RADICAL CHANGES MADE IN WINANTS DURING HOLIDAYS

Work on Walls and Ceilings Improves Old Building
To Large Degree

THE ACTIVITY CONTINUES

Expect to Accomplish Many Repairs
Before Completion

Winants hall has been undergoing radical improvements since December 17 and the work was speeded up during the Christmas vacation so that the second and third floors of the north end might be completed by the end of the holidays. Workmen are now busy on the third floor of the south end and, after this and the second floor of the same end are completed, work will begin on the center section of the building. The top floor will not be touched until next summer after the roof has been repaired, but it is expected that the second and third stories of the entire building will be finished in three or four weeks.

The work done so far includes the re-plastering of the walls and ceilings in cream color, hanging new doors and transoms, painting the doors and woodwork in mahogany, and laying linoleum of green, brown, and gray on the floors of the respective floors. The students whose rooms are being renovated have been asked to double up with their neighbors while the work is going on.

The lavatories are also to undergo sweeping changes which will bring them up to date and will give them all the conveniences of the more recently built dorms. The bath tubs will be removed and showers installed in their places, a new type of toilet and other modern plumbing will be put in, and the walls and floors will be covered with the newly-invented Kromolipic composition. The improvements have already produced such an effective change that it has surprised even those in charge of the work and it is probable that appropriations will be extended to include new skylights and stairs. New furniture, consisting of beds, dressers, desks and chairs, was bought for the second and third floors last summer and similar furnishings have now been ordered for the fourth floor.

Winants was the subject of a storm of criticism from the Federal investigating committee which called it one of the worst dorms in the country after their visit in 1927. The present improvements, however, are removing all grounds for such attacks and Winants, which was when completed in 1890, the outstanding dormitory in the United States, can be used for at least ten years longer without fear of being termed dilapidated.

Certain architectural phases have yet to be settled about the proposed Wessels dormitory and as soon as these are arranged the specifications and contracts will be drawn up. The building is expected to be ready for the summer session in 1930 and it will be located in the vicinity of Hegeman, according to Albert S. Johnson, treasurer of the University. It had been hoped that the new building would be started this spring.

TRACK SQUAD RESUMES LIGHT OUTDOOR DRILLS

Not Bright; Veterans Missing

Practice for the indoor track season was resumed when twenty candidates reported to Coach Bernie Wefers on the outdoor board track, Wednesday. The next two weeks will be devoted to light workouts to condition the men for the intensive practice that will follow.

The loss of Captain Stuart Demarest and Larry Schulman was a severe blow to the relay team, and prospects for a strong quartet this year are not very bright. Jack Carney and Wally Sullivan, veteran quarter-milers, will form the nucleus for the team but as yet there are no outstanding candidates for the other two berths. The most promising men to report so far are Chick Hall, Dick Kazanjian, and Chick O'Neill.

Coach Wefers expects to enter several men in novice races this winter but no definite schedule has been arranged. Howard Bradford and Harry Ellison, both sophomores, are the only sprint candidates to show any promise so far, but prospects in the distance events are brighter. Four cross-country veterans who will run the mile or half mile this season, include Soup Campbell, Bill Simpson, Chick Hall and Arnie Lehlbach.

At present few freshman candidates have reported. Francis Alley, cub miler, is the leading contestant.

Football Banquet To Be Held Next Tuesday at Elks Club

More than one hundred and twenty-five Rutgers football players and followers of the eleven are expected to attend the annual football banquet at the Elks' Club restaurant Tuesday night. The banquet will be the most elaborate affair of its kind in recent years, as the varsity squad, the twenty-eight freshmen numeral winners and the twenty-five jayvee players who won awards, have been invited.

Graduate Manager Rockefeller has not yet announced the program of speakers, but the awarding of letters, numerals, insignias, and sweaters will be the main feature.

Among those expected to attend are the coaches and captains of all Rutgers teams.

U. OF P. DEFEATS SCARLET CAGERS

Gettysburg Quintet is Downed
By Rutgers Aggregation
In Close Game

ALTON IN STELLAR FORM

Rutgers varsity basketball team broke even in its last two contests, downing the Gettysburg University quintet, 27 to 26, on the home court December 14, and dropping a special New Year's night struggle to the University of Pennsylvania five, 24 to 19, at the Palestra court, Philadelphia.

Rutgers succumbed to a belated University of Pennsylvania rally to lose one of the most closely contested basketball games seen at the Palestra, University of Pennsylvania, this season, 24 to 19, Tuesday evening. Rutgers replaced Syracuse in the annual U. of P. New Year's Day basketball game.

Rutgers started off at a furious pace, leading, 13 to 10, at half time. Clay Alton was a thorn in the Red and Blue side, scoring four field goals and one foul, while holding his man, Lazar, to one point. The defensive work of Gaze Kish excited favorable comment as he kept Joey Schaaf, Penn's right forward and leading intercollegiate scorer, from scoring a field goal.

The Scarlet led until the last five minutes of play. Pennsylvania's uncanny ability to realize on its foul shots enabled the Red and Blue to close the gap in the scores and to forge ahead through a rally, which netted goals for Don Noble, John Bonniwell, and Ed Lobley. This flurry of baskets late in the final period proved too much for the Scarlet attack to overcome. Rutgers was able to make only five of its free throws count, while Pennsylvania registered twelve times through the medium of its fouls, more than enough to insure the margin of victory.

D. U.'S BEAT TRITELION, 18-15

Delta Upsilon, the Independents, and the Raritan Club triumphed in intramural basketball games played at Ballantine gymnasium Thursday night. The D. U.'s downed Tritelion Lodge, 18 to 15; the Independents swamped the Cyclone five, 31 to 4, and the Raritan Club easily disposed of the Theta Zeta tossers, 17 to 7.

STUDENTS REQUESTED TO PAY BILLS EARLY

All students are urged to pay their term bills before January 28 to avoid congestion on that day. Students may call at the Registrar's office at any time after January 10 to complete their registration for the second term, and secure and pay their second term bills at the cashier's office. The fee for registration after January 28 is $5.00.

Attention is particularly called to the fact that registration must be complete before attendance at any class. Professors and instructors will be requested not to admit any student for whom the proper card has not been received.

TARGUM COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Members of the junior class will elect their representatives on the Targum Council after chapel Wednesday. The sophomore class representative will be elected after chapel Friday.

DR. SCHOONMAKER SPEAKS

Dr. Hazel E. Schoonmaker, assistant professor of mathematics at the New Jersey College for Women, presented a report at a meeting of the Mathematics Journal Club, Wednesday afternoon.

Prospects of More Vacation Lead Many Loyal Sons To Take Measures to Insure Spread of Influenza

It might be love or it might be flu that is keeping so many men away from school, in spite of the threatened three-hour addition to graduation requirements for cutting classes immediately preceding or following a vacation. We hope it is only flu for there is some chance of recovering from that.

Even with many men not back in college, those here are finding that the flu is more or less prevalent among them. Every man that feels the slightest touch of a cold immediately takes measures to insure himself against the possibility of not getting it, while his friends speak hopefully and give advice as to how to hasten its setting in.

With the prospect of another vacation as soon as enough cases appear, each prospect is hailed and acclaimed by his associates; commiserated with and made to feel as sick as possible; and then, if the result has been favorable, is sent to the doctor while he is still groggy and weak. If the process has been carefully carried out with attention to the finer details, the student body is one case nearer another recess.

In the past men have been known to exclaim, "I'd die for dear old Rutgers," but now the cry is, "I'll be sick for dear old Rutgers." As they notice their friends and roomies dropping under the scourge of this dreadful malady, men in perfect health suddenly feel chills and fever approaching. And with nothing in their minds but thoughts of self-sacrifice for the good of mankind they tell whomever they meet that the dreaded flu has conquered another student.

Yet it may really be the love-call of those whom they left not many days ago which is dragging them from their studies. There is only one way for the doctor to ascertain whether love or illness is affecting them (although both are illnesses). If they are wobbly in the knees it is flu, but if they are all wobbly inside it is love.

DR. CLARENCE PARTCH GIVES TALK OVER WOR

Colonel McCoy, Professors Vertrees, Hayes, and Cook Broadcast
During Holidays

Parents who assume the role of dictator or unduly restrict the freedom of the child in carrying out his own plans in choosing an occupation are taking a wrong course, in the opinion of Dr. Clarence E. Partch, dean of the school of education, who spoke in the weekly Rutgers University program over Station WOR Wednesday night. His topic was "What About a Job for Your Boy?" Dr. Sidney A. Cook, associate professor of psychology at the college for women, discussed "Opportunities for College-Trained Women" in the same program.

Dr. Partch said: "One of the difficult things for parents to realize is that children must live their own lives—that to do this they must make their own choices, and that after a choice is made, they must be given freedom to execute a plan by which they may succeed. The function of the parent in this process should be one of cooperation, of 'standing by' ready to advise and guide the child in making his choice and in planning and executing his work. The parent should never assume the role of dictator and impose a choice or plan of action, nor unduly restrict the freedom of the child in the carrying out of his own plans."

Dean Partch told of the experience a child could gain in the public schools, and said that if a guidance program were

MUSICIANS TO GIVE CONCERT

Rutgers Glee and Instrumental clubs will hold the second of the winter series of concerts at the Spring Lake Community house, Spring Lake, New Jersey, on January 9. The concert will be held under the auspices of the Glendole Grange. The following recital of the clubs will be held at East Orange at the Women's Club, on January 18, under the auspices of the Rutgers Club of East Orange. The program has not yet been announced.

STUDENTS' CRITICISM DESIRED

The Student Council of the University of Washington has asked for a written criticism of the university curriculum from all students, in an effort to aid in the revision of the courses offered by the university.

Class of '29 Introduces Beer Suits in Rutgers Much to the Joy of the Gentlemen White Wings

With the coming of the Class of '29 into its seniority, there has come a new institution to the Rutgers campus—the beer suits. In past years, blazers of varying shades and designs have been the official garb of the seniors, but they have gone. "It may be for years, and it may be forever," said the poet, and the men of Rutgers say the same thing, for the new fad has appealed to the undergraduate body.

Although this costume has been in vogue in many other colleges for years, it has made a new and successful call to the student body. Like so many white wings, plasters, gentlemen mechanics, or what you will, the proud fourth year men wander about the walks of Queen's in their sanitary finery. Its unsullied white, standing for purity, is relieved only by the scarlet '29 on the jumper pocket and the scarlet egg with its emerging black chick.

Yet this very white, according to many wearers, is likely to prove their undoing, for in the event of a sudden rainstorm or a period of snow, they may be forced to resume the clothes of civilization while the treasured overalls are being laundered. Many wish that a serviceable blue or brown had been procured instead of the Galahad-like white.

Whereas, in the past, many men upon being graduated have given their blazers to those of the fairer if not so frailer sex, the new disguises may be retained, if not through being thought unbecoming at least because of their serviceable nature as the ideal Sunday morning suit in which to crawl under the family car and revel in grease.

The more studious members of the class have applauded the suits because of the size and variety of the pockets. The side pockets of the jumper are large enough for a Webster's Dictionary and a thesaurus, while the others may hold sundry pens, pencils, slide-rules, drafting-boards, overshoes, or any other desired articles.

Date for Prom Tentatively Set for Friday, February 22

February 22 and 23 was tentatively decided upon as the date for the Junior Prom week-end at a meeting of the committee held at the Beta Theta Pi house Thursday night. Extensive plans and a few innovations were discussed and will be announced in the near future, according to Charles A. Freeman, chairman of the committee. It is probable that Bennie Kreuger's Paramount Theater orchestra will furnish the music. The committee will meet at the usual place Thursday at 7.30.

TO TAKE PICTURES FOR '30 YEAR BOOK

Senior, Junior, and Group
Photos To Be Made Next Week for Scarlet Letter

FINAL SCHEDULE POSTED

Remaining Scarlet Letter pictures will be taken beginning Monday, according to an announcement Wednesday by J. Whitney Olds '30, photography editor.

Two photographers will be on the campus, one to take the senior portraits, and one to do the remaining groups. Richard C. Boettcher, president of the senior class, will have charge of the senior sittings, and hopes to have them completed during the week.

The groups will be taken outside on the Hamilton street side of Voorhees Library between the hours of four and five. Those groups which must be photographed in dinner coats have been scheduled for Thursday, January 11.

Olds suggests that all men who are to be photographed be present exactly on time, for the pictures can only be taken at the time scheduled because of the lighting. Sweaters should not be worn in any picture. Several groups have to be taken over because of lack of uniformity in dress.

Those juniors who did not have their sittings in October will receive special appointment cards. The individual photos will be taken in the reception room of Ford dormitory. Cards will also be sent to the heads of organizations in hope that they will get in touch with the men in their group.

The four fraternity groups to be rephotographed are Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Ivy club, who will be taken in front of their respective houses.

Monday—Delta Upsilon, after chapel; Freshman "Y" club, 4:00; 1930 Soph-

COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

Suitable celebration will be held at the lifting of freshman rules in February, it was decided by the student council in a short meeting at the Chi Psi lodge Thursday night. The rules will go off on the day before the Junior Prom week-end, which will probably be February 22. It was also decided to hold dances after several of the basketball games. Dates of the games will be decided upon in the near future.

RIFLE TEAM TO ENTER INTERCOLLEGIATE MEET

A team of fifteen members, to represent the R. O. T. C. unit of Rutgers University will start firing next week in the Second Corps Area Intercollegiate Rifle competition.

Teams representing the University of Delaware, University of Porto Rico, Cornell, Syracuse, New York University, the College of the City of New York, and Fordham are also entered, and the winning outfit will represent the Second Corps Area in the National Intercollegiate match.

All scores will be fired on home ranges between January 1 and February 20. Upon completion, scores will be forwarded to the Commanding General of the Corps area, who will announce the winner.

The team representing Rutgers: G. C. Jacobus '29 (Captain), H. H. Meier '30, R. E. Beck '31, N. E. Hoffman '31, C. F. Kenny '31, C. M. Morris '31, R. T. Andrews '32, D. G. Sharp '32, H. Vicinus '32, G. B. Hutchins '32, F. H. Janin '32, G. H. Yettke '32, B. Shmurak '32, W. C. Lawton '32, F. F. Kiecinaky '32.

Alternates—S. B. Webster '32, L. G. Diemer '32, N. Kelsey '32.

SPANISH CLUB MEETS

VARSITY QUINTET FAVORED TO BEAT DREXEL TONIGHT

Philadelphians Have Won Only
One Game; Beaten by Princeton, 39 to 17

SCARLET HAS IMPROVED

Preletz Shows Up Well at Forward;
Kish's Guarding Brilliant

PROBABLE LINE-UP:
Rutgers Position Drexel
Preletz..... Right Forward Ames
Rohrbach..... Center Voorhees
Kish..... Right Guard Grayson

Rutgers varsity basketball team will attempt to break into the winning column again when it meets the Drexel Institute quintet of Philadelphia, Pa., in Ballantine gymnasium, Saturday. The Scarlet basket-tossers will enter the conflict with the advantage of having played one more game so far this season than the Drexel five. To date the record of the Hillmen stands at two defeats and one victory, while the Philadelphia team has lost one and won one. In the 1928 clash of the two teams the Rutgers men were victorious, 42 to 21.

After dropping a close decision to the strong Crescent A. C., the Rutgers court men staged a comeback, defeating Gettysburg, 27 to 26, but were defeated in their last game, 24-19, by the University of Pennsylvania. For the past week the team, under the tutelage of Coach Hill, has been engaging in some strenuous practice sessions. In an effort to smooth off the rough spots apparent in the early season games, much attention has been paid to floor work as well as field goal and foul shooting. In the daily scrimmages the varsity has lined up with Joe Preletz and Stretch Alton at the forward positions, Nellie Rohrbach, center, and Captain Dick Boettcher and Gaze Kish as the guards. Opposing the first string men have been Max Kraichik and Al Adler, forwards, and Bill Meytroff, Karl Gordimer, and Bob Reed at the guard posts. Several of these men will probably see action in Saturday's game.

With several veterans as a nucleus, the Drexel Institute basketball five has rapidly rounded into a first class, speedy outfit. In the opening game of the 1928 campaign the Philadelphia five defeated the Philadelphia Textile College, 31 to 19. The powerful Princeton university combination proved to be too much for the Drexel team, defeating the Philadelphians, 39 to 17, December 9. In both of these conflicts the Drexel basketball combination has shown itself to be a clever and speedy aggregation, which should furnish plenty of opposition for Coach Hill's basket tossers.

WALTER MILLS TO SING HERE

Appearing in the second concert of the winter series, Walter Mills, baritone, will sing in Ballantine gymnasium Monday night. Mr. Mills has been heard in similar concerts here before and to those who heard him in his past performances he needs no introduction. Caruso called Mr. Mills the outstanding baritone of the country.

BEQUESTS TO RUTGERS MADE BY EDGAR BACON

$35,000 to be Used for Scholarships for New Jersey Residents

Requests of $35,000 to Rutgers and $15,000 to the New Jersey College for Women have been made under the will of the late Edgar B. Bacon of Jersey City, according to a recent announcement by President John M. Thomas. Both bequests are to be used for scholarships. One of the men's scholarships is to be known as the Morris Bacon Scholarship and is established in memory of Mr. Bacon's father. It is open to prospective students (preferably those in agriculture) residing in Cumberland county, N. J., and especially those who live or have lived in Greenwich township. Another scholarship is the Edgar B. Bacon Scholarship in Journalism and will be open to competition to prospective students residing in Hudson county. The third scholarship will be entitled The Edgar B. Bacon Scholarship and will be open to competition to prospective students residing in Hudson county without restriction as to course of study.

The scholarships in the New Jersey College for Women will be known as the Carrie Whiton Bailey Bacon Scholarships and will be open to competition to all young women of New Jersey desiring to go to college. One of the scholarships for women will be in music.

Rutgers University under the will of Mr. Bacon will also receive a portion of his residuary estate. The amount to be received under the residuary clause is not known.

Stick Around, Santa!

Vacation is over! Has been for several days according to the college calendar but after every sort of effort to disbelieve it has come to no avail we are just beginning to realize how true it is. Just now, when we found it necessary to sit down at the old typewriter again in order to pound out a few lines for some of you to read, we realized the vacation had ended. It's hard to get back into the customary pre-holiday routine—just as hard for us as it is for the rest of you. But such is life! Rains always did have the habit of following on the heels of sunshine, although we must admit, this one followed too closely for comfort.

But then—aren't you all glad to be back here? We can't help but have some such feelings and we hope there are others with the same kind. You wouldn't want to see Santa Claus every day in the year, would you? We wouldn't, as we discovered that the old fellow needed help pretty badly this year. And you wouldn't want to have that New Year's Eve party every night, would you? We're pretty sure that too many days in succession would be a bit of a strain on the constitution. And those other days? You wouldn't want to spend many more just sleeping and eating—getting lazy and growing fat—with no cares in the world, would you? We're certain that such a life would become monotonous, just as our work here sometimes does.

It's difficult to leave those good things behind us, isn't it? But then you know that "variety is the spice of life" and we can't get along without a change of scenery once in a while. Don't you think the administration and faculty realize this need? We should say they do, for aren't they helping us out by giving us another variety in a couple of weeks? Let's all hope that Santa hasn't gone too far from our climes!

Who Said Beer?

"Well, maybe they won't look so bad when they're dirty."—a sophomore.

"My Lord! do they have painters in this college now?"—an N. J. C. junior.

"Pretty smooth, don't you think so?"—a Rutgers senior.

What is this everyone is talking about? Why, the new beer suits, of course. They came out the other day and the seniors have been parading about in them in all their glory, provoking such comments as the above. As is noticed by these bits of conversation, opinions about the new regalia are varied.

Regardless of the truth of the matter, and the truth in this instance must depend upon individual viewpoint, there is little doubt that the suits represent a new departure in class regalia for seniors at Rutgers. And any change is in itself a good thing, no matter how it is received. Seniors and all the rest of the college had grown tired of the blazer idea and have welcomed beer suits with a great deal of gusto.

Several decorations on the suits require special attention. The one on the back reminds one instantly of the memorable

Inquiring Reporter

With the approach of midyear examinations the question of cribbing on exams comes up and the means of curbing are discussed. The honor system is often brought up as a method of doing away with dishonesty in the classroom. The main issue is whether Rutgers should return to this plan which was abandoned within the last decade. Student opinion is generally against the return to the old system. Opinions of several prominent members of the undergraduate body on the questions are presented in this issue.

Eugene Mullen '30, cheer leader, is in favor of a return to the old system, but he believes that it is impossible under the state university. "I feel that the honor system is an excellent method of controlling dishonesty on tests and that it should return to Rutgers. This plan went out of existence at Rutgers at the time when the state university came in and it can never be resumed successfully as long as the state-controlled college exists."

"Rutgers has too many students today of the commuter type for the welfare of the college. The purpose of these men in seeking an education is worthy, but they have no respect for the finer traditions of the institution. A student can never have the best interests of his Alma Mater at heart to any great degree if he is not a resident student. Take away the state university and then Rutgers will be ready for a return to the honor system. This plan is in effect at many colleges throughout the country, but mainly at private institutions where a true and fine sense of college loyalty exists."

Leonard Snedeker '31, captain of the 1931 freshman lacrosse team, is of the opinion that the system is not practical. "The honor system depends for its effectiveness upon turning each student into a proctor to report the offenses of his fellow students. Any scheme that depends on such a foundation is, I believe, doomed to failure at Rutgers. There is too much of a sense of loyalty to one's fellows for the success of this mode of regulation. The only way that cribbing can possibly be curbed is by a strict system of proctors for the faculty."

Dave Gray '31, freshman lacrosse player and member of Cap and Bells, is against the return of the honor system, but advocates its use at the discretion of the individual professor. "Why go back to the honor system? It failed once and it has even less chance of success today when the college is so much larger. There is certainly no logical reason for giving this system a second trial. I think that the honor system might be used to advantage by individual members of the faculty. Each professor can best determine the probable success of the honor system in his own sections and use it or not as he sees fit."

Intercollegiate

According to the Bureau of Education the value of all school property in the United States in 1926 was approximately $8,125,085,472, while the total enrollments in the country was 31,037,736.

Dean Clarence W. Mendell of Yale has stated that the student who graduates from college with a debt hanging over his head is held back at the outset of his career. He opposes all borrowing of money to defray the expenses of undergraduates at colleges.

The dominating feature of the new campus of Butler University is the fact that all the offices, class rooms and even laboratories are housed in one building.

Weather forecasting for aviation is included in an advanced course in meteorology at M. I. T.

A Dickinson professor has found that talkativeness is due to a considerable degree to the amount of humidity. He states that the reason Arizona is known for her strong silent men is because of the low humidity which, by causing parched throats, brings taciturnity.

The coach at the Texas School of Mines, after forming a strong team last year, found that when he returned for this year seven of the men had been married and his good work was ruined. He has stated that the next team he forms will be composed of bachelors who intend to stay that way.

day when the seniors, then freshmen, defeated the sophomores in the pajama peerade or "egg rush." The results of the victory varied but the whole affair is one that will never be forgotten as long as members of the class of '29 are living. It is on such incidents, small in themselves, that college and class spirit is founded, and the present seniors should feel a sort of exultation at having such an event to link all its members together.

The "29" on the pocket in front speaks for itself but as for the decoration just above these numerals—well, we just wonder what significance can be attached to that. And it is too bad the suits had to come when painters were working on Winants hall!

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:

It was with pleasure that we read the exception to the letter of November 27, 1928, concerning course crabbers.

This course crabber, who admits quite openly that he is a "psychologist," a "diplomat," and a "scholar," pleads guilty to the terms used in the November 27 article, i. e., "self-centered, hand-waving, babbling fakir." He carefully cautions the "student" and the class he represents against "committing the fallacy of illogical reasoning," while the course crabber, drawing illogical conclusions, uses a general classification which is amusing if not pathetic. With a large gesture, he places all course crabbers in the upper portion of the class, and all those not claiming to be course crabbers as students without standing.

We have known inveterate course crabbers who were not such expert "psychologists," "suave diplomats," or excellent "scholars" who were rated as indifferent scholars by their professors, who ranked according to their ability in the particular subject, rather than their ability to determine the "psychological moment." Further, we have seen men who quietly ignored all the outward signs of the course crabber, and who received academic honors far above those of the most expert course crabber.

After diligently searching the article of November 27, we cannot find a suggestion that we accused the course crabbers of monopolizing the high marks. While not despising this outward sign of a certain fluency in a course, we shall never admit that they are the indices of the man with the best grasp of the material, or with the best method of application.

The call for some plan to curb these course crabbers arose from the fact that they disturbed and monopolized the time of the professor, only to air some irrelevant views to draw attention to themselves. This is a definite hold-over from grammar school days when friend course crabber was a "big man" in his small home town. On entering college, there is a good opportunity to put childish things behind you, and to meet in class as men among men.

We may not now nor ever be found among the "chosen," whatever that might mean, but we respect the weary professors with whom we are associated, from whom a few of us are anxious to receive knowledge, without having it filtered through the bewildering "non sequiturs" of the course crabbers. We here marvel at the "suave unctuousness" of our friend, the course crabber. We do not recognize the professors of the faculty as the "easily hoodwinked, gullible souls with perplexed minds." Does our "psychologist" and "diplomat" think these men have forgotten their own student days, or that they are not interested in psychology themselves? Men with a sincere desire to gain knowledge in a course might send their appeal to the mind or even the heart of a professor, but never to his leg; after all, even this race of "unsuspecting professors" is human.

In the opening paragraph of the course crabber's article, he resorts to a blanket classification. All those students not named as course crabbers are denounced as uninterested students, as jesters, as loafers. This is followed by a perfect

Book Review

Guyford of Weare, Jeffery Farnol, Little Brown, & Co., $2.00.

Jeffery Farnol differs from most modern authors in that he does only one thing, but does that in a superlative fashion. In his latest opus, "Guyford of Weare," as in his previous works, he points no moral, teaches no lesson, espouses no cause, but simply writes a rattling good eighteenth century romance.

"Guyford" conforms, of course, to Mr. Farnol's distinct pattern. We find the dashing, spirited, incredibly beautiful heroine, Helen D'Arcy; there is the hero, Sir Richard, suspected of greatest villainy by his own, but loved by the gypsies and the peasantry. To balance these twin comes the real villain, one who masquerades as a very paragon of virtue, but in reality is a black-souled serpent, a priest of evil. This is Sir Richard's brother, the Honorable Julian Guyford. With these as a foundation and a goodly number of minor characters—the faithful servant, the jolly highwaymen, the gypsy queen, etc., as ornamentation, the story progresses rapidly, with much spirit and action.

Julian has been using Richard's name to blackmail Lady Helen's cousin. Helen goes to his home to demand the letters, and is surprised there by the real Sir Richard, truly a noble soul in a rugged covering. In the natural course of the story Julian is murdered. Helen suspects Richard, and, of course, Richard suspects Helen, and will not deny the charges made by his enemies. Thereafter, for the last half of the story, a merry game of hide-and-seek ensues over the countryside, with Richard as "it." Inevitably, "amor omnia vincit," and we close the book with a half audible sigh, leaving milder melting into the arms of her noble lover, who has forgiven her hasty misjudgments and vilifications and who has re-established the proud name of Guyford.

indictment for the course crabber, whom he describes as a man who would not deign to study, except at the "psychological moment," and who, if caught unprepared tries to cover up the flunk with "oily banishments," "leg-pulling," and "pseudo-alertness."

Even though we despise the use of "oily excuses" and although we have been trained in the art of self-defense, we do not pretend to be a "rough slugger," so the course crabber need not fear physical violence. Yet how amusing is this pipe dream of being the founder of the United Course Crabbers of America! There are some "pseudo-professions" which have defied organization because of the cut-throat competition among the members. Can anyone imagine a group of "What Did You Get's" combining? Proceed, and blessings be with you after your "scathing diatribe" against the "unsuspecting professors." It will take more "tactful prolixities" than your whole organization can conjure to make your usual good impression.

One-third of the course crabber's article dealt with irrelevant matters. Did he forget he was talking only for the benefit of the student body? It was not necessary to resort to "bland subtleties and verbose irrelevances" to "divert the perplexed mind of the professor from the actual point," and how refreshing it would be to have our "verbose" friend write the next diatribe in words of one syllable with rugged and picturesque Anglo-Saxon roots. We now know that he knows his Latin roots.

(Just in passing, as it has nothing to do with the devising of a plan to silence the selfish individuals in the interest of society.)

Webster's Dictionary describes a student as "one engaged in study." Whether one studies much or little is beside the point whether one draws a Two or a Five in a course is beside the point—if he engages in study he is a student—and we submit that this "cognomen" is "connotatively inexact." To restate in plain English we still claim the right to sign our article

Lights that Fill the Skies with Commerce

THE air map of America is now in the making—on the ground.

Ten years ago, there were 218 miles of air mail routes with two station stops; to-day, a network of sky roads bridges the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

Can you imagine this growth without electricity—without illuminated airports—without trunk lines studded with electric beacons?

Men of vision are building for increasing traffic of the air. Soon, the skies will be filled with commerce.

Just as electricity is helping to conquer the air, the land, and the sea to-day, so to-morrow it will lead to greater accomplishments in aviation and in every human activity.

A majority of the beacon lights used in airport and airway illumination have been designed and manufactured by the General Electric Company, whose specialists have the benefit of a generation's experience in the solution of lighting problems.

HIGH SCHOOL QUINTET DEFEATS FROSH, 32-15

Grossman, With Seven Points, Leads Scarlet Cubs in Scoring

Outplaying the Rutgers freshman basketball team throughout the game, the New Brunswick high school quintet swamped the Scarlet Cubs, 32 to 15, in a practice contest at Ballantine gymnasium, Wednesday afternoon.

The victors displayed accurate shooting, swift and sure passing, and a tight defense. Featuring the high school attack was Jabolsky, center, who scored four field baskets and two fouls for ten points.

Jack Grossman, with three field baskets and a foul, led the yearlings in scoring. Line-up:

FLORIDA'S GRID TEAM SCORED 336 POINTS

Although they failed to win the championship of the Southern Football conference, the University of Florida gridgers this year earned the distinction of making more points during the past season than any other team in the nation.

A total of 336 points in nine games were turned in by Coach Charlie Bachman's squad for America's high pointage mark.

The Florida team also led the conference in points scored within the association, running up 237 points to 187 for Alabama and 168 for Georgia Tech, the Southern and unofficial national champions.

PROFESSIONAL SPORTS CALLED UNPROFITABLE

There's little money in professional sports, according to promoters who appeared before Chicago city council recently in opposition to a proposal to levy a 3 per cent. tax on all professional sport gate receipts.

In fact, the promoters stated, they have been losing money.

William Veek, president of the Chicago National League baseball club, said that in fifteen years the club has not paid a 6 per cent. return on the investment.

George Halas, of the Chicago basketball team, reported that the team has lost $10,000 during the past three seasons. W. J. Tobin, of the Chicago Black Hawks hockey team, said his organization was $90,000 in debt, and promoters of bike racing, boxing, and other sports testified to the consistent deficits.

COLLEGE BROADCASTING INCREASES IN COUNTRY

"Collegiate News Flashes" Furnished by "College Humor"

Radio is rapidly gaining recognition in the colleges, both as a medium for broadcasting college activities and as a course of study for those who wish to make it their life work. Many of the larger stations are employing only college men in the capacity of announcer or director—men who have had microphone experience.

There are now sixty-three college radio stations in the United States. This is particularly remarkable, since it must be remembered that radio as a college institution is comparatively new. The colleges broadcast lectures, educational talks, talent recruited from the student body, etc. Some of the schools have large and beautiful studios with a staff of artists equal to any commercial station.

College Humor magazine has arranged, with the cooperation of one thousand or more colleges throughout the United States and Canada, a service called Collegiate News Flashes, being a digest of all the college news of national import. The news flashes feature oddities in the news, such as the heaviest man in the United States playing football, or a student who has never received less than an A in any college study, or important medical discoveries by some professor, or unusual housing conditions, fraternity and sorority news, legislative moves that bear on scholastic matters, news about enrollments, athletics, etc.

Four reels of moving pictures dealing with "The Manufacture and Insulation of Steam Boilers" were shown at the open meeting of the Rutgers branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in the Engineering building, recently.

Yale University, the founder of the Doctor of Philosophy degree in the United States, has conferred it upon 1,374 candidates since it was first given in 1861, according to statistics presented by Dean Wilbur L. Cross of the Yale Graduate School. His researches show that recipients of the degree include 32 college or university presidents, of whom 16 are still active, and that 712 of the degree holders are now teaching in colleges.

Students in the course on hotel management conducted by Cornell took over all phases of the operation of the Hotel Astor in New York recently. They devoted special attention this year to studying the methods of serving big dinners and handling public functions generally.

FLOATING UNIVERSITY GIVES MUSICAL COMEDY

According to radio despatches received in New York, a musical comedy, "Floating Around," has just been successfully presented by students of the Floating university before an audience of students of Doshisha university in Kyoto, Japan, who enjoyed it hugely. It is a burlesque on student life aboard the Floating university. The music and lyrics were written by two undergraduates, George Buzza, Jr., and Ayres Compton, who also directed its production. It has a cast of thirty, including an attractive chorus of singing and dancing girls. It is to be presented before various other student groups in Asia and in Europe.

A debating team has just been formed to debate with students of many lands on international problems. A dramatic club has already produced on shipboard an American play, and is now busy on one dealing with Oriental life. This group has been haunting the Japanese theatres and scouring around for costumes and accessories in fascinating little Kyoto and Tokyo shops.

PHARMACY STUDENTS' CLASSES CALLED OFF

Extend Christmas Vacation to Allow Students to Work Filling "Flu" Prescriptions

Called into service by pharmacies in Newark and vicinity to aid in filling the overwhelming number of prescriptions necessitated by the influenza epidemic, twenty-five per cent of the students at the New Jersey School of Pharmacy, a branch of Rutgers University, failed to respond to roll-call Wednesday morning. The college was scheduled to open Wednesday and only 75 per cent of the undergraduates put in appearance, the balance being on the job in the pharmacies of Newark acting as helpers. In order to permit other students to aid in this public service, Dean Little decided to extend the Christmas vacation until next Monday.

The undergraduates who responded to the roll call were apprised of the serious condition existing in Newark and elsewhere in the state by Dean Little and he advised that the college would remain closed until next Monday. The five days lost at this time will be made up in June.

Dr. Little in announcing that the college would remain closed until next Monday said the action was taken in the interest of public service. While a few Rutgers students are laid up with the "flu" and others have failed to return to college following the holidays, the situation is well in hand and there is little cause for worry, it was announced. Constant surveillance is being maintained by university authorities to detect any cases that may develop.

U. of P. Defeats Rutgers

In the first half to gain a five-point advantage, the Scarlet began to lose its basket eye and was, before the end of the third quarter, behind the Pennsylvanians by one point. During the last quarter the one point advantage saw-sawed between the teams. Hoke, the visiting center, seemed to win the game for his team when he scored a field goal during the last minute of play, gaining the advantage of the lone point. Dick Boettcher attempted a long one from the center of the floor when there was but fifteen seconds to play. The shot missed but Clay Alton's long arms reached up from under the basket and rolled the ball in for the deciding score.

In this Scarlet victory, the first of the 1928-1929 season, Captain Dick Boettcher, Clay Alton, and Nellie Rohrbach stood out. Rohrbach showed a return of form and was high scorer with ten points. Alton, playing a stellar game, shared second scoring honors with Dick Boettcher, each netting eight points.

CHESS TEAM FORCED TO QUIT TOURNAMENT

After playing only one match against New York University, the Rutgers chess team had to withdraw from the Intercollegiate Chess Tournament at the Manhattan Chess Club, New York, during the Christmas week. In the play with N. Y. U., Wednesday, December 26, Neuss lost his match, and Ault played a draw. As enough players to constitute a full team could not be produced by Rutgers, the Scarlet was forced to withdraw from the tournament.

In the subsequent play C. C. N. Y. was victorious, the University of Pennsylvania second, and N. Y. U. and Columbia tied for third.

The Collegiate Division of the National Chess Federation will hold an Individual Chess Tournament during the spring vacation, in which members of the Princeton-Yale-Harvard-West Point league and the Intercollegiate league will participate. Neuss and Ault are expected to represent Rutgers in this meet.

Plans are under way for a meeting between West Point and Rutgers on February 22. If the arrangements are completed Rutgers will be represented by Jacob Neuss '29, Leslie Ault '29, Henry Michelson '29 and Harold Rottenberg '29.

AWARDS TO BE GIVEN FOR AVIATION STORIES

An Airplane or Aeronautics Course Offered for Student Articles

To interest more college students in aviation, the Alexander Aircraft company at Colorado Springs offers a new Alexander Eaglerock airplane or a complete university course in aeronautics for the best series of four short monthly articles on aviation from January 1 to May 1, 1929, written by undergraduate college students.

The winner will be awarded a four-year scholarship in a leading aeronautical engineering school, or in a school of business administration where he can get an aeronautical background. Competing students who receive undergraduate degrees June 1 may win a graduate scholarship in a technical school of aeronautics, leading to a master's or a professional degree. As an alternative award, the winner may receive a completely equipped Eaglerock. Articles of superior merit, but below winning quality, will win their writers 10-hour flying courses. The awards will be made June 1.

The papers, technical or non-technical, and 400 to 600 words in length, must be submitted to the Committee on Awards on the first of each month from January 1 to May 1. Suggested subjects include, "Future Aircraft Development," "Flying for Recreation," "Commercial Possibilities in Aviation," "The Airplane as a Future Decentralizer of Cities," etc. Candidates will be judged 30 per cent. on content of their articles, and 70 per cent. on their qualifications to do justice to the scholarships. The winner, if he qualifies, will be employed in the engineering or some other department of the Alexander Aircraft factory. The best contribution each month will be published in the Alexander Aircraft, a magazine with 20,000 circulation among pilots, business executives, and others interested in flying.

SWEDISH COUNT SAYS FOOTBALL IS MISNAMED

Football is incorrectly named, according to Count Folke Bernadotte, nephew of King Gustav V, of Sweden, who was introduced to the game at the Georgia-Georgia Tech contest.

"The game is played with the hands," he said. "But it's a nice, pleasant sport, and not so rough."

His bride of a few days, the former Estelle Romaine Manville, of Pleasantville, N. Y., and President M. L. Brittain, of Georgia Tech, explained the game to him while it was in progress.

FOOTBALL AND GOLF MIX

That football and golf can be mixed was proved by a foursome of University of Oregon golfers, who carried a portable radio with them about the course during the Southern California-Notre Dame game, and did not miss a single play of the football game. They reported, however, that their golf game suffered somewhat from the experiment, especially when the westerners seemed about to win.

not in operation in the local community, parents should urge upon the school committee the necessity for a comprehensive guidance service. He stated that the greatest aid a parent can give his offspring is to provide a variety of work experience.

Dr. Cook remarked that women of today have greater economic freedom than ever before in the history of the world. He said that they are now comparatively free in their choice of a vocation.

In enumerating the many vocations open to women, Dr. Cook scored the old-fashioned habit of preparing for the teaching profession alone. "In fact," he said, "teaching is now a profession itself, and requires a particular ability plus specialized training."

The regular half hour radio programs were continued during the holidays on each Wednesday night. On December 19 Professor Albert O. Hayes, head of the geology department, spoke on "New Jersey's Share of the Earth."

Professor Joseph H. Vertrees, of the University Extension Division, spoke the same night on "Developing Men Into Foremen." He has been engaged in foreman training work in this state for the past three years.

Mrs. Helen F. Carney, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., mother of John M. Carney '29, played several violin selections.

Colonel Ralph McCoy, head of the Rutgers R. O. T. C. unit, and Coach James H. Reilly of the swimming squad, were the speakers on Wednesday, December 26. Colonel McCoy discussed "Military Training and Character Development." Mr. Reilly's subject was "The Art of Swimming." He stressed the benefit of this form of exercise and stated that the old-fashioned strokes were not as helpful to development as the more modern American crawl.

HARRIERS GET FOURTH PLACE

Rutgers' varsity cross-country team was given fourth place instead of sixth in the annual Middle Atlantic States championships as the result of a protest made by New York University. Two Alfred University harriers and one each from Union and Johns Hopkins were disqualified for cutting the course, giving the team championship to N. Y. U., while Alfred took second. Lafayette was third and Rutgers was fourth, moving up ahead of Union and Johns Hopkins.

FOLLOW THE TEAMS

The New Brunswick Daily Home News and Sunday Times are represented at all Rutgers athletic events. Their staff of writers will tell you and your friends the reactions of the press men. By all means send a copy now and then to anyone you know considering entering Old Rutgers.

NOVAK SOCIETY FORMED BY CZECHOSLOVAKIANS

If Al Smith resided in Czechoslovakia his name would be Al Novak. So would that of several hundred thousand other Smiths, for in that country the name Novak is as common, if not more so, than the name Smith in America.

It is estimated that there are 80,000 persons by that name in the nation, and already 11,630 of them have joined a recently organized Novak society. The president of the new organization is Professor Caryl Novak, of the Czech Technical university. The present Czechoslovak consul general in New York is Dr. J. Novak, and the minister of commerce also bears the name. The famous Prague composer, Novak, is noted in musical circles throughout the world.

The Novak society plans to publish a journal, and also will seek to aid its members in a social and cultural way.

IDAHO TO GET GERMAN GUN

A 77-millimeter German gun, half of Idaho's allotted share of government war trophies, will be presented to the University of Idaho by the American Legion shortly, it has been announced.

The gun will be placed on a grass terrace on the north side of the new gymnasium near the entrance. It will be sent from the United States government "trophy dump" at Aberdeen, Maryland.

RHODES SCHOLAR NAMED

William Winters McQuilkin, student at the Princeton Graduate School, Princeton University, has been awarded the Rhodes scholarship for New Jersey, according to an announcement made by Dr. Frank Aydelott, president of Swarthmore College and American secretary to the Rhodes trustees. Elections were held in thirty-two states.

Joyce Kilmer '08, internationally known poet and author of "Trees," will be tangibly remembered when a window dedicated to his memory is installed in the new Delta Upsilon house now in process of construction on College avenue. The memorial will be donated by his mother, Mrs. Annie Killburn Kilmer, of New Brunswick, well-known author and musician.

Kilmer was killed in action in the World War shortly after composing the "Rouge Bouquet," dedicated to some comrades who died in a dugout cave-in. He was a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

SIXTEEN PLAYERS AWARDED LETTERS AT GRID BANQUET

25 Jayvees and 28 Freshmen
Also Receive Insignia
At Annual Dinner

COACHES ARE HONORED

Rocky Given Bronze Statuette;
Cigarette Case for Storck

Rutgers annual football banquet, held in the Elks club tonight, was featured by the awarding of sixteen major football letters, twenty-five junior varsity insignia, and twenty-eight freshman football numerals. The banquet was the most elaborate in Rutgers football history, junior varsity and freshman players being included in the invitation lists. Gold footballs were presented to the senior letter winners: Captain Stanley Rosen, John M. Carney, Joseph C. Irwin, Joseph B. Preletz, James F. Shedden, Ralph G. Fairchild, David A. Moscovitz, and Manager Robert E. Pettit.

President John M. Thomas, Head Coach Harry J. Rockefeller, and Professor Maurice A. Blake, chairman of the Council on Athletics, were among the speakers. Captain Rosen presented a bronze statuette to Coach Rockefeller as a token of the team's appreciation for his work this season. Captain George Knabb followed by tendering a gold cigarette case to Coach Donald Storck as a gift from the freshman team.

List of Awards

During the course of the banquet Scarlet sweaters and eight-inch block "R's" were awarded to: Captain Stanley Rosen '29, Long Beach, N. Y.; John M. Carney '29, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Joseph C. Irwin '29, Red Bank; Joseph B. Preletz '29, Bethlehem, Pa.; Richard B. Crowl '30, Ridgefield Park; Benjamin N. Greenberg '30, Leonia; Clarence F. Von Glahn '30, Jersey City; William R. Dalton '29, Long Branch; Bertram G. Harris '31, Buffalo, N. Y.; Richard C. Knauss '31, Allentown, Pa.; John A. Sweet '31, Red Bank; Max Krafchik '31, New Brunswick; James F. Shedden '29, New York City; Ralph G. Fairchild '29, Roslyn Heights, N. Y.; David A. Moscovitz '29, Somerville; Manager Robert E. Pettit '29, Camden.

Major awards were also voted to the following who were injured during the season: Walt E. Stager '31, Nutley; William A. Balogh '31, Dunellen; Milton H. Anderson '31, Bridgeboro; Edwin L. Davis '30, Athens, N. Y.

The following men received the junior varsity insignia: Robert McGee '30, Warsaw, N. Y.; Caleb Ringle '31, Jersey City; Jack J. Feldman '29, Newark; Harold C. Limbergh '30, Wood Ridge; Clifford C. Hantke '31, Hollis, N. Y.; Bertram W. Grothe '30, New Brunswick; Albert Campion '30, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wallace E. Sullivan '29, Seaside Heights; Joseph M. Ruggieri '29, Raritan; Irving Rosenhaus '30, West New York; Morris S. Kellner '31, Far Rockaway, N. Y.; Cornelius R. Cuddeback '29, Port Jervis.

for Scarlet Letter Pictures

Scarlet Letter pictures are being taken during the remainder of this week, according to an announcement by J. Whitney Olds '30, photography editor. There are two photographers on the campus, one doing the senior portraits and the other taking the remaining groups.

Olds suggests that all men who are to be photographed be present exactly on time. The pictures can be taken only at the time scheduled because of the number to get while the light remains good. Sweaters are not to be worn in any photo. Several groups must be taken over because of the lack of uniformity in dress.

The schedule for the rest of the work is:

Wednesday—Lambda, Chi Alpha, after chapel; Freshman class officers, 4:00; Phi Beta Kappa society, 4:10; Spiked Shoe society, 4:20; Philocean literary society, 4:30; Agricultural club, 4:40.
Thursday—Kappa Sigma, after chapel; Glee club, 4:00; Instrumental club, 4:10; Casque and Dagger society, 4:20; Scarlet Key society, 4:30; 1930 Junior Prom committee and 981 Sophomore Hop committee, 4:40.
Friday—Economics club, 4:00; French club, 4:10; Spanish club, 4:20; Student Council, 4:30; and Cap and Skull society, 4:40.

Riegel's Faux Pas Duplicate Of Scarlet Gridded's Run

Roy Riegel's fatal errors in the California-Georgia Tech game had its counterpart in the Rutgers-West Virginia game in 1922, according to the Associated Press, which states that many West Virginians have recalled the incident.

In the 1922 game, Dickinson, Rutgers end, recovered a mountaineer fumble and ran toward his own goal. After he had covered twenty yards, he was tackled by Joe Setron, West Virginia guard, who was a member of Walter Camp's All-American eleven that year, and Charlie Howard, Mountaineer tackle.

DEBATING SEASON TO START FEB. 8

Schedule to Include Three Trips; Jury System Under Fire While Traveling

VARSITY COACH FROSH

Because Bowdoin college has closed down on account of the prevalence of the flu, the varsity debating team of that institution, scheduled to oppose Rutgers at the Kew Forest School, Forest Hills, L. I., March 7, has cancelled the engagement.

Rutgers will swing into action against Rider College at Trenton, February 8, with Chester V. N. Stalker '30, Frederic C. La Rocker '30, and Samuel F. Zuman '30 composing the Scarlet team. The question is undecided at present. Henry F. Arnold '29, Theodore J. Ingall '30, and Ernest E. McMahon '30 will oppose Upsala in the first home match of the year February 19, arguing upon the question, "Resolved, That three judges supplant the present jury in civil cases."

The majority of contests this year are on the jury question which was only discussed once last season when Thomas C. Galligan '29, Edward Herbert '30, and Ernest E. McMahon '30 met Hunter College in New York under the Hunter system, whereby each debater chooses his own stand and upholds that viewpoint regardless of his colleagues.

Three trips have been scheduled for the Rutgers debaters. Holy Cross, and either Worcester College or Rhode Island State, will be met on March 11 and 12. The jury system has been chosen as the subject for discussion, although the sides to be defended are as yet undecided.

The second, in which it will defend the negative of the jury system question against Washington and Jefferson, Waynesburg, and Juniata, in the aforementioned order, will include those engagements on March 14, 15 and 16, respectively. The third, scheduled for March 21, 22 and 23, will include debates with Bucknell, Penn State and Westminster in that order, the Scarlet defending the affirmative of the jury system question.

Home debates are: February 19, Upsala, jury system, Rutgers defending the affirmative; February 21, Middlebury, jury system, side undecided; February 22, Syracuse, question undecided; February 25, Gettysburg, question undecided.

March 1, Albany Law School, question undecided; March 4, Tufts, jury system, affirmative; March 7, Union, jury system, negative; March 8, George Wash-

COLLEGE FOR WOMEN IN RADIO PROGRAM

Mrs. Helen W. Hazen, director of vocational education at N. J. C., and Miss Leah A. Dufault, instructor in home economics at the College for Women, will give talks during the Rutgers university program to be broadcast from Station WOR at 7:30 tomorrow night. Their subjects will be "Training the Food Specialists" and "Stylists and Clothing Experts."

The Pine Cones, an N. J. C. musical organization consisting of Elizabeth Pleister, Carol Downs, Irma Patrick, Estelle Bermann, Ethel Peterson, Dorothy Haas, and Virginia Stevens will play musical comedy hits, under the direction of Mrs. Frank Marryott of the department of music.

BROADCAST NIGHT CHANGED

Rutgers Night at WOR will be changed from Wednesday to Thursday. Commencing January 17, a Rutgers program will be broadcast every Thursday at 7:15 p. m. At this time, WOR is connected with the rest of the Columbia chain, and the programs will be heard in all parts of the continent and elsewhere. The university band will perform in the first concert on this hook-up.

Governor Moore Recommends Appropriation of $1,685,475.50 in Annual Budget Message

Impressed By Services Rendered State By Rutgers University, Executive Favors $920,441.00 for Men's Institution and $765,034.50 for Women's College

Governor A. Harry Moore, in his third annual budget message to the Legislature in the State House at Trenton today, recommended that Rutgers receive $920,441.00 as its appropriation from the state during 1929. He stated that he was impressed by the services rendered the state by the university, and realized the need for further expansion.

This amount is the greater part of the $1,685,475.50 recommended by the governor to be apportioned to the state university, the College for Women being the recipient of the remaining $765,034.50. This compares favorably with the total of $862,138.50 appropriated last year, of which Rutgers received $539,638.50 and the Women's College, $322,500.00. Dr. Thomas said today that he was highly pleased with the recommendation, although he had asked for $1,085,620.00 and the Women's College authorities had asked for $800,450.00. This is a cut of $64,179 and $35,415.50 respectively.

All the items of the budget presented by the governor have not been published, but it is understood that included in the requests is $350,000 for a new biology building for Rutgers, and a like amount for a new academic building for the Women's College.

Committee Report

The relationship between Rutgers and the state will be continued with the state contributing toward the support of this institution if the new legislature follows the recommendation of the investigation. The recommendations of the committee will be presented to the legislature early in February.

Edward M. Colie, special attorney named by the committee to investigate the legal relationship between Rutgers and the state, presented his report to the committee at a meeting at Newark Saturday, and his report will form a part of the complete one to be submitted.

The committee unanimously decided that the state should continue its aid, but held to the opinion that the real estate control should be in the hands of a state committee.

In the report will be contained a recommendation for a plan of state control by contractual arrangement. In this case the

RUTGERS WRESTLERS GRAPPLE WITH POLY

Engineers Have Won Two Victories;
Were Defeated by Columbia
By Score of 21-9

Rutgers varsity wrestling team will meet the grapplers of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., in Ballantine gymnasium, Friday. This contest will be the second of the 1929 campaign for the Scarlet matmen, who opened their season against City College of New York, at New Brunswick, last Friday. Coach Cann's Scarlet wrestlers will be out to avenge their defeat, 18 to 11, at the hands of the Brooklynites last year.

With several veterans as a nucleus, Coach Alvin Banks of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, has developed a well-balanced and capable aggregation. So far this year the Blue and Gray has compiled a record of two victories and one defeat. Wins were turned in over C. C. N. Y. (Brooklyn Branch) 21 to 15, and Temple, 23 to 10.

The powerful Columbia University grapplers defeated the Brooklynites, 21 to 9, in a hard-fought series of bouts. Among the best of the Engineer wrestlers are: Albert, veteran 125-pounder; Odenheimer, in the 145-pound division, also a veteran; Lotz, a 175-pounder of last year's combination, and O'Sullivan, former Brooklyn C. C. N. Y. star. Most of these men have already scored points in competition this season, and should give their Scarlet opponents a close rub in Friday's bouts. Others of the Brooklyn squad are: Schrader, veteran heavyweight man; Nardi, an experienced 115-pounder; White, in the 135-pound class, and Haifter, in the 158-pound division.

Although the Rutgers wrestlers were defeated, 25 to 7, by the strong C. C. N. Y. combination in the initial contest of the year, the meet served to give experience to the newer members of the Scarlet squad. With stiff workouts scheduled for every afternoon of the coming week, Coach Cann's grapplers should be in good shape for the Poly mat artists.

The card:

Rutgers	Class	Brooklyn Poly
Hoddeson	115-pound	Nardi
Campion	125-pound	Albert
Greenburg	135-pound	White
Bilderback	145-pound	Odenheimer
Sweet	158-pound	Haifter
Graeter	175-pound	Lotz
Howard	Unlimited	Revukes

Influenza Has Not Gained Foothold at Rutgers But All Cases of Illness Are Being Watched

Influenza has not gained a foothold in Rutgers university and, according to Dean Fraser Metzger, the present situation is not one that involves any immediate concern.

All of the fraternity houses are reporting daily to the dean of men, and the dormitories are reporting to Mrs. Eva Lacy Peck, house mother. A number of students have been sent home with colds and slight fevers for a few days and are in most cases returning completely recovered. The definite number out of school cannot be given correctly because some are returning and others are being sent home every day. No fixed quota of cases of influenza is necessary to close the college, but work will be discontinued only should the danger of rapid spreading of the disease become evident.

Dr. Neill S. McLeod, college physician, stated that there is an unusual number of students afflicted with colds in college, but even the more serious of these might be termed the gripe rather than the flu.

Col. John T. Axton, college chaplain, stated that there have been many colds but not one serious illness. He was among the soldiers during the war-time epidemic of influenza ten years ago and said that there is no comparison between that and the situation existing here today. Some of the students have been sent home merely as a precautionary measure and there is certainly no cause for alarm.

It is doubtful if any of those who are home at present are sick with the real flu which ten years ago swept the country, causing death in many cases only a short time after the disease had been contracted.

Dean Fraser Metzger stated that the college authorities would continue to take all possible precautions to detect any incipient cases.

U. of P. Contest Postponed; Seven Swimmers Have "Flu"

Rutgers University's second Intercollegiate League swimming and water polo match of the season scheduled with the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, Saturday, has been postponed because seven Rutgers tankmen are ill with influenza. Graduate Manager of Athletics Harry J. Rockefeller announced today. The meet will probably be contested later. The seven sick members of the Scarlet aquatic outfit are Captain Danny Creem, Frank Barnitz, George Garland, Whitey Djeri, Frank Jenkins, George Bostock, and Whitey Phillips.

SETON HALL FIVE TO PLAY RUTGERS

Opponents Have Won Three Games, With Basile as High

BOETTCHER OUT OF GAME

Rutgers	Position	Seton Hall
Preletz	Right Forward	Basile
Rohrbach	Center	Henaby
Kish	Right Guard	Madjeski

Fresh from a decisive victory over Drexel, Rutgers varsity basketball team will encounter the speedy Seton Hall quintet at Ballantine gymnasium, tomorrow night. It is expected that the Scarlet five will have to overcome stiff opposition to chalk up a victory over the South Orange dribblers, who have a record of three victories and one defeat.

The Blue and White had little trouble taking the measure of the Cooper Union tossers, in a game marked by fast floor work on the part of the former team. Long Island University also fell victim to their aggressive play. A setback at the hands of a strong Columbia five resulted in the only defeat suffered by Seton Hall this year. While the Lions were held scoreless during the first six minutes of play, they rallied to swamp their opponents 37 to 17. The victory over Providence College was the outstanding performance of the Blue and White this season. In a practice game with the Rutgers quintet, the Seton Hall dribblers held a slight advantage over the Scarlet five, defeating them by a narrow margin.

With Basile and Singleton in the forward positions, the Orangemen display a speedy attack featured by good passing and shooting. Basile is one of the leading scorers of the East, with a total of 42 points in four games. Henaby, who plays center, has shown himself efficient both in gaining the toss-up and in scoring. Madjeski and McQuinn at guard complete the combination.

The contest between the two Hill-coached machines will find the Scarlet playing without the services of Captain Dick Boettcher, who is ill with a severe cold. His place as guard will probably be filled by either Dutch Guiler or Tex Rosen, both of whom have seen action this year. The remaining lineup will be the same as that which faced Drexel, Saturday, with Kish in the other guard position, Alton and Preletz, forwards and Rohrbach at center. The Scarlet quintet played a good game against Drexel and should come through with a win.

Coach Hill has stated that he will remain neutral during the game, with the acting captains directing the teams.

S. PARKER GILBERT '12 RETURNS FROM EUROPE

S. Parker Gilbert Jr. '12, agent general for reparations payments under the Dawes plan, arrived recently from Europe, where he has been engaged in investigating the German war debt. He will hold several unofficial conferences with President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon, and Secretary Kellogg regarding the forthcoming conference of experts called to consider a revision of the Dawes Plan.

His latest report caused a stir in England, Germany, and France. German papers in particular declared that Gilbert had failed to take into account the fact that reparations payments had been made mainly from foreign loans, and that the English and German text of the report differed.

In commenting upon criticism from Germany he stated that he stood squarely on the report and declined to amplify it. He will return to Berlin in two weeks.

SPORTS CAPTAINS TO BE SELECTED BY NEW SYSTEM

Harry J. Rockefeller to Hold
Position of Head Coach Of Scarlet Squad

CROWL LEADS GRID TEAM

Football Awards for Balogh, Stager,
Anderson and Davis

Graduate Manager Harry J. Rockefeller will remain Head Coach of the Rutgers football team, it was unanimously voted at a meeting of the Council on Athletics, this afternoon. Coach Rockefeller will have full power to name his assistants.

The Council approved the recommendation made by the Advisory Board of Managers and Captains at a meeting of the latter body Monday night regarding a change in the system of sports captains. The new method provides:

"That all captains shall be appointed by the coach of the team, for such a period as he sees fit and that at the end of the sport season an election of an honorary captain shall be held, qualified voters being those men who have earned their varsity award during the season."

Bernie Crowl Captain

The new ruling was put into effect immediately by Coach Rockefeller who appointed Bernie Crowl '30 of Ridgefield Park acting captain for the 1929 season. Crowl will remain as gridiron leader "for such a period as Coach Rockefeller sees fit."

Additional varsity football awards were voted by the Board of Managers and Captains to be made to Milton Anderson of Bridgeboro, Walter E. Stager of Nutley, William A. Balogh of Dunellen, and Edwin L. Davis of Athens, N. Y., four gridgers who did not play the required time because of injuries. These were also approved by the Council today.

Graduate Manager Rockefeller reported to the Board the suspension from the swimming team of John Dryfuss '31 of New York City for representing the New York A. C., while a member of the Rutgers varsity aquatic squad.

EDGAR LEE MASTERS TO LECTURE FRIDAY

Second of Series of Talks Sponsored By Philocean Society

Edgar Lee Masters, nationally famous author of the "Spoon River Anthology" and "The New Spoon River," will appear under the auspices of Philocean, the honorary literary society of N. J. C., at the Roosevelt Junior high school Friday night, to deliver the second of a series of lectures sponsored by that society.

Masters has been called one of the greatest writers of his generation. He is more widely quoted than almost any American writer of the present day, and many of his monologues are used in teaching speech, and by elocutionists. Among his other works are "Blood of the Prophets," "Doomsday Book," "Open Sea," "Mirage" and "Starved Rock."

He is a native of Garnett, Kansas, where he was born in 1869. He studied law after graduating from Knox college, Illinois, and was admitted to the bar.

In "The Spoon River Anthology," Mr. Masters drew upon the life he knew for those concise records of village life that have made him famous. Louis Untermeyer, in his anthology of American poetry, says of him: "Taking as his model 'The Greek Anthology,' he evolved that astonishing assemblage of more than two hundred self-inscribed epitaphs, in which the dead of a middle western town are supposed to have written the truth about themselves." It is these, among other things, from which the poet will read on Friday night.

Mr. Masters' lecture is the second in a series of four given by noted American authors and poets. Vachel Lindsay, the strolling poet, drew a large crowd to the junior high school on November 16, when he gave a chanted recital of his poetry. Carl Van Doren, critic and writer, is scheduled to speak here March 1, and Sherwood Anderson, widely read novelist, will close the series, March 26.

Tickets for the lectures may be purchased at Reed's Book Store, the Y. M. C. A., the junior or senior high school, or at the Rutgers Book Store. Single tickets are 75 cents, and series tickets are $2.00.

Sol Institiae Et Occidentem Illustra

Again the fate of Rutgers lies in the hands of the New Jersey Legislature. This time, the result will be far more momentous than ever before as the law-makers will act not only on what they will appropriate to the University for one year but they will also map out a course that will no doubt be followed for many years in the future. Which means that Governor A. Harry Moore today made his recommendations for the support of Rutgers for another year and that the committee, investigating the status of the University, has signified that it will submit its report to the Legislature in February.

From the material that we have found available, both the Governor's message and the committee report seem favorable to Rutgers inasmuch as both seem to indicate that the State and its officials realize the need of the University for more aid. As the complete report of the commission will not be ready until it is submitted to the Legislature, it is impossible to accurately determine what it will contain, what definite measures it will advocate regarding the position of Rutgers to the State. What has been announced merely indicates that the commission deems the institution worthy to receive aid from the State through some contractual agreement, provided there is some sort of State control.

Governor Moore's message is more explicit. In the first place, he recommends that the University receive $1,685,475.50 next year, a sum nearly double that that the Legislature included in its budget for the past year. Of Governor Moore's recommended appropriation, Rutgers would receive $920,441.00 and the New Jersey College for Women $765,034.50. The need of new buildings was also recognized as $350,000 of the Rutgers allotment would be used for the construction of a biological building and the same amount of the College for Women's allotment would construct an academic building. Although the recommendation is somewhat below the amount asked for—$1,085,620 for Rutgers and $800,450 for the College for Women—it is the most favorable that has ever been presented to the Legislature.

When questioned, President Thomas expressed himself as being well pleased with Governor Moore's message. We feel that we all might feel well pleased with it. It is an indication that the work of Rutgers is being felt throughout the State and that the State's highest official deems it necessary to aid this work. The appropriation must go through the Legislature, and, for that reason, we are not congratulating ourselves. However, we cannot help but feel more hopeful.

Oh Captain, My Captain

No more captains for Rutgers sports teams. Thus comes the word from the Advisory Board of Managers, who met to consider the question yesterday. The action was to have the approval of the Council on Athletics meeting this after-

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:

I noticed in your editorial column of a December issue a comment entitled "Who's Next?" The letter printed therein is to me a very cynical and small view to take of so large a question. I want to know why traditions would have to walk the plank if Rutgers became a state institution, and why our Alma Mater would not be as worthy of honor as heretofore.

The writer of the letter printed in your column takes the view that "undesirables" would flock to Rutgers if it became a state university. When he came to Rutgers the requirements for admission did contain a demand for a financial statement of his guardians. Yet he thinks that money admitted him to this university, for that is the indication from his epistle. He, as well as everyone else, knows that his scholastic standing admitted him to Rutgers.

You, Mr. Editor, would like to know of a guarantee that can be given that the group of undesirables will not increase. I think that if entrance requirements were stiffened considerably a better type of college man would apply for admission, one who having worked so hard to get in would appreciate that he was a Rutgers man and would thereby aid the school. The languorous man who prepares his lesson occasionally and thinks that his duty lies in going on violent sprees does not aid his college at all but really does it decided harm. That college acquires a name of disrepute.

A real Rutgers man would not want the same old Rutgers, but a better one and perhaps a larger Rutgers. I, as one of the students, am heart and soul for a state Rutgers university. As such I believe Rutgers will flourish and blossom instead of remaining in its dormant stage. As a state university it will not have to look for endowments from the alumni who may want the same old stagnant Rutgers. Yours truly,

MEYER EDWARD TELL '32.

LANGUAGE PROFESSORS MEET

Edwin B. Davis, professor of Romance languages; J. Moreno-Lacalle, and Edmond W. Billeldoux, also of the department of Romance languages, together with Friedrich J. Hauptmann, of the German department, attended the meeting of the American Language Association of America, held at Toronto university, Toronto, Canada, recently.

Professor Billeldoux also participated in the meetings of the Executive committee of the National Federation of Modern Language Teachers held in connection with the Modern Language association.

noon and it is altogether likely that the body will uphold the measure.

Considerable discussion was raised on the campus concerning the proposed change. From all that we had heard, there was but little sentiment for it. Members of the football team, when questioned, declared themselves to be much in favor of electing captains and could see but little reason for making a change in the present system of doing that. A few, very much in the minority, favored the new idea. We must admit that there are reasons pro, but we cannot believe that these would overbalance the arguments con.

Undoubtedly the action has been taken to do away with the element of fraternity politics in athletics. That is the leading argument of those favoring it. They contend that captains are picked only because they have a majority of fraternity brothers or friends on the squad and that often the best man is neglected only because he is a neutral or is unable to control enough votes. There is some truth in that contention but upon looking back over the captains that have led the football eleven for the past five years we cannot see but what they have been worthy of their rank. And we can think of but few instances in all the other sports where politics have undoubtedly ruled the choice.

However, can this argument overbalance one that can be used against the plan? That by taking away the right of team members to choose their own leader, the fundamental principle of democracy is being violated. It is probable that a captain will be appointed but will he have the same support of the majority of those under him that one whom they had elected would have? And his position? How could he feel that he should be in the place he holds or how could he be sure that his teammates were working behind him? The result would be a strained feeling on both sides and the team would suffer for it.

These are only a few of the arguments that we have heard against the action that has been taken. They seem reasonable and we fear the result of what has been done.

Drama Review

POPPA, a comedy in three acts by Bella and Samuel Spewack, staged by George Abbott, and presented by O. S. Kraft at the Biltmore theatre, with the following cast:

Nerbert Schwitzky.....Harold Waldrige
Mrs. Schwitzky.....Anna Apple
Marjorie.....Sylvia Hoffman
Ruth Schwitzky.....Mary Ricard
Philip Rosenthal.....Edward Shaw
Mrs. Rosenthal.....Mara Keval
Pincus Schwitzky.....Jachial Goldsmith
Mr. Finkel.....Milton C. Herman
Jake Harris.....William E. Morris
"Big Boy" Shapiro.....Raymond O'Brien
Mrs. Finkel.....Paula Walter
Fifi.....Lillian Toller
Mr. Schlossberg.....Martin Malloy
Detective.....Morris J. Ward
Flannery.....George Sawyer

A jazzed up "Enemy of the People" is retold in the dialect of the East Side in "Poppa," which H. S. Kraft is exhibiting at the Biltmore theatre. East of Second avenue and south of Fourteenth street, Thomas Stockmann becomes Pincus Schwitzky, a well meaning, but inept political novice. Mrs. Stockmann becomes Mrs. Schwitzky, and Petra becomes Ruth, young Philip Rosenthal's light o'love.

At any rate, the hero, Alderman Schwitzky, is a transcription of Ibsen's hero in terms of New York's melting pot of the races. His ideals and his difficulties closely parallel the Scandinavian tragedy. But there was nothing tragic about the Schwitzky saga. Its comedy is laid on with a broad brush. It convulsed a sympathetic first night audience, which missed none of the characteristic humor.

Distinctly racial in its treatment of a Jewish family's trials, this comedy never descends to sentimentality to create its moments of climax. Just as one is ready to pull out a handkerchief and shed a vagrant tear, Poppa, none other than Pincus Schwitzky, falsely accused of accepting graft, is found fearfully hiding from his enemies in a garbage burner.

Its basis is the irresponsible Poppa, who is too absorbed in district politics to earn his family's living. When his daughter, Ruthie, becomes engaged to Philip Rosenthal, Poppa's shiftlessness is such that the high toned Mrs. Rosenthal, expertly played by Mara Keval, might prevent the marriage. Then, greatly to his astonishment, the party installs him as alderman.

A few months later, when his program for the improvement of the district runs counter to the policies of the district leaders, they frame Schwitzky as a grafter and have him thrown into jail. Just when Philip Rosenthal is trying to arrange for bail, Herbert, Poppa's good-for-nothing son, stages an elaborate jail break in the best motion picture style. However, some convenient hocus-pocus with a dictaphone in the last act clears Poppa's name and concludes a bad matter in an amiable fashion.

Harold Waldrige, as Herbert Schwitzky, won instant recognition as a lifelike impersonation of a familiar type, the type known around Grand street as "a bum." Jachial Goldsmith, who, unless we are more mistaken than usual, is making his debut on the English-speaking stage in this piece, does well as the head of the house of Schwitzky. Anna Apple, another arrival from the Yiddish stage, gives reality to the part of Mrs. Schwitzky. Ruth Schwitzky is played simply and naturally by Mary Ricard. Mara Keval gives an expert interpretation of the part of Mrs. Rosenthal, the high toned mother of Ruth's fiancé. A word must also be said for William E. Morris, who performs capably as the wicked district boss, Jake Harris. But, more than anything else, it is the humor which Harold Waldrige packs into every moment that he is on the stage that makes the play a success. If "Poppa" settles down for a long run, as the Christmas Eve laughter seemed to indicate it would, Harold Waldrige is the one responsible.

Many ingenious twists lend novelty as well as interest to the plot. Popularity of this type of Jewish American humor seems to indicate that "Poppa" will keep many an audience audibly happy.

Musical Review

The second concert of the Rutgers university winter series was presented by Walter Mills, noted baritone singer, in Ballantyne gymnasium before a select and appreciative audience on Monday evening. The outstanding feature of the program was the brevity of the selections rendered, indicating, perhaps, a growing desire for shorter and simpler selections. The program chosen by Mr. Mills was varied and complete. The first part was somewhat dignified and distinctly of the concerto type. Handel's "Ye Verdant Hills" was rendered so pleasingly, yet with little effort, that the success of the artist was insured immediately. Following a selection from Secchi, Mr. Mills sang with much expression and dramatic interpretation Peri's "Invocazioni di Orfeo."

The second portion of the program was devoted to German music by Schubert and Strauss. "Im Abendroth," an evening ode, was especially beautiful. "Ungefuld," by Schubert, "Morgen" and "Zueignung," by Strauss, showed the artist's ability to interpret the slow and vigorous movements typical of the German school. Here again the audience became vociferous in its appreciation. Messager's "La Maison Grise" and Pold-owski's "L'Heure Exquise" concluded the selections from the foreign masters. The latter was especially pretty and even fanciful.

By request, Mr. Mills repeated Gallo-way's "Alone on the House-tops," which he sang last year, and which was received with even greater appreciation. With a deep understanding the baritone sang Gretchaninow's "My Native Land." Following was a special encore number, "My Little Banjo," a negro spiritual of sentiment and melody.

The last portion of the program was climaxed by two selections, one by Howard McKinney, "In My Soul's House," and one by Harriet Ware, "Stars," with the words by Joyce Kilmer. In both these selections the artist sensed the interest of his audience and rose to the occasion in his efforts. A selection by Fox, "Strings in the Air," was also especially attractive. An encore, "Duna," closed the program.

Mr. Mills had a pleasing voice which had a definite melodious ring and vigor, coupled with a clear enunciation which made the concert extremely individual as well as pleasing. Mr. Anderson Mowbray accompanied Mr. Mills on the piano in the same strong, clear style which made him invaluable to the success of the evening.

The choice of Mr. Mills to sing in this concert series indicates the good taste of the committee in charge and insured a growing enthusiasm among the students and townspeople to hear the remainder of the schedule.

Is it so different after all—this world beyond the campus gates?

Men in industry have their baskets to shoot at. They have their scores to make. Not on regulation courts, perhaps; but what of that? The principle is the same.

The five man Varsity becomes the five thousand, or fifty thousand, man industrial organization.

Not one opponent, but dozens, press in on all sides. From colloidal solutions to coordination of personnel, from electronic phenomena to fundamental commercial trends, the battle goes on.

Plenty of chances for the man with the mental training to match his wits against the questions of the day!

WRESTLERS SUCCUMB TO C. C. N. Y. TEAM, 25-7

Win by Sweet and Draw by Hoddeson Account for Rutgers Tallies

Unable to cope with the experienced and well-balanced combination presented by C. C. N. Y., the Rutgers grappling team went down to a crushing 25 to 7 defeat at Ballantine gym, Friday evening. The Lavender secured four falls and a time decision, while the best the Scarlet could secure was a single fall and a draw. Acting Captain Johnny Sweet, star Scarlet 158-pounder, threw Captain Schwalonest of City College, in the feature bout.

Al Hoddeson, Scarlet 115-pounder, staged a comeback to secure a draw in the opening clash, Referee Foster recognizing the great final spurt staged by the Rutgers mite as he came from behind in the last of two extra-periods to overcome Schwarz's early lead. Apparently worn out from the effects of making the 125-pound weight, Al Campion, Scarlet representative in this division, went down before Doscher of the visitors, the Lavender wrestler applying a half-nelson and body lock to win in 7:17.

Pomeranz Downs Greenberg

Pomeranz registered City College's second fall in the 135-pound tilt, when he pinned Abe Greenberg, Rutgers veteran, in 7:30. Greenberg started fast and brought his rival to the mat in easy fashion, but a desperate rally which culminated in a deadly half-nelson and crotch hold in Pomeranz's favor, gave the latter a well-earned victory. Willis Bilderback started off in fine fashion in his bout against Abe Grossman, C. C. N. Y. football star and boxing captain, but the Lavender halfback managed to regain his feet, and after he had brought Bilderback crashing to the canvas, applied a series of riding scissors on the burly Scarlet veteran from which the latter was unable to escape, Grossman securing a time advantage of over three minutes.

Moving about on the mat as though he was on the cinder paths, Johnny Sweet, the star of last year's team, kept up his fine work of the previous season, a half-nelson and body hold, followed by a neck and crotch hold, enabling the Rutgers grappler to flatten Schwalonest's shoulders to the mat. Working in deliberate fashion, Sweet tripped his opponent, and taking advantage of his opportunity, was successful in securing a fall against his more experienced rival. After struggling ineffectually to stave off a fall, Al Graeter, making his first appearance in the 175-pound class, was finally pinned by Marcus of C. C. N. Y. in 7:43, another half-nelson accounting for the fall.

Howard Defeated

Clarence Howard, wrestling in the unlimited division, was thrown by Heistein of City College, after 8:40 of a stormy tussle. Howard tossed his lighter opponent about at will in the early minutes and secured a minute's time advantage, but Heistein suddenly tumbled the husky Scarlet matman, and clamped the effective half-nelson hold to secure a fall in the final bout of the match.

Characterizing the sportsmanship of the large crowd of rooters present at the Rutgers-C. C. N. Y. wrestling meet, Friday night, as the finest he had yet encountered while engaged in intercollegiate wrestling, Coach Samuel Cantor, Lavender mentor of the mat sport, paid fitting tribute to Rutgers and her men.

REGISTRATION NOTICE

In order to lighten the work of registration as much as possible, all students are urged to pay their term bills before January 28. Students may call at the Registrar's office any time after January 10 to complete their registration for the second term. Term bills are payable at the Cashier's office. The fee for late registration is $5.00.

Attention is particularly called to the fact that registration must be complete before attendance at any class. Instructors and professors will be requested not to admit any student for whom the proper credentials have not been received.

Coolidge Pastor Replaces Dr. Wise for Chapel Sermon

Rev. Dr. Jason N. Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Washington, D. C., whose services President and Mrs. Coolidge have attended for the past eight years, will speak in Kirkpatrick chapel Sunday.

Dr. Pierce is taking the place of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue of New York City, who was announced as the speaker in September. A sudden change in Rabbi Wise's plans, causing him to go to Europe recently, has caused him to cancel his engagement here.

final word in new construction would rest with a board named by the state.

The part that the state should play in the control of its expenditures was easily decided, but the question of providing finances for the operation of the institution was harder to settle. A special committee will take up this matter.

Some of the members favored a half mill tax to raise the money, and others had contrary beliefs. All of the recommendations will be presented in the report of the committee in a few weeks.

Governor's Opinion

In speaking to the legislature of the state university, Governor Moore said: "Most thorough consideration should be given to the forthcoming reports of the two Commissions appointed a year ago to consider the relations of the State with Rutgers University and with the public schools. During my service as a member of the Board of Trustees of the University, as provided by law, I have been increasingly impressed with the value of the public services rendered by the University to the State and the imperative need of further expansion of the institution to meet the demands of the people of the State for higher education. These demands are not merely by our young people for opportunities to fit themselves for useful service in our industries and commerce and in the professions, but they come also from industrial workers for educational advantages of which they were deprived in youth, and from many organizations which need the cooperation of scientific research. There may be legal and administrative difficulties in the situation, but they cannot be insurmountable. The needs of our people require that we have a complete system of public education from the kindergarten through the State University. The problem of developing a real State University, of broad scope and properly supported in all its parts, on the historical colonial foundation at Rutgers, must be solved. It has been a satisfaction to me to initiate plans whereby such a beneficial result can be attained, and I bespeak the most earnest efforts of the Legislature and the cooperation of all citizens in bringing the work to a satisfactory conclusion."

FRATERNITY COUNCIL PLANS FOR INITIATIONS

Plans for initiation week were made at the meeting of the Interfraternity Council, Tuesday night. The council decided that February 5, 6, and 7 are to be used for the informal initiations of the fraternities, and that either February 8 or 9 is to be used for the formal initiations.

William H. Dutcher Jr., '29, chairman of the bridge committee, announced that the bridge tournament would be completed shortly. There will be another bridge tourney next semester, according to Dutcher, and the winner of each contest will meet in a final.

BOXING CANDIDATES REPORT

More than twenty candidates reported for the first boxing practice since the Christmas recess at Ballantine gymnasium last night. Coach Manley was in charge of the workout. The second series of exhibition bouts will be held at the gymnasium on Friday, February 15.

Instruction will be given on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 until January 16. The regular schedule will be resumed January 28 after the mid-year exams.

SWIMMERS TRIUMPH OVER C. C. N. Y., 40-21

Scarlet Natators Take Five Firsts Out of Seven for Easy Win in I. S. A. Debut

Rutgers celebrated its debut in the Intercollegiate Swimming Association by scoring an easy victory over the C. C. N. Y. natators, 40 to 21, at the City College natatorium last Friday. The Scarlet mermen gathered five of the seven events, conceding first place only in the 200-yard breaststroke and the fancy dive.

Jack Armstrong scored an easy victory for Rutgers in the 150-yard backstroke event, only to be disqualified because of a faulty turn on the last lap. Bob Buffington, veteran of last year, finished second by a comfortable margin and was awarded first place. Phil Gariss, sophomore diving luminary, performed an illegal dive, for which he received no point award, making his total too low to secure him a place.

The closest race of the evening was between Herbert Karashefsky of City College, and Frank Barnitz and George Garland of Rutgers, in the 200-yard breaststroke. The Lavender star was closely pressed for the first five lengths by Garland, only to have Barnitz catch the two leaders on the sixth lap. The last two laps were nip and tuck until the final ten yards, when Karashefsky drew away to nose out the Scarlet veteran in the fair time of 2 minutes 54 seconds. Garland was a close third.

Captain Danny Cream, suffering from a cold, had things pretty much his own way in the 440 to score an easy victory over Ero Djerf, in the slow time of 5 minutes 43 1-5 seconds. The Scarlet relay composed of Bostock, Smith, Jelenko, and Johnson, finished a length ahead of the Lavender in the slow time of 1 minute, 47 2-5 seconds.

"It won its title"

PERHAPS you have read some of the New York Herald Tribune advertisements which have appeared in this newspaper recently. They have attempted to show you, in a simple, straightforward way, some of the reasons why the Herald Tribune is "New York's most interesting newspaper."

It won its title, not alone because of the Percy Hammonds and the Grantland Rices and the Claire Briggs, but because each department is manned by people who do their jobs fully as well as their more famous veteran associates. Because the entire staff writes clearly and accurately, in good taste and with a deft touch of humor here and there, Herald Tribune news stories blend perfectly with the feature articles and special columns to make the newspaper as complete as it is interesting.

We hope you have come to know the Herald Tribune by reading it. Only in that way can you understand exactly why it gained more new readers in 1928 than in any other year in its history.

DREXEL FIVE BOWS TO SCARLET, 42-22

Floorwork of Preletz Features Rutgers Decisive Victory Over Philadelphians

ALTON IS HIGH SCORER

Scoring almost at will, Coach Frank Hill's Rutgers varsity basketball team overwhelmed the Drexel Institute five of Philadelphia, 42 to 22, at Ballantine gymnasium Saturday night. It was the second win in four starts for the Scarlet and the first since the defeat by Pennsylvania at the Palestra on New Year's day.

The Scarlet quintet opened up a powerful offense after the opening whistle, jumping into a nine-point lead at the close of the period on baskets by Alton and Preletz. A free throw by Tucker was the lone Drexel tally. The victors kept up their point-a-minute pace in the second quarter to hold the long end of a 20 to 8 count at half-time.

Although Coach Hill started to inject substitutes in the third quarter, the Scarlet quintet had its biggest scoring spree of the game, sinking six field goals and two tosses from the fifteen-foot mark for a total of fourteen points. The Philadelphians could cage but two baskets and a free throw in this session.

Several long shots by Captain Dobbins enabled the Drexel outfit to outscore the Scarlet, nine to eight, in the closing period. A continual stream of Rutgers substitutes poured into the game in this quarter. Preletz scored the first basket for the Scarlet in this period and Adler and Gowdy also scored from the floor. A foul shot by Tex Rosen and a shot from under the basket by Levin completed the scoring.

Clay Alton, veteran forward, led the Scarlet attack with six baskets and two fouls for a total of fourteen points. Joe Preletz, in his second varsity game, played a brilliant floor game as Alton's running mate, taking second scoring honors with four shots from the floor. Gaze Kish and Dick Boettcher played an excellent defensive game in the guard positions. Tex Rosen, who won a letter last season, was with the squad for the first time this season and put up a good game as a substitute guard.

Dobbins, captain and center of the visitors, tied Preletz for second scoring honors with eight points, but his floor game was ragged. Hay and Eckelmeyer were the outstanding players for the losers.

The Scarlet quintet showed flashes of excellent basketball in the third period, holding the ball the majority of the time. The passing was brilliant but spotty and the weakness of the squad from the foul line was evident.

INFLUENCE OF CHRIST IS SERMON SUBJECT

Denying the general belief of the street man that "religion is all up in the air," Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, Presbyterian Church of the United States, spoke in Kirkpatrick chapel Sunday morning. His subject was "The Influence of Christ." "This belief," Dr. Speer explained, "shows the reproach of the average man toward religion. We are trying to get away from this by showing it can stand tests as any history does."

"In reality religion is coming down from the air," Dr. Speer stated. "Jesus' influence is unique since he is a man whose birthday and deathday are widely celebrated, even though his influence was only the result of seventy days' work. This influence, however, should not be judged by the quantity, but by its quality." "There is nothing to compare with Christianity," the speaker continued. "While an exile on the island of Elba, Napoleon said that Jesus had had 10,000 times as much influence as he had had."

POLOISTS VANQUISHED IN INITIAL ENCOUNTER

Cronin Star in Sextet's Premiere, Accounting for All Points in 31-24 Defeat

In the first intercollegiate water polo contest ever engaged in by a Rutgers team, the C. C. N. Y. poloists downed an inexperienced but hard-fighting Scarlet six in a close battle, 31 to 24, at City College Natatorium last Friday. George Cronin, sophomore star, accounted for the entire Rutgers total, scoring a touch goal, five thrown goals and four foul shots.

The Scarlet drew first blood, Cronin scoring on a free throw from the fifteen-foot mark. Sobel, scoring the first of his twenty-one points, retaliated by scoring a touch goal, which put his team in the lead. At this point Cronin was shifted to the forward line in place of Djerf, who was sent back to play goal. Here, the Scarlet ace scored two thrown goals, while Gretch made a touch goal for the City sextet. The score at the half was 16 to 11, in favor of the Lavender.

City College started a furious attack at the start of the second half, which soon left the Scarlet far behind. Sobel scored a touch and a thrown goal to put the Metropolitan outfit in the lead, 24 to 11. Cronin scored two more thrown goals, making the score 24 to 17. Scarlet hopes were raised on the next play, when Cronin, swimming through the entire C. C. N. Y. combination, made a short pass to Whitey Phillips, who had replaced Charley Sunderland at forward. Phillips scored unmolested, only to have the goal declared illegal because he held the side of the pool, while scoring.

Emerging from a stiff scrimmage near the Lavender goal, Cronin scored a touch goal after a short sprint, making the Rutgers total twenty-two. Free throws accounted for the remainder of the Rutgers points. The line-up:

City College (31)	Pos.	Rutgers (24)
Bell	R. B.	Creem
Gretch	C.	Djerf
Thomson	L. F.	Seudder
Sobel	R. F.	Sunderland
Krauss	L. B.	Rosenbaum
Bell	R. B.	Cronin

Touch goals—City: Sobel (3), Gretch (2). Rutgers: Cronin. Thrown goals—City: Sobel (2). Rutgers: Cronin (5). Fouls—Rutgers: Cronin (4). Substitutes—City: Nolan for Krauss; Krauss for Massler, Massler for Bell. Rutgers: Smith for Seudder, Bennitzer for Rosenbaum.

Referee—John Curran, N. Y. A. C. Time of halves—8 minutes.

A. A. Office Urges Students To Exchange Stubs on Time

Students are requested to observe the ruling of the athletic office that all student tickets must be exchanged before noon of the day preceding the game. There will be absolutely no stubs accepted after that time. Because of neglecting this rule, many men have been kept from attending the contests so far. Tickets for the Seton Hall game tomorrow night will not be distributed tomorrow. Undergraduates will observe that under this regulation, no exchanges for Saturday contests will be made Saturday morning as in previous years, but will cease promptly at noon of Friday.

ST. JOHNS TO OPPOSE FENCERS FEBRUARY 2

Intensive Drill to Begin Thursday; Complete Schedule Announced

St. John's College of Brooklyn will furnish the first opposition for the Rutgers Fencing club this year when the fencing teams of the two colleges meet in Ballantine gymnasium, February 2.

Due to the fact that St. John's has no epee or sabre men, the contest will consist entirely of foils bouts. The match will probably be followed by an epee and sabre exhibition given by the Rutgers fencers under the supervision of Coach Captain McPherson, former British champion.

Veterans of the club who will probably see action on February 2 are: Captain Frank Martin, Al Hedefine, Ed Wilson, Mike Ordorica, Ernie Schultz, George Schultz, and Bert Kusanobu. These men will begin intensive preparations for the meet when the next regular practice of the club is held on Thursday evening, January 10.

The schedule: Saturday, February 2, St. John's College of Brooklyn at New Brunswick; Saturday, February 9, Lafayette at New Brunswick; Saturday, March 2, the Lavender Fencing Club of C. C. N. Y., at New York; Saturday, March 9, University of Delaware at New Brunswick; Saturday, March 16, Lehigh at Bethlehem, Pa.

COMMITTEE PICKS
FEB. 22 AS DATE
FOR JUNIOR PROMThree-Day Week-end Planned, Including Concert and Two Meets
LIMITED TO 300 COUPLESJack Pettis and His Orchestra Have Been Engaged to Play

Tickets are now on sale for the Junior Prom which will be held Friday, February 22, according to an announcement by Charles A. Freeman, Jr. '30, chairman of the Prom committee. This was decided at the meeting of the committee at the Beta Theta Pi house, Thursday night.

Plans are being made for holding a three-day week-end beginning February 21. There has been circulated a rumor to this effect, but the committee wishes it understood that the details of this are inaccurate. The rumor states that the Prom will be held Thursday, February 21, a Student Council dance will be given Friday, and fraternity house parties will take place on Saturday. Instead, a glee club recital and dance will take place Thursday, and, in the usual order, the Prom and the house parties will be held on Friday and Saturday, respectively.

Variety of Entertainment.
The week-end chosen for the Prom is an excellent one, as two athletic events are to take place Friday and Saturday. The varsity swimming team will meet Lafayette in the Ballantine pool the afternoon of February 22. The afternoon of February 23 will be occupied by a varsity basketball game with Union. The concert of the Glee and Instrumental clubs will take place Thursday night.

Music for the dance will be furnished by Jack Pettis and his orchestra. This orchestra is featured by the piano playing of Jack Pettis, and the work of Dillon Ober, of the Capital Theatre Orchestra of New York, who plays the traps and the xylophone. There will be dancing in both the upper and lower gyms.

Freeman has announced that the Prom will be limited to 300 couples. Theodore Daniels '30 has been appointed chairman of the favors committee. Nothing has been done for this work as yet, but the committee will interview representatives of several of the leading jewelers immediately after examination week.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of the committee, or at the college book store.

SOPH BANQUET INFORMATION

All sophomore neutrals and commuters interested in the Sophomore Banquet are requested to see Alton Adler '31 at the Phi Epsilon Pi house in person before January 17. Reservations may be made there and any other particulars can be attended to. Absolutely no information will be given over the telephone.

WHITMAN SPEAKS AT DREW

Professor Charles H. Whitman spoke recently at the annual banquet of the Browning society of Drew University seminary. F. Taylor Jones '26 is president of the society, and Harry P. Folger '27 is vice-president.

BROADCAST PROGRAM
FURNISHED BY N. J. C.Women's Uniformity of Dress Topic of Talk by Miss Dufault

Miss Leah A. Dufault, clothing expert and instructor in home economics at the New Jersey College for Women, in her talk during the regular Rutgers weekly program over Station WOR Wednesday night, defended the women of the age against the alleged accusation that they are striving for uniformity of dress.

Miss Helen W. Hazen, who heads the department of home economics at N. J. C., spoke on "Training the Food Specialist."

"In general it may be said that wherever large numbers of people are to be fed, there you will find a trained person to supervise the output of that food," Mrs. Hazen said. "We have become food-wise, and the information in regard to food which has been given out to the public has created a demand for persons trained to give service in this field."

President John M. Thomas directed the proceedings. The entertainment feature of the program was furnished by the Pine Cones, an instrumental group which played several song hits from current musical shows. Girls in the group, directed by Mrs. Frank Marryott, instructor of music, are the Misses Carol Downs of Haddonfield, Irma Patrick of Orange, Dorothy Haas of Irvington, Ethel Peterson of Newark, Virginia Stevens of Newark, Estelle Bearmann of Jersey City, and Elizabeth Pleister of Westfield.

Decker and McMahon
On Targum Council

E. Hampton Decker '31 was elected representative of the sophomore class on THE TARGUM Council in the election held Friday. Decker received fifty votes, and George H. Guiler '31 received thirty-eight votes.

In the elections for the Council representative from the junior class, which took place Wednesday, Ernest E. McMahon '30 was selected over Charles F. O'Neill, Jr. '30, and Alan A. Edmonston '30. McMahon received thirty-four votes, while Edmonston and O'Neill received six and nineteen votes respectively.

SETON HALL BOWS
TO SCARLET, 28-25Rutgers Piles Up Early Lead; Blue and White Rallies
In Third Quarter

GUILER RUTGERS STAR

Rutgers' varsity basketball team avenged a Scarlet defeat at the hands of Seton Hall in the recent practice game, when they nosed out the South Orange quintet, 28 to 25, in Ballantine gymnasium, Wednesday night. The two Hill-coached machines put up a game struggle for the supremacy, the result of the contest being in doubt till the final whistle.

Captain Dick Boettcher and Nellie Rohrbach were on the sick list as was Henaby of Seton Hall, but the Scarlet combination played a speedy game to run up an 11-point lead in the first half, and then eased up still maintaining a sufficient lead to come out at the long end of the score. Dutch Guiler was high scorer for the Scarlet with ten points, but was closely followed by Stretch Alton who accounted for nine. Madjeski led the visitors and was high scorer for the contest with 12 points.

Fifteen seconds after the opening whistle Alton counted for a basket that put the Scarlet into the lead. Alton accounted for two points more and Kish for one before the Blue and White were able to score. The floor work from the first was of the best. The quarter ended with the score 9 to 2 in favor of Rutgers.

Alton opened the second period with another beautiful shot. That shot, however, seemed to be a signal for the opening of a Blue and White sprint which counted for four points. The Scarlet de-

REDDAN ADDRESSES FACULTY

State Budget Commissioner John A. Reddan addressed the faculty meeting Wednesday afternoon on the subject of the appointment of state budgets. Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education, was unable to be present at the meeting, which he was to have addressed on the subject "English Industry and Higher Education."

PHILO ELECTS OFFICERS

Philoclean literary society elected Kingsley Childs '29, president; John H. Worth '29, vice-president; William A. Newson '30, secretary, and J. Whitney Olds '30, treasurer, at a meeting in the Chi Psi lodge Thursday night.

THIRTY MEN REPORT FOR TRACK PRACTICE

Practice for the indoor track season is well under way with thirty candidates reporting to Coach Bernie Wefers at the board track, daily. No meets have been scheduled as yet, but Coach Wefers expects to enter several men in novice races this winter and the relay team will compete in several contests.

No outstanding candidates to fill the relay positions left vacant by the graduation of Captain Stew Demarest and Larry Schulman have been found. As the men are only working for condition at present, however, it is possible that some latent talent may develop into good material.

A wealth of distance men with a lack of sprinters is the situation which Coach Wefers has to face in the coming campaign. Howard Bradford and Harry Ellison, both sophomores, being the only sprint candidates to report to date.

Among the leading performers in the distance events are Chick Hall, Soup Campbell, Bill Simpson, and Arnie Lehlbach, all sophomores, and Francis Alley, a freshman.

Is the True College Man Typically Collegiate?
400 Deans Are Asked to Answer Questionnaire

Whether or not the modern college man is the picturesque "collegiate" type that popular opinion makes him, will be decided soon when Henry Gratton Doyle, dean of men of George Washington university, receives answers to four hundred questionnaires on the subject he is sending to the deans of the leading colleges in the country.

Dean Doyle in recent years has been anxious concerning the variety of all the stories he has heard about the "collegiate" arts of necking, drinking, and gyping. After considerable study of the subject, he has issued his decision as in the negative, but wants to get the opinions of others all over the country. Dean Doyle will present the results of his questionnaire before the annual convention of the National Association of Deans and Advisers of Men, at Washington, D. C., in April.

In his letter Dean Doyle said he was sure that college authorities had felt concern and sometimes chagrin "over the mental picture of the 'collegiate' boy and girl which the general public has apparently created during recent years." He declared that he was sending his questionnaire in an effort to contribute something toward the correction of what he believed an erroneous public opinion.

Among the questions asked by the dean were:

"Is the typical 'collegiate' of the humorous press and the vaudeville stage the typical student of your college?"
"Is a slouchy appearance, as evidenced by garterless socks, rumpled shirt and collar, sloppy shoes and wrinkled suits of clothing, typical of your student body?"
"Is there any connection, in your opinion, between the attempt to be 'collegiate' and such problems as (a) drinking? (b) necking? (c) neglect of class work? (d) dishonesty in examinations? (e) other ethical problems?"

"In your opinion, is the 'collegiate' type diminishing or increasing?"

JUDKINS ADDRESSES A. S. M. E.

Robert W. Judkins '29, president of the Rutgers chapter, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, read a paper entitled "The Aircraft Engine," at the meeting of that organization in the Engineering building, Thursday morning. Plans for the next semester were discussed. "Dirigibles" will be the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Judkins as a sequel to his first topic, at one of the next meetings.

ALPHA ZETA TO MEET

Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity, will hold an open meeting Monday evening, January 28, at the Alumni and Faculty house. The speaker for the occasion has not yet been selected.

TEN BROECK TO SPEAK

Walter T. L. Ten Broeck Jr. '27 will deliver a lecture on "Factors Affecting the Production of Phenylhydrazine" before the Chemistry Seminar in the Chemistry lecture room, Tuesday afternoon.

SCARLET SWORDSMEN
IN VIGOROUS PRACTICE

Coach Captain McPherson put the fencing team through a hard practice session at Ballantine gymnasium, Monday and Thursday nights. Although handicapped by the lack of a suitable place in which to practice, the Scarlet swordsmen have been making steady progress.

Among the sophomore and freshman fencers Bert Kusanobu '31 seems to show the most promise. The foils team is made up of Al Heddefine '29, Ed Wilson '29, and Frank Martin '29. Some of the substitute foils artists who are working hard for places on the first team are: Mike Ordorica and Ernie Schultz, both '30, and Ed Perry '31. Ordorica and Orro Schuster '29 will probably fill the saber positions, while Martin and Heddefine seem sure of épée places.

Frank Martin will meet all freshman fencing candidates who desire coaching or practice in the football training table room of Hegeman hall, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, at 4 p. m., following the examinations.

James R. Digney to Head
Junior Banquet Committee

James R. Digney '30 was appointed chairman of the junior banquet committee by Michael J. Pecora, president of the class of '30. Other members of the committee are Benjamin N. Greenberg and Clarence F. von Glahn, both of the class of '30. Digney states that the banquet will be held out of town as usual, probably sometime in April, but that the place of the banquet and the price of the tickets have not been decided. No definite plans will be made by the committee until after the mid-year examinations.

CHANGES ARE MADE
IN DEBATING CARDUpsala Meet Postponed; Tufts
Contest on Co-Education
To Fill Vacancy

WORK ON JURY SYSTEM

Changes in the debating schedule as announced last week were made by Professor Richard C. Reager of the public speaking department, coach of the varsity team, Thursday.

The revisions include the postponement of the Upsala debate to March 12 and the moving of Tufts up to the place vacated by that college. Both colleges will be debated at home. Rider College will be met at Trenton on March 8, instead of February 8, and Buffalo university will be met on March 21 at home. A debate with Gettysburg has been added to the schedule, although a date has not been set for the meeting.

It was definitely decided that the question for the Tufts debate should be "Resolved, That co-education in higher institutions of learning is to be preferred to segregation of the sexes." Chester B. Stalker '30, Frederick C. LeRocker '30, and Richard B. Stout '29 will represent Rutgers in this debate.

Preparatory work for the forthcoming season has been carried on mostly on the subject, "Resolved, That three judges be substituted for the present jury system," as this will be the subject for most of the debates scheduled.

PI KAPS AND PHI EPS WIN

Pi Kappa Alpha defeated Lambda Chi Alpha, 19 to 14, and Phi Epsilon Pi defeated Alpha Sigma Rho, 19 to 10, in the intramural basketball games played in the Ballantine gymnasium, Thursday night.

The Faculty vanquished Hegeman No. 1, 21 to 12, in the lone contest played Wednesday afternoon. The game scheduled between Winants hall and Hegeman No. 2 was indefinitely postponed.

MATH CLUB HEARS GALBRAITH

Speaking on "Symmetric Functions," Merle G. Galbraith, instructor of mathematics, addressed the regular meeting of the Mathematics club in the Engineering building, Thursday night. Student papers were also read by Nicholas C. Giordano '29, who spoke on "Permutations and Combinations," and Richard M. Creamer '31, who spoke on "Fundamental Theorems in Algebra."

RIFLE TEAM ARRANGES
FOUR DUAL CONTESTS

Four dual matches have been scheduled for the Rutgers' R. O. T. C. rifle team, which will also fire the third and fourth stages of the Second Corps Area Inter-collegiate, for the week beginning February 2, while a shoulder to shoulder meet with N. Y. U. has been tentatively arranged for March 8 or 9.

The dual matches will include Emory university, the University of Alabama, Wyoming university, and Massachusetts Agricultural college. The meet with Western Maryland university, which was scheduled for December 15, was won by forfeit, Western Maryland failing to report the results of their firing.

The men who will compose the team for the next five matches are: G. C. Jacobus '29, H. H. Meier '30, R. E. Beck '31, N. E. Hoffman '31, C. F. Kenny '31, J. H. Lontz '31, C. M. Morfit '31, R. T. Andrews '32, D. G. Sharp '32, F. F. Kwicinski '32, S. B. Webster '32, H. Vicinus '32, L. G. Diener '32, F. H. Janin '32, G. H. Yetke '32.

Sergeant Wilbur, coach of the R. O. T. C. rifle team, has appointed the following men as sophomore managers of the team: S. B. Seidman '31, E. L. Paige '31, and Howard D. Metz '31.

Rutgers varsity basketball team will journey to New York to meet the strong City College of New York quintet at the City College gymnasium Saturday evening. While Coach Hill's courtmen have a record to date of three victories and two defeats, the Lavender basketballers have tallied six wins out of seven games for the first half of their schedule. Last year the Scarlet dropped a close contest, 29 to 25, to City College after holding the lead for the greater part of the game.

Coach Nat Holman's C. C. N. Y. basketball five, with several veteran players, has made an impressive showing in its early season games. In its last four starts City College has scored at least 40 points in each game, averaging 46 for the four contests. St. Lawrence was beaten 58 to 17, Princeton buried under a 40 to 25 total, Washington and Jefferson outscored 41 to 17, and Bucknell taken into camp 44 to 27. Altogether, the Lavender players rolled up 183 points to 86 for their opponents.

Outstanding in all of the C. C. N. Y. court engagements has been the work of Captain Sam Liss, veteran forward. Teaming with Spandack at the forward posts, the Lavender leader is a tower of strength in all departments of the game. At centre, Frank de Phillips is a skilled performer with a deadly eye for the basket. Musican and Spindell, both capable veterans, hold down the guard positions in fine style. In addition to these first string men, Coach Holman has a large number of good substitutes at his disposal, most of whom are either varsity veterans or members of last year's freshman court aggregation. ## DR. McLEOD MARRIED JULY 10

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage of Dr. Neill S. McLeod, university physician, to Miss Hazel Belle Domichy, daughter of Mrs. C. McCreary of Holland, Michigan, in Lancaster, Pa., on July 10 of last year. The wedding was not announced before because the bride, who has since given up her work, was a student nurse in training at Middlesex hospital.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Edde, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lancaster. Mrs. McCreary was the only attendant. The couple, who made their wedding public by sending cards to their friends, are residing on Comstock street.

ANNOUNCE NEW LIST
OF CHAPEL SPEAKERSJudge Florence E. Allen Included in Revised Program

Chapel speakers during the next semester will include Judge Florence E. Allen of the Supreme Court of Ohio and Dean Charles H. Brown of the Yale Divinity school. Judge Allen is the only woman chief justice of a state supreme court in the country, having recently regained office running on an independent ticket. The list includes many other prominent speakers and church authorities, and Colonel Axton stated Thursday, when he announced several substitute speakers, that the list for the next term is one of the best ever compiled.

Changes included the Reverend Jason N. Pierce, who will take the place of Rabbi Stephen Wise tomorrow, and the Reverend J. Frederic Berg '92, who will replace Sir Wilfred Grenfell. The Reverend Daniel A. Poling will be replaced at a later date.

The new hymn books have arrived from the publishers and will be put into use next term.

The list is as follows:
January 13, Rev. Jason N. Pierce, D.D., pastor First Congregational church, Washington, D. C.

February 3, Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, D.D., Princeton Theological seminary; 10, Rev. W. Warren Giles, D.D., First Reformed church, East Orange, N. J.; 17, Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president

Infirmity Or Intimacy?

With the number of men who are suffering from heavy colds and the gripe increasing rapidly the need of an infirmity at Rutgers becomes apparent. Pressing as is our need for recitation halls and departmental buildings, even more urgent is the necessity for a college hospital.

Men who become ill are without supervised care unless they return home, an act which is in many cases impossible. Roommates and fraternity brothers may wish to aid the afflicted but they are unskilled and have work that must be done. Thus the patient is left to help himself while waiting for the doctor's periodic visit.

But even worse than this is the exposure of the non-afflicted students to the ravages of disease. Undergraduates brought into constant contact with their fellows who have contagious maladies can not always withstand the attacks of the scourge. Through the medium of the living group, the epidemics spread rapidly.

The necessity to quarantine various houses could not arise were there an infirmity where the patients could be sent. Last year on our own campus, one fraternity house was quarantined for two weeks because of the illness of two men. As a result, an entire group of men was kept from classes and activities for a fortnight because of inadequate facilities for the isolation of contagion.

With an infirmity, these shortcomings would be remedied, since the ill men could be cared for by trained attendants, the well students protected from needless exposure, and quarantines eliminated. With this need so apparent and the advantages so obvious, we trust that the next step in the university's building program will be the provision for an infirmity equal to those of other institutions of higher learning.

Reserved—With Reservations

Another of those perennial problems is what we might term the "library question." Every once in a while a word of protest from the campus world is entered in these pages, and justly. The author of the current letter is a senior and probably recalls a similar criticism printed in these columns last year.

Whether or not the disturbances in the library are due entirely to the much-maligned commuters is a matter which we will not attempt to discuss. The argument is that unjustified and unnecessary distractions are too prevalent.

Possibly the writer of the letter to the editor levelled his accusation against the "day-hops" because they seem to frequent the library to a greater extent than resident students. That such a situation exists is only natural. It is the only place to which commuters can repair in their free hours. But, should they be guilty of the breaches of etiquette mentioned by our correspondent, it should be called to their attention in no uncertain terms by the proper authorities.

Another annoying feature of the present library system is the number of re-

Targumdrops

"Hello, how're you feeling?"
"Rotten. I've got a lousy cold. Didn't sleep a bit last night."
"Great! Do you think you've got it?"
"Dunno, I'm trying hard."
"Atta boy, for the honor of the old school, you know."

THE COLLEGE CATALOGUE

While glancing through the catalogue The other day, I found
Some facts that quite surprised me. I know they will astound.

For even in this present day,
Despite our modern tone;
Wild animals—and tame ones, too
Upon our campus roam.

There's BARs and BORS and COONS
And NANNES running 'round.
While some have seen two LYONS
Upon our sacred ground.

In front of Queens, most every day
You see an HASSE and RYDER;
But stranger yet 'tis to behold
A KAMEL and a TIGER.

'Tis said that in the pool there are Four MARTINS and a SEAL.
While someone saw two KATZ at Mac's

Partaking of a meal.
A LAMB would surely cause surprise
Seen walking with a SETTER;
Yet we have seen with our own eyes,
Two WOLFS reading a letter.

The BIRD is also to be found:
A CRANE posed on one leg,
Three DRAKES, a KONDOR,
DOTTO, too,
Resulting from one EGGE.

We've walking trees and talking shrubs,
A BERRY to sing with his STEIN.
A BIRCH, a BUSCH with by one BLUME,
Two ROSES and a PINE.

We've slighted no profession here,
A MERCHANT you can find;
Six MILLERS, with three MILLS nearby
And SMITHS of every kind.

The other day, sad to relate
A PRIEST and RECTOR found
A STIFF propped up against a tree,
And two SCULLS on the ground.

Democracy is far from rare.
It's quite a common thing
To see a BUTLER, now and then
Conversing with a KING.

If you should doubt my crazy rhyme,
I beg you take a look
At names they've printed here and there
In our directory book.

W. S. '29.

We notice that Miss Leah A. Dufault of the Women's College, gave a talk over the radio on "Training the Food Specialists." Hope that Mac was listening in at the time.

The recent flair for skating reminds us of a little verse perhaps forgotten by many of you.

Mary took her little skates
Upon the ice to frisk,
Now wasn't she a silly girl
Her little ***

Sing a song of sickness
Another case of flu.
Call the college doctor,
See what he can do.

When the doc arrived there
A dozen more were seen,
Now wasn't that a nasty trick
To play upon the Dean.

We see that Mr. Meyer Tell of the class of '32 considers this an "old stagnant Rutgers." I'm sure he realizes that he is one of the many amoeba who cause such stagnation.

PEEPING TOM.

served books which, in defiance of the laws of that institution, disappear from that building overnight, and at times for a period of several days. Apparently the authorities have been making no efforts to stop the practice beyond the desultory and generally disregarded recall post-cards.

In courses where classes must depend upon the books on the reserve shelves, where outside reading is an important phase of the progress of the group and standing of the individual, professors are not sympathetic to the plea that work could not be accomplished because required books were not available. The unfortunate delinquent, his deficiency totally unmerited, must suffer the consequences of another's selfishness.

The remedy must be found in stricter enforcement of library regulations by the authorities themselves. The practice is sufficiently widespread to evoke comment, and to justify calling the matter to the attention of responsible parties.

Book Review

Meet General Grant, W. E. Woodward; Horace Liveright & Co., $5.00.

All of us know something about Grant, in a general way. We associate his name with that of a great leader who captured Vicksburg, won the Civil War for the North, and later became a very mediocre president for two terms. As for the man himself and his private life, most of us are completely in the dark. So W. E. Woodward, in his spirited and entertaining manner, proceeds to enlighten us.

Mr. Woodward does not idealize his hero. Indeed, to the contrary, he emphasizes the fact that Grant was an absolute failure in everything he undertook prior to the Civil War. He was very unhappy at West Point. During the Mexican War, as quartermaster, he became moody, dull and kept almost entirely to himself. With no personality, no joy in life, no friends, and an aversion to military life in the bargain, Grant found his only comfort in liquor. The author suggests that the very fact that he drank himself out of the army was the most fortunate happening in his career, for it paved the way to future successes. During the next few years, Grant drifted from farming, to real estate, to the leather business, but in no way was he able to support his growing family. When war broke out, he was a forlorn figure, at the bottom of the pit.

But why, may we ask, did Grant rise so rapidly to be major-general, from whom regular army officers of higher intelligence received their orders? He was untidy and careless in dress, and unable to inspire his men or organize them into a hard, fighting unit when taken by surprise. But he was certainly tenacious and stubborn to the last degree. Ever since he was a boy, it had been a superstition of his never to turn back when once he had started out. And Lincoln realized that this was just the sort of driving power needed to win battles. So his bull-doggedness and ability to act in the midst of dire confusion spelled success for Grant in the military field.

But whether Grant had the knowledge, judgment, and statesmanship to make a good President is quite another question, and one which curiously enough received little consideration on the part of the American people of his time. Knowing his short-comings, we can have only pity for this man who strove so earnestly, but who simply was not capable of the mighty tasks which were his. He had neither the brains nor the training to couple with the problems of the day.

For this work, Mr. Woodward gathered material from 300 different volumes, so he tells us, and the life of the General is, indeed, complete in every detail. But if he had merely collected, condensed, and transcribed this material, the result would have been just another biography and nothing more.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:

I agree with the "Student" in his letter to the editor appearing in the December 11 issue of THE TARGUM in deploring the enlargement of the Rutgers student body.

One of the things that sold me on Rutgers was the statement of a friend that Rutgers was a small, compact, friendly college, one where you knew most of your fellow students. That was only about four years ago when there were some 700 men students. Already we have more than one thousand students and still there are hundreds whom we have had to turn from our gates because of lack of accommodations. How strong a feeling of fellowship can be expected to exist among so large a body?

It is my impression that the college man or woman is distinctive and outstanding in the world as such. I would attribute this to the general college life and spirit which has imbued that person and would consider it valuable. Those who are products of our present factories of learning where the student body numbers in thousands undoubtedly get knowledge and training, but they do not appear to possess those characteristics which we assign to the college bred. Perhaps this is just a personal illusion caused by local conditions and institutions, but it is strongly present. So, I fear seeing Rutgers enter the category of the "big college."

Sincerely,
T. L. O.

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:

During the next three or four weeks men everywhere on the campus will be striving to inculcate more intensely the traditions of Rutgers as well as the policies of their respective fraternities into the very natures of those freshmen who are now pledges. And it is right that this should be so. Just as much as this process prove successful so will the allusion to "the Rutgers man" increase in richness and value.

But there are several disturbing elements present on the campus which hinder the growth of anything that even approaches courtesy to say nothing of the true Rutgers spirit. Outstanding in this collection is the attitude of those men known as commuters. This has received some allusion in your column of the Inquiring Reporter but apparently needs embellishment. If one will drop into the gymnasium any morning such a rabble is heard as to raise the question of the value of college in its ability as a place where some little culture may be picked up. The criticism is not of the use of the gym but here may be found many type forms.

Again, go into the library either in the study room or down in the stacks and try to put in fifteen minutes of concentrated study. The feat is so nearly impossible that it would be interesting to offer prizes to those men who could accomplish it. These same men come in to hold seminars and do so in such a manner as to annoy anyone who may want to study more in the style of a gentleman. True, we might expect the officials at the library to conduct the rulings in accordance with libraries in other universities. But, apparently, either out of choice or of necessity, they have decided to let us decide what rules we will have in study or in play.

Even in the classroom where the commuter has a chance to mingle with the resident men, he prefers to stay with his colleagues. There have been several letters in THE TARGUM about course-crabbers. May I suggest that you notice from what class the majority of these celebrities come.

My point is that this is not a school of aristocratic tendencies nor would it be better as such. Yet there are certain rules of conduct which go to the make-up of a gentleman. And there are certain things that are peculiar to a Rutgers man such as a desire to cooperate with our acquaintances in spirit and in deed. Here we have a strong degree of fellowship, despite the growth in numbers, which is fostered to no little extent. That is why we have student publications, that is why we have student literary societies, that is why we have student banquets, and why we have all sorts of opportunities to get together. And it is these rules and these traditions which we as resident students would like to see fulfilled in our less fortunate friend who live off the campus. Fortunately, there are some who are doing this and, I have no doubt, have found benefit in the association.

Yet, as things are, we would not want the freshmen to get the impression of a true Rutgers man from them. In the future we can hope and can work toward that end. Only in this way can college leave its best impression on us and only when this is brought about can we cherish our days spent here to the fullest extent.

Yours for a united Rutgers body, fense tightened and the score mounted for Rutgers. The half ended with the Scarlet at the long end of a 17 to 6 score.
A SENIOR.

The third quarter brought to light one of the Hillmen's rallies. This time it was against the Scarlet. By the end of the quarter the South Orangeites had, through field and foul shots, drawn within striking distance of victory. The score showed a six-point difference at 25 to 19.

The last quarter was almost disastrous for the Scarlet. With the Blue and White still pushing ahead for victory, Rutgers only hope was in a strong defense. Kish was taken out on personal fouls and was replaced by Rosen. Guiler and Rosen, by virtue of foul counters, made Rutgers only three points. Krafchik balanced the ball between the rim and the backboard but, although it fell through the ropes afterwards, the points were not allowed. The game ended when neither team seemed to have the advantage but with the score in favor of Rutgers, 28 to 25. The line-up:

Lafayette students are quite amazed at the act of one of their professors, who, finding that the class had "cut," proceeded to search them out in fraternity houses and dormitories and held the class anyway.

Purdue students live up to their name of "Boilermakers" and resent the intrusion of effeminacy. An organization has been formed to assert masculinity in appearance and attire. The club holds as its main tenets the wearing of old clothes, sweaters, and old shirts on the campus and will not permit members to use a razor more than twice a week.

Because men in one of Southwestern College's dormitories were not overly careful about drawing their shades while disrobing, college authorities have had the dormitory windows painted with white paint.

Scarlet Has Won Three

In its first five basketball contests, Coach Frank Hill's Scarlet quintet has tallied wins over Gettysburg, Drexel, and Seton Hall. Two losses have been sustained to the powerful Crescent A. C. five and to the University of Pennsylvania combination, the latter not a regularly scheduled contest.

Because of the loss of several varsity players, the most important of these being Captain Dick Boettcher and Nellie Rohrbach, sterling center, both out with the "flu," it is probable that Coach Hill will be forced to make some drastic changes in the line-up of the first team for the contest with City College. Boettcher's place may be taken by either Dutch Guiler or Tex Rosen, both of whom have performed creditably this season. Gaze Kish will probably be found at the other guard station. The call for the forward posts will most likely be answered by Joe Preletz and Al Adler or Max Kraichik, with Stretch Alton moved from his regular position at forward to assume the center's duties in the event that Rohrbach is unable to play. Any of these combinations should be able to make things interesting for the Lavender courtmen.

Women of the University of Oklahoma have accused the fraternity men of compelling the pledges to memorize set lines in love-making compiled by the upper-classmen. They lament this production of stereotyped lover and ask for a return to individuality in love-making.

Because they feel that one should understand football in order to support it enthusiastically, the athletic directors at McGill University have been giving a series of talks on the game to the college co-eds.

The desire for thrill by two Ogelthorpe University students led them to commit a murder. They were discovered by a pair of blood-stained trousers and upon arrest confessed to the crime.

A "hiking trip" over five states and a province in Canada at the expense of $9 was made by a senior at the University of Kentucky.

The head of the botany department at Butler has stated that artificial creation of life is impossible, and that man will never understand life's mysteries. He sets religious beliefs ahead of science, telling his students that if there is anything in the subject which has upset their religious beliefs, then to forget about the course and hang on to their beliefs.

The latest directory of the Bureau of Education announces that Columbia is the largest university in the country, with 35,000 students and 1,500 teachers. Buena Vista College is the smallest with 21 students and 16 faculty members.

Canadian college girls use more rouge than British co-eds, according to a group of English women students who visited the University of Toronto recently. One of the visitors suggested the situation as being a result of American influences.

Students under 18 years of age at the University of Omaha will be arrested if they are found on the streets of the city after 8 p. m., in accordance with the resolution of the W. C. T. U. of that city.

PROFESSORS AT CONFERENCE

Dr. Stanley E. Brasefield of the mathematics department; Dr. Charles H. Whitman, professor of English; Dr. Thurlow W. Nelson, professor of zoology; and Professor William Rieman, assistant professor of chemistry, attended the meeting of the Association of American Professors at Columbia university recently.

Weekly grade cards for pledges are being considered by the interfraternity council at Oklahoma University in an attempt to raise their scholastic averages.

Of the 25,000 persons named in "Who's Who" approximately 14,000 or more than half are college graduates. About 3,000 attended college but did not graduate. Nearly 3,000 completed their high school training but did not go on to college. Two thousand acquired only grammar school education, while about the same number did not reveal the extent of their education. Of the entire number only 388 professed to have attended no other school than the University of Hard Knocks.

The theory that the American college student of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was "so incurably addicted to studious piety that he found little time to play and none for dissipation" recently received a severe jolt through revelations of student habits in diaries and records now in possession of Harvard University. Brawls, hazing, wrangling with the faculty and general disorderly conduct were much more characteristic of students' behavior at the time.

It is considered a breach of etiquette for Oxford University women to talk on the streets with Oxford men. British newspapers recently have been commenting on the shocking manner in which the Oxford students are beginning to disregard this tradition.

SEND FOR IT ON APPROVAL

The "Hallmark Self-Instructor" is the title of this method. Eight years were required to perfect this great work. The entire course with the necessary examination sheets, is bound in one volume. The first lesson is unsealed which the student may examine and be his own "JUDGE AND JURY." The latter part of the "Hallmark Self-Instructor" is sealed.

Upon the student returning any copy of the "Hallmark Self-Instructor" with the seal unbroken, we will refund in full all money paid.

This amazing Self-Instructor will be sent anywhere. You do not need to send any money. When you receive this new method of teaching music, deposit with the Postman the sum of ten dollars. If you are not entirely satisfied, the money paid will be returned in full, upon written request. The Publishers are anxious to place this "Self-Instructor" in the hands of music lovers all over the country, and is in a position to make an attractive proposition to agents. Send for your copy today. Address The "Hallmark Self-Instructor," Station G, Post Office Box 111, New York, N. Y.

ROSCOE METZGER IMPROVING

Roscoe Metzger '32, son of Dean Metzger, is now on the road to recovery, according to latest reports from the Middlesex General hospital, to which he has been confined since last week suffering from internal hemorrhages. If his condition continues to improve, it is expected that he will be allowed to return home for the week-end.

The total enrollment of students in Reserve Officers' Training Corps in the United States last year was 119,349, according to figures just compiled by the War Department. These students were enrolled in 323 units, of which infantry led with 188 groups. Illinois led the states in enrollment, with a total of 10,549 taking courses there.

PROFESSOR AGGER RETURNS

Professor Eugene E. Agger, who has been confined to his home following an operation for appendicitis, returned to his duties in the Economics department, Wednesday morning.

Boston University students have recently criticized the attempt of fraternities and honorary societies to have a man enter several activities, claiming that in this age of specialization a man should be known not for the number of activities in which he participates, but by his excellence in one important activity. At present the results are bad, and one might as well be a leader in a single activity and accomplish something worth while than be an assistant in many.

The "Triumph" and "Defiance"

Where do young college men get in a large industrial organization? Have they opportunity to exercise creative talent? Is individual work recognized?

KEEN-VISAGED seamen who watch the foam swirl in the wake of the "Triumph" and "Defiance," U. S. Shipping Board vessels, see in these ships something more than cargo-carriers. These staunch boats are emblems of American enterprise on the high seas.

To gain economy in their competition with foreign-owned marine units these ships were recently converted from steam to Diesel-Electric drive—the highest powered Diesel-Electric ship installations thus far developed. Directelectric propulsion of 4000 hp. at a propeller speed of 60 rpm. was provided, and the auxiliary equipment was also electrified. An important by-product of the conversion was a valuable increase in the total available cargo-carrying space.

The big jobs go to organizations with the resources and facilities to handle them. Westinghouse attracts young men of enterprise and genius because it daily provides interesting opportunities such as smaller concerns can seldom offer.

The huge propulsion motors of the "Triumph" and "Defiance" are of the doublearmaturetype designed to maintain high efficiency at low propeller speeds. The installations include electric motors for blowers, windlass, oil and water pumps, and warping winches — a complete modern marine electrification by Westinghouse.

TRUSTEES ELECT E. L. KATZENBACH MEMBER OF BOARD

Earl Reed Silvers Designated
Associate Professor Of English

REILLY MADE PROFESSOR

Watts to Do Special Research Work
On Use of Gas in Ceramics

Attorney-General Edward L. Katzenbach of New Jersey, former ex-officio trustee of Rutgers, was appointed life member by the board of trustees at a meeting in the Ceramics building, Friday afternoon. James H. Reilly, director and instructor of the department of physical training, was made associate professor of physical education; and Earl Reed Silvers, director of public information, was designated associate professor of English.

Mr. Katzenbach, who has served as trustee for several years, has been prominent in state political life. It is in recognition of his services in the interest of Rutgers that the board has honored him with life membership.

Reilly Made Professor

Professor Reilly has been with the physical training department since 1914, and has been coach of the swimming and water-polo teams, which position he will continue to hold. He is himself a swimmer of international fame, having held the 500 yards national championship in 1910 and the one-mile national championship in 1911. In 1912 he was a member of the American Olympic swimming team which represented the United States at Stockholm, Sweden.

Professor Silvers will continue his duties as director of public information. He will take no part in actual class room instruction but will contribute special service in the field of criticism and creative writing. He is author of many books for boys and contributes to current juvenile magazines. He is also editor of a page of reviews of books for boys which is issued monthly by a national syndicate.

Mr. Watts will carry on research work in ceramics as a result of a special contract between Rutgers and the American Gas Association, in which the advisability of using gas to fire ceramics will be investigated. Quality of glazed ware, and tests of furnaces and kilns will be included in the investigation.

President Thomas also reported the budget statement of Governor Harry A. Moore at this meeting. The receipt of a legacy from the late Edgar B. Bacon of Jersey City of $50,000 to be used for scholarships, $35,000 for Rutgers and $15,000 for the New Jersey College for Women, was announced.

COLLEGE BAND PLAYS OVER WOR THURSDAY

Rutgers March Dedicated to Prexy on Program for First Time

"The Rutgers University March," which was written by Bandmaster Charles W. Cook and respectfully dedicated to President John M. Thomas, will be played for the first time in public as a feature of the WOR broadcasting program Thursday night. Two other numbers of the program, "Men of Rutgers" and "On the Banks of the Old Raritan" were arranged for the band by Mr. Cook.

The complete program:
University Song—"Men of Rutgers"
.....H. N. Briggs '21
"March and Procession of Baccus."

.....Delibes
From the ballet, "Sylvia"
Duo for Piccolos—"Two Little Bullfinches"
.....H. Kling
Played by Alanson U. Welch '29 and Lambros D. Callimahos '32.

March—"Rutgers University."
.....Charles W. Cook

SCARLET MATMEN BEAT POLY, 18-15

Grapplers Show Improvement
To Defeat Invaders
For First Win

TRIUMPH IN FOUR BOUTS

Rutgers varsity wrestling team won a close decision from the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute grapplers by the count of 18 to 15, in Ballantine gymnasium, Friday night. In winning their first victory of the season, Coach W. E. Cann's Scarlet mat artists showed a considerable improvement in form over their initial contest of the 1929 campaign, which they dropped to the City College of New York wrestlers, 25 to 7.

Clarence Howard, varsity football player, competing for Rutgers in the unlimited class, gained a time decision of 5:02 over Jack Schraeder, Brooklyn Poly, after two extra periods. For the larger part of the bout, neither man could gain the advantage, but in the overtime Howard used his superior weight to pin his opponent to the mat and win the match.

With the score 15 to 5 in favor of Poly, Al Graeter, Rutgers 158-pounder, turned the tide by throwing Fitz Pira, Brooklyn Poly, with an arm and body lock, in 7:27. After remaining on the defensive until the last few minutes of the bout, Graeter suddenly broke the Blue and Gray grappler's hold, assumed the offensive, and pinned his opponent's shoulders to the mat.

In the 175-pound class Johnny Sweet, football star, staged a great battle to throw Captain John Lotz, of Brooklyn Poly, with an arm and crotch hold, in 7:30. After putting his opponent to the mat at the half-time mark Sweet showed impressive skill and power in downing the Blue and Gray wrestler to win the bout.

CONTESTANTS ENTERED IN HANDBALL TOURNAMENT

According to an amendment made by Assistant Physical Director Al Compton, the annual handball tournament conducted by the physical training department will get under way January 28. Dean Metzger and James Reilly, physical training director, are entered in the doubles division and are expected to furnish stiff opposition.

Those entered in the doubles tournament are: Hank Lipkowitz and Bob Rudnick; Jesse Freidin and M. Eddie Lande; Walt Schaefer and Dave Spivack; Eli Fischer and Ted Daniels; Jack Gehrlen and Ted Roberts; Lou Klein and Gus Kestenbaum; and Dean Metzger and Mr. Reilly.

The following men have entered the singles: Hank Lipkowitz, Jack Silverblatt, Bill Charney, Leo Schwartz, Eddie Lande, Mort Palitz, Max Peskoe, Lou Klein, Gus Kestenbaum, Max Fosman, and Mr. Compton.

REGISTRATION NOTICE

Registration for the second semester may be made now, it was announced yesterday, in accordance with the new policy of permitting bills to be paid before registration day. Luther H. Martin, registrar, urges all students to pay their bills before January 28 in order to avoid congestion. Instructors have been notified not to admit students to classes unless their term bills are paid.

Glee Club Concert Begins Three-Day Prom Week-End; Favors Will Be Combination Cigarette Lighters

Permission for holding a three day week-end February 21, 22, and 23, has been obtained from Dean Fraser Metzger by the Student Council, according to an announcement made last night by John M. Carney '29, president of the Student Council.

Fraternalities will be allowed to entertain their guests from Thursday, February 21. That night there will be a Glee Club concert, followed by a dance. On Friday afternoon, a swimming meet will be held with Lafayette, and the Junior Prom will be held that night. Following the Union basketball game Saturday afternoon, there will probably be a tea dance in the Ballantine gymnasium.

FROSH INDIANS LOSE IMPROMPTU CONTEST

Defeats Yearling Team
by 5-1 Score

That lacrosse is a popular sport in any season was again borne out when twenty Rutgers Indians gathered for an impromptu contest that resulted in a 5 to 1 triumph for a team of upper classmen over a freshman combination at College field, Saturday afternoon. The upper class team, composed mostly of former junior varsity players, showed unusually good early season form in spite of the near zero weather.

Plans for the game started Thursday afternoon when a group of freshman lacrosse enthusiasts challenged an upper classman to get a team together. Two ten-man teams were assembled, goals put up, and Manager Reynold Drews recruited as referee. Acting Captain Al Campion picked his ten and turned over the three remaining upper classmen over to the freshmen. The yearling team, with Ed Sinsire and Frenchie Julien, former Brooklyn High school stars, and George Latimer and Bill Martin, veteran Cortland High school Indians, as a nucleus, displayed plenty of individual ability but were unable to cope with their more experienced opponents. During the greater part of the contest, the veteran attack combination of Al Campion, Steve Doig, Al Beams, and Dick Warr, former jayvees, and Johnnie Kirkwood, freshman star last year, kept the ball in freshman territory for the greater part of the game.

Al Campion started the scoring after three minutes of play, and rang up a second tally before the Cub defense organized. Two more goals bounced off the sticks of Johnnie Kirkwood and Al Beams before the half ended. The freshmen got together and tallied their only counter just as the second period started. Martin circling the net from the rear and driving the rubber past Snedeker. Doig tallied the final counter for the jayvees after six minutes of hard scrimmage.

For the yearlings, Sinsire, Martin, and Julien started offensively and defensively. Campion led his mates in scoring, while Holthusen and Moonan, sophomores, played strong defensive games. Several spectacular stops were credited to Len Snedeker, last year's freshman goalie and captain. The line-up:

Junior Varsity	Position	Freshmen
Snedeker	Goal	Grothe
Bilderback	Point	Dutcher
Holthusen	Cover Point	Pine
Moonan	First Defense	Holdridge
Cuddeback	Second Defense	Barlow
Beams	Center	Sinsire
Warr	First Attack	Latimer
Kirkwood	Second Attack	Julien
Doig	Out Home	Hodgins
Campion	In Home	Martin

GRID COACHES RESIGN

Freeman Fitzgerald, former All-American guard of Notre Dame, and Lloyd Scott have resigned from the football coaching staff of Marquette university.

Group Life Insurance Amounting to $5,000,000 Offered to Faculty and Other Yale Employees

Group life insurance has been offered to faculty, administrative heads, and clerical and service staffs of Yale university, it was announced yesterday by President Angell of Yale. The amount of insurance involved is $5,000,000, of which the university is paying a substantial part of the premiums. Provisions, it was announced, were based upon classification of positions. The minimum of insurance to be taken out is $5,000, while the maximum is $10,000. The insurance became effective on December 19.

As a Christmas gift to the faculty and administrative heads, the university paid all premiums, including those of the clerical and service staffs, for one month. After January 19, the university will not be able to pay the entire insurance, so that it will remain in force only for those who have expressed a willingness to share the cost with the university. Doubt has been expressed that many of the less-paid members of the faculty will be able to pay their share of the insurance.

House parties will be held that night, and guests may remain in the various fraternity houses until 10 a. m. Sunday. Tickets for the Prom may be obtained from any member of the Prom committee, or at the college book store.

Favors for the Junior Prom will be combination cigarette lighters and paper weights, stated Theodore Daniels '30, chairman of the favors committee. They will be semi-conical and slightly curved to facilitate handling, and will be scarlet, with a golden Rutgers seal stamped on the side. The bases are quite heavy to allow the favor to be used as a paper weight, the compact mechanism making it a convenient desk lighter.

GOD MAN'S HELPER, DECLARES DR. PIERCE

Influences of Creator Ever Apparent
Both in Science and Sacrifice
by His Loving Power

Declaring that recent scientific investigations which have increased our knowledge of the universe have in no way disproved our conception of God, Rev. Jason N. Pierce, D.D., pastor of the First Congregational church, Washington, D. C., scored the controversy between religion and science in Kirkpatrick chapel Sunday morning.

"What do you think God is like? What is your idea of God? God is a Supreme Being who never forgets, never fails, and always helps. In these days when we realize the great size of the universe of which we are a small part, and that minute things attain such perfection, we can still picture God as Christ described Him. What are the high spots of your consciousness of God? Do you know God intimately? A person does not need a great mind but a keen spirit to really know God."

"The gypsy moth, the Japanese beetle, the corn borer, and the boll weevil are pests that infest our land," continued Dr. Pierce, "and God has called on man to overcome the evil. Science has shown us that in worlds of great magnitude as well as in minute ones the influence of God is apparent."

"There are a large number of job hunters in Washington at present and a big, strong young man came into my office the other day and asked for a dollar. I offered to get him a job but he refused and begged for fifty cents and finally twenty-five cents. What this man lacked was enthusiasm, ambition, and patience which are the necessary qualities to rise up in this life. God will give you power if you hold fast to Him and will give you enthusiasm if you let Him."

"Jesus gave a 'three-year course' to His disciples and then turned the whole kingdom over to them. Later Paul, who was a strong man against the cause of Christianity was converted and put all his dynamic power to the aid of the cause. With all his suffering and being buffeted about he still believed in God and set out to make the world right. The way of God is the way of truth, sacrifice, and love."

SNOWE '29 PRESENTS PAPER

Arnold Snowe '29 presented a student paper entitled "Cathode Ray Oscillograph" at a meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in the Engineering building, Monday night. Plans were discussed for organizing an honorary electrical engineering society for the purpose of petitioning a similar national group.

Sports Who's Who Lists Rutgers Alumni

Four Rutgers alumni are listed in "Who's Who in American Sports," published by the National Biographical Society.

Homer H. Hazel '25, who is now coach of football and basketball at the University of Mississippi, was the last fullback picked for the All-American team by Walter Camp.

H. Parker Talman '17, another man named, holds the university record for the discus throw and was a football star.

Walter E. French was active in football here and at West Point where he was a student after he left Rutgers. He was formerly a member of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Harry J. Rockefeller '16, our present head football coach and graduate manager of athletics, is the fourth alumnus so honored.

RUTGERS CAGERS VANQUISH C.C.N.Y.

Rough, Hard-Fought Game

ADLER IS HIGH SCORER

Rutgers varsity basketball team downed a fast C. C. N. Y. five, 33 to 32, in an overtime game at the City College gymnasium, New York City, Saturday night. It was the fourth win in six starts for the Scarlet combination and the second defeat in eight games for the Metropolitan college. This was the first time that Rutgers had defeated City College in eight years.

The game was the roughest and hardest fought contest seen on the Lavender court this season. City College team passed the ball with bewildering speed and fairly dazzled the spectators with its clever footwork. The Scarlet's strong defense and the ability of the Rutgers men to follow the ball accounted for the margin of victory. Rutgers made good seven of its numerous foul shots, while Coach Holman's men dropped ten of their free throws through the hoop.

The score was tied several times and the lead changed hands nine times in the last half. Al Adler, sophomore star, was the high scorer of the torrid battle, accounting for eleven of the Rutgers points, via five field goals and one foul tally. De Phillips, lanky Lavender center, scored seven markers for his team.

City College started with a rush, scoring on a basket by Liss. Rutgers kept the ball in its opponent's territory and after several heart-breaking tries for a goal succeeded in tying the Lavender, on a loop shot by Alton. At this stage the men began to rough it up and numerous penalty shots were awarded to both teams. Adler, Alton, and Kish caged a goal apiece. The Lavender also scored

SCARLET TO PLAY HAVERFORD FIVE HERE TOMORROW

Coach Hill's Courtmen Picked
To Defeat Pennsylvanians

INVADERS INEXPERIENCED

Return of Boettcher and Rohrbach
Strengthens Rutgers Team

Rutgers	Position	Haverford
Proletz	Right Forward	Katz
Rohrbach	Center	Supple
Kish	Right Guard	Bevan

Rutgers varsity basketball team will engage the Haverford college quintet of Haverford, Pa., at the Ballantine gymnasium, Wednesday night. The Scarlet closed its last season with a 42 to 32 triumph over the Pennsylvanians and is favored to repeat tomorrow night. Coach Hill's courtmen have a record of four victories and two defeats. The close decision over the powerful C. C. N. Y. quintet last week makes the Scarlet a heavy favorite over the Pennsylvanians.

The Haverford cagers, handicapped by only three weeks of practice, have dropped the three games they have played. The Crescent A. C., Middlebury, and Dickinson college defeated the Pennsylvanians 46 to 19, 39 to 24, and 32 to 20, respectively.

Coach McAvoy, starting his first year as Haverford basketball coach, is handicapped by a lack of veteran floormen. Thomas and Melchior, stars of last year's quintet, graduated, leaving a big hole at center that has not been filled. Tripp and Morris are still nursing injuries received during the past football season and have been unable to report for basketball. Captain Downward and Bevan are the only veterans on the team. Katz, a sophomore, is running mate for Bevan at guard, and Mawhinney is forward with Downward. Supple holds the edge over Hunner and Hamilton in their three-cornered fight for the center post.

In its first six basketball contests, Coach Hill's Scarlet quintet has tallied wins over Gettysburg, Drexel, Seton Hall, and C. C. N. Y. Two losses have been sustained at the hands of the powerful Crescent A. C. and the University of Pennsylvania, the latter not a regularly scheduled contest.

Captain Dick Boettcher and Nellie Rohrbach have partially recovered from the "flu" and both attended practice on Monday in preparation for tomorrow's game. With the return of these two stellar courtmen, Coach Hill will be able to put his first team with Stretch Alton and either Joe Proletz or Al Adler as forwards, Nellie Rohrbach at center, and Dick Boettcher and Gaze Kish as guards. Substitute guards include Tex Rosen and Dutch Guiler, both of whom have performed creditably this season. Max Krafchik is the outstanding replacement for the forward position.

FROSH QUINTET PLAYS PEDDIE IN FIRST GAME

Yearlings Inexperienced

Rutgers freshman basketball team will meet the strong Peddie Institute five in the Scarlet Cub's first game of the season at Ballantine's gymnasium tomorrow afternoon. Although the yearlings have played several practice contests, it will be the first scheduled tilt for the squad coached by Assistant Graduate Manager Bennie Mark of the 1928 varsity.

The Hightstown quintet has compiled an excellent record in its earlier contests, a victory over the Princeton freshman standing as its most notable win. The starting team has played together for three years and has developed a strong passing game.

After a disappointing showing in the practice contests the Scarlet Cubs are in good form for the initial court battle of the schedule. The probable choices for the forward berths are Jack Grossman and Eddie Drake, star backs on the Cub football team. This pair have played a good game in the practice contests, Grossman leading the scoring in most of the games. Other possible forward choices are Port Alther and Bob Carney, Johnny Waldron, regular halfback on the yearling grid machine, has just reported and may see action.

Mort O'Connell should get a chance to use his height in the pivot position. Grodolsky has been pressing O'Connell in recent drills and ought to see action as a substitute.

Frenchy Julien and Bill Graf are in the lead in the fight for the guard berths with Herb Mallett, Joe Costa and Al Roberts as relief material.

It's the Man Who Pays

"I Can't Give You Anything But Love" is quite likely to be an appropriate selection for the closing number of the various house parties next month. With the announcement of a three-day Prom week-end comes the necessity on the part of the undergraduate to raise the wherewithal for the added meals, glee club concert tickets and incidentals which mount up unbelievably. Under ordinary circumstances we feel as though we had the German war debt on our hands after our guest has departed the campus, and only a two day whirl behind us. Lord knows what it's going to be like this time.

Of course students are beginning to consider ways and means of saving, which, all things being considered, means that father will bear the burden as usual.

That the three-day week-end is an improvement to our social world is certain, permitting as it does, a greater opportunity for including events not usually vouchsafed to those whom Dean Metzger so aptly calls our "house party necessities." Incidentally, to those of us who have heavy "cases" our "eternal Paradise" will now include Thursday. That we will have borrowed on our allowances up until June makes no difference. Not until the day after.

Honor—or Honors?

As the time for examinations draws near, we are faced with the ever-present lack of honor among the undergraduates. The students seem to feel that all is fair in school as well as in love and war, and so they do their best to outwit the faculty. That a man spends his four years in college to learn and to find out how much he doesn't know is a fact which seldom seems to occur to many.

Rather than fairly and squarely to take his mid-years, many a so-called student is heard to say, "Don't forget, I'm sitting side of you in the final." Others have their duplicate blue-books all prepared with courses carefully outlined and important points listed. These pseudo-scholars evidently care little for their personal honor, and fail to realize that it is a breach to cheat whether one be under the proctor system or the honor system.

There have been in the columns of this paper several attacks upon the commuters who were designated by the writers as a blight upon the fair name of the university. Yet we do not find these conditions of dishonor as prevalent among them as among the resident students, fraternity brothers of every reader of this article. Before we condemn course-crabbing and talking in the library, let us first wipe out dishonor from our fellow students.

Let each man, therefore, when he looks ahead to his examinations, consider whether his honor is not worth definitely more than any grade the faculty can give.

Intercollegiate

The honor system is failing in many co-educational schools because the men are not co-operating, according to the delegates at the Women's Intercollegiate Association for Student Government held recently.

The participation in various sports by the average student was ascertained in a recent freshman questionnaire at Oberlin College. Fifty-five per cent had played tennis and about the same number basketball, forty-six per cent had played football, forty-one per cent had contested in track events, while the standing of baseball was much lower. Almost every yearling could swim.

A dress clinic has been established for the co-eds of Northwestern to advise individual students how to dress attractively according to their needs.

Chasing butterflies and moths has helped a Cumberland College senior to pay his way through college. His collection of 20,000 specimens is computed to be worth $4,000. He utilizes it in public exhibits and lectures.

Nearly half of the Army football team are track and field men also.

The University of Akron attempted a form of organized campus politics this fall with disastrous results. Bad feeling reached such a high pitch that there were several small riots.

An after game celebration in Los Angeles cost the Biltmore hotel thousands of dollars because of the ruined furniture.

Four Kansas University students were ducked in a fountain by co-eds of that university when the young men attempted to crash the gate at a "girls only" prom.

Fifty Russian exiles are enrolled among the students at Washington University. They are former members of the White Army.

Twenty-two cents is the average amount that a Boston University student carries with him. One wealthy student had $1.67, while several had none at all.

Northeastern University freshmen are required to wear Boston garters in order to show loyalty to the city in which they are pursuing their studies.

Authorities at Stephens College require 600 co-eds to take an afternoon siesta every day. The nap is reported by the faculty to effect an appreciable scholastic improvement.

Cigarette smoking by women students at Ohio Wesleyan is followed by expulsion from school. The university also has a ban on student automobiles and student marriages. Women are permitted to dance if they have filed a written request from their parents with the dean.

Representatives from twenty colleges attended the first intercollegiate aviation conference held at Yale University.

Seniors and juniors are required to wear caps and gowns to all classes at St. John's College, Brooklyn.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY ELECTS PROF. FALES

Announcement has been made of high honor conferred upon Professor David Fales, head of the sociology department, who, in recognition of his extended and consistent research in the field of prehistoric civilization, has been elected member of the Societe Prehistorique Francaise, a French historical society of international reputation for its great scholarly attainments.

Professor Fales in securing material for his broad courses in sociology has made a practice of spending his summer month in tours of the principal European countries. It was through this work in securing knowledge and information on his subject from the foremost scholars of Europe that Professor Fales was elected a member of this organization, which is made up principally of French university professors engaged in historical research.

FOOTBALL STAR PLAYED WITH BROKEN SHOULDER

Paul Murphy, veteran halfback of the Pennsylvania varsity football team, played virtually the entire past season with a fractured left shoulder, an X-ray examination has just revealed.

Murphy first injured his shoulder in the Franklin and Marshall game, the second on the schedule, and nine times during the game at Chicago the "trick shoulder" was knocked out of place. Paul participated in the Harvard, Columbia and Cornell games and was a star. While the midyears are being held at the university, Murphy plans to visit the hospital and undergo an operation. He is a senior.

Book Review

Harness, A. Hamilton Gibbs; Little, Brown Co. $2.50.

There have been many stories written about the world war and of the heroes who participated in that struggle. But few men have thought to take two or three characters who have returned from that struggle and unravel for us their attempt to readjust themselves in a different world, among a young people, and where a different philosophy of conduct was accepted. The possibilities of success in doing just this are revealed in Major A. Hamilton Gibbs' new novel "Harness."

Michael Gordon had been in the war to the merit of his country and his family. Returning home, he found it hard to pick up the threads of his former life. Most of his friends had either moved on, or had "gone on." Patricia Wade had been a Red Cross nurse in the same war. And now that she, too, had come home to drop into her old circle, she, too, found them to be a missing quantity. So in desperation she had entered a small paper business. While these two world-wise people had known each other before there had never existed any more mutual bond than that they both belonged to the same set.

Tucked away in the woods of Devonshire was a most attractive place "with a thatched roof, trellises heavy with lilacs holding the very walls together with love and warmth." Here the young married couple settle and commence life anew, as few couples are able to live over their younger days. There had been the time element in war but not for these two people. Though twenty-five, they lived as twenty.

Sociologists have long wondered about this institution called marriage, what it really meant, how it really worked out from the first step from the altar to the phase which is known as conjugal bliss. In this novel, A. Hamilton Gibbs has vividly painted his picture of the creation of a new philosophy, of a new generation and of a new life. We are given enough of the author's life in editorial transcripts to suspect that this is no wild imaginative voyage, nor as we follow the actors in the drama can we but realize that these longings, these heart pangs, these inner strugglings to learn to understand another person so that they might finally become united into "one soul"—all of these are real experiences of the writer.

Even though we do have the usual triangle of two men and one woman, and even though there is a deeper undercurrent working with "feelings" rather than things or persons, this is distinctly not another psychological novel. Virile and straightforward, this book is well qualified to hold its position as a best-seller. T. H. T. '29.

COLLEGIATE CONTESTS IN TANKS THIS WEEK

Three swimming meets again are listed for this week's round in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming and Water Polo League. The three meets and water polo games will be held between C. C. N. Y. and Princeton at Princeton, N. J., tomorrow night, Columbia and C. C. N. Y. at the Lavender pool on Friday night and between Yale and the University of Pennsylvania at New Haven the following day.

The meet with C. C. N. Y. will be Princeton's opening encounter on the schedules. The Tigers are certain to win by a large score, but the meet will determine just how potential the 1929 Orange and Black aggregation really is. The Tigers are ranked among the four strongest teams in the league this year and the meet with the New York college, though sure to result in a victory for the Orange, is a test of their strength for coming encounters.

The swimming meet and water polo game between Rutgers and University of Pennsylvania, which was postponed, because of the illness of several of the Scarlet natators, will be held Wednesday, February 27, at Philadelphia.

CARNEGIE TECH SELECTS CAPT.

John Drescher of Mars, Pa., has been appointed captain of the 1929 Carnegie Tech football team. Drescher, who was selected by the coaches, is a guard and also plays center. He is a junior and succeeds Howard Harpster, who was an almost unanimous All-American selection last season.

N. Y. U. QUINTET'S SCHEDULE

Captain Bill Conroy, center and leading scorer of New York university's basketball squad, will lead his mates into what promises to be the hardest week of the season when the Violet meets the Army, Syracuse and Colgate tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. All will be played away from home, tomorrow's at West Point, Friday's at Syracuse and Saturday's at Hamilton. The last named contest will be a return engagement against N. Y. U.'s only conqueror thus far this season.

JOHN T. AGANS TO SPEAK

John T. Agans, Master of the State Grange, will speak on "Student Granges in College" at an open meeting of Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity, at the Alumni house, January 28.

M. E. GATES, JR., CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Merrill E. Gates, Jr., son of the late Dr. Merrill Edward Gates who was president of Rutgers from 1882 to 1890, was recently indicted by the Federal grand jury in New York City for alleged misconduct of bankruptcy receiverships. He was released in $2,500 bail for trial on a charge of embezzlement. Mr. Gates insisted there was no shortage and that his delay in filing a report was due entirely to an illness of several weeks. He said an investigation would reveal he had conducted his bankruptcy trusteeship properly.

Dr. Gates resigned as president of this university in 1890 to become president of Amherst college.

Gates, a member of the class of 1896, attended Amherst College when his father was its president and when President Coolidge and Ambassador Morrow were students in the class ahead.

LACROSSE CANDIDATES CALLED

Assistant Graduate Manager Bennie Mark issued a call on Monday to all freshman lacrosse candidates. Men who intend to try out for the yearling team this spring are urged to report at the athletic office before the end of this week.

RIFLE TEAM SCHEDULE

Two matches have been added to the schedule of the R. O. T. C. rifle team. The first, with the New York Stock Exchange, will be fired during the week ending February 9; the second, with George Washington university of St. Louis, Mo., will take place during the week ending March 2.

The match with Emory university of Georgia, which was postponed because of influenza at that institution, has been scheduled for the week ending February 2. Arrangements are under way for a shoulder-to-shoulder match with the N. Y. U. marksmen on March 8 at the range on Ford campus.

VAN DER MEULEN TO SPEAK

Professor Peter A. Van der Meulen of the Chemistry department will give a public address before the Rutgers chapter of Sigma Xi, national honorary scientific society, on "Atoms and Molecules" at the Chemistry building Monday night at 8 o'clock. There will be a closed meeting of the members at 7:30, previous to his address.

LIVING EDITORIALS

For an editorial article to gain admittance to The Sun, it must first of all be interesting. It may be a eulogy of some great deed, a memorial of a distinguished man, a comment on a political situation, an analysis of an economic condition, a discussion of an artistic or literary question, a bit of humor—or on a human interest theme.

The editorial page of The Sun is and always has been a powerful, living influence in American journalism.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ORATORICAL CONTESTBetter America Society to Divide
$5,000 Among Seven Finalists

The National Intercollegiate Oratorical contest on the Constitution, which has been conducted for the past four years by the Better America Federation of California, will be continued this year, according to an announcement today at contest headquarters, 1217 National Press building, Washington, D. C.

The prizes will be the same as in previous years, namely $5,000 in cash, divided among the seven national finalists in the final amounts: First place, $1,500; second, $1,000; third, $750; fourth, $550; fifth, $450; sixth, $400, and seventh, $350. The national finals will be held in Los Angeles, June 20.

Any bona fide undergraduate student in any university or college in the United States is eligible. The orations, which must not require more than ten minutes for delivery, must be on one of the following subjects: "The Constitution," "Washington and the Constitution," "Hamilton and the Constitution," "Jefferson and the Constitution," "Marshall and the Constitution," "Franklin and the Constitution," "Madison and the Constitution," "Webster and the Constitution," or "Lincoln and the Constitution."

The nation is divided into seven regions for the purposes of the contest. The colleges in each region compete among themselves, generally by states, to determine the finalists for each region. The regional finalists compete late in May to determine the one speaker from each region who is to have a place in the national finals. A place in the national finals automatically carries with it an award ranging from $350 to $1,500, according to the ratings given the different national finalists.

Colleges may be enrolled in the contest by action of either a college official or a student. Entries close March 15. The spokesman for each college must be designated by April 15. Regional semifinals will be held April 27.

ZETES, INDEPENDENTS WIN AT BASKETBALL

Zeta Psi and the Independents were victorious in the only games played in the intramural basketball league during the week-end.

On Monday evening the Oaks fell before Zeta Psi by the score of 25-14. Writer starring with 14 points for the victors. The game between Chi Phi and Chi Psi was forfeited by the latter, while Beta Theta Pi and Delta Upsilon postponed their engagement until a later date. Both of these contests were scheduled for Monday evening.

The Independents easily defeated the Vix on Friday afternoon, the final tally being 49-4. Coleman and Katz were outstanding for the victors.

YEARLING SWIMMERS
IMPROVING RAPIDLY

Rutgers freshman swimming and water polo teams are rapidly rounding into shape for their coming campaign, under the strict tutelage of Coach James H. Reilly. The swimming team will oppose James Madison High School of Brooklyn, N. Y., at Ballantine pool, Saturday, February 2.

Among the outstanding candidates for positions are: Curt Heinfeldt, in the 440 event; Charlie Byrnes, in the 220 dash; Johnnie Ziemba, backstroke and dive; Clem Curtis, backstroke; Frenchy Julien and Frank Crossman, breast-stroke; and Dick Hardy and Jay Drury, sprinters.

HOWARD RANDOLPH TO SPEAK

Howard S. F. Randolph, of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, will address the New Brunswick Historical society at the Guest house on the public library grounds Thursday night at 8:00. His subject will be "The Fun of Finding Forefathers."

N. Y. U. ALUMNI CONTRIBUTE

Twenty-seven hundred alumni of New York University combined in giving $72,530.61 to their Alma Mater, it was announced yesterday in the first annual report of the Alumni Fund committee headed by John Gerdes '10, chairman.

Of this amount $32,204.61 represents the sum obtained under the new alumni plan put into operation last year. $2,436 came from subscribers to the Violet Bond of Loyalty, a method of selling bonds formerly used by the alumni to stimulate outside interest in support of the university. Gifts for the fund totalled $7,890. The remainder is the estimated value of Federal Adjusted Compensation insurance certificates.

Rutgers succeeded in breaking up the Lavender attack in the second quarter, and forged ahead with but two minutes of the half to go. After a great deal of discussion on the part of the referee and the umpire, the score was finally determined at the end of the half, 15 to 14, in favor of Coach Hill's quintet.

Clay Aton was ejected from the fray just before the end of the half because of personal fouls. He was the first of seven men to be retired in this manner, three Rutgers and four C. C. N. Y. players were banished on this account. Nellie Rohrbach, who had just recovered from an attack of influenza, took Alton's place at center.

Neither side could gain an advantage in the second half. Several spectacular field goals by Adler brought the Scarlet total up to that of City College, whenever the New York team assumed the lead in the third quarter. The teams entered the last canto with the Scarlet one point in the lead, by virtue of Guiler's foul.

Crowd Near Riot

Play was fast and furious in the closing minutes of the game. With but forty-five seconds to go, the game was halted, so that the Lavender backboard could be repaired, the netting was torn from the hoop as the result of a furious scrimmage under the City College goal. During this interim, a near riot was precipitated, because of the difference of opinion held by the timers, in regard to the number of seconds remaining. The score at the end of the regular time was 29 to 29. Adler was put out because of personal and Whitey Fairchild was put in his place.

Rohrbach tallied with a basket and Kish with a foul shot to put the Scarlet in the lead in the overtime period. City College tied this on like scores by Liftin and Spindell. Whitey Fairchild's golden opportunity came a moment later when he was awarded a free shot, which he converted into a score.

Rutgers played without the services of Captain Dick Boettcher, who has been suffering from the flu. Sandak, City College star, entered late in the second quarter, but was soon sent from the floor because of personal. The line-up:

UNIVERSITIES TURNING TO MOVING PICTURES

College men and women have come to the point where taking moving pictures at big games and winter sports festivals is the mode. In the east, where football originated, the students are going in for moving picture photography with the same amount of interest and enthusiasm that they show for archery, hockey, and soccer.

Movie clubs are next, for in this day and age of simple movie cameras, which now even take color pictures and which are being shown in all attractive colors, it is possible to get a permanent record of your college days. And now one can even secure an i. 4.5 lens to give telephoto effects and objects will be larger and nearer when shown on the screen.

Y. M. C. A. CABINET MEETS

PROFESSORS AT MEETINGS

Professors Irving S. Kull, Mark M. Heald and Lewis E. Ellis, of the history department of Rutgers, and Professor Emily G. Hickman, professor of history at the women's college, were present at an annual meeting of the American Historical Society at Indianapolis, during the recent Christmas holidays.

Professor Heald presented a paper on "Freshman Orientation" to the freshman history group and Professor Kull engaged in a round table organized for the purpose of discussing the authorship of "The Diary of a Public Man," an anonymous article published in the North American Review in 1879. The author of this article has never been discovered and it is believed by historians that he was a great statesman of Lincoln's time.

INSTRUCTION COURSES IN COACHING PLANNED

Thorough instruction in both the theory and practice of football, basketball, track, boxing, tennis and other sports, designed to aid coaches of high school, preparatory school and small college teams, will be offered on a large scale for the first time under the Harvard summer school department of physical education this summer, it has been announced by Henry W. Clark, assistant director of Harvard athletics and supervisor of the coaching courses in the Harvard summer school.

In the past the department of physical education has offered such courses on a more limited scale, but this is the first year that fully rounded courses on a par with those offered anywhere else will be available in Cambridge. The summer school session at Harvard will open on July 8 and will continue until August 16, a total of six weeks, but in some of the sports a three-week period will be sufficient to cover all the ground.

MOST DANGEROUS GAME

Hockey, as played by the colleges, is more dangerous than football or any other sport is a fact that is brought out by Joseph Stubbs, Harvard hockey coach, whose article, "Intercollegiate Hockey in the East," appears in the February issue of College Humor.

"A doctor is in attendance at all practices and games," says Coach Stubbs, "and he has a most complete equipment of medical supplies. It might be noted that we had two very severe injuries from skate cuts last season, both of which required prompt needlework. One of the visiting players dislocated his shoulder in a game, was etherized, his shoulder reset, and strapped without leaving the building. There are very few practices or games where the doctor leaves without having a call for his services. Hockey is a dangerous game."

RUTGERS MERMEN HAVE EASY PRACTICE SESSION

Several of Coach James H. Reilly's swimming stars reported for practice Monday after a lay-off of several days because of influenza. These men indulged in easy work-outs, as there is no meet until the Princeton encounter on Saturday, February 9, at Princeton.

George Cronin, Whitey Phillips, and Tubby Harrison were the men who loosened up their muscles. Captain Danny Creem will not enter the water for a few days, as he has not fully recovered from his recent illness. George Garland and George Bostock were at the natatorium, but did not enter the water. Ed Tilley and Bob Johnson, sprint men, limited their work to practice starts and a few easy laps.

Phil Gariss and Paul Simonson, divers, went through their usual hard practice session to keep in form.

EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS PROF. MORENO-LA CALLE

Commending President-elect Hoover's good will trip to Latin-America, visiting Professor Julian Moreno-LaCalle, speaking at the weekly Exchange club luncheon in the Hotel Klein, Thursday, declared that it would do much to bring about a better business understanding between the two Americas. He remarked that citizens of the United States have strange ideas about South American business methods and about the needs and ways of living in that part of the world.

Professor David P. Gilmore, assistant professor of romance languages, was made chairman of the membership committee of the organization.

WASHINGTON AWARDED SWIMMING ENCOUNTER

Amphibians Will Meet in St. Louis to Compete for Titles

The sixth annual National Collegiate Athletic Association swimming meet has been awarded to Washington university, St. Louis, and will be staged in Wilson pool on March 29 and 30, according to Arthur E. Eilers, business manager of athletics, who has just returned from New Orleans where a meeting of the association was held.

Eilers, a member of the N. C. A. A. Swimming Rules committee and former Washington swimming mentor, was largely instrumental in having the committee award the meet to Washington for this year. In 1928 the meet was held at the University of Pennsylvania.

Wilson pool is one of the largest and finest swimming pools in the middle-west and preparations are now being made to enlarge the seating capacity for the coming affair.

All of the leading universities and colleges of the United States will, in all likelihood, send swimmers to participate in the championships. Because of the central location of Washington it is confidently expected that the entry list will be considerably larger than last year which, incidentally, was the most successful of any meet yet conducted.

The general control and conduct of the meet will again be vested in the Swimming Rules committee, composed of Fred W. Luehring, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, chairman; Frank J. Sullivan of Princeton university, editor of the Intercollegiate Swimming Guide; Arthur E. Eilers, Washington university; E. T. Kennedy, Columbia university; and Ernst Brandsten, Stanford university.

Acting Captain Al Hoddeson, veteran Scarlet grappler, started the scoring for Rutgers when, wrestling in the 115-pound division, he threw Conti, Brooklyn Poly lightweight, with a neck and body hold, in 5:09. The Scarlet matman showed superiority all the way, exhibiting a thorough knowledge of the various grips and holds.

115-pound class—Acting Captain Hoddeson, Rutgers, threw Conti, Brooklyn Poly, neck and body hold. Time, 5:09.

125-pound class—Albert, Brooklyn Poly, threw Grosse, Rutgers, half-Nelson and body hold. Time, 4:38.

135-pound class—White, Brooklyn Poly, threw Falconer, Rutgers, half-Nelson and body hold. Time, 3:18.

145-pound class—Odenheimer, Brooklyn Poly, threw Stickles, Rutgers, arm and body hold. Time, 9:18.

158-pound class—Graeter, Rutgers, threw Pera, Brooklyn Poly, arm and body hold. Time, 7:27.

175-pound class—Sweet, Rutgers, threw Lotz, Brooklyn Poly, arm and crotch hold. Time, 7:30.

Unlimited class—Howard, Rutgers, defeated Schneider, Brooklyn Poly. Time advantage, 5:02 (two extra periods).

Referee—Clarence Foster, Princeton.

PENN STATE GYMNASIUM

Announcement of the dedication date for the new Penn State gymnasium has been made by the faculty committee on athletics as March 23, the same day the final bouts of the intercollegiate boxing championship tournament are to be staged in the new building.

MATMEN TO GRAPPLE IN CLUB'S GYMNASIUM

One of the biggest wrestling tournaments ever held in any athletic club will take place on Wednesday, January 30, in the large gymnasium of the new clubhouse of the New York Athletic Club, at Seventh avenue and Fifty-ninth street. So large is the list of entries of amateur wrestlers from Eastern colleges and athletic clubs in various parts of the country as far west as Chicago, that they already number 200.

Eight weight classes will be included in the tournament: the 112 pounds, 118 pounds, 126 pounds, 135 pounds, 147 pounds, 160 pounds, 175 pounds and heavyweight. The event will be under the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union.

SCARLET VANQUISHES HAVERFORD FIVE, 37-16

Adler High Scorer in Decisive Win Over Fighting Quakers

Rutgers varsity basketball team scored a decisive 37 to 16 victory over an inexperienced Haverford College quintet at Ballantine gymnasium, Wednesday night, January 16. It was the fifth win in seven starts for the Scarlet and the fourth consecutive defeat for the Pennsylvanians. Rutgers repeated its victory of last year in defeating the Fighting Quakers.

Outclassed from the start, the Haverford five offered little opposition to the Hillmen. Shooting and passing was poor during the first period, five minutes passing before Supplee broke the ice with a foul shot for Haverford. Captain Dick Boettcher evened the score soon after with a free throw. With this start the Scarlet drew away, the period ending with Rutgers in the lead, 8 to 3. The Hillmen led, 12 to 8, at halftime.

With Nellie Rohrbach still weak from the flu, Coach Hill started Clay Alton at center, Al Adler and Joe Preletz in the forward berths, and Gaze Kish and Dick Boettcher at the guard posts. The team worked more smoothly when Rohrbach entered the game during the second half and the Scarlet held their opponents to eight points, while they scored twenty-five counters. Adler, sophomore star, took scoring honors with twelve points. Kish played an excellent defensive game. Captain Downward, veteran of the Quaker quintet, was the backbone of the

Many Mistake Bert Harris For Buffalo Murderer

Bert Harris, of Buffalo, is the only inmate of the death house at Ossining, due to the recent execution of three "pants bandits" last week. This is the first time in twenty years that the membership of this part of the New York State prison has been so depleted. Harris was convicted of the murder of Louise Friday and will be electrocuted in March. All of which has nothing to do with Bert Harris '31, of Buffalo, despite the fact that many of his observant friends have taken pains to send him newspaper clippings of the existing conditions.

ATHLETIC TEAMS RESUME PRACTICE

Cagers, Swimmers, Boxers, Wrestlers, and Fencers Hold Workouts

TRACK MEET FEBRUARY 9

All Rutgers varsity and freshman sports squads resumed their practice sessions at Ballantine gymnasium, Monday, after a two weeks' recess, due to examinations. The Scarlet teams will now finish their winter schedules without any further interruption.

Coach Hill's varsity basketballers gained a point over the other squads and held impromptu practice sessions during the examinations. Regular practice was held Monday afternoon. Basket shooting occupied the first part of the session, while a scrimmage between the first and second teams featured the practice. Adler and Preletz, forwards; Kish and Guiler, guards; and Alton, center, comprised the first string combination.

Rutgers natators were able to use the pool during the quiz period and were thus kept in good shape. However, Coach Reilly issued a call for intensive practice from now on, as the Scarlet varsity faces a particularly ambitious schedule. A stiff scrimmage greeted the Scarlet water poloists on their return. It was the most promising workout of the season, the varsity scoring at will on the second combination, which was composed of freshmen, ineligible, and substitutes. Marquette, who has just been declared eligible, had Rosenbaum and Cronin as his running mates on the forward line, while Phillips, at goal, and Harris and Creem, at the halfback posts, were able to repulse the feeble thrusts of the second team at will.

Fresh Swim Meet

The yearling swimmers were sent through some stiff workouts in preparation for the meet with James Madison High School this Saturday.

The boxers and wrestlers enjoyed several

SWEEL AND HODDESON IN N. Y. A. C. TOURNEY

Rutgers' two undefeated varsity wrestlers, Johnny Sweel and Al Hoddeson, will compete in the New York Athletic Club's wrestling tourney at its new clubhouse in New York city, tomorrow night. Sweel will grapple in the 160-pound class and Hoddeson will wrestle in the 118-pound class.

Neither has been beaten in intercollegiate competition this season. Sweel having won both his bouts in the City College of New York and Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute meets on falls, and Hoddeson scoring a draw and a fall in the City College and Brooklyn Polytechnic, respectively.

Two other Scarlet exponents of holds planned to enter the tourney, but failure to register in time will prevent Clarence Howard, heavyweight, from making his appearance, and poor condition has forced Willis Bilderback, 145-pounder, to give up his chances of competing.

CROSS-COUNTRY MANAGERS

Selection of cross-country managers for next season has been announced by the Council on Athletics. Edward N. Watman automatically becomes senior manager. Arthur Mintz was selected as junior manager, and Harold A. Skaterian of Rutherford, Abraham Galush of Bayonne, and Elwood B. Fake of Rutherford as sophomore assistants.

PROF. SLAUGHTER TO SPEAK

Professor H. E. Slaughter, of the University of Chicago, will address the combined math clubs of Rutgers and N. J. C. on March 13. The visit will be one of the five made on his tour of eastern colleges between the second and third terms at Chicago. His itinerary includes addresses at Lehigh and Lafayette on the two days preceding his visit to Rutgers, and Swarthmore and Haverford on the two days following.

Sleuthful Sophs Discover Place of Frosh Banquet But Ignorance of Terrain Proves Big Handicap

Despite the numerous precautions taken by the freshmen to keep the place and time of their banquet a secret, the news leaked out through sundry devious channels that tonight was the date. This information, which had been circulated for several days, was verified last night. By process of deduction and elimination, the battle leaders of the Class of 1931 easily ascertained the time.

But the place! An entirely different matter. While the college limits the date to three days, there is no such restriction of locality. By trickery and strategy of the highest order, the sophomores learned that the yearling gathering was to take place on Staten Island in the Masonic club. But, alas! There are three such edifices in the Borough of Richmond. Trusting that Great Kills was too inaccessible, the second year men went to work to eliminate either the Port Richmond or the Stapleton hall.

After considerable telephoning and secret service endeavor, the Stapleton Masonic club was found to be the scene of activities. This club, which is located on Bay street, but a few blocks from the U. S. Marine hospital, presented a problem in that very few of the warlike sophomores knew enough of the island to locate the town, let alone the street.

Those freshmen who were not confined to the various prisons which spring up at banquet time were saved the fear of spending a night in the unexplored wilds of the island. This plight, laughable as it may seem in our present civilized state, is a serious problem for strangers in Staten Island, where every tenth block gives rise to a new village.

Many sophomores, who would otherwise have attended the frosh convivial meeting, were absentees because of this very ignorance of the land across the water.

But as Aesop said some thousand years ago, "All things come to him who waits," and so the sophomores learned of the first year banquet long before many of the freshmen had an inkling of its place and time.

FRATERNITY ALUMNI ESTABLISH COUNCIL

Purpose to Assist Administration and Act in Advisory Capacity to Campus Chapters

The Rutgers University Interfraternity Alumni association, whose purpose will be to cooperate with the active chapters in the conduct of fraternity affairs, to act as an advisory body to the local chapters, and to work with the University administrative officials to the best interests of the fraternities and the University, was formed on Friday night when alumni representatives of all but three of the fraternities on the campus met at the Machinery club, New York city. Bryce I. MacDonald '14, of the Ivy club, was elected president, and Samuel G. Blackman Jr. '27, of Theta Zeta, was chosen secretary.

Among the speakers were President John M. Thomas and Graduate Manager and Head Football Coach Harry J. Rockefeller '16. Dean Fraser Metzger was temporary chairman of the body.

Those present were: Delta Phi—Vreeland Tompkins '93, William C. Sherwood '92; Zeta Psi—Harry B. Carpenter '24, James F. Mackay '23; Delta Upsilon—Edward H. Brill '14, Richard Segoin '08; Delta Kappa Epsilon—Ridgeway F. Moon '04, Ralph D. Van Duzer '07; Chi Psi—Sam C. Schenck '89, Arthur C. Busch '15, Hugh Haddow '97; Beta Theta Pi—Paul J. ### DR. R. LANESBURGH AT Y.W.C.A.

Dr. Richard Lanesburgh, Professor of Industry at the University of Pennsylvania, will speak on "Machine Unemployment" at the New Brunswick Y. W. C. A., February 5, at 8 p. m. "Machine Unemployment" is one of the phases of the new industrial revolution and is already becoming a community problem in New Brunswick. The Business and Industrial Departments of the "Y" invite all students to attend this lecture.

Chanticleer Staff Issues "Fraternity Number"; Two New Features Cause Favorable Comment

Copies of the "Fraternity Number" of the Chanticleer appeared on the campus yesterday, much to the glee of the undergraduates. This humor organ, whose circulation is increasing rapidly, bore as its cover design, the portrait of a newly initiated brother. In addition to the usual features of the periodical, there were two innovations.

One of these was a semi-permanent hack-column entitled "Fresh Eggs," succeeding "Chanty's Eggs," the former medium for jibes at local characters and characteristics. Although the authors of this atrocity assured their friends that they were in total ignorance of its existence, they are both carrying one-way tickets to Patagonia in their wallets. When interviewed one of them said, "There are two poor jests in the column, but they are not products of my mind. The good ones are my brain-children."

The other novelty was the inauguration of a guessing contest entitled, "What house is this," which undergraduates claim will supplant the archaic crossword puzzles found in 99 per cent of present day publications. In addition to its novelty, the originator of this feature calls the attention of his readers to the many hints which aid in solution, thus increasing the satisfaction of subscribers. He expressly noted such outstanding items as the Raritan bathed sweetheart, the only Dutch windmill operating in a fraternity dormitory, the lone Alpha-housed tailor shop, and the famous showers. Puffing his pipe nonchalantly, he reminisced and recalled the famous sophomore roof occupation, the use of College avenue as a roller skating rink, the memorable piano marathon, and the croquet tournament of the past spring.

With these improvements, which the students hope will be continued, "Chanty" officially opened the second semester, continuing in its policy of making the sun shine on the banks of the Raritan.

Debate Candidates to Meet In Fine Arts Room Friday

Varsity and freshman debate candidates will meet in the Fine Arts room of Queens, Friday, at 1:15 p. m., according to Professor Richard C. Reager, coach of debate. All candidates and managers must be present at the meeting or send written notice to the coach or John R. Sutphen '29. Assignments to various groupings will be made at the meeting and discussion of future plans will take place. The final schedule will be announced at this time.

FRATERNITY CHEF DIES SUDDENLY

C. A. Watson, Phi Gam Cook, Had Been With Chapter For Five Years

WAS GRADUATE OF YALE

Charles A. Watson, chef of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity for the past five years, passed away at that house Wednesday, January 23. A charter member of the Yale chapter of the fraternity, Watson was one of the oldest living brothers playing an active part in the national functions of the organization.

Frederick C. LeRocker '30, a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, discovered the body of the man Wednesday morning. Coroner Charles E. Darling was called to investigate the body and pronounced that the death was due to natural causes.

Funeral services were held at the college chapel Saturday afternoon at four, Dr. David Pales Hill, professor of the Bible, officiating. Dr. Hill was a fraternity brother of the deceased man. Horace I. Brighton, president of the fraternity, was present at the services. Prominent members of the Rutgers faculty who attended the exercises were Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the university, and Dean Fraser Metzger, dean of men. Interment took place at Hartford, Connecticut.

Mr. Watson was a member of the Class of 1876 at Yale, and, with Calvin Coolidge and Newton D. Baker was a "gold star" member of the fraternity. He is reported to have been quite wealthy at one time. He began his career at Rutgers when the local chapter of his fraternity was in the midst of steward difficulties. He assumed charge of the board department and put things into running order in a short while. He was deeply loved by the undergraduates and his guiding hand in fraternity matters was keenly felt by all of the members.

BEN BERNIE'S ORCHESTRA TO PLAY AT '30 PROM

Ben Bernie's Orchestra will provide the music at the junior prom, according to an announcement by Charles A. Freeman, Jr. '30, chairman of that prom committee, Monday. It was previously stated that Jack Pettis and His Pets would perform. However, Pettis, who is affiliated with Bernie, will direct the orchestra at the function on Washington's Birthday. Freeman also announced that the favors, conical combination paperweights and cigarette lighters, would be distributed to the earliest ticket purchasers.

Sizes of the booths will vary, and the fraternities and living groups first to dispose of their allotments of tickets will have the early choice of locations.

Since the decision to have dancing in both the upper and lower gymnasiums was made public, speculation as to the means of how the music would be magnified in the upper section has been rife. It is probable that this will be accomplished by the use of resonators.

JUNIOR BANQUET IN MARCH

The Smokeshop in Red Bank, N. J., will probably be the scene of the Junior Banquet, to be held about the middle of March, according to James R. Digney '30, who is now conferring with Dr. Fraser Metzger, dean of men, to decide the date and place definitely. Several well-known artists are under consideration to furnish entertainment at the banquet.

DR. VAN DER MEULEN SPEAKS

Peter A. van der Meulen, Professor of Chemistry, spoke on "Atoms and Molecules" before the Rutgers chapter of Sigma Xi, National Honorary Chemistry Society, at an open meeting in the chemistry building, Monday, January 21. Dr. Wilfred J. Jackson, Professor of physics at N. J. C., and Fred H. Dill '27 were initiated.

EIGHTEEN GAMES ON 1929 PROGRAM OF RUTGERS NINE

Princeton to Oppose Scarlet In First and Last Tilts Of Long Schedule

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

Nine Letter Winners Form Nucleus; Strong Reserves Available

Eighteen games, eleven of them home contests, are listed on the Rutgers varsity baseball schedule for this spring, announced recently by Graduate Manager Harry J. Rockefeller. Only fourteen tilts were held last season.

Games with Princeton will open and close the schedule, the first being held at Princeton, April 6, and the final one, June 8 here. Home and home contests also are listed with Lafayette and Lehigh.

Eight opponents who were not on the Scarlet card last year will be met. They are: Ursinus, Lehigh, Pennsylvania, City College of New York, Muhlenberg, Stevens, Manhattan and Syracuse. The remainder of the schedule is made up of contests with Princeton, New York University, Fordham, Union, Lafayette, Swarthmore, and Seton Hall.

Columbia, Holy Cross, William and Mary, and New York Athletic Club, with whom games were played last season, will not oppose the Scarlet this year.

With nine of the 1928 letter winners returning, and with several of last year's freshmen competing for positions, prospects for a good season are excellent. The record for 1928 was nine wins and five defeats, and this spring probabilities are that the results will be even better, barring injuries.

Pitching Staff Strong

Bert Garrett, the leading college pitcher in the East last year, who turned in nine victories without a defeat, will again be on the mound for Rutgers. Karl Gordinier, who proved very strong in the box during his first two years and who was unable to play last season because of a shoulder injury sustained in football, is expected back and should greatly strengthen the Scarlet staff. Mike DeMucchio, varsity twirler for two years, also will see service, and the addition of Fred Astley and Cliff Hantke from the freshman ranks should round out a pitching staff worthy of any team.

The loss of Gregg Hibbs by graduation has seriously hurt the catching staff, but Ed Gasparini, varsity veteran, and Johnny Sweel, of last year's cubs, will divide the work between them.

Joe Irwin, varsity first baseman two years ago who was ineligible last year, is the outstanding candidate for first base, although Charley Alioth '31 may give him a run for the place. Tex Rosen and Whitey Stager will battle for the second base position, and Mike Pecora should see his second year at shortstop. Tony Bliss, regular third sacker for two years,

BOXING TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD FEB. 14

Two Weeks' Training is Necessary in Order to Participate

Thursday night, February 14, is the new date set for the second boxing tournament of the season to be held under the auspices of the Physical Training department in Ballantine gymnasium. Entry blanks will be available within a few days and will be issued only to those men who have had at least two weeks' training.

Boxing instruction will be resumed tomorrow night and Coach Jim Manley will conduct practice every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday night from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Most of the men who participated in the last tournament on December 10 are preparing for the coming bouts.

Joe McGough '29 and Max Peskoe '29 will probably swap gloves again in the 145-pound class. Peskoe won a close decision in an extra round when they met in December. Eli Fischer '32, George Duffy '29, and Marty Jelin '31 are in good shape and are ready to defend the honors which they won in the last series of bouts.

Ray Gotthardt, who scored the only knockout in the December tournament, may not compete and Harry Frost '31 is still recuperating from the broken wrist he received in the first round of his scrap with George Cronin '31.

George Cronin and Bill Marquette '31, who provided much of the color in the December fracas, will probably be seen in action again. Fliv Shedden, star varsity tackle, is taking light workouts and if shoulder injuries, received on the gridiron, permit, may box in the heavyweight class.

The New Rutgers Wipes Out Old Rutgers

Another term has passed into history. In fact, we have already started on the final lap of the year and look back to the first half of the 1928-29 session with a variety of feelings. As far as can be determined now, the semester recently completed with a successful one, both to the University and to the undergraduates.

Although no definite figures have been given out regarding the number who are forced to leave us because of scholastic difficulties, it is certain that but few have reached the limit of their allowed "flunk" hours. Nearly everyone seemed to get either fair or good marks and it is safe to predict that the number receiving high honor will be larger than it was at the close of last year.

All of which means but little on the surface. However, when we consider the situation more closely, we wonder what is happening at Rutgers. Is the fact that so few "bust out" due to such stringent entrance requirements that those who get in are in to stay? Some universities with requirements equally as difficult as ours make it a practice to drop hundreds after each examination period. And what does this rapidly growing list of honor men indicate? Over 10% of the men in the University attained high honor ranking for the year 1927-28 according to the list announced several days ago. Does that mean that Rutgers has an unusually intelligent enrollment? We should attempt to answer these questions ourselves but we hesitate to do so as we believe that everyone can answer them to his own satisfaction.

Now reports come to us that plans are under way for the discontinuance of the Litt.B. degree as it is now—that it will be given only to those taking the curriculum of journalism so that this branch will have more individuality and distinction. The Bachelor of Arts degree, under the plan, would be given to all others in the College of Liberal Arts.

When we hear of this, we rise up in wrath. Rutgers, the old Rutgers, will soon be unable to recognize itself. Starting as a classical institution providing an education in the arts to a small group of students, it now becomes a great university with nothing in it to remind one of the past. During this growth, we have had the satisfaction that in Liberal Arts, some of the old traits remained—that a study of the classics, Greek or Latin, was the basis for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. And now that, too, is leaving us and we object strenuously.

Perhaps we are old-fashioned and too conservative. That may be true but still we want some remnants of Old Queens. Why can't we keep this last bit of likeness in the one college that has clung to the original?

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:
I regret that you gave a conspicuous place in the last number of THE TARGUM to the news item concerning the charge of embezzlement of Mr. Merrill E. Gates, Jr. The charge has not been sustained, and those who know Mr. Gates are confident that his explanation will be satisfactory. Mr. Gates' record is that of a man of high honor and of a fine type of citizenship. He has given freely of his time to the unpaid service of the Legal Aid society which protects the rights of those too poor to prosecute their oppressors in the courts.

The unfortunate feature of such publicity is that the stain remains on the character of men, even when innocence is established. The truth never overtakes the falsehood. It is only fair that you should follow the case to the end, and if Mr. Gates should prove himself guiltless of fraud that you should give the vindication equal publicity and your readers a suitable apology.

Very truly yours,
HENRY E. COBB, D.D.,
West End Collegiate Church, New York city.

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:
I deplore that such feelings animate men at Rutgers as are expressed in an item quoted from THE TARGUM in the last issue of the Rutgers Alumni Monthly. I write out of strong feeling and the most earnest desire to influence thought toward what seem to me to be somewhat nobler views. Even if it be self defense, my thesis may still be true.

The fellow who wrote the letter to THE TARGUM in which he called some of his fellow students "those creatures," "the something for nothing boys," is horribly blind. I shall not call him nasty names, but I sincerely hope that in time he will learn to know something of the things that move men, that he will learn to pity and not to hate those who have not something which he has or thinks he has. That is for his own sake. For those whom he so characterizes, pity is not the thing. Sympathy and respect for some, and sorrow with and help for others.

Does he know what it means to be poor and with ambition? To be a peasant or a laborer by birth and to have a determination to reach beyond his starting place? American millionaires who made their own fortunes are vastly admired by young men who snob the "something for nothing boys." American universities name halls and football fields after these "something for nothing boys" who squeezed dollars out of life and who buy for themselves the respect and honor they cannot otherwise attain to. I do not sympathize with that admiration. I condemn the selfish motives which move some men to fight against odds unfairly. But I do not condemn, and it is unspeakable to curse men so, who by force of the circumstances for which they cannot be called to account, have never become rounded, generous, fine men—cultured gentlemen. No cultured man, I feel sure, would ever permit himself such venom.

When I was at college, a fellow came to school with manure on his boots; with dirty, greasy hair reaching to his shoulders. They persecuted him out: these clean young men of good families. There was no thought of his needs. There was no generosity. The unmitigated hatred of the herd took its toll. And if it had been Einstein or Jaques Loeb they would have done the same. We do not know how many others have been wounded and their upward course reversed. It is suggested that all such be eliminated by financial pressure.

Such a course must be justified by some desirable social aim. Do you think it so important for the social good that men unkempt, of ill manners, should be segregated from you or you from them? Are you so afraid for your own fineness that you must be protected from the contaminating influence? Can you not afford to give some of yourself, to teach by example? Are you then less individually selfish, and therefore despicable, than he who wants something for nothing because he has nothing and thinks life owes him something?

The exclusionist is always a coward. He cannot meet the competition and he is afraid for himself. Therefore, he arouses the prejudices of the group to protect him against invasion. He is inside the line and he wants to close the gates in front of the other fellows.

Good manners and clean ways are admirable. It is hard to accept as classmates those who do not have them. Each man and each group of men has some right to privacy free from unpleasant contacts, somewhere. The place and extent of that privacy are, however, subject to social demands. Rutgers as a whole is no longer a private spot. To again make it so, if ever it was, means to deprive men, who as a class have in common only the single quality of poverty, of the opportunities it affords and probably of all similar opportunities. If the division were to be made on the basis of character and not money or social position, I should probably still disagree, but there would be at least a tone of decency. That is not the suggestion, however. Men whose minds have been opened to some sympathy for the sufferings of men in general will not demand that a pleasant private social institution be established at the expense of those who have the greatest needs. Members of the race and nation of Jefferson and Lincoln can only be true to the ideals of that race and nation by showing generosity even to the mean and selfish.

And some of those who want an education and cannot pay for it are not mean, not selfish. Some of them will repay the broad view which affords them what they most require, many times over the cost for all, by their work.

Respectfully yours,
ERVIN SANDER FLOP '25.

To the Editor of THE TARGUM:
The truth frequently hurts, and unwarranted statements are sometimes things to conjure with. However, I should advise the writer of the letter recently published in THE TARGUM to be more thorough the next time he makes the commuter the subject of his sociological research. The facts set forth concerning the activities of commuters in the gym and the library are true to a certain extent but had the writer investigated further he would have made the interesting discovery that these commuters all hail from a certain city and by no means constitute the typical commuter as his letter would seem to indicate.

If the writer were to spend some time endeavoring to study amid the noise and confusion in the library stacks his consistent hearing of such phrases as "in our house" and "over in the dorm" might partially convince him that a goodly portion of the noise can be attributed to men other than commuters.

The writer being a senior should have definite convictions as to the class of men that hang up their "Ts" by virtue of their technique as course-crabbers and tendon-strainers. I lack his seniority by one year, but from my personal observations I expect to be numbered among Rutgers' gray-haired alumni before the commuters develop the raw fundamentals of the art of course-crabbing into the science that the constant practice by fraternity men and dormitory dwellers, especially the former, have made it.

Generally speaking, a commuter is as welcome among a group of fraternity men as a Republican in Tammany Hall. Usually they will speak to him, but if he makes any further advances he is very often placed under the suspicion of "trying to make a fraternity." Fraternity men and even the dorm inhabitants if possible sit and talk together and are cold to any attempt on the part of a commuter to enter into their conversations or break up their sitting arrangement. So it is unusual for the commuter to stay with his friend rather than mingling among men who evidently are not desirous of his company.

This is not always the situation, but the attitude I have just described is that generally taken toward the commuter. He is regarded more or less as the "black sheep of the college" by the men who live on the campus and even the university authorities make but few efforts to make his college life more pleasant. I have been told that several years ago a Commuters' club was formed and the president applied to the university authorities for a club-room, but was told that this was impossible as the university wished to discourage commuting. It is high time that both the university and the resident students recognize that for some students commuting is a necessity. Should they then not seek to make life easier for them rather than totally ignoring them or passing them with a more or less mechanical greeting?

Most commuters would like to live at college, but due to straitened finances or other good reasons they find it impossible. The Quad room in Winants is virtually the only room available to the commuter for rest or light recreation, but that is intended for the roomers in Winants and it is they who use it.

In regard to student activities the commuters do participate in many of these extra-curricular doings but commuting usually affords one but little time for such participation.

Like the writer, I have a point and I endorse his statement concerning the strong degree of fellowship—so strong in fact, that it is an unusual commuter who can break into it. I wonder also whether the commuters' so-called "rabble" is to be called less cultural than the lazy indifference of many fraternity men. My point is then, that the commuters can undoubtedly conduct themselves as gentlemen and that they can and do uphold Rutgers' traditions as well as do any of the resident students and I question the right of any man who either ignores or endures a commuter rather than treating him as a friend to be called a true Rutgers man.

Hollywood Studios

(This is the first of a series of articles on studies of Hollywood by Virgil M. Pinkley, editor of the University of South California "Daily Trojan." Another will appear in THE TARGUM at an early date.)

What can you learn from a man in three minutes? Perhaps the best answer would hinge on who the man is. The writer had three minutes with Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation, and learned a great deal.

"Know what you want, go get it, have a purpose in life, always give more than is expected, know your field, don't try to beat a master at his own game, work with a fixed purpose," and many other expressions were uttered by Jesse Lasky as he drew quick conclusions to each statement.

Mr. Lasky is a pioneer and one of the foremost motion picture producers in the world today.

Jesse Lasky attended the University of Santa Clara. His chief associate in the Hollywood studios is B. P. Schulberg from the City College of New York. The millions of dollars that are spent annually by the Paramount studios goes through the hands of these college-trained men. They place the studio's approval on the selection of a picture, or the signing of an actor or writer. Upon their judgment, the success of their company depends.

After talking with Jesse Lasky and watching him work in the studio, one can easily understand why his company has won a majority of the awards for the best picture made during each of the past five years over all other studios combined. He walks through the studio with a springy, quick step. His eyes move in all directions and he makes mental notes as he surveys all that is going on. Although a young man, he has the knowledge and experience of men many years his senior.

"The trouble with the average college graduate," he said, "is that he does not know what he wants. How is anyone in a studio going to place a young man or woman when they have no idea of what they would like to do?"

"This studio is looking for young men and women. We want young blood, provided it is capable of doing the work required. Not long ago, I had a successful maker of golf clubs ask me for a position. When I asked him what he could do, he replied all he had ever done was make golf clubs. My advice to him was to continue to make golf clubs."

That was the story Jesse Lasky told the writer when asked how a college man or woman could get into motion pictures.

He was asked about "pull," and answered, "Talk of 'pull' is common among those on the outside. Do you think we are going to spend thousands of dollars and months of work by all departments, and then let unskilled persons handle the work and make a failure of it? The rule of every studio is to place capable people in positions, because pictures must make money if a company is to continue to make them."

One of the methods used by Jesse Lasky to create interest among all those individuals employed by Paramount is the establishment of two large boards which record day by day the time schedule of new pictures and the box office success enjoyed by pictures already released.

During the year 1927, the picture "Underworld" directed by Joseph von Sternberg, featuring an all-star cast, won first place based on box office receipts. The picture elevated George Bancroft to stardom and the director was awarded $10,000.

The other board has the name of every picture being made, on what stage or location it is being filmed, the director, the star, or cast and the number of days it is ahead, or behind schedule. While the boards are only one of the many plans used by Jesse Lasky to promote economy in the studio and interest on the part of every employee, others could be given if space allowed. From Jesse L. Lasky down to the office boys, college trained men and women are found in the Paramount studios and more such men and women are needed and wanted.

SCARLET FROSH BEAT PEDDIE QUINTET, 29-22

Jack Grossman is Star for Rutgers in Yearlings' Opening Game

Rutgers freshman basketball team opened its schedule with a 29 to 22 victory over the Peddie quintet of Hightstown, N. J., in a speedy contest at Ballantine gymnasium, Wednesday afternoon, January 16. The Scarlet five rolled up a good lead in the first period and although the Hightstown dribblers tied the score at half time and again in the third quarter, Coach Hill's proteges took the offensive for the major part of the game, easily gaining a safe margin in the final period. ## PROF. MILLER DIRECTS LECTURE TOUR ABROAD

Members of engineering colleges desiring to study industrial and labor conditions abroad will be eligible for a European tour sponsored by the School of Foreign Travel, from July 3 to August 23, 1929. The trip will be conducted by Professor Norman C. Miller, director of the Rutgers University extension division.

Professor G. T. Schwenning, associate professor of business administration at the University of North Carolina, will give a course in labor management, which will be awarded college credit by his university; and Professor George W. Kelsey, of the Rutgers extension division, will teach a course in industrial organization and administration for which college credit will be offered by Rutgers. Lectures will be held on board ship and during the course of the tour and will be supplemented by visits to many of the largest industrial plants in England, Belgium, France, and Germany.

Members of the party will be entertained by chambers of commerce and other civic organizations in Europe and will be given every opportunity to compare practices and processes abroad with those in America.

An attractive circular has been prepared by Professor Miller, outlining the tour in detail, which will be sent to any Rutgers men upon application at the extension office in Winants hall.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS SOURCE OF VARSITY

Varsity athletes at Lafayette College will be chosen from the ranks of intramural teams, according to Coach "Herb" McCracken of the varsity football team in a talk last week at a dinner to the Lafayette all-campus football team. Coach McCracken announced that he hoped to invite to the varsity football camp each fall several of the men from the all-campus team of the previous year.

It was announced that in future seasons the all-campus football team may be selected during the middle of the campus football league and coached by the varsity coaches for a game with the freshman team at the close of the varsity season.

LAND CONNECTIONS EXPLAINED BY DR. SCOTT

Princeton Professor Speaks Before Scientific Society

Dr. William Berryman Scott, professor and head of the department of geology and oldest professor in point of service at Princeton university, was the speaker at the 60th anniversary meeting of the New Brunswick Scientific society in Van Dyke hall last night.

In introducing the speaker, Dr. Albert O. Hayes, president of the society and professor and head of the department of geology at Rutgers, outlined the career which has placed Dr. Scott in the foremost ranks of geologists and has made him the world's foremost authority on fossil animals of North and South America.

Opening his talk on "Former Land Connections of South America, with Reference to Antarctica," Professor Scott lauded Rutgers for naming the new physics building after Dr. Francis Cuyler Van Dyke, a leader in natural sciences at Rutgers and for many years president of the society.

The speaker mentioned the relation between former land animals and the periods in which they lived, declaring that it is by such means that geologists determine past periods of the earth's existence, and he said that the earth is better without animals of the type which roamed about it in the so-called prehistoric ages.

Dr. Scott also called attention to the evidence of previous land connections between South America and Africa across the Atlantic Ocean and in an arc largely composed of the continent of Antarctica.

Dr. Hayes expressed the appreciation of the society for the address. After the lecture members and guests were given an opportunity to examine microscopical exhibits and a collection of old and new microscopes.

RELATIONS COMMITTEE COMPLETES RESEARCH

Survey of the relationship of Rutgers university to the State of New Jersey has been completed and the report of the legislative committee named to investigate it has been placed in the hands of the printer, it was announced Saturday. The report is said to be favorable to the continuation of the relationship of the state to Rutgers under a revised plan for financing this relationship.

The report will probably embody a recommendation that the state enter into a contract with Rutgers for the education of the young men and women of New Jersey, the state agreeing to pay for this education and also to provide the necessary buildings. This is understood to be acceptable to the authorities of the university.

It is said the legal opinion that will be annexed to the report will state that the state under the present plan has been making appropriations to Rutgers illegally. A recommendation will be included in the legal opinion that the state continue its support of Rutgers, but under a contractual plan.

eral stiff workouts during the recess as the upper gym was always available. Coach Manley's mittmen are training strenuously in preparation for the winter boxing tourney which is to take place sometime in the near future.

The track squad will make its first appearance of the indoor season at the Millrose A. C. meet in New York City, Saturday, February 9. Coach Wefers will enter a varsity one-mile relay team in the games, competing against Brown, New Hampshire State and M. I. T. No definite team has been chosen, but Captain Jack Carney and Wally Sullivan will probably form the nucleus of the 1929 relay combination.

Although no definite schedule has been planned for the indoor season Coach

Wefers is planning to enter the Seton Hall, St. Joseph's and New York University meets.

The fencers will open their season, meeting St. John's of Brooklyn at Ballantine gymnasium, Saturday. The encounter will consist of only foils bouts. Captain Frank Martin and Al Hedefine are to represent the Scarlet with a team-mate to be selected in a series of elimination bouts being held in this week's practice sessions.

Who are planning to enter the Business World

What Other College Men Have Done With Kresge

"Graduating from Western Reserve University in 1921, I began business life with an idea that I was fitted for managerial work. I left my comfortable desk work and started in the stockroom. Then I worked successively as floor manager, assistant manager, and manager.

I then received my biggest promotion, and today I am happily located in an executive position, with increased responsibilities. The financial return that has come to me exceeds all that I had expected."

Colby B. S. '15—Wesleyan M. S. 1917—A Phi Beta Kappa man became an instructor until 1920, then assistant head chemist for an Eastern manufacturer until 1922 when he entered the Kresge organization to take the training course. He is now a manager of a Kresge store and claims: "Today I find myself receiving a greater income than the teachers and industrial acquaintances who sought to discourage me for making such a radical change of occupation."

A Missouri University graduate enthusiastically relates the following: "In June of 1923, just after I had been presented with my much treasured sheepskin, a gray haired gentleman with years of experience said to me: 'Just what the future holds for you will depend largely on the seeds you sow during the next few years. Take my advice and select some good company, begin at the bottom and work your way to the top.'

I followed his advice by starting in the stockroom of a Kresge store on December 8, 1923.

Today I am managing my first store, happy in the thought that I am on the road to success."

AFTER the years of college then there comes to many men the most trying period of their careers. What place does the world have for them? For what niche has their training best suited them? Where do they fit?

It is to these seniors who have not yet fully decided on their future that this advertisement is addressed.

The S. S. Kresge Company has an opportunity for college men who are ambitious enough and capable enough to reach the top—yet who are willing to start at the bottom. These men we train to be store managers and to occupy other executive positions—well paid positions involving a share in the Kresge profits. The men selected are given intensive preparation for their future executive positions, they are instructed in every detail of store management and they are advanced as rapidly as they become familiar with the Kresge policy and the Kresge methods of merchandising. The work is not easy but the reward is not small—an executive position in the Kresge organization which operates 510 stores with an annual volume of business close to $150,000,000.

If a career such as those described here appeals to you, write our Personnel Department and a Kresge representative will be sent to give you a personal interview.

What Others Have Done You Can Do

A Bucknell College graduate writes:

"After graduating from college with the degree of B. S. and M. A. I accepted a position as Chemistry instructor in a small college. After two years as an instructor, I became dissatisfied and decided to enter the business world.

I became acquainted with an enthusiastic Kresge manager, who gladly explained their system of training men to become store managers. Shortly after that I started in the stockroom, received promotions according to my ability to earn them, and today although a successful store manager I am in line for still greater responsibilities.

I know of no other organization where a man's efforts will be better repaid than with the Kresge Company."

An alumnus of the University of Michigan class of 1922 says: "The most important problem confronting me the last semester in school was choosing the 'job' that would begin when campus days were over. To make the right start in the business world was my ambition. I turned down several soft snap jobs, the kind that paid fairly well to start but held no future, for a stockroom job with the Kresge Company which paid little to start but offered a definite future. I combined my education with good common sense, and after applying myself diligently, I was rapidly promoted to greater responsibilities.

Today I am manager of a good sized store, and gladly recommend the Kresge Company as a means to a definite end, providing you possess the necessary qualifications and a whole hearted desire to succeed."

ENGINEERS TO STUDY HIGHWAY PROBLEMS

Annual Short Course Will Include Construction, Maintenance and Equipment

Fourth of the annual short courses in Highway Engineering will be given at the College of Engineering at Rutgers, February 4 to 23, according to an announcement by Acting Dean Robert C. H. Heck. The object of the course is to offer intensive and comprehensive instruction in the subject that now confronts New Jersey as a most important problem. The course will bring together engineers and contractors who are interested in street and highway problems of the state. The lecturers in the course will include men of local as well as national importance.

Subjects to be covered by the three weeks' course include such topics as construction, maintenance, drainage, traffic investigation, road laws, and equipment. It will include class room recitation, laboratory work, and investigation trips to the new Hudson river bridge, the Newark bay bridge, the Standard Oil company plant at Bayonne, and the arch highway bridge at New Brunswick. Specialized work in the design of highway structures will be offered to students in an "Elementary Course in Structural Design."

The official directory for the course will include President John M. Thomas, Dr. Robert C. H. Heck, acting dean of the College of Engineering, Stuart A. Stephenson, associate professor of Civil Engineering, and William G. Sloan, State highway engineer.

SULLIVAN IS ELECTED SPIKED SHOE LEADER

E. Wallace Sullivan, of Seaside Heights, was elected president of the Rutgers chapter of Spiked Shoe, national honorary track fraternity, at a recent meeting of the organization. Sullivan has been a member of the varsity team for the past two seasons, competing in the hurdles and middle distance events and running on the relay team.

The other officers elected were: James F. Shelden, of New York City, vice-president; John M. Carney, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., secretary; and Alfred J. Beattie, of East Orange, treasurer. At the meeting the society decided to take action to secure a suitable plaque for the college records in Ballantine gymnasium to replace the present inadequate provisions.

TEMPLE BOOKS 22 GAMES

Temple University will play twenty-two varsity baseball games this spring, according to an announcement by undergraduate manager Earl R. Yeomans. There are eight newcomers including Tufts, Haverford, Schuylkill, St. John's, of Brooklyn; Dickinson, Hampden-Sidney, Delaware and Penn State.

Conacher Plays Two Games Of Hockey Without Penalty

Lionel Conacher, one of the Rutgers assistant football coaches and "bad" man of the hockey world has finally convinced the sports world that "it's a long road that has no turning," "the worm hath turned," or what have you. Conacher not only played through two consecutive games without having a foul called on him, but he also established a record in so doing.

In a recent contest against the Montreal Maroons, Conacher played the entire seventy minutes. This establishes a record, which, while it may be tied, can never be surpassed, as the rules allow for only seventy minutes of play. Thus, we find the man who has gained an international reputation as a hard, rough player, establishing a record for clean play. It's a queer world, isn't it?

LOU ZARA, OF RIDER HIGH SCORER IN EAST

Has Caged Seventy-two Field Goals and Forty-three Fouls

Lou Zara, star forward of the Rider College quintet of Trenton, leads the Eastern collegiate basketball players in scoring with a total of 187 points as the result of caging 72 field goals and 43 fouls in 12 games. His nearest rival is Charley Hyatt, Pittsburgh center, who has accounted for 159 counters to date.

Stretch Alton, forward, is the Rutgers high scorer with 55 points in seven contests.

Rider College and Fordham University are the leading teams with 12 victories and no defeats, and ten triumphs and no setbacks respectively. Rutgers has won five and lost two thus far. The records:

J. NEILSON ENTERTAINS N. J. C. QUAIR STAFF

Members of the business and editorial boards of the Quair, N. J. C. yearbook, were the guests of James Neilson, trustee of the university, who is entertaining twenty students at his home, Woodlawn.

This is the fourth consecutive year that the staff has been entertained by Mr. Neilson. In 1926 the juniors composing the board of the 1927 Quair found after their mid-year examinations they had so much work to do that they decided to remain in their dormitories during the recess. Mr. Neilson invited the group, then a small one, to spend the time at his home, chaperoned by a college representative. For several days they combined work with pleasure, enjoying the house and gardens of Mr. Neilson's estate and finishing up the work on the junior annual.

The following year, although the Quair board had been somewhat enlarged, Mr. Neilson again invited the group, and again a large part of the final work was done at Woodlawn. Last year the 1929 Quair staff enjoyed almost a week of Mr. Neilson's hospitality, and the class of 1930 was represented by twenty girls who were his guests over the past week-end.

CHANTICLEER MEETING

Chanticleer editorial staff will hold a meeting in the Chanticleer office Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. All material for the Junior Prom issue must be turned in by February 2.

S. PARKER GILBERT '12 DENIES PRESS REPORT

In a wireless statement from the French liner Paris to the New York Times yesterday, S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations under the Dawes Plan, declared emphatically that he did not bear any message or "caution" from Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric company. He thus made it clear that neither he nor J. P. Morgan wished to serve as chairman of the international commission in the final settlement of German reparations. His message was sent in reply to a report stating that he was the bearer of "an informal caution" to Germany published in a New York newspaper yesterday.

WEEKLY CONCERT AT N. J. C.

Robert M. Crawford, baritone, and his wife, Claire Crawford, pianist, will present a program of vocal and piano solos at Voorhees chapel, New Jersey College for Women, Sunday afternoon at four. The recital will consist of selections from Brahms, Debussy, Tcherenine, and modern English and American composers.

The weekly concerts at Voorhees chapel are arranged by J. Earl Newton, Director of Music at N. J. C., and are open to the students and faculty of Rutgers.

From old kettle to new world

SOMEbody has to believe in the big possibilities of little things. James Watt saw the lid of his tea-kettle dance—and today our civilization is built largely on steam.

In the field of communication, Bell saw the possibilities of a little vibrating diaphragm. Today from the telephone at his elbow a man talks to his next-door neighbor or across the continent, just as he chooses.

Men in the telephone industry, in commercial and administrative as well as technical work, are constantly proving that little suggestions, little ideas, little changes, when smoothly fitted into the comprehensive plan, may be big in possibilities of better public service.
