PREAMBLE

We, the settlers of Jersey Homesteads, find ourselves here by virtue of the fact that the government of our land decided to take a number of families from the currently heavily populated areas of the large cities and settle them on the land, and at the same time, to combine agriculture with industry. For this purpose the government purchased a parcel of land and built 200 homes and a large factory, so that the chosen settlers may have a place to live and work. A parcel of land was also divided to serve as a farm.

Taking into consideration that only the first part, that is, the choice of families and the occupation of the homes, has been accomplished, and taking into further consideration that there are still large parts that have to be accomplished, both through negotiations with the government and through tasks which must be done within our own ranks, and taking into further consideration the fact that all the organizations which we have had have been of an economic nature, it has therefore been decided to organize an association which which would represent the interests of all the included settlers.
