The Headworker's Report

As we have issued no report since 1919 our present one will naturally include the principle features of the settlement from April 1919 to April 1922. This will also be our twenty-eighth annual report, for it will be twenty-eight years the fourteenth of May since we began our Whittier House life; a life we trust lived "In deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial."

The essential features of our surroundings have changed but little since our report was printed two years ago.

Our first ward in which we are located is largely foreign and within it are living many differing races and nationalities, enacting in every day life the suspicions, jealousies, distrusts and hatreds of their individual races and of the home countries from which they have come. Into these disruptions we can enter but sympathetically. Believing as we do so thoroughly in brotherhood and living and hoping and praying that the, "one far off divine event to which the whole creation moves," may be world democracy, we work along undaunted, though at times terribly discouraged by the seeming relapse from the close coming together and seeming to understand each other of many creeds and many nationalities during the war days, listen patiently to the woes imaginary or real, as related by the suffering narrator, advise where we can, but wonder at the same time how we should feel and act were we in another land living perhaps in close proximity to other peoples who were constantly attacking both at home and abroad our own home country and our highly prized American ideals, and so listening we try to prove ourselves the friend, "To a stricken brother true, whatever clime hath nurtured him" and thus to us, "fade the lines of caste and birth," and every one is our brother.

These two years of silence so far as the publishing of the yearly report is concerned have been as usual crowded full of work. The settlement has had coming to it many more demanding clubs and classes than we could well attend to, for our corp of volunteers has been rapidly diminishing and our finances have been such that the paid worker has had to be exceedingly limited. It has been with great regret that we have seen boys and girls leaving us, clubs that we have cherished most highly have had to be given up because it has seemed to be impossible to impress upon our friends the impossibility of carrying on work without workers. Sometimes we have wondered if an organization which has been established in a community and which has thoroughly proved itself a necessity and which so seems to those working in it, is after all so regarded by the public at large, and whether twenty-eight years of hard work and of constant sacrifice and deprivations do seem worth while to any except the many to whom are constantly denied admission and counsel.

Into these two years of silence so far as the non-publishing of the yearly report was concerned, have come also great disaster and great joy.

For five years our health activities were located in a small house adjacent to the settlement, but this building was totally undesirable and insufficient for carrying on this department of our settlement and as its work enlarged we saw that another location must be obtained. Even for this crowded little house we were indebted to the generous kindness of a prominent business man in Jersey City who, as we neared our five years' occupation of these quarters which we had completely outgrown, after much searching, bought and equipped another house on our street, an old mansion of former days, and then presented to Whittier House Association this thoroughly improved and beautifully equipped building.

From the very inception of this Health Center department, Miss Clara Ames, a resident of Whittier House, has been its director. Two physicians, Dr. Edwinna Dusenbery, and a baby specialist, Dr. J. L. Rosenstein, are in almost daily attendance, while Dr. G. K. Dickinson, the twenty-eight year old friend of Whittier House, watches over this phase of Whittier House as sympathetically and lovingly as he does over the entire settlement. In our Health Center mothers congregate for advice and for friendly warning and for the always interesting talk about their babies, the school children come to it for noon luncheons and for noon playing, and so with the gathering of the mothers, the babies, the school children, it may indeed be called a center for the neighborhood.

If this fine new Health Center of which we are justly proud and for which we are devoutly thankful contributed greatly during the past year to our "doing", the burning of our summer camp at Pomona contributed as greatly to our "undoing".

"CENTADRIKERS" AT HEALTH CENTER

(Note: Can of milk donated during Milk Week; "loose" milk is never used in milk preparations.)

Last May, as we were making our plans for the opening of our summer work, came the telephone message that the farm house and barns were gone, destroyed by fire. Consternation, grief, almost despair settled upon us. Long and tedious had been the labor that finally gave to us our greatly cherished Pomona. Now all was gone, not only buildings but all the household equipment as well. For seven years we had happily occupied this little camp unmindful of all inconveniences. In it we had spent happy days and week ends and had considered the time spent there the most joyful time of our lives. Many a tired mother and sick child can testify to the benefit from this Whittier House Camp up there in the Ramapo Hills, many an over-worked wage earner, because of the time spent there, has been able to come back to the city rejuvenated, and made fit for the winter's work, indeed many a city home has been the happier all winter long because of the Pomona days. Now, alas! all is changed. Last summer we had no camp. The tired mothers and the anaemic babies and children were taken by us as often as possible on day trips, or if the weather were not too hot or the mother too weary, or the baby too ill to go, then all that was left for them were the cramped and stifling room of the tenement house and the dirty, seething pavements of the city.

To rebuild is a necessity. It is not only the duty of Whittier House to provide a place of recreation and of rest for the over-worked, impoverished mother and the ailing child, but it is the duty of all interested in humanity to help come into existence a new building, simple, unpretentious and to make a Pomona Camp again not a possibility, but a reality.

Up there in Pomona are our one hundred and thirty acres awaiting for us, ready to be built upon; there are the green fields, the babbling brook, the surrounding wood, ready and waiting for us. Surely in the bosom of some kind friend the milk of human kindness must impel to a consideration of the less fortunate neighbor; to the desire of helping to provide a place of health, rest, recreation, country life, for the lower Jersey City children who otherwise will have to be in lower Jersey City the whole summer through; in other words, the milk of human kindness must impel some friend or friends to the rebuilding of the camp at Pomona.

May not that person be you, oh, kind and generous reader? May it be you who will bring back the days at Pomona and so outdo the ruthless act of an insane boy who has taken from the children of lower Jersey City what has meant to them life and health.

Cornelia Bradford.

Pomona as We Knew It

No one outside the realms of Whittier House can realize what a tragedy occurred on May 12th, 1921. For everyone, from the mothers' club down to the tiniest "cent-a-drinker", Pomona was the "Promised Land". Mothers, young and old, are continually asking, "Will the camp open this summer? Annie or Willie is saving up!" And very few of us know what pinching 'savin' up' is, in these days, in "Gammontown," or "on the Canal."

When the young folks gather, the talk invariably swings around to "Past Pleasures at Pomona." "Minerva," the pig, comes in for her share of anecdotes; old "Chester," the horse, is remembered; cherrypicking parties are gone over; hikes to High Thor; and rambles through the woods are retraced step by step. Then the Hallowee'n parties and the straw ride, in a regular springless farm wagon; a full, clear moon; "Hen" playing the harmonica! What wonderful reds, browns and yellows those trees down by the brook were! Remember that bob-sled party. Aw, what's the use? That Aladdin guy is dead!

But it's the mothers who will miss Pomona. It was the one real break in the year's dull cycle. No wonder a week at Pomona was looked forward to! It was a place where the kids could tumble to their hearts' content; a week of no scolding and fretting; a place where the magic breezes, laden with health, soothed the care-drawn face, taking the puckers from the eyes and placing them at the lips. Smiles, little fearful ones at first, quickly repressed, but gladsome when nature smiles back and laughter quickly follows.

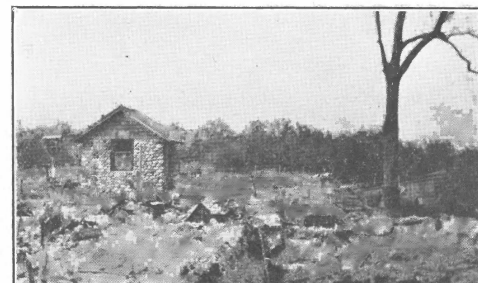

In the broad pastures, the sterner sex, clad in rompers and overalls, tumble about like puppies, climb fences and fling stones, forbidden, of course, but "dere ain't no cops around." Their sisters, tired of shrieking admonitions and hurling threats that they're "gonna tell mommer", stroll off to pick flowers for the "beautiful lady" at the house.

Mother sits and gazes out over the valley and between the hills where lies the Hudson. The youngest has been lulled to sleep. The lazily nodding trees murmur a drowsy song all their own. A bee buzzes vibrantly. She closes her eyes and whispers to the hills, "God IS good!"

James Brady, Member of Pomona Association.

COUNTRY ROAD, POMONA

Ruins of Whittier House Camp

The Challenge of Pomona

The summer camp at Pomona, which afforded a summer holiday to many children, young men, young women, mothers and babies of Jersey City for seven years, was destroyed by fire in May last year.

The house itself was a very simple, inexpensive farm-house. The out houses, in which the boys camped, were even more crude and unfinished. All the buildings which offered shelter and such great pleasure to the many who found there their summer holiday, were simple and inexpensive. But now, even those buildings are gone.

Last summer, many mothers with little children, who needed a summer outing, and could have had it at Pomona for a small sum, except for the fire, —spent their whole summer in the heat and noise of the city.

Pomona not only supplied this summer vacation to mothers and children, but to the girls and boys and young women and young men of Jersey City.

There must be in Jersey City men and women who are financially able and who have the love of their fellows in their hearts to prompt them to replace these old buildings with new buildings better adapted to the uses to which they should be put.

We cannot but wonder if there isn't some father or mother, who has lost a son or daughter, who would find comfort in the giving of a building in memory of such a child.

There properly should be at Pomona a house for boys and young men, a house for girls and young women, but above all, there should be a house for mothers and little children.

As Whittier House Health Center is meeting the need of Jersey City, so Pomona should carry on the work outside of Jersey City, giving the children a respite from the heat of the summer.

The camp at Pomona was situated on a farm of about 130 acres, owned by Whittier House. Whittier House is anxious to make it an institution that shall minister to the needs of Jersey City.

Richard Boardman, President.

123 Grand Street

The great event of the year 1921-1922 in the health work of Whittier House, was the moving from the little house at 178 Grand Street to the building at 123 Grand Street, our new Health Center. The house was by no means ready for us, which, with the unusual heat, made the summer a very hard one for the babies and workers. The mothers and fathers of the mess of Dr. E. B. Kent, Director of Manual Training, some of the school boys neighborhood were very helpful at the time of moving. Through the kind-helped repaint the furniture we took with us and made four enameled tables.

Seventy-one babies of various nationalities were cared for. At one time we had three sets of twins. The youngest was a mite of 4 pounds, 12 hours old, his mother having died at his birth. There have been many very bad cases of rickets, and many of bronchitis. One, 18 months old, weighing 11 pounds, had double pneumonia. Sunday when her mother saw her she remarked that "now Florence looked like a real baby." Another little one has been back three times and is now going to stay until discharged, and not be taken home "because parents miss her."

There have been 21,268 day feedings prepared and sent to the babies in their own homes.

Cent-a-Drink Milk has been very popular. 24,926 glasses have been sold during the year. This activity became very well-known during Milk Week, August 8th to 15th, when a contest was held, with two prizes awarded, one to the child gaining most weight in a week, and the other to the child bringing in the most children for milk.

The Nutrition Class on Friday afternoons has a membership of over 1,800. 1,316 new children have joined. We have weighed 9,533 children. Only 390 of the entire class are 10 per cent underweight, which is a much lower per centage than last year.

A group of children attending the Polish School were much underweight. It was found that they lived some distance from the school and brought their lunches. They were invited to come to the Health Center, eat their luncheons and buy milk. At first five came. Then as the weather grew colder, they asked for warm milk and later we served hot soup at five cents per dish. Now thirty or more are there daily, bringing their bread or rolls and fruit and buying the soup or milk, in place of their cake or buns of which their lunch consisted before. These children are now practically all up to weight, and look like different boys and girls.

Clara Ames, Director

Whittier House Council

One of the most important of our purposes in all our activities for young people, is education for self-government, or development of citizenship. Believing in democracy, Whittier House has always been anxious that those who are affected by the settlement should discuss, supervise and regulate the work of the settlement. A number of years ago this function was performed by a Governing Board of club members. Then old clubs scattered, and new clubs entered, and in the fall of 1919, a new but similar organization known as the House Council was formed.

The House Council has made remarkable progress since the last report was published, in developing its own organization, in uniting the clubs for the interests of Whittier House as a whole and of the neighborhood, and in assuming responsibility for settlement activities.

Composed of three representatives of each club whose members average more than fifteen years of age, three members of the Board of Directors, three neighbors, and three resident workers, the Council includes representatives of each group affected by the settlement. The chairman and vice-chair are at present resident workers; the secretary and treasurer, elected club members. Meetings are held on the first Monday of the month.

For two years the Council has carried on an honor club contest, developing a system of merits by which a record of the conduct of the clubs is kept. At the end of each year it awards an honor pennant to the club maintaining the best conduct throughout the year. A Pool Room Committee has had charge of the pool room three evenings each week this year. The Entertainment Committee has arranged for numerous speakers to appear before "open" meetings of the Council, and has planned entertainment for special occasions. A Visiting Committee makes tours of inspection of New York settlements, attending other House Council meetings, and returning with suggestions for Whittier House Council. The office of Treasurer was an important development this year. Individual membership fees and monthly club dues to the House Council are collected by this officer. Membership in the Council is considered a great privilege.

Isabel L. Taylor, Associate Head Worker, Chairman of House Council

Whittier House Record

For ten years Whittier House has continuously published a monthly periodical. By this means a large group of Whittier House friends has been kept informed of important events and of changing aspects of the work. The annual Gala Week numbers of the paper, for which advertisements are solicited, have been unusually successful in the last two years. In 1921, the sum of $288. was collected, and in 1922, $307. Part of this sum is annually turned over to the Gala Week Fund, for various settlement needs, and the remainder is kept in the treasury of Whittier House Record. We are able to start the new year in better financial condition than ever before, and expect to introduce many new features in our monthly publication in the coming year.
