Broadway director, is the subject of a new book THE LAUGHTON STORY, by German author Kurt Singer. The 308-page story is a definitive biography of Laughton from his earliest stirrings in the English town of Scarborough right up to his screen success as star of Robson's Choice.

Singer covers a lot of ground in covering the life of Charles Laughton. And in so doing, he comes up with a book full of anecdotes.

Perhaps the most noteworthy remark comes to light in Singer's biography of the actor is Marlene Dietrich's quip, "I would rather act in love scene with Charles Laughton than with any other actor in the world."

Keeping Eyes and Ears Open Essential For The Job Hunter

By ANNE HEYWOOD

WE have mentioned before the variety of motives that make women search for part-time jobs.

One of the most unusual I know is that of Mrs. A. G.

Mrs. A. G. was thirty pounds overweight. Her husband didn't like it, and neither did her children, so she went to the doctor to see what she could do about it.

The doctor was even more severe. He informed her that her overweight was a distinct health hazard. His suggestion was that she eat a sensible breakfast, a sensible dinner and just a couple of apples for lunch.

It Was "Impossible"

"But it's impossible!" Mrs. A. G. told me despairingly. "The children are in school and I'm at home all by myself. After all, how can I just sit there from 12 to 2 when I'm really hungry with nothing much to think about but how hungry I am and an icebox full of food staring at me?"

So she decided to try for some kind of job that would keep her away from the house and its temptations over lunchtime. "Lunch hour jobs," she told me, "are out of the question though. The only ones I have found are in restaurants, and that would be even worse than sitting at home!"

Had No Training

It was a difficult problem. A job just two hours a day from 12 to 2 for a woman with no training and no specific skills. But Mrs. A. G. was a very intelligent woman. While she was in my office I had to telephone a real estate agent. One of my friends had asked me to call about the possibility of buying a small house that had been advertised and wanted me to make an appointment for her to talk to the agent. There wasn't any answer on the phone. "She must be out for lunch," I remember saying. The next thing I knew,

Mrs. A. G. said: "That gives me an idea"—and off she went.

Found Two Jobs

She told me later that she walked along the main street in her town and on that very day lined up a real estate agent who hired her to answer the phone and take care of the customers from 12 to 1, five days a week for $5. One and a half blocks away she found a lawyer whose secret-

She Wanted to Diet, But the Icebox Was Too Tempting

tary was unhappy because she had no relief and had to eat lunch at her desk. Mrs. A. G. made the same kind of arrangement for the hour from 1 to 2 with them. This gives her $10 a week, which she intends to use to take a good reducing course. "It's more important to get away from food," she said. "The temptation to eat is something I can't resist—and all because of my situation to a real estate agent. It happened to me."

If you are looking for a job to a problem, keep your ears open. Sometimes a casual remark will spark your mind and suggest a solution.

Will You Look In The Mirror?

When we gaze into a mirror it gives back the truth, coldly and impartially. The mirror cares not whether the image be as fair as an adolescent dream of love—or ugly as squalor. It stoops to no flattery, is not moved by compassion, cannot err. Remorseless as Time, it throws back dispassionately the thing that IS.

Most of us have become accustomed to seeing the same old countenance day after day. If it is unprepossessing we've become used to THAT too, and reflecting surfaces hold no terrors for us.

It's another mirror, however, into which few dare look. That is the mirror that shows the true state of our financial arrangements and our dependents in the event of death.

It is a happy—rare—man who can do so and be reassured by what he sees.

Too many of us are content to insure ourselves for an amount that SEEMS like a lot of money. Unless you translate that sum into terms of income replacement for your dependents in the event of your death, you will not have the true picture. Make the test now. I shall be happy to review your insurance with no obligation whatsoever to yourself. DARE you look in the mirror?

Baltimore Doesn't Deserve The Bird

At the risk of sounding like a minority of one, this writer will cry out on the limb—while waiting for it to be sawed off under him—to declare right out loud that he doesn't think the Baltimore Orioles do NOT deserve the bird!

Scribes all over the country hopped on Baltimore's new general manager when he made the recent deal which sent the club's star pitcher, Bob Turley, to the New York Yankees along with fellow-hurler, Don Larsen and catcher Billy Hunter.

They were manhandling him with a fine twice-over-heavily of type because of the swap, claiming that Richards merely handed the Yankees the pennant. In New York, they were busy celebrating the victory of next year's championship even before spring training started—leave alone the season. The Gotham scribes were wondering what sort of hypnosis Yankee boss George Weiss employed to swing a deal of this sort.

But they didn't figure that maybe Richards knew what he was doing. At least one observer—right here, in this corner—feels that the deal will help Baltimore, too. It so happens that Paul's mother didn't raise any foolish children. He knows what he's doing.

Granted that it was tough to give up a strong pitcher such as Turley who has promise and speed. Sure, Larsen has possibilities and ditto for Hunter. But the fact remains that even with these players, Baltimore had a sorry club which wobbled along in the stygian gloom of the American League's lower regions last year.

And after all, this was a team which—at St. Louis in 1953 and Baltimore last season—dropped 200 games in two years! That's hardly the sort of recommendation which speaks for the calibre of the playing roster facing Richards when he took over his new job.

So he did what he had to do—make a deal. Naturally, there's a calculated risk that any time a trade is made, it can be for the worse. But in Baltimore's case, how much worse can it get?

In this particular situation, the odds are that Richards will be vindicated—in strong fashion. He has acquired players who can help him and men who can provide the sort of spirit and personnel changes needed by the Orioles. Could be that the man's right when he follows the trade with the comment: "We're going to be a first division contender now."

Consider the possibilities, especially in view of the fact that Richards is far from through. He has other material to deal off and he declares that there will be a 50 per cent turnover on the Baltimore club before the start of the 1955 baseball pennant race.

Baltimore has acquired a fine, hustling outfielder in Gene Woodling, the Fair Lawn squire who was a key factor in the New York Yankees' pennant-winning years even though his role was underplayed time and again by the press and the customers. Woodling turned in important contributions at the plate and in the field during the five championship seasons the club enjoyed and the odds are that he has plenty of good baseball left.

It's more than just a coincidence that the season in which he suffered the most—Woodling was out with injuries most of the time and hamstrung by them even when playing—the Yankees failed to win the American League pennant. The odds are that if Woodling and Phil Rizzuto had been even close to their top form, they would have picked up the marbles again—with all due respect for Cleveland's record win total.

But the Baltimore front office isn't concerned with that. What interests the Orioles and their manager is that Woodling reports himself physically ready and confident of a resurgence at the plate next season. With Woodling sound and such young prospects as catchers Gus Triandos and Hal Smith acquired in this trade along with pitchers Harry Byrd and Jim McDonald, as well as shortstop Willie Miranda, Baltimore may wind up with the last laugh after all.

A trade can be extremely deceptive. As proven often through the years, a club can appear to be strictly out-guessed on exchange of players, yet come out on top all the way once the season's played. It could be that way with Baltimore.

So, don't figure on hanging Richards next season. By that time, he may be too busy trying on halos for size!

THE EDITOR SPEAKS

There has been a terrific hue and cry in Paterson about the terrifying increase in crime, and all sorts of remedies are suggested to stop or at least decrease the lawlessness.

The most necessary "cure," according to the Board of Aldermen, is an immediate passage of a curfew law. It has also been suggested that more police should once again be supplied with night sticks and patrol the streets such as they did many years ago. But the majority of the people 'don't want to run Paterson as a police state.'

Much of the present crime situation is "emotional and caused by war, the failure of society to provide adequate recreational facilities in crowded areas, and a breakdown in the homes and in religious training."

One of the appalling facts in connection with crime is the fact that an inordinately large percentage of crimes are committed by juveniles.

I agree that there has been a letdown of home life and of religion training, and I also agree some of the ugly business on lack of recreational facilities.

Juvenile delinquency is rampant not only in Paterson, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Detroit, St. Louis and other large cities.

In a little community of 200 souls, three boys of early teen-age were recently arrested for breaking into local stores and stealing candy, cigarettes, comic books and a number of other things of little value.

In another town, not far away, the teen-age son of a respectable merchant, whose wife is very busy with all sorts of club affairs, was nabbed for burglary. There have been several other arrests in the same town of youngsters, sons of decent, yea well-known parents.

No, dear friends, you'll never do away with crime by passing a curfew law, much temporary good as it may do, any more than you will cure a skin cancer by putting a plaster on it.

Something has gone altogether wrong not with our police forces but with our moral forces. Unfortunately, it will take much longer to get us back on the right path morally than to apply the plaster of a curfew law.

It seems to me that there ought to be a quick getting together of our parents, our teachers and our church people to find out first what and where the disease is and then to find a better remedy than a curfew law or policemen swinging nightsticks over the heads of youngsters.

I maintain that crime, an expression of juvenile delinquency, is inherited. Until we know the origin we will never be able to find the cure.

Perhaps a little SELF-ANALYSIS might help a lot.

EDITORIAL

Curfew Law Unwarranted

On Monday evening the Board of Aldermen meet to further discuss the enactment of curfew legislation. No one but an old ostrich would deny that something needs to be done concerning this gnawing problem. The advent of a curfew law might serve to diminish juvenile delinquency to a certain degree and to some extent would provide a measure of safety to our young people.

Notwithstanding, it is not an easy matter to legislate against certain activities involving a city such as ours.

In the first place, Paterson is the hub of a metropolitan area. Here we have an influx of people from Haledon, North Haledon, Totowa Boro, Little Falls and any number of smaller municipalities. Do we have the right to prohibit or limit the activities of young people from these areas? Many of these juvenile suburbanites are employed in Paterson as messengers, clerks, pinboys in bowling alleys, etc.

Most of these employed youngsters, whether from the suburbs or from Paterson proper, come from low income families who need the economic help that the small wages provide. Are we in a position to deprive these families of this revenue?

In terms of the total juvenile population the number of problems involved are relatively few. Serious it is true, but to create a quasi police state is unwarranted.

We need a greater amount of active citizen participation in meeting the problems faced by our youngsters. Expanded social activities, greater and more extended recreational facilities in school and out, the establishment of a City-wide youth council under adult supervision.

To create a sense of belonging and to develop the feeling that they are needed would do more than to pass a law causing kids to hide in alleys and to perpetrate all sorts of vile acts before the curfew limit.

Let's get together as many civic organizations as we can. Women's Clubs, Veteran Groups, Labor Unions, Service Clubs and Fraternal organizations. A little collective thinking out loud could do much to bring about a more feasible solution than a curfew law which could only tend to give all youngsters a common problem around which they could gather to do greater harm in their attempt to find a way "out".

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

If you have missed the last Kinsey report — since the price may have been a little too much for just plain amateurs — you may want to read a new book just published by Praeger, titled "Animal Courtship." You can get that one for $4 and probably derive at least as much benefit from it as from the other, and at half the price.

It tells you all about the wooing and mating habits of squids, and flies, robins and elephants, and there is just a remote chance that human beings may also get a few valuable pointers for their own courtships out of this new book by Dr. Maurice Burton, who is deputy keeper of zoology at the British Museum of Natural History, and thus has more than a speaking acquaintance with most animals.

I should like to share with you the courting and mating of such prosaic things as moths and spiders. Although it might be appropriate to say that the female spider spins her web when her wooer comes to his appointment.

I am telling you this only to show you how important it is for EVERY wooer to approach his lady-love right, so he doesn't come to harm.

As a matter of fact, my only intention in writing on this book at all is to show you how you may apply the courting habits of the animal world to your own life, provided you are young enough to go courting these days.

I have no intention to be sarcastic like the reviewer who compared the kisses elephants bestow upon each other with the kisses of "human husbands, greeting their wives with smack when the 5:15 reaches the home suburb." Nor will I agree with him that a ravenous schoolboy, in his courtship, "is not different from a fish, after all."

But what I do want to point out to all wooers is for instance the fact that robins as well as robins do their courting by giving their girl friends gifts of food, which makes the ladies more sympathetic. This does not mean, of course, that a human young lady will be satisfied with an angleworm, like a lady robin. I think that a little bracelet or at least orchids would be much more appropriate.

Another case from which young men might well draw a lesson is that of the bird of paradise. It is not true, contrary to general belief, that the female bird of paradise runs to the brightest-hued male wooing her. The ladies of the species usually prefer vigor and vitality to beauty.

Thus, in human courtship it's probably much more practical for a young man to be filled with Vitamin B than to wear those abominable Hawaiian sport-shirts in order to attract a girl's attention.

The author also tells us that in most cases the well-fed female is more responsive to the approaching male than a hungry one. With the multitude of good restaurants now existing in most communities of any size, this should not be much of a problem to the average young male, provided, of course, that his exchequer is in harmony with the lady's appetite.

Just one final warning. There is evidence in the animal world that lady birds who have not had their normal quota of sleep are unusually responsive to gentlemen of the species. That is something I definitely do NOT recommend to humans. It might get you in trouble with your girl's parents.

Gordon Canfield has proven to be far and beyond one of the outstanding political personalities of our time. So much so that it appears to be utter folly for the Democrats to even consider any candidate to oppose him. The Congressman has endeared himself to a wide cross-section of our people to such a degree that independent Democrats and Republicans are beginning a grass-roots movement to make him the U. S. Senator in 1956. Unquestionably, he has earned the honor. If such comes to pass, Gordon will get support from many unexpected quarters.

This column wants to commend the Veritans Club for the outstanding community leadership. Softly and without fanfare the Veritans Organization is gaining considerable momentum with respect to their membership. Businessmen and women in all sections of the city and county are seeking membership. This group bears watching.

Who are the bigwigs involved in a democratic plot soon to be hatched?

FILM DEPT: Sam Shumer has been around the motion picture industry for close to 30 years so when the be-spectacled hard of the Bellevue Theatre in Upper Montclair utters a statement one is bound to listen with rapt attention.

Which is exactly what the conductor of this weekly pillar did when the same Mr. Shumer indicated without any fear of contradiction that "Mr. Hulot's Holiday," now playing at this establishment, is the funniest motion picture that he has seen in the past 30 years.

This French import, which won the chief prize at the annual Film Festival in Cannes, stars Jacques Tati. This guy is really something to see. He not only acts in this splendid comedy but is also the producer, director, co-author, co-director as well as being the star of the film.

"Mr. Hulot's Holiday" is very lush screen fare for people with jangled nerves. It's a throwback to the days when Charlie Chaplin was at his best.

Tati works similar to the way the great Chaplin did. He does more with a grimace, a scowl, a leer, and a pout than some of Hollywood's highly publicized citizens do with the prepared script.

There's not much talking in this picture. It's all done with pantomime, numerous sounds, and a group of slick French actors and actresses. We certainly recommend it.

BIG TOWN JOTTINGS: Eartha Kitt, the sultry bombshell who burst on Broadway in Leonard Sillman's "New Faces", has made her dramatic debut as a 15-year-old girl in Guthrie McClintic's production of "Mrs. Patterson," a new play by Charles Sebree and Greer Johnson with music by James Shelton, at the National Theatre.

and creates, out of fantasy, her real self." Enid Markey is featured as "Mrs. Patterson," a Southern society matron who only appears in Teddy's dream world.

Ruth Attaway acts Anna Hicks, Teddy's mother who works for Mrs. Patterson. Avon Long lends his agile talents to the role of Mr. D, a benevolent devil. Helen Dowdy, fondly recalled as the Strawberry Woman in all the productions of "Porgy and Bess," is seen in the role of Bessie Bolt, a blues singer confined by the devil to live in a tree in Teddy's yard. Estelle Hemsley, who scored last season as the cantankerous Grandma in "Take a Giant Step", portrays a religious zealot in the comedy-fantasy. Vinie Burrows and Terry Carter play a pair of Teddy's neighboring playmates. Emory Richardson has the role of Sylvanus, a rich "night farmer." The misses Mary Harmon, Mary Ann Hoxworth, and Joan Morgan play the Embree Sisters, a trio of Southern belles.

JIMMY DURANTE, the lovable comedian, is enchanted with the southern accent of winsome Mary Kosloski, poster girl for March of Dimes. Mary's from Collierville, Tenn.

ACTRESS ILONA MASSEY makes a pretty target for the cameramen at a gala (aren't they all?) movie premiere in New York. It was joint benefit for infirmary and a hospital.

THE BEST OF BROADWAY. Dorothy McGuire, John Payne (left) and Richard Carlson head the all-star cast that will present Philip Barry's three-act comedy, "The Philadelphia Story," on "The Best of Broadway" color series, Wednesday, Dec. 8, on the CBS Television Network. Herbert Marshall, Mary Astor, Charles Winninger and Dick Foran are co-starred with the above trio.

ONE OF THE GREATEST folk-singers in the country today, Erl Ives, will be featured in a concert at the Bellevue Theatre in Upper Montclair tomorrow night under the auspices of the Lauter Concert Series. The concert is already reported to be a complete sell-out.

Chronicle Televiews

By KATHY STARK

The biggest underwater movie ever filmed in Hollywood history, one of the highlights of "Operation Undersea," seventh program in Walt Disney's ABC-TV series, DISNEYLAND, Wednesday, Dec. 8, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., EST, will bring on the ocean floor 20 actor-divers in front of the camera and 22 technicians behind it. This record-breaking troupe, sent to the Bahama Islands to film sequence of Disney's theatrical CinemaScope feature "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," were themselves the subjects of this revealing behind-the-scenes glimpses at the methods of production. A special camera team not only recorded a step-by-step account of their operations but also photographed the fascinating marine and plant life in the watery world.

An animated cartoon "history" of man's attempts to conquer the sea will round out the December 8th Disneyland program.

"Of mine, too," whispered Sam. "Believe me!"

Louie was tough, but Louie was away dickering with a big-shot chain of furriers—Locke & Pelman—to form a partnership. Things weren't going so well for Faner, Inc.

The end of the world for Sam. Louie would know that cape in a dark cellar at midnight. Well, all they could do was let the maitre d'hotel lead them past Louie's

When Grandpa came to visit

It always became an extra-special day when Grandpa came to visit. Remember? There was always something extra-nice for us in his pocket. And only Grandpa had a big railroad watch with the magic ticking that never failed to intrigue us.

Maybe that's why we remembered the things he told us so like when he took a coin out of his pocket and slipped it away when Mother and Dad weren't watching and whispered "Put this away for a rainy day." It was so hard not to spend it but we put the money in our bank and waited. And we were happy we had.

Yes, Grandpa was wise and his advice was sound. And it was more difficult not to spend extra money when it was so necessary it is to provide for the future of our children's. That's why eight million Americans are putting something aside each payday—"on the Payroll Savings Plan."

Why don't you sign up and tell the people in your pay office how much you want to save each payday? They put it aside for you. When enough accumulates, they pay and turn over to you a U. S. Series E Savings Bond. And Bonds now pay 3% interest for as long as 19 years and 8 months! Get the Bond habit now!

If you want your interest as current income, ask your banker about 3% Series H Bonds that pay interest semi-annually by Treasury check.

Choose your own savings goal

	If you want approximately
	$5,000	$10,000	$25,000
Each week for 9 years and 8 months, save	$8.80	$18.75	$45.00
Each week for 19 years and 8 months, save	$3.75	$7.50	$18.75

This chart shows only a few typical examples of savings goals and how to reach them through Payroll Savings. Remember, you can save any sum you wish, from a couple of dollars a payday up to as much as you want. The important thing is, start your Plan today!
