Transcript of the Interview with Yasheng Huang

China Boom Project, Asia Society

2012

Yasheng Huang,

Professor of Global Economics and Management, MIT

Industry: Academics

Yasheng Huang teaches political economy and international management at MIT Sloan School of Management. His previous appointments include faculty positions at the University of Michigan and at Harvard Business School. He was also a consultant to the World Bank. Huang is the author of Inflation and Investment Controls in China (1996), FDI in China (1998), Selling China (2003), Financial Reform in China (2005, co-edited with Tony Saich and Edward Steinfeld), and, most recently, Capitalism with Chinese Characteristics (2008).