A sleeping firefly
on my little brother's grave -
the morning dew.

My little brother lies beneath the dewy grass,
a sleeping firefly.

A sleeping firefly
on a blade of dewy grass... my little brother's grave.

The open grave

In the folded flag,
within his mother's arms,
six empty shells.

In the folded flag,
in his weeping mother's arms,
six empty shells.

A sea of fireflies
stretching over the graveyard:
the Milky Way.

On a blade of grass,
on my little brother's grave:
a sleeping firefly.

In the valley in the darkness,
Company D was overrun
By a sudden wave of sappers -

In the valley in the darkness,
Company D was overrun
By waves of suicide soldiers -
Exploding mortars like the sun!

In the valley in the darkness,
Though outnumbered five to one,
Delta butted, knifed and booted:
Delta made the enemy run!

In the valley in the sunlight
Lay the wounded and the dead:
Corporal Lawrence Virgilio
With shrapnel in his head.
An unknown bird sang that morning:
An unknown flower blood-red.

The old church steeple rising up from the city pricks the autumn moon.

The old steeple clock over the darkened city, differs with the dawn.

The short stormy night: puddles through the cornfield catch the sudden dawn
